Freight Car Turns Locomotive Over Into Station

Defective Axle Blamed for Accident At Inkerman in Eastern Ontario

Inkerman, Ont., April 1 —(CP)— A defective freight-car axle was unofficially blamed today for a spectacular mishap which killed three Canadian Pacific railwaymen injured six other persons and left the wreckage of a locomotive and a score of cars littered along the double-track mainline.

Engineer Fred Flalo and Fireman Wallace Plunkett of nearby Smiths Falls were almost instantly killed when derailment of a speeding eastbound freight last night turned their passenger locomotive into the flimsy, wooden station of this Eastern Ontario town.

Section Foreman William Marvell, of Inkerman and Mountain, Ont., was fatally mauled by escaping steam as he stood in the station doorway. He died early this morning in Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Still in hospital at Ottawa, in serious condition with burns suffered when the wrecked locomotive poured searing sparks and steam into the station building, was Station Agent Edward Pennett. Hospital attendants said he was expected to recover.

Skin Clerk A. Slack of Smiths Falls, aboard the passenger train, suffered two broken ribs. Four other passenger crewmen—Conductor H. Guppy of Smiths Falls; his brakeman G. Cook of Ottawa, Ont.; Sectionman Asa Hanes of Inkerman and Conductor Alex MacDonald of Montreal—suffered minor hurts.

Thanks of Humble People Expressed

By D. E. BURRITT

London, April 1 (CP Cable)—The gratitude of humble people who lost everything in the bombing of London was expressed to the people of Canada today by Sir George Stephen, Lord Mayor of London, for generous donations of money and clothing and for the "splendid encouragement "which have come from even the remotest sections of the Dominion."

At an informal luncheon tendered by the Lord Mayor to Canadian newspapermen, Sir George said: "I realize that what we in London are doing for us is only a minor part of the great contribution that are making in the war effort, but on behalf of those who have lost everything I want to thank your generous folks for all they have done and are doing.

"People in all parts of our Dominion responded to the urgent call and Canada especially has played a tremendous part in helping succour our needy.

"Not only are they sending money and clothing but they are writing an amazing number of letters of sympathy and encouragement which I can say are deeply appreciated. We know from long years and actions that they are with us and that is a great comfort in these times of hardship and pain."

93 WITNESSES ARE EXAMINED

No Direct or Indirect Leakage Established to Nazi Pacific Raiders but No Proof Such Leakages Non-Existent

Auckland, New Zealand, April 1 (C.P. Cable)—After examining 93 witnesses, a commission investigating reports of information leakages from New Zealand to German Pacific raiders today declared that no direct or indirect leakages had been established and that it was not able to prove that such leakages are non-existent.

The commission report stated that the Nazis took considerable pains to impress on officers of captured vessels the omniscience of their intelligence service.

While rejecting the alarmist complaints of Wellington and Auckland vessels rescued from Emirau Island in December, the report criticizes Captain Miller, master of the steamship Holmwood, for not sending a radio message on the approach of suspicious vessels.

"We are fully aware that any attempt to send a message would have brought about a shelling of the Holmwood, which might have meant a heavy loss of life including women and children," the report said.

"But having regard for the methods of warfare with which we are faced the consideration of an irrelevant loss of civilian life must be faced in an effort to destroy the raiders . . . in this case the consequence of the failure to send a message probably were serious.

"Had a message been sent it probably would have been picked up by the Hor Rangitane, which later was sunk."

London, April 1 (CP). — Johnny Cain is a fishmonger and his boy business doesn't mean very much to him but his 15-year-old son Billy and his civilians who, in time of stress, act first and think about it afterwards, he was on the spot when the time came to test him to do his bit.

High-explosive bombs rained without let on a paint factory and Billy and his comrades in building was in flames. Fifteen-year-old Billy, who lives in Blackfriars, knew several people were trapped in the building.

With the help of four constables, he beat a way into the building. Shielding oil and paint poured down from floors above but Cain and the policemen speedily freed all men from the wreckage and carried them out doors and planks to ambulances. Then they searched the interior of the building collected.

"There would have been no chance for the trapped people had not Cain and the policemen—George Hubert Reed, John William Turner Mead, Roy Victory, Edward Slowley and Frederick Alan Tricker—accepted the risk with gallantry and courage," the London Gazette said that these five would be awarded the George Medal.

Billy, 5 feet 4 inches, is a year and a half over the minimum age for enlistment in the army but he has a number of citations, are these stories of bravery and they are typical of the risk to save life and received the medal or reward for their deeds.

Washington, April 1 (AP)—Caution Henry-Haye, Vichy ambassador to the United States, told newspapermen today after a State Department visit it is his "understanding" that the United States would take no action against the French merchant vessels tied up in American ports.

The ambassador said that while the United States might carry out the seizure of 60 foreign ships in American ports it was his understanding the French vessels would not be taken over in the same manner the United States coast guard took over Italian, German and Danish vessels.

Losses for the week ended March 23 were 10 British merchantmen of 34,940 tons; six allied of 27,538 and a Dutch vessel 783 of 5,672 tons.

The amended total losses for the previous week were 27 ships totalling 94,497 tons.

(The losses given a week ago by the Admiralty report for the week ended March 16 were 23 British and allied merchantmen totalling 71,778 tons.)

Troubles Not Over

Pointing out that the losses in the latest week were less than the previous three weeks, an authoritative source nevertheless said:

"It would be unwise to deduce that our troubles are over or that we have mastered this attack. We are not claiming victory.

"We must still be prepared for losses, sometimes exceptionally high and sometimes lower than this week's total. But it would be wrong to jump to any conclusion but there is no doubt that we are making progress."

The average weekly loss since the war began is 65,000 tons, excluding ships sunk in the army evacuation from Dunkerque.

2 German Merchantmen, Thwarted in Attempt To Leave Port, Set Afire

Callao, Peru, April 1 (AP) —Two German merchantmen were set afire and their seacocks opened by their crews early today in Callao Harbor after their attempt to leave the port had been thwarted by a Peruvian cruiser.

The two vessels, the 5,898-ton Leipzig and the 5,578-ton Monserrate, tried to leave the harbor shortly before last midnight some hours after two other Nazi merchantmen sailed without papers.

The Peruvian cruiser Coronel Bolognesi, however, stopped them by firing five warning shots and they returned to port, where they were set afire.

Both vessels still were burning two hours later.

The ships which sped away from the harbor after nightfall last night with lights doused were the 5,619-ton Muenchen and the 4,833-ton Hermonthis.

With the Leipig and the Monserrate, they had been here since the outbreak of the war.

The Leipzig and Monserrate only recently were loaded with 200 tons and 1300 tons, respectively, of cotton bought by a Japanese commercial mission.

Both are cargo-passenger ships. The Leipzig, owned by the North German Lloyd line, and the Monserrate, owned by the Hamburg-American Line, were built in 1938, and both operated before the war between Europe and South America.

'Germany Will Lose War Sooner Than Expected Because of Balkans'

Turkish Newspapers Say Hitler Has Failed to Conquer England, the Balkans — 'It Begins to Look as if England This Spring Will Destroy Germany,' Declares Yeni Sabah

Istanbul, April 1 (AP)—Turkish newspapers expressed belief today that Germany would lose the war because of the Balkan situation.

The newspaper Vatan declared in an editorial: "Germany will lose the second Great War sooner than expected, not by reason of American aid and the British navy but chiefly because of her great error in miscalculating the will to cooperate and of some small Balkan nations."

The newspaper Yeni Sabah said: "Hitler promised that by early spring he would conquer the British. The air attack on England failed. The attempt to conquer the Balkans has failed. . . . It begins to look as if England this spring will destroy Germany, not Germany who will destroy England."

Ikdam said: "Germans will not fight in the Balkans until they have exhausted every diplomatic means to gain their ends."

The newspaper Tan declared: "Desperate German attempts have been made to play on Serb and Croat enmity, but Vice-Premier Vladimir Macek was too wise and good a man to be fooled by this manoeuvre. In any event the Serbs control the army and will resist German interference with Yugoslav liberty."

Agreement Reached by New Government With Croat Elements, Macek Remaining as Vice Premier

By ROBERT ST. JOHN

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 1— (AP)—German troops, which triumphantly welcomed Yugoslavia into the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance only a week ago, completed formal evacuation of her nationals from this country today under circumstances suggestive of approaching armed conflict.

Five Nazi divisions—approximately 75,000 men—were reported massed on the Hungarian-Yugoslav frontier within a few hours as German Minister Viktor von Heeren left Belgrade for Berlin.

Reports that Hitler had thrown an ultimatum from Hitler might be expected at any moment, demanding that Yugoslavia demobilize and fulfill the treaty of alliance with the Axis which the since-opposed regency government signed last Tuesday in Vienna.

Ready For Instant Action

Premier Dusan Simovic, meanwhile, held the Yugoslav army of 1,200,000 men ready for instant action, and there were indications his government had strengthened its position by reaching an agreement with discontented Croat elements.

Reports from Zagreb said Vladimir Macek, the Croat leader who had been seeking assurances that the new government would respect the interests of the big minority he represents, had reached an understanding with Premier Simovic and would remain in the cabinet as Vice-Premier.

It was understood Macek would return to Belgrade tomorrow to present the agreement.

British Use Light Cruiser Orion To Lure Italians Into Naval Battle

London, April 1 (CP)—A naval officer said today that the Italians had three battleships, 11 cruisers and 14 destroyers in the eastern Mediterranean when the light cruiser Orion, mounting only six-inch guns, led them into a trap Saturday on Friday the Orion for four hours lured the vale of Cunningham and the Italians until the main British forces closed in.

The destroyers from the Clark fleet participated in the engagement in which three, possibly four, Italian cruisers and two, possibly three, Italian destroyers sunk. Besides, the 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto was damaged.

The officer said the battle was historic and that the losses inflicted on the Italians without any material damage or casualties was "nothing short of a miracle."

The officer said the commander in chief, Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, concluded that the Italian force "probable intentions were to attack our convoys between Egypt and Greece".

Crews On Thursday,

When reconnaissance planes reported Italian cruisers southeast of Sicily about mid-day March 27, the officer said, Admiral Cunningham was at Alexandria with the main body of his fleet.

The Orion, Ajax, veteran of the Battle of the River Plate, and the Perth, Gloth, and Gloucester aleared at sea were ordered to a position south of Crete.

The battleships Warspite, Valiant and Barham, and the aircraft carrier Formidable at Alexandria were ordered to "raise steam with all dispatch."

'Houses Take to Air' Says British Pilot In Describing Raid

German Port and Industrial City of Emden Heavily Attacked With New Explosive—Sharp Raid Reported Over England

London, April 1 (CP)—A new type of high explosive bomb produced results which "appeared to be devastating" in a raid on the German port and industrial city of Emden last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Emden also was heavily hit, with shipbuilding yards the principal targets, but the Ministry mentioned the new bombs—their nature not announced—only in the raid on Emden.

"Masses of debris flying through the air were outlined against the glow of the fires," a communique said in describing the effects, "and the results appeared to be devastating."

The Ministry of Information quoted a pilot as saying he saw "houses take to the air" when the bombs burst.

Smaller-scale raids were made on Bremerhaven and Oldenberg and the Nazi-held Netherlands harbor of Rotterdam.

Miners Begin Picketing

New York, April 1 (AP)— Although today was a holiday in five coal mining fields of the United States, miners began picketing in some sections to emphasize a work stoppage ordered into effect at the midnight expiration of a wage contract covering the eight-state Appalachian area.

Union-operator negotiators, meanwhile, redoubled efforts to prevent a general stoppage in the industry, resuming again today under the urgent plea by President Roosevelt for "uninterrupted operations" of the mines. Because of the miners' holiday, an annual event to celebrate gaining the eight-hour day, the negotiators had until midnight tonight to effect a new pact and prevent an actual shutdown.

Pre-Campaign Contributions Enthuse Canvassers to Put War Services Drive 'Over Top'

Meeting	Hears	Hastings
County	Has	Already

Secured Quota of $8,000

SPLENDID ADDRESS

Their enthusiasm stirred by the news that pre-campaign contributions amounting to many thousand dollars had already found their way to the fund offices, one of the largest representative gatherings of canvassers and other workers to congregate for any campaign in this city, heard stirring addresses by Monsignor J. P. Nicholson, Judge Charles A. Cameron and other speakers at the Y.M.C.A. last night, where the final ground work of the campaign, which started here today, was laid.

Twenty teams of canvassers under captains received last-minute instructions, and were allotted to their various designated territories in the city. Practically every polling sub-division will be visited by the canvass care of a captain and his team.

The meeting last night at the "Y" rang with the applause of the gathering when Judge Charles A. Cameron officially announced that the quota of $8,000 allotted to the County of Hastings, exclusive of Belleville and Trenton, had been subscribed in full by the Patriotic Committee of the Hastings County Committee.

One Cheque For $1,000

Further applause greeted Judge Cameron's announcement that a private citizen had given his cheque for $1,000, and that industry whose employees contribute a certain amount would be matched dollar for dollar. Monsignor Nicholson at this point came forward and presented the speaker with a cheque for $200 from the Knights of Columbus Special Fund. H. Wyman announced a further private subscription of $200 while Bruce Sherratt told the gathering that an invalid lady "who has been bedridden from here" who has lost her hearing, is housebidden and slowly losing her sight," had sent a cheque to the committee for $20.00.

This brought the total for $15,000, its allotment in the campaign, is set at one million dollars.

Trenton Doing Fine Work

Trenton has also done a magnificent work, it was pointed out by Judge Cameron, who in his remarks told the gathering that due to the zeal and enthusiasm of Chairman Gordon Sherratt and his workers, $12,000 has already been subscribed in the neighboring town to the campaign for $6,000, which does not get under way until Saturday of next week.

Following brief remarks by Chairman Howard Clarke, Monsignor J. P. Nicholson, guest speaker, in his eloquent address, which he said he paid fine tribute to the United Services Day, said:

"The culture, democratic life, the civic and social institutions of our two countries is being challenged by the greatest menace the world has ever known. We are fighting Britain and the U.S.A. are more than comrades as they are in the last war. They are brothers. Today Britain's and Canada's are sisters in heart as well as ancestry."

This is no separate appeal, the speaker said, but a co-ordinated drive that is symbolic of the unity in our present crisis.

"The appeal is an echo of that grand Canadian Corps of the last war. It is a voice from the blood and mud of the trenches 'All for one and one for all.' It is a voice that wells into one bond, Protestant and Catholic.

"You are about to make an appeal that is fundamentally not the flower of Canadian manhood, but the very blood of our own flesh and blood who are going on in the rosy bloom of youth, in the face of the most unspeakable in the dim uncertainty of war. They are now in unaccustomed mode of life, one that is often devoid of even the ordinary amenities."

To Give Home Life

"War Service organizations bring to them as near as possible the home life, education, recreation, that they exhibit those who are away from the devious dangerous paths. They are giving a real benefit to those near and dear to us, and we must make some sacrifice. We are not being called upon to do much," he said.

Canada must gratifully realize, the speaker asserted, that "we are being spared the horrors of murderous bombardment due to the gallantry of our fighting men. Bombed victims cry out 'have pity.' This appeal is for a most worthy cause, for those who are giving everything and those who are losing everything. You as collectors will speak in the name of the homeless, suffering and dying. "Whatsoever ye do unto them, ye do likewise unto Me."

Asked To Give Torch.

The torch-bearing athletes of the Olympic games, the speaker said, carried their torch until the fire kindled, until the flesh burned from their fingers, until the torch of freedom is glimmering low, but is being held high by our gallant fighting men, supported by the sacrifices of those at home. Soon it shall burst forth into the full splendor of the midday sun," he concluded.

Appreciation of the fine address was voiced by J. B. Boyce.

The attendance of so many workers, Judge Cameron said in his prefacing remarks, was concrete evidence of the effectiveness of the local organization "I have never seen such enthusiasm and concern since I have lived in Belleville, and never has a campaign been inaugurated with such every success as this one. It is truly magnificent."

He pointed out the amounts of the various allotments to the city, county and Trenton, and was pleased to out that "I have never seen such unanimity as is evident in Trenton. They doubled their original allotted quota of $6,000, but they report that $2,000 more can easily be subscribed. They had a splendid church parade on Sunday and Chairman Sherratt was astounded by the listeners when he announced the amount already subscribed."

Canvassers Urged By Speaker.

The amount of $500 had been unallocated, the speaker said, but a Belleville industry, the employees of which contribute a certain amount per week of their own volition, asked permission to help this campaign. This they did by sending a cheque for $600. (Cheers.)

Judge Cameron urged the canvassers to go out convinced of two things, that they can get their share of the quota, and to convince residents of this city that the campaign is but a six-in-one drive but six-times-one. He warned of the danger of stress-ing the fact that a campaign has heretofore residents have given individually to the various patriotic bodies benefiting from the drive.

And this know that what he pointed out last year must be multiplied by six. Make sure that all prospects know this," Judge Cameron urged.

"People will say that this campaign does not in any way conflict with the recent drive for War Savings Certificates," he said. "This campaign does not call for dividend money, for after all money is not everything. We shall get a dividend in the satisfaction that in giving our contribution to the war effort we places alongside the boys at the front."

"Here is our chance to do something." he continued. "Another drive will in the morale we are helping to build up. It has been said that war is a business. It is a business fought punctuated by long periods of intense boredom. It is the off-duty period that is the hardest. Everything must be made to feel the folks at home are behind them."

The speaker quoted an experience in which he had been a recent visitor aboard at a Maritime military camp a ride, and who related that the War Service was doing more than its ing a splendid job. "We must see that the boys know that these services be commended. He described the canvassers as "Public Servants." There is no more important job at the present than winning the war, and we cannot win the war unless we help to keep up the morale of the boys."

Tribute Paid To Willkie.

He paid tribute to Wendell Willkie in closing. "Every man will roll up the barrel," he said, "but-roll out the communism." He ended with Willkie's words. "Fill it to the top".

W. H. Hurley, Toronto, Dominion organizer, briefly explained the work being done by the war service organizations. "This campaign, he said, was going over from coast to coast and "I am sure that $1,200,000 has already been subscribed," he declared amid applause.

The campaign is not a donation, he pointed out, of what organization you are for, but a call to each to do what all organizations are doing. He cited the work being done by the various war service organizations at Camp Borden stating they erected their own buildings and have a total of 600 each. Mobile canteens cost $2,000 each. Over 1,000 are in operation and fifty more are going overseas soon.

"No matter where Canadian soldiers are to be found, you will find out of the Canadian Legion with them is sending coffee, cigarettes, sugar, biscuits and other necessities overseas at a monthly cost of $7,000. So it is easily understood where the money goes."

Secretary Joe Shortt and Morley Dutt briefly addressed the meeting, pointing out the duties of the various captains, and their teams. Each team was called and fitted out with the necessary cards and other equipment at the close of the meeting.

K. of C. Donate $200 To War Services Fund

The regular monthly meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held last Monday night with a fair attendance The meeting opened with Grand Knight George in the chair. Much business was transacted with the sum of $200 being voted to the Canadian War Services Campaign and a cheque for same was handed to Rt. Rev. Mgsr. J. P. Nicholson, P.A., who is on the committee for the fund. Committee chairman George O'Brien stated that the canvassers were all ready to start the campaign and expected no difficulty in reaching their quota.

A report was received from Lt. Col.Claude Brown, O.B.E., stating that the month of December last was most active in regard to social entertainment for troops overseas. Concert parties were provided, also dances and movie shows four times each week and were very popular. Two hundred and twenty-five thousand sheets of notepaper and 100,000 envelopes were issued and 190,000 cigarettes with an additional special Christmas issue of 100,000 cigarettes distributed to the soldier their supervision and to the R.C.A.F. All the Canadian Army Huts are proving themselves to be a "Home away from Home." This report was sent to Phillip Phelan, Toronto, who acted as host to them and then sent to Grand Knight Joseph Ryan.

The next order of business was the application for membership with Brother Knights Bert Hollingsworth. A first degree will be held in April or May.

Boys Special Speakers

Frank Donnelly introduced the following speakers who are pupils at St. Michael's Academy and who have been trained by Sister Mary Hilda: Joseph Whalen, who spoke on the election of Pius XII; Bob Fleury, who spoke on "Pope Pius and Peace"; Jim Thomas, Macaro, who spoke on the "Latter-ran" Treaty and Jim Gallery who spoke on "Alpine Climbing of Pope Pius XI."

Brother James Boyle moved a hearty vote of thanks to the boys on their ability as orators and to their teacher Sister Mary Hilda who also spoke very highly of the boys' trained boys. Rt. Rev. Mgsr. Nicholson congratulated them, stating the members were delighted with the fine address given at the meeting, the last Sunday in April. Mr. Donnelly, on behalf of the pupils of St. Michael's Spring Festival, reported that the various committees are all working to make the festival the best ever held. However, he urged everyone to purchase their tickets as early as possible, stating that Vaudeville is the cash in the festival. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Hastings County Council's $8,000 Contribution to War Services Fund Lauded By Chairman Judge Cameron

Setting a splendid example to other counties of the province and establishing a precedent that can easily exemplifies the loyalty for which it is noted, the County of Hastings, through its Special Patriotic Committee has contributed its entire allotted quota of $8,000 the General Committee for War Service Charities Organizations, it was formally announced last night by General Chairman Jor Hastings County, Judge Charles A. Cameron.

Belleville's allotment is $15,000; Trenton's $6,000 making a total amount of $8,000 contributed by the county body completes the total county allotment.

"It is a truly magnificent gesture on the part of the Hastings County Council and its Patriotic Committee" Judge Cameron said in tribute to the county body.

The contribution is part of an amount of $18,382.00, the equivalent of one cent on the county assessment of $18,382,000, set aside by the County Council in June last, for patriotic purposes. The Special Committee is composed of five, including Warden W. J. Davis, under the chairmanship of Reeve Gordon Ketcheson. They have full powers to act.

Last week's Judge Cameron and County Chairman W. E. Tummon interviewed a representative with regards to the county's participation in the War Services Charities drive which opens here today. It was pointed out that a canvass of the entire county would involve not only tremendous effort but heavy expenses. After due consideration, the Special Committee declared itself in full understanding with the chairmen and voted the amount to the fund.

By this contribution, practically every county taxpayer is represented in the campaign. Campaign officials today were unstinted in their admiration and appreciation of the generous gesture of the residents of Hastings County through its governing bodies.

City Comptroller Addresses Rotary On City Progress

BUILDING UP

Blessed by the best city councils in a lengthy period of time, Belleville has been steadily forging ahead the past few years, City Comptroller Harold Bateman told the Belleville Rotary Club yesterday in an informative address on the "inner workings" at the City Hall. Councils during the past few years, have reduced the tax rate here from 50 mills to 38 mills due to their wisdom and foresight, he said, in tribute to present and immediately past governing civic bodies.

Re-assessment of the city was made in 1939, the comptroller said, "not by a fancy system but one in which good common sense was used, effects of which are now seen in the fact, that one of the lowest rates in the history of the city was held last year. No one case was appealed."

One of the biggest changes affecting the city's business, he pointed out, was the installation of an accounting machine which reduces greatly the time required for assessment rolls and tax bills to two months, from a series of lengthy ones in which most of the work was done by hand. "These mechanical device does wonders," he added.

Instalment System Best

The introduction of the four instalment tax payment system, Mr. Bateman said, has had many-fold advantages, and of thanked Overseers given to Lady Eaton for only Five Cent Service Charge.

"The four-instalment plan has been a great boon to the small taxpayer" he declared, "while tax arrears have been reduced through this method by $40,000."

Referring to the property, Mr. Bateman pointed out to the club that while the city did not feel like going into the real estate business, last year it cleaned up and sold many pieces of land that been turned back to the city for taxes. Income lost, he said, are being sold at a nominal figure, and the city has been successful in returning to the city inasmuch as owners are building upon them and thus paying taxes to the city. Upwards of $100,000 had been added to the city assessment rolls last year, he added.

Building Permits Up

Taxable building permits issued in 1940 amounted to $150,000, the highest issued in the city for many years, he said, "a real Canadian sign" Comptroller Bateman declared, "that Belleville is forging ahead."

Referring to the city budget, he said that it was the largest item, and one which can not very well be reduced, inasmuch as the entire cost of social welfare. This amounts to a total of $29,862.00, hospitalization, $13,000; hospitalization, $13,000 and special grants, $3,000 for the maintenance of parks on the tax rate.

Another large item which fluctuates from year to year is the maintenance and repair of streets, he said. Snow removal costs to the city since January 1st this year have amounted to $2,000.

The new purchasing system which the city has adopted, he said, for the purchase of materials by tender only, he said, "results are now called for everything, and quality and Belleville merchants have been given consideration, with regards to the county's participation in the War Services Charities drive which opens here today it was pointed out that a canvass of the entire county would involve not only tremendous effort but heavy expenses. After due consideration, the Special Committee declared itself in full understanding with the chairmen and voted the amount to the fund.

our own local merchants through this system, than we have—from outside firms. Some of the latter seem to think that because we are a city, that price does not mean a thing."

Relief Costs Decreased

He had had some criticism he said, but urged interested citizens to interview him at any time with regard to any differences which might arise. He asked them to bear with the city until a fair cost system has been installed.

Relief costs this year will approximate practically those of those of 1940, Comptroller Bateman predicted. Administration costs were also similar, he said, the largest item last year were a definite saving of $1,172 which was produced being raised by relieftee.

"All this city wants to keep up with the figurative Joneses," he concluded, "someone must pay the costs. There are many needed improvements, they must be paid for, and if necessary taxes must be paid. Progress will bring a reduction in taxes, but we must pay for what we get."

The speaker was introduced by Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone, and club appreciation expressed by G. H. Cane.

The first ballot of officers for the coming season was taken and handed to President Percy McQuire. Five directors will be chosen and the ten elected, at next week's meeting.

Famous Empire Stories

By Lilian Leveridge

The Knights of Malta

The history of Malta—the "Mellita" on which St. Paul was shipwrecked so long ago — dates back many hundreds of years before Christ. Phoenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, Arabs, Sicilians, Germans, French and Spanish, had, one after the other, owned and ruled the island before it became a part of the British Empire. Having a splendid harbour, and being strongly fortified, it is now a very important link in the strong chain of Mediterranean forts which help to maintain Britain's supremacy of the seas.

Glancing over Malta's long, long history for a single chapter of special heroism, we can scarcely overlook the romantic period when the island was occupied by the Knights of St. John—the Knights of Malta they afterwards came to be called. To understand who these Knights were, and why they came to Malta, we must go back to an early date before the beginning of the famous Crusades to the Holy Land.

From very early times there have been many pilgrimages to the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem and to other sacred spots in Palestine; for people believed that by performing certain acts of devotion at these shrines they would obtain forgiveness of their sins and a sure entrance into Heaven. But many of the pilgrims were exhausted, sick or starving by the time they reached Jerusalem; and when Palestine was occupied by the Turks, who were Mohammedans, the pilgrims were often robbed and even murdered.

This it came about that a number of European merchants banded themselves together as a sacred brotherhood for the purpose of assisting and protecting the sick and needy pilgrims. Peter Gerard was the founder of this famous Order. The members, who were called Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, were bound by solemn vows of obedience, chastity and poverty. They built two hospitals at Jerusalem, one for men and one for women; organized a sisterhood of nurses, and by and by built a chapel near by. Here the hungry were fed and the sick restored to health.

The fame of these charities spread far and wide, and many generous contributions were sent in from all over Europe. In the beginning the Hospitallers lived up to their vows and followed their motto: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me". But in time the persecutions of the warlike Turks became more than could be borne, and then the Hospitallers turned soldiers. They added to their vows a new one, binding themselves to war against the infidels in defence of the Christian faith.

The soldier-monks were brave and fearless fighters, but before long they were overpowered and driven from the sacred city, and Peter Gerard was imprisoned. It was then that the Crusades were organized by the Christian rulers of Europe for the purpose of rescuing Jerusalem from the Turks. Under the leadership of Godfrey de Bouillon, during the first Crusade in 1099, Jerusalem was captured and Peter Gerard was set free. The banner of the Cross replaced the Crescent of the Moslems, and all Christianity rejoiced.

Recruits flocked to the banner of the Cross, and in time the old Order of Hospitallers was reorganized as the Knights of St. John, their badge being a white cross on a black ground. Many of the Crusaders from time to time joined their ranks. Led by the English King, Richard Coeur de Lion, a famous Crusader, they obtained possession of Acre in Syria, and this was their headquarters for a long time.

More and more as years went on they increased their warlike attacks on the Turks; but at last in a desperate battle at Acre they were overcome and driven out. Many were massacred, and those who escaped took refuge in Cyprus, where they lived for twenty years.

Still they fought relentlessly against their bitter foes, and at length gained for themselves the beautiful and fruitful island of Rhodes. Here, in the midst of lovely gardens, citron groves and palms, they lived and flourished for more than two centuries . By this time the Knights had grown so successful in warfare and piracy that hardly a vessel bearing a Greek or Turkish flag dared venture out or port.

A reverse of fortune was at hand. Soliyman, the Sultan of the Turkey, was burning with envy of their glory and power, and desperate for revenge. He solemnly swore to gain possession of Rhodes, even though it cost the lives of half his soldiers. Extensive preparations were made; and then, with 400 vessels, and an army of 200,000 men, he set out from Constantinople. There were about 600 or 700 Knights, with about 6,000 men-at-arms, to oppose this great army, and bravely they fought; they were overthrown. Only 100 Knights survived.

Soliyman generously allowed them to depart with all their personal possessions. For a time they were scattered and homeless, but at last Charles V., Emperor of Spain, granted them the islands of Malta and Gozo, and Tripoli in Africa. An ancient Greek city, which had required as acknowledgment of his sovereignty.

On the 26th of October, 1530, the small fleet of five ships arrived at Malta and took possession. In the van was the great ship Santa Anna, regarded as "the wonder of the age." This vessel was commanded by the English Knight, Sir William Weston.

Contrasted with their recent home at Rhodes, Malta looked bare and barren enough: it was rocky and treeless, with but scant vegetation. But they set to work heroically to strengthen the fortifications and cultivate the soil. In both these endeavours they were wonderfully successful. Additions were made to the Castle of St. Angelo, the only existing fort, and a new one, St. Elmo, built on Mount Sceberras, a promontory jutting into the harbour.

Twenty-one years after their arrival the Turks made an unsuccessful attack on Malta. They came again in 1565 with 130 ships and a very large force under Mustapha Pasha, and opened fire on St. Elmo. By this time La Valette, Grand Master of the Knights, had gathered about 9,000 men, including militia and volunteers from Italy, Sicily, Genoa and Piedmont—less than one-quarter the strength of their foes. The greater part of this force was in St. Angelo.

The few Knights at St. Elmo, reinforced now and then from St. Angelo, fought desperately for a month; but on the eve of St. John's Day the end came. In the chapel the sixty remaining Knights attended Mass, receiving absolution and Holy Communion, then returned to the walls and fought till the last man fell.

Mustapha Pasha set up the heads of the slain Knights on poles facing St. Angelo and floated their bodies, fastened to planks in the form of a cross, up the harbour. In retaliation for this brutal insult, La Valette, having shed tears over his fallen comrades, immediately had all his Turkish prisoners beheaded and fired their heads from his cannons into the enemy's camp. Such were the fiendish passions, fanned by warfare, on both sides!

La Valette seized an opportunity to send an urgent appeal to Sicily for help, but at first there was no response, and for two months more the fight continued at St. Angelo. At last the brave defenders were rejoiced to see the approach of a fleet from Sicily of 8,500 troops, soon followed by 4,000 more. The Turks had lost in all about 30,000 men, and sight of this reinforcement, being unwilling to take any more chances, they speedily sailed away—never to return.

The whole of Christian Europe, so long protected from Turkish inroads by the heroic Knights, had watched this siege of Malta very anxiously—from a distance — and now rejoiced at the happy ending. In every town were bonfires and illuminations, and Te Deums were sung in all the churches. Consequently, when La Valette undertook to re-fortify the island and build a new and splendid city, assistance was generously sent. This city, called Valette after its heroic founder, became the capital of Malta instead of the old Citta Vecchia.

A long period of peace now followed, and Malta prospered. But unfortunately all this success and wealth by degrees demoralized the Knights. They lost their soldierly qualities, forgot their old vows, and sank into immorality and self-indulgence. At last, in 1798, Malta was conquered by Napoleon, the Knights offering scarcely any resistance. They were scattered in exile, and the old Order broke up.

Meanwhile the Maltese, suffering under the tyranny of the French, soon rose in revolt. Fleets from Portugal, Sicily and Britain united to relieve the people of their oppressors. Valetta was besieged for nearly two years; and in 1800, to the joy of the brave citizens who had appealed to England for protection, the British, with but little actual fighting, won the victory. The French, reduced almost to starvation, were conceited to surrender after many refusals.

Malta and its dependencies were immediately ceded to Great Britain, and ever since then the Union Jack has flown over the historic rocky fortress. But their possession of the islands was not formally acknowledged by the other European powers until the signing of the Peace of Paris in 1814.

In later years the spirit of the ancient Order of Knights revived in England and elsewhere. During

92 P.C. GRADED NO. 1

St. Hyacinthe, Que., April 1 (CP)—Ninety-two per cent of Quebec Province's cheese production last year was graded No. 1 compared with 86.79 per cent in 1939, Oscar Boisvert, chief of Quebec's Dairy Branch, told the annual meeting Monday of Provincial Dairy Inspectors. Sixty inspectors attended the meeting.

Mr. Boisvert said that Quebec produced 23,867,342 pounds of cheese last year compared with 27,526,828 in 1939.

The Dairy Branch Chief said that the butter output of the province dropped about 1,000,000 pounds during the past year.

NAVAL HISTORY MADE

The great British naval victory last week over the Italian fleet in the Ionian Sea which has been linked by some with the great victories of Nelson at Aboukir Bay and at Trafalgar in its implications and far-reaching results and which caused the loss of at least five Italian warships, possibly six or seven, without the loss of a single British sailor, or damage to a British warship, is one of the most unique battles of history.

In this great fight, it is figured Italy lost fifteen hundred men, and the British Admiralty says that one thousand enemy were rescued by the British and made prisoner. More would have been saved but the British were interrupted in their rescue by a German formation of planes which dove down. It was true to the Hun instinct to do what these dive bombers did. It meant the loss of many Italian lives. This incident recalls that Nazi planes some time ago were reported as having bombed a ship carrying Italian prisoners.

When the Nazi bombers came, British wirelessed the Italian naval chief of staff giving position of survivors and suggesting a hospital ship be sent. A reply was received. That is British humanitarian instinct.

British supremacy on the sea is now greater and ships that were used in the Mediterranean may be released for other duty, it is said. This supremacy is not only of ships but of men and training and of the perfection of every department of the service. British skill in marksmanship has never been excelled and the heroism of the British sailor is unrivalled. In the language of the war song Britain's "march is on the mountain waves, her home is on the deep."

The spirits of great Nelson who defeated the enemy in the Napoleonic wars in many a great fight and Drake who battered the Spanish armada, would have liked to have been on the deck of the flagship Warspite in this epic battle. They would have nodded with a smile as they beheld their successors living up to the highest records of the navy and know that with such seamen Britain will be secure.

The noblest traditions of the sea were observed and another great event is added to the ennobled records of the British navy. It has had a gigantic task in this war to patrol the seas in many parts of the world and to keep the ocean lanes free of molestation, but it does its work well.

Its record grows with such successes as Taranto and the Ionian Sea victories.

The poet Thomson who wrote Rule

> "Still more majestic shall thou rise,
> More dreadful from each foreign stroke;
> As the loud blast that tears the skies,
> Serves but to root thy native oak."

And then come those words of the refrain, so apt in this day when Germany and Italy sought to enslave Europe, and the world,

> "Rule Britannia, Britannia, rule the waves, > Britons never shall be slaves."

And because that is the spirit of Britain, there shall likewise be no men and women and children left enslaved by the Huns and the Italians.

ORATORY AS A WEAPON

Oratory still stands the great test. Mr. Wendell Willkie, a great man with a great Britannia, the great anthem of the sea, was inspired by vision of the days far ahead of him when he penned, message, expressed with the fire of eloquence, has stirred Canadian and American audiences. Oratory is one of the great arts. During war days everyone has felt the power of oratory. In the great days of old, Greece produced the master, Demosthenes, whose command of the Greek language was a great factor and in the declining days of the republic of Rome before the rise of imperialism, Cicero defied his opponents and commanded attention by his great oratorical gifts. In all ages the orator seems to come when he is needed. Today Britain has the master of language, Winston Churchill, whose words of liberty will live forever. The United States has the deeply moving utterances of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

OURSELVES AND THERS...

BY

WINSTON CHURCHILL

Bearing a name that makes our annals glow,
And linking it with lustre that will shine
Beside the brightest stars of long ago,
Intrepid soul! High destiny is thine.

And when we saw the ancient citadel
Of British freedom to be gore assailed
And on the unoffending fury fell,
Inspired by thee, courage o'er fear prevailed.

For such a time it was that Nature bore thee,
And formed thee in a Herculean mould;
History will bid Democracy adore thee,
And when this world becomes a friendly fold

Sires to their sons will these brave days rehearse,—
—Alexander Louis Fraser.

The telephone jangled. "Hello," came a cheery voice over the wire, "Is this 1941?"

"No," came the grunted reply, "You have the wrong number."

"That's what you think. Look at your calendar," and an audible click came over the wire as the other end hung up.

Then came the terrible realization that it was April 1st., dear to the heart of the schoolboy and other jokesters as April Fool's Day.

Today the city's youth ran riot as the big day dawned. Mysterious telephone calls; invisible spots on clothes, coats and dresses, and a large number of other mystic things suddenly came to light as Pop and Mom looked very red while Junior's laughter pealed through the house.

Perhaps one of the best jokes perpetrated was that played upon the head of the house by his spouse. Coming in at noon she remarked, "Do you know what day this is?" "Sure my dear," the old man sputtered, looking very wise. Later he brought in a box of candy and some flowers. "There you are, m'dear," he chortled looking very satisfied with himself. "Many happy returns of the day."

"Whaddya mean, many happy returns of the day," growled the ball and chain. "This isn't my birthday nor my wedding day, it is April Fool's Day and apparently you are the goat."

But across the seas the embarrassment and disappointment was terrific. Mussolini, if reports are true, and his legions, fell victims to a report that an unprotected British convoy was steaming up and down the Mediterranean sea. This was the chance. He sent his biggest ships out to sink the unarmed merchantmen, but the surprise which awaited them will never be lived down in Italian naval circles. The "convoy" they saw was the British Mediterranean fleet. The rest is history.

For once Britain's Jack Tars were in their glory. They had the enemy where they wanted him, out in the open sea, and no questions asked. The flaming guns of the big battle-wagons roared a swan-song for the Italian gunboats, on which were a large number of crack gunners and naval officers of the German Nazi navy.

"Five down and two to go," hummed the merry lads in blue as they rammed home their shells in the big rifles. Geysers of water intermingling with wreckage and Italian naval uniforms shot skyward as the unerring aim of the British gunners took their toll. Up and down the sea raged the battle with the grim Britishers profiting by the runaway antics of the Italians in former engagements, holding fast to the line.

And in Alexandria, whither the British ships and their crews, unscathed and uninjured repaired after the battle, the Arrys and Erberts and other boys in blue probably celebrated in traditional naval style. The "sun probably hung over the yard-arm" a lot longer than usual, and well it might.

APRIL FOOL

This is the day they planned for me,
This is the day of napkin pinning,
Salt for sugar in my tea,—
This the day of youngsters grinning.

This the day the hat I kick
Hides a heavy paving brick.

This the day a purse will lie
On the path where I go striding.
"April Fool!" will be the cry
Greeting me from youngsters hiding.
This the day they'll tell me, too:
"Phone to Leo at the zoo."

Fool I am beyond a doubt,
And I'll add full well I know it.
This the day to all about
I shall promptly bend to show it.

But who wants to be so wise
As to dim such twinkling eyes?

Reason's ways are strict and cold.
Reason dreads what follows after.
Wisdom thinks itself too old
For such bursts of downright laughter.
But till death comes after me
April foolish I would be.

A heavy leather flat cover filled with sand has been invented to enable policemen to subdue prisoners in place of a blackjack.

ROYAL NAVY DEALS SMASHING BLOW TO IL DUCE

Scoring the greatest naval victory of the war, British warships caught the Italian fleet in the Ionian Sea, sinking seven of Il Duce's warships and inflicting serious damage on a 35,000-ton battleship. Three Italian cruisers, the Pola, Plume and Zara, LEFT ABOVE, were sunk in the action that saw two destroyers end probably the cruiser Giovanni sent to the bottom. This was the first major battle between the Royal Navy and the Italian Navy and not a single Italian shell found its mark. An Italian cruiser, Conte de Cavour is pictured UPPER RIGHT, making a big noise for Hitler's visit to Italy in 1938.

Silent Heroes Of Britain's Sea Lanes

By a Naval Correspondent of the New York (London).

At the present time most of us are inclined to take a purely material view of the attack on our shipping. With the natural tendency of us mortals to contemplate a danger in relation to its impact on ourselves, we are most of us thinking of the mercantile losses that are taking place almost entirely in terms of tonnage.

And quite naturally. For the merchant ships that are crossing the seas en route for Britain represent an absolutely vital link in the chain of our war effort. Unless the food and munitions which these ships are bringing can arrive in sufficient quantities we must collapse. It is, as we are all well aware, a matter of life and death for us that the seven thousand tons of supplies should be maintained.

Nevertheless, it should do us well to remind ourselves from time to time that the sinking of ships involves something more than the loss of plates and rivets, engines and cargo.

The ships that are going down out in the Atlantic are taking men down with them. In varying numbers; sometimes few, sometimes many, very occasionally none, less occasionally the whole crew. A steady and regular toll is being taken of the officers and men of our merchant ships, and we must not allow ourselves to forget it. Least of all must we do so because their habitual gallantry in the face of danger might lead us to take that gallantry for granted.

We have, indeed, come to take it for granted, and rightly; for we know that their courage and endurance will last as long as there is a ship left to sail. Night and day, in fair weather and foul, by sunlight and by starlight, by moonlight and in the dark, by calm and by storm, the men of the merchant ships are doing their work under the most unpleasant conditions. In the course of the dangerous but unspectacular, and consequently unsung, routine of Fran it was the fish-and-chips swain, with their trawlers and drifters, who hurried back from the fishing grounds at their best speed of seven knots (with luck) to form the maritime Home Guard against the invaders.

Their ships were small and designed for a purpose other than warfare. The weapons the Navy handed out to them were of necessity a job lot. But the skippers and crews were undismayed. Imperturbably they went to sea, to meet modern aircraft and high speed torpedo vessels. "Happily there has now been time to do something to improve their battle equipment. Yet one knew all the time that if the challenge came they would somehow or other manage to use their weapons to good effect.

They are, both the fishermen and their comrades of the larger vessels, the last people in the world to seek or care for publicity. But because they are simple men, socially inarticulate, and because they are working out of sight, we ought to be on our guard against letting them remain out of mind.

The United States Patent Office granted 42,348 patents last year, making the total since the office was established 2,227,417.

The United States has supplied 90 per cent of the electric refrigerators used in British East Africa in the last ten years.

Master of Otter Saved

Lieut. Denis Mossman, of Halifax, skipper of the ill-fated Canadian naval vessel Otter, was the last man to leave the burning ship. He stayed aboard until all hands had left, and a lifeboat had to turn back to persuade him to abandon the ship.

Work and Stay Young

By W. H. COLCLOUGH

In the Stratford Beacon-Herald

Some men appear young at 60 and old. These men without exception are pursuing tasks which suit their individual temperaments. They prove the point that inactivity rather than old age causes senile decay. We doubt very much if a man of seventy or over became tired of the, "ole swimmin hole" for the obvious reason that he was doing the very thing he wanted to do. Give an old man that which he likes to do and you delay the hour of his departure.

Rust destroys more fine tools than use, and introspection kills more men than overwork. Whenever you see a man who feels sorry for himself you will find material for an early funeral. When a man's mind is on his work or hobby he forgets whether life has been cruel to him or not. As he passes along toward greater victories,

Keep busy, and you will not grow old. Sit down, and your arteries will harden as the milder spreads on a damp night. "Change and decay" should be changed to "change or decay." There is an easy tendency to settle into rigid habits. That's growing old.

Deliberate change is necessary. Read new books; travel new trails; meet new people; do an old thing in a different manner and if you haven't a hobby start now to develop one. Life may be made interesting and even exciting up to the moment the heart stops beating, but that will take determination, anticipation and action.

RALEIGH IN AMERICA

Acquisition by the U. S. government of the site of Raleigh's "Lost Colony" on Roanoke Island on the North Carolina coast raises again the old question:

Did Sir Walter Raleigh himself ever visit North America?

Legend says the queen promised to pay all the expenses of the expedition if Raleigh would not go in person.

Two years later—in 1585—Raleigh having heard stories of El Dorado, made a vague attempt in person to South America to find a gold mine, an expedition that led to the return of the Discoveries of Guiana," a brilliant mixture of fact and romance.

In 1604 Raleigh was tried and sentenced to death on charges of plotting against James I during the first few months of his reign. The fine-time favorite of Queen Elizabeth, however, was not then executed, but was confined to his room in London indefinitely with death sentence hanging over his head.

Twelve years in the Tower obtained his release by promising the king that he could locate a gold mine in South America without encroaching on Spanish rights.

Accordingly, still without a pardon and entirely at the king's mercy, Sir Walter sailed from England in March, 1617, and reached the mouth of the Orinoco with his expedition in the following December.

Raleigh himself became ill with fever and remained in Trinidad while five small vessels were sent up the river to locate the alleged El Dorado.

On the way the English found a Spanish settlement and a skirmish took place in which Raleigh's son Walter and several Spaniards were killed.

As the king had expected, the expedition failed and was compelled to return to England with the leader's promise broken.

On his way back Raleigh stopped a short time on the island of Newfoundland, which appears to be the closest he ever got to the North American mainland.

Arrested on arrival in London he was arrested, thrown back into the Tower and October 29, 1618, was beheaded on the same charge of technical treason passed more than 15 years before.

Italy's Radio Professes To Believe Seizure Of Axis Merchantmen British Propaganda

Rome, April 1 (AP) — The Italian radio professed today to believe that reports of United States seizure of Axis merchantmen were British propaganda but, if true, it was an action "far from peaceful."

"This action of the United States Government, if true, would surprise us because, being unjustified, it would appear to be inspired by motives far from peaceful," said the broadcaster in English.

If the Italian crewmen had any intention of sabotaging the ships they already would have opportunity to do so, the radio said.

"Since no confirmation of the reports has reached us, we believe they are another instance of British propaganda," the broadcaster said.

He's Fighting For You!

But He's Just A Belleville Boy Away from Home

He asks some small measure of fun —of sports—of little comforts to ease his grim task

A cup of coffee when the long day's march is over . . . a game of softball or a merry dance to ease the discomfort, the loneliness of off duty hours . . . and study courses to fit him to take his place again in civilian life.

This is the least we can do for these boys of ours who have turned their backs on home and friends to guard our land. The Government of Canada has organized the Canadian Legion — the I.O.D.E. — the Y.M.C.A., and the Y.W.C.A. — The Knights of Columbus and the Salvation Army War Services with their trained staffs and facilities to serve, in the best way we can, the men who wear the King's Uniform on our behalf.

Belleville's share of this important task is $15,000.

WE CAN RAISE THIS MONEY IF YOU'LL GIVE YOUR SHARE.

Matron's Simple Yoked Style

PATTERN 4686

By ANNE ADAMS

It's the simplest style that has the "Intelligence" look—a fact every smart woman realizes. That's why Pattern 4686 by Anne Adams is sure to be a favorite. The well-cut lines and tasteful details are in perfect keeping with a more mature figure. There's wonderful below-the-waist flattery in the YOUTH PANELS at both front and back skirt. The YOKE and SLEEVE treatment is flattering deftly held-in by darting above the waist and decorative stitching beneath the curved ends of the yokes. Isn't the unsure neckline young and becoming? It would make a nice background for flowers, clips or a necklace. Both the short and three-quarter sleeve versions are amazingly flitted to the arms by tucks. Choose a graceful scrap, leaf or flower print for this wear-everywhere frock!

Pattern 4686 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 3-8 yards 39 inch fabric.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Survey Indicates Children's Problems Now Incomplete and Parental Control

Is the era of youthful rebellion against parental authority at an end? Are girls and boys actually tired of following their own inclinations, making their own decisions, cheerfully ignoring their parents except as sources of support? More than a hint of this is in the air. Startling conclusions are precisely this line were to be drawn from a recent magazine article that caused bogus replies to a questionnaire sent out to a large number of high and college students. Most of these boys and girls came out with the statement that they believed in plenty of parental supervision. For themselves, they hadn't had enough of it, and they went into particulars.

For example, they said, youthful friendships should be investigated. It's a parent's business to see with whom the children associate and if youthful sweetheartring should be especially policed. But that is not all. Youngsters should be carefully guided in their choice of books, movies, radio programs. What is to say, censorship in the home is strongly recommended.

To read this article and consider its lie in the face of things we know that parents as a class had been absorbed in their own light pleasures, thoughts, their own selfish thoughts and had forgotten all about the responsibilities to the young.

Parents are also exposed to a sharp reprimand by the author of a current play. In this, a father, deeply intent upon his own profession of surgery, is accused by his young son and daughter of not having paid enough attention to them. Why, they say, they have had their own way in everything! It isn't natural, they complain. Why haven't they been thwarted in something? In other words their resentment in a sufficiently dramatic way, the daughter actually leaves home.

The truth about the parent-and-child situation seems to have been lost to sight. The truth is that probably for a considerable number of years, have really been scared to death. Scared that somehow they wanted to guide and advise their offspring, only to lay down a few little regulations? You may be sure they have. But they have felt, mistakenly or not, that their children had the bit in their teeth and were leaping against them.

Questions of late hours, of free use of the family car at all times of the day or night, of indictment love-making, of parties in which parents have believed they ought to have some controlling voice.

Perhaps the elder parents in a group or a town had been so browbeaten by their children that they had resigned all authority, how could a single parentless couple turn out alone? So children have had their own way. And it seems to have tired of it. They haven't managed their lives very well, they find. Why doesn't somebody else step in? In fact, why don't parents resume a little control?

It will be interesting to see the next issue. Perhaps there will be a revival of old-fashioned family life, with respect to fit, present conditions. One wonders if that won't be a good idea, for parents and children alike.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BOECKMAN

Boarding House Problem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I live in a boarding house where there are several girls. On many occasions gentlemen callers arrive on which we cannot all agree. I should be grateful if you will please set us right on the following:

1.—When a gentleman calls to escort a girl to a show or other entertainment of some kind, is it proper for him to wait in the living-room all ready to go out, or is it proper for her to go to her own room and return with her coat and allow her escort to assist her with it? I have rather felt that one might get the impression that she was being talked out of the house if his partner returns ready to depart.

Then the situation which is very embarrassing to me is that of allowing people to pass in and out theatre. Should one rise, allowing a seat to fold back and give the person room to pass, or should one just lazily remain seated and let the person step over? Let the person stumble over as best he can in an effort to reach his assigned seat? This seems very awkward to me, but I am afraid I am being too reserved.

2.—I was recently invited to my friend's home to meet a number of other couples. The visit to this party's house was a surprise as we had nothing in particular to do and just dropped in. I had never met his mother, so when the other couples had not, so our host took pains to bring us together. Upon their return, he presented me first, I was then asked to make the introduction in my most becoming manner and then repeated myself with the name of each one of the rest of the girls remained seated and they were presented.

I felt as though I was correct in the first instance, but was not sure, but still it rather left me with a feeling that maybe I had given the impression that I wanted to make myself seen, and give his mother the idea that I wanted her to notice me, which in no event was true, because I am just an acquaintance of her son and had no objective in view. I have always been taught to stand whenever an elderly woman is presented and I would like to have your advice on this subject.

E.

1.—I agree with your idea that it would seem a bit less rushing if the woman came down to the living-room to greet her friend, and then, in a minute or two, when it was to leave, went to the ent-room to get her coat, returning with it for the man to help put on. Even if there is no convenient cloakroom, a guest may leave her coat down with her, leaving it on a chair for the few minutes. This adds to the boarding house look of ground more the feeling of a home.

2.—Your description of the many ways of doing this vividly answers your question. Gentlemen rise or remain well-chosen use of the words "lazily", and "stumble" and awkward". The thoughtful, selfish person grouchily remains in his or her seat, letting her fellow guests do as best he or she can.

The polite person promptly rises and polite about rising when your hostess entered the room, that there is nothing to be said about that. Apparently you were the only girl in the room who had any conception of manners, at least concerning such an important point.

The Women's Field Army to Fight Cancer

Despite all the research work on cancer throughout the world, there would be many more thousands die of cancer than do, if only the facts about cancer was not made public in the newspapers. Cancer runs into an individual why just can't get it right. When this disease is the case, then the mother can get around the difficulty by getting the child to eat food, we all like them. Cream soups and custards are good examples.

If an honest attempt to get a child to drink milk or eat spinach fails, then the parent is entirely justified in substituting something else. Being a good parent consists in keeping a nice balance between what firm about essential things without being too determined or too dogmatic.

Everyone knows people who won't eat this or that because they were compelled to eat it as a child. For instance, I know a young woman who, when she was a child was forced against her will to eat fruit. Today you couldn't get a bit of fruit of any kind past her lips even if you tied her up and tried to force-feed her.

If you start early enough, you can train a child to eat almost anything. I think the acidophilus milk we give the Quintuplets is a good example. It is a culture to keep our bowels in order. It looks bad, smells terrible and tastes worse. Yet the Quintuplets take it to keep of their health.

I am sure if we tried to start with a baby Fore, today's baby, but I wouldn't blame them. But we started them when they were babies and they don't know that they developed. We give it to them before it keeps their intestines in splendid shape.

No Use to Battle Children Because of Food Prejudices

Many of the food prejudices of children are sound. The child knows somehow that the food does not agree with him, or there is something about it that makes it unsatisfactory for him. But whether the reason is sound or not, if a child shows a continued and violent objection to some food, then the wise thing for the parent to do is dig up a substitute—some food that contains as many vitamins.

I always feel that if a child who has been properly trained, refuses to eat some food there must be a pretty good reason why he doesn't. And if some other food can be substituted, it should be. Nagging the child just makes matters worse and will only make matters worse.

Ninety-nine per cent of children should be able to drink a quart of milk daily without any difficulty but every now and then you run into an individual why just can't get it down. When this does is the case, then the mother can get around the difficulty by getting the child to eat food, we all like them. Cream soups and custards are good examples.

DEEP ADVANCES IN ETHIOPIA, ERITREA ARE ANNOUNCED

British Advanced Elements Reported Having Been in Contact With Enemy Infantry and Mechanized Units in Libya

Cairo, Egypt, April 1 (AP)—Extensive advances into Eritrea and Ethiopia were announced today by British general headquarters.

Hundreds of miles to the northwest, in Libya, British advanced elements were reported reached to have been in contact with enemy infantry and mechanized units in the Mersa Veregs area. This is the first report in several days of movement in the North African phase of the campaign against Italy's African Empire.

Advancing on Asmara, capital of Eritrea, British columns captured a brigade commander among 800 prisoners taken in the past 48 hours.

The Ethiopian campaign was rapidly nearing Addis Ababa, capital of that part of Italian East Africa, with British forces astride both Addis Ababa-Jibouti railway and a highway.

British Blows To Italians May Stir Up Nazis

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, April 1 (AP)—Cumulative British blows, ashore and afloat, at Germany's shaken Italian ally are tending to force Hitler's hand in the Balkans. He cannot very well long delay to find effective means to prop his faltering partner, whatever the risks of a Balkan war, without risking an early internal Italian collapse.

That lends color to Belgrade reports, denied by German sources, of an impending Nazi ultimatum to Yugoslavia to demobilize her army or take the consequences. Official spokesmen do not go that far.

They do, however, line Berlin's impatience with Yugoslavia is the strongest hint that for "pertinent" reasons alone the situation there cannot be much longer tolerated.

German prestige in Italy seems to be inclined to be "up to Hitler to find a way to meet the effect of the British naval victory in the South-Central Mediterranean for strictly military and naval reasons as well as prestige.

Italian Power Shattered.

That fight was more than the greatest sea battle of this war. It might prove ultimately the climactic actions of the British-Axis struggle and perhaps even the decisive elements in the battle of the Atlantic as well as the Mediterranean.

Britain virtually shattered Italian sea power without loss or injury to her own fighting men except by missing air craft.

Yet that single and prolonged action greatly impaired the Italian fleet's ability to act even as a passive ally of Germany in the crucial battle of the Atlantic. Destruction among Italian cruisers and destroyers, whatever the full toll, will serve to release British warcraft in the Mediterranean to reinforce those guarding Atlantic sea lanes.

Without an adequate protective screen of such fast lighter craft, the sinking British battleships are no serious asset to Britain. They would in fact be more than safe caskets in the now doubly overwhelming British naval odds against them. The British command can almost write them as well as the sunken cruisers and destroyers off the books.

Not Good Strategy.

Why the Italian fleet put out at all is not indicated. It may have hoped to strike a Greece-bound British troop convoy heading up the Aegean. Or it may have been an operation dictated by Italian naval or public morale necessity.

The great Battle of Jutland in the first Great War grew out of such a German necessity. It was not a strategic move, and Rome may have ordered out the fleet for similar reasons. If that should be true it would testify to the serious concern in Rome over the effect on the Italian home front of succeeding blows by Britain and Greece and the Yugoslav revolt against the Axis on the Italian home front.

Hitler's main purpose in moving into Bulgaria and putting pressure on Yugoslavia to join the Axis was to prop Italy and also to compel Britain to come heavily to Greek aid. There seems no doubt of that. It would pin British naval and merchant shipping in the Mediterranean at the time it was most vitally needed in the Atlantic.

Yet it is now crystal clear that a Nazi attack on Yugoslavia is likely to touch off a major war in the Balkans and might, not even then succeed in bracing Italy, particularly if Yugoslav belligerency led, as it might, to a new Italian military disaster in Albania.

AXIS DEMANDS U.S. RELEASE ALL SHIPS AND CREWS

Demands Made in Notes of Protest Lodged by Axis Embassies to State Department

CONTESTS NOT GIVEN

Germany and Italy Challenge Right of U.S. to Seize Axis Ships, Crews

Washington, April 1 (AP)—Germany and Italy have demanded that the United States release Axis ships taken into protective custody during the week-end and also members of the crews, it was learned in official circles.

The demands were made in notes of protest lodged with the state department by the Axis envassies late yesterday.

The state department and the embassies declined to make public the contents of the notes.

It was learned from informed sources, however, that both notes demanded release of the ships and the crews.

Germany and Italy were said to have challenged the right of the United States to take possession of the ships or to take members of the crews into custody.

In neither note was there any mention of sabotage—the ground which the United States government gave for taking over the ships it has interned.

The notes were said to have disputed the right of the government to take the action under either international law or treaty.

Gaston Henry-Haye, Vichy ambassador, was instructed to make understood that the United States would resist by force action against French merchant ships tied up in American ports.

SIGN AGREEMENT RECIPROCAL USE OF AIR FIELDS

U.S.—Mexican Action Will Permit U.S. Planes to Speed to Panama in Shortest Time

BILL IS READY

Washington, April 1 (AP)—The United States and Mexico today signed a convention providing for reciprocal use of air fields which will permit American military planes to speed to Panama in the shortest possible time.

The convention was signed by Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State, and Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican Ambassador in the presence of American and Mexican States military experts who formed the committee to draft plans for unified defense measures for defence of the western hemisphere.

The convention will be sent to the Senate for ratification and the Mexican Congress for appropriate action.

The agreement, qualified authorities stated, would greatly strengthen the aerial defences of the Panama Canal by making it possible for the United States to shift air force reinforcements rapidly southward over the Rio Grande if danger threatened the canal zone.

This new defence compact, officials said, is now ready for formal signing by representatives of the two governments, and will become effective once it has been ratified by Mexico's Congress.

Terms of Agreement

Under its terms, United States army and navy planes would be permitted to fly the length of Mexico, utilizing Mexican air fields en route for refuelling and repairs, and thus would be able to reach Panama in the shortest possible time.

The air fields undertaking, negotiated by Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, and Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican Ambassador, was considered of major importance since it puts "teeth" in the recently signed United States-Mexican general mutual defence pact.

Six Men Reported Disappeared With Lorry, Tommy Gun

London, April 1 (CP. Cable)—Six members of a Quebec regiment were reported today to have disappeared from their barracks in the Home Counties this morning with a camouflaged army lorry, a Tommy gun and several hundred rounds of ammunition.

The disappearance was revealed by an announcement that Scotland Yard was searching for the soldiers.

It was confirmed at Canadian headquarters here, where it was said the Canadians were still at large at mid-afternoon and the truck unlocated. Further details were not disclosed.

SOME LANDLORDS IN OSHAWA NOT CO-OPERATING

Some, Says' Judge Martin, Have Been Quite Co-operative, Others Not Even Answering Letters of Inquiry

Oshawa, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Oshawa landlords, it appears, have not been willing to co-operate with the Federal Rent Control Administration, Mr. Justice W. J. Martin, said during a visit here yesterday.

In telling members of the Oshawa civic council about this lack of co-operation, the administrator said the landlords in question "have not had the common decency to even answer letters that have been forwarded to the rent department requesting information."

Some landlords here, however, have been "quite co-operative," he said.

After the administrator's meeting with the council, Mayor J. C. Anderson said that the rent control office had said that in some instances rent increases in Oshawa had been "very unsatisfactory."

VICHY PROTESTS ALGIERS INCIDENT

Ambassador Delivers to U.S. State Department Document for Transmission to London

Washington, April 1 (AP)—Gaston Henry-Haye, Vichy ambassador to the United States, delivered to the State Department—for transmittal to the British government—a protest from the Vichy government against the shelling of French warships of a convoy of French merchantmen in the port of Algiers.

The ambassador told newspapermen that since there was no direct diplomatic intercourse between Vichy and London the Vichy government was asking the co-operation of the United States in transmitting the note.

Henry-Haye also said he would explain to the State Department at length the details of a barter arrangement under which foodstuffs have been purchased in the unoccupied and the unoccupied zones in France.

He added that he would also seek information concerning any possible action by the United States looking to sending French merchant ships now tied up in American harbors.

Henry-Haye also said he had seen reports that the French vessels might be taken over by the United States, a manner similar to the action taken with the Italian, German and Danish ships.

Rock of Gibraltar Pictured as Giant Underground Fort

New York, April 1 (CP)—A picture of the Gibraltar of yesterday prepared for any emergency, its rock-girt fortress and refrigeration plants, completely equipped hospitals and modern defensive weapons, has been brought to the screen by Helen Stieti, a foreign correspondent of the Universal Broadcasting Company.

Miss Stieti said last night she was shown through some of the underground defences by British officers inside the rock that look like great underground lakes, and rock barracks for hundreds of men.

(Royal Canadian Engineers, including expert ack-ack gunners, have been working at Gibraltar for weeks, helping strengthen the defence of the "rock.")

Miss Stieti said no bomb will ever reach, complete with operating and X-ray rooms, cover of purple, and hundreds of beds, scrapgilt village on sheer rock wall to which wounded from the cottage may be hold unpleasant surprises."

Roosevelt, Back From Cruise, Studies Yugoslavian Developments

The lady was returning to her home, when the two young fiends set upon her from the darkness near Lorne Avenue and snatched the purse shortly before nine o'clock. The purse contained about $9.00.

Mrs. Jones described the boys as being about 12 or 13 years of age. After stealing the purse they ran along Lorne Avenue and escaped.

During the serving of lunch a farewell address was read by Mr. Cecil McAlpine and Allen was presented with a fountain pen and a pocketknife as a token from which he was held by his many friends.

Messrs. R. Brudwick, F. J. Stringer, C. Gorrie, J. McAlpine and S. Stringer motored to Toronto Tuesday to attend the Eglinton Leaf-Boston game at the Gardens.

Miss Aileen Plumley daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Plumley having conducted a beauty parlour at her home since the early fall, has now moved into new quarters on Hastings Street recently purchased by her father and which was formerly occupied by Mr. R. Bletcher.

The interior of the building has undergone extensive alterations and is a very attractive asset to the business section of the village.

Mr. William Ray McAlpine of the R.C.A.F., of Toronto, spent the week end with friends in Bancroft.

Miss Jean Nicol, of Belleville, is spending a few days as a guest in the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Polden.

Mrs. O. E. Towle motored to Toronto Saturday for the week end.

Mr. Ernest Hawkins, says the R.A.F. now has, despite battle casualties and wear and tear, a greater number of machines than it has ever had and made greater strides than Germany.

Some estimates of German production have indicated that the Nazi Air Force has by now barely made good its enormous losses in all fronts since Poland, and that have been placed as high as 24,000.

Britain has produced a "really big bomber" with only two engines—such as the Manchester—capable of greater feats than the older, four-motored craft. One of five new engine types is less than six feet long, but develops "more horse-power than the Royal Scot," a famous passenger train.

An indication of the ever-growing strength of the R.A.F. is afforded by this list of the latest types of British and United States machines:

British Fighters.

Improved Spitfires and Hurricanes, nothing like their prototypes that took part in the battle over the October battles over Britain; the twin-engined Beaufighter, "probably the world's fastest aircraft;" the twin-engined Beau, lon grange and night fighter, successor to a long line of famous machines; the Hawker tornado, almost super machine with 2,000-horsepower Rolls Royce nature engine; Typhoon, Tempest, the "Spitfire of the navy"; the Blackburn Roc, naval fighter and dive bomber, and the Defiant, two seater night fighter.

The Tornado has the terrific fire power and an unofficial speed in excess of 400 miles an hour. One of the new Spitfires, the Spitfire Mark 3, has a speed greater than 400 miles and is armed with cannon.

U.S. May Accept Canadian Dollar At Par Say Unconfirmed Reports

New York, April 1 (CP)—The Canadian dollar advanced 1 15-16 cents overnight to a discount of 13 cents, top price of the year, in early afternoon foreign exchange dealings here today.

Exchange quarters here attributed the rise to unconfirmed reports that a foreign exchange agreement between Canada and the United States might provide for United States acceptance of the Canadian dollar at par.

Canada's contribution to such an agreement, it was said, would be to ease import restrictions on United States manufacture goods and raw materials.

R. A. F. Has Thirty Types of Planes To Conduct Offensive in the Air

London, April 1 (CP).—The Royal Air Force has more than thirty types of aircraft to form the sky armada with which Britain will conduct her future offensive in the air.

Among the latest additions are the Bean and the Hallifax. The Bean is a fighter useful for long-range attacks and escort duties as well as for night fighting. The Halifax bomber, like the Stirling and the Manchester, can carry three times the weight of bombs over the same distance as its predecessors. It will carry as twice the ack-ack guns.

Britain's leaders say the R.A.F. now has, despite battle casualties and wear and tear, a greater number of machines than it has ever had and made greater strides than Germany.

Toronto Leafs May Change Lineup for Sixth Semi-Final Game With the Boston Bruins

Don Metz May Replace Davidson and Kampman Take Church's Place

LEAFS CONFIDENT

Cooney Weiland, Coach of Bruins, Believes His Team Will Even Series

Toronto, April 1 (CP)— The old adage that nothing succeeds like success apparently means little to Coach Hap Day and Manager Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Either that or the Leafsian brain trust pulled its April fool's gag one day in advance.

Smythe and Day didn't explain the psychological insights of their decision, but last night announced possibility of a change in the Toronto lineup for tonight's game with Boston Bruins—sixth of the best-of-seven Stanley cup semi-final.

The word that Don Metz may be injected into the lineup in place of Bob Davidson and that Bingo Kampman may be ready to take Jack Church's place on defence came as quite a surprise to those of the Leaf faithful who spent a week-end of dutiful reflection that the lineup which beat Boston Saturday night should be kept intact. It was generally accepted that Leafs' 2-1 effort to take a 3-2 series lead Saturday was one of their best showings this season.

The April fool's angle, of course, is quite possible. At this stage in a hockey series the old morale counts for plenty and nothing is quite so potent in the art of keeping a player at his keenest as stimulation of his desire to remain a player, not a bench-warmer.

Meanwhile, Bruins growl defiance, as the sportswriters have it. They must win tonight, or go home for the season. Apart from the absence of Bill Cowley, they are in good shape, although Boston without Cowley is not a world-beating combination and it has seemed plain the clever centre was injured and side-lined for the season.

Coach Cooney Weiland, holding forth last night, didn't consider Toronto's two victories on home ice had dampened the Bruin morale and said he believed Boston would win tonight, forcing the series to seven games.

Oshawa Generals Even Series With Toronto Marlboros

Oshawa, April 1—(CP)—Oshawa Generals today were even with Toronto Marlboros at three wins each in the best-of-seven series for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior championship and entry into the Eastern Junior final.

Generals often have been down to Marlboros in this series, but last night came through with a 6-3 victory in the sixth game of the series. The defeat would have meant elimination and advancement of Marlboros along the Canadian junior championship route completed successfully by Oshawa teams for the last two seasons.

They were better than the glory Toronto club for the whole distance last night, scoring twice without an opposition reply early in the first period. From then on, they never were headed.

Ron Wilson and Norm McAtee each scored twice for Oshawa, with Wally Wilson and Roy Sawyer getting the other goals. Gaye Stewart, Bob Percival and Bobby Dew scored for Marlboros.

Ben. Hogan Wins Tourney With 284

Asheville, N.C., March 31 (AP)—Having scored his first individual victory of the winter and entrenched himself more solidly as the head of the cash-won list, Ben Hogan goes onto Augusta today as one of the top choices for the Masters' Golf Tournament starting there Thursday.

Hogan didn't do very well over the Biltmore Forest Country Club course yesterday morning. Still he had it in him to rip for a two-under-par closing 69 that beat Lawson Little by two shots.

Hogan led Little four shots starting the day; lost nine with a 75 to Lawson's great 66 in the first period of the U.S. open champ at lunch time and then made up those five and two besides when Little took a baffling final 6 because he couldn't get a putt to drop.

Hogan with a 284, was 11 shots over his 1940 winning total. Little was 286, Lloyd Mangrum 289, Craig Wood 290 and Gene Byrd, Byron Snead and Jimmy Thomson 291.

Knute Rockne Always Head Coach At Notre Dame

By EARL HILLIGAN

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

South Bend, Ind., April 1 (AP)—Heartley (Hunk) Anderson stepped into the toughest spot the football coaching game ever has known when he agreed to succeed Knute Rockne at Notre Dame.

The announcement of his engagement by Notre Dame was made April 10, 1931, but ten days after Rockne's death in an air-liner crash. The Notre Dame president, Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, declared:

"There is no head coach at Notre Dame. Knute Rockne is always head coach. Hunk Anderson is the senior coach and Jack Chevigny the junior coach."

Anderson had two big jobs on his hands. One was the job of trying to fill Rockne's shoes; the other was the senior-junior coaching experiment, which didn't work out principally because of friction which developed on the coaching staff.

Notre Dame didn't fare badly in 1931, losing twice and tying one game to finish second to Purdue by virtue of 1932 Chevigny had turned in his resignation.

In December of 1930, Anderson and the Irish athletic director, Jesse Harper, announced their resignations and two months later Notre Dame's famous "thin man" Elmer Layden, was installed in the head coach's and athletic director's chair.

Wherever Notre Dame men gather, they'll argue about the comparative records of Rockne teams and those turned out by Anderson and Layden. Rockne's teams won fifty games, lost 12 and tied five. Anderson's three-year record was 16 won, nine lost and two tied. Layden's seven-year mark was 47 games won, 13 lost and three tied. The combined Anderson - Layden record, therefore, was 63 victories, 22 defeats and five ties.

Though Layden kept turning out good teams, he was under the "finger" of the Rockne legend. When his teams won, fans would refer to them as "teams that looked like those Rock used to turn out." When his teams lost, they were "Layden teams".

PORT ARTHUR BEARCATS OUT OF SENIOR RACE

Regina Rangers Defeat Former Title Holders in Third and Final Game

JUNIORS IN

Two Rangers hockey teams of Regina and Winnipeg—which the gregarious says have a working agreement with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League today waited the naming of their opponents in the Western Canada senior and junior finals.

Regina Rangers, coached by Freddie Metcalfe, former American Association professional, eliminated the Port Arthur Bearcats, 1939 Allan Cup holders, in a best-of-five series on Tuesday night by virtue of a 3-2 triumph in the Saskatchewan Capital. Winnipeg Rangers won the Manitoba-Thunder Bay Junior crown earlier.

Johnny Kennedy of Red Deer, Alta., who came to Regina with Metcalfe from Lethbridge Maple Leafs last fall, scored the victory early in the third period of the clean but hard-fought game. That goal sent Rangers into the final against either Lethbridge Maple Leafs or Edmonton Flyers, the winner of the next series will be at Saskatoon Saturday.

Johnny Kennedy last night was that a former Regina flash of last season—Art Mahan—led Lethbridge to a 6-3 win over Trail, forcing a sixth game in the far west semi-finals. Maple Leafs won the fourth game 3-2 after Trail took two encounters 3-1 and 2-1 and the opener was a scoreless draw.

Winnipeg Rangers will meet either Edmonton Athletic Club or Saskatoon Quakers in the Junior final; Edmonton and Saskatoon will settle their best-of -five series at Saskatoon tonight, each having won two games.

WARNED AGAINST RUSSIA

Wolfville, N.S., April 1 (CP) — A warning against placing too great faith in Russia was given last night in an address by Sir Robert Clive, retired British ambassador who arrived in Canada during the week-end.

"Stalin has played his cards with consummate skill," he said, "and it would be a mistake to imagine that he has strong sympathies for the democracies."

MONTREAL LEVELS DOUBLE-DECKED HOCKEY THREAT

Senior Royals Eliminate Marlies, While Juniors Take First Game From Ottawa

JUNIORS FAVORED

(By The Canadian Press)

Only club in Eastern Canada with two teams still in the running for amateur hockey honors, Montreal Royals levelled a double-barrelled threat today to both senior and junior titles.

Then senior Royals, fleet of foot and aggressive, rode into the eastern final for the third straight time last night by trimming Ontario's Toronto Marlboros 6-1. The Quebec champions next meet Sydney Millionaires, Maritime titleholders, for the right to represent the east in the Dominion final.

Idle since winning the Quebec crown two weeks ago, the junior Royals meanwhile got back into action with an impressive, 6-1, triumph over Ottawa Canadiens, champions of Ottawa and district, the Canadiens had eliminated the Maritime titleholders, Charlottetown Islanders, to reach the junior semi-final.

Big and fast, the well-balanced juniors became favored to sweep the best-of-three series Wednesday on the Canadiens' home ice in Ottawa. Their real test, however, is expected from Ontario, where Oshawa Generals forced a deciding game in their final with Toronto Marlboros by winning, 6-3, last night.

Polished Wingman

Johnny Acheson, polished wingman, scored two goals to pace the senior Royals to their victory over the Marlboros at Toronto. Upset 6-2 in Montreal Saturday night, the Royals returned to the form that gave them 3-1 and 3-2 victories in the first two games of a seven tilt series in four matches.

The opening match of the finals with Sydney has been tentatively set for Thursday night, although the Millionaires will have home ice for the best-of-five series. The second game will be in Montreal Saturday.

The Millionaires, who eliminated Hull Volants, Ottawa and district champions, in a semi-final, have been working out daily in Montreal. Dick Kowcinak, their victory over Edmonton Flyers, Alberta

HOT DRINKS FOR SKI TROOPS

Modern as ski troops and as mobile as fast-moving mechanized columns, Y.M.C.A. tea cars in Canada and overseas take Y.M.C.A. war services where they are needed most, thrown above in a tea car giving free hot drinks to ski troops at Camp Borden, Ont. At night this car provides warm drinks for airmen on night-flying duty. Over 11,200 men were served from this car during February.

Canadian "Y" War Services Doing Fine Work in Canada As Well As At Overseas Points

"Y" is One of War Charities Benefit by the Current Drive for Private Work at Home Here Today

Organizations Which Will Campaign — Funds for Included — Drive Starts

Toronto—When 5,000 airmen were in scarlet fever quarantine recently in an eastern Canadian depot the Y.M.C.A. war services staff swung into action on two hours' notice to provide indoor recreation. For an entire month the men in quarantine were kept in good spirits.

In England and Christmas, the mess of every Canadian unit was supplied with Christmas trees and gifts were distributed to all the men. To the most remote outpost in Iceland, "Y" men have penetrated with games, movies, books and writing materials. Y.M.C.A. secretaries and thousands of volunteer helpers, men and women, have devoted every energy to help the men in uniform, backed by the full organization of the Y.M.C.A. whose work with youths has extended over 90 years in Canada.

Canadian "Y" war services extend to 222 points in Canada and overseas and total services rendered have exceeded 12,100,000. While 73 local associations across Canada continue their normal work among Canadian youth, attention also is given to problems of war industries.

"Y" work with the armed forces is designed to provide wholesome recreation, thus maintaining morale. The program includes organization and direction of athletics, small games, social entertainments and religious activities, and a variety of personal services, including arrangements for the entertainment of men in private homes.

Recreational facilities directed by full-time experts are available in 30 R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. centres, in 18 army camps and 13 army training centres and militia camps in Canada. Regular visits are made to 114 isolated outposts on the Atlantic and Pacific coast. Hot drinks for troops on manoeuvres are provided by five mobile canteens. The privileges of every Y.M.C.A. building in Canada are offered free to men in uniform and 6 of these buildings entertain thousand each month. At Halifax the Y.M.C.A. hostel has 70 beds available for sailors, soldiers and airmen, while in other cities 19 Red Triangle Clubs are operated, for men on leave.

In England there are 55 'Y' centres with Canadian troops and the Beaver Club in London—a popular club with room on leave. As in Canada, tea cars and mobile canteens provide hot drinks for troops on outpost duty and on manoeuvres. Skating and hockey, dear to the hearts of Canadians overseas, have been provided by Y.M.C.A. operation of skating rinks at Aldershot and Brighton. Y.M.C.A. men are with Canadian forces in Newfoundland and Iceland.

Y.M.C.A. war services organize, direct, and supply equipment for all types of athletic activities among the 90 per cent of the services rendered. Table tennis, checkers, crib-bage, and darts are available in all centres, while thousands are entertained each evening by movies, concerts and tournaments. Social activities include dances and Sunday afternoon teas.

Reading and writing rooms encourage use and paper and envelopes for 12,050,000 letters to the "folks back home" have been given away. On Sundays church parades are held in "Y" auditoriums and in the evenings, services and singsongs are regular features.

Six war service organizations which ordinarily appeal separately for funds have united in one nation-wide drive for $5,500,000 under the name of The Canadian War Services Fund." Included in the campaign, which opened this week are the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., I.O.D.E., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A., and Y.W.C.A.

April Fool Pranks Seem Out of Date

Did you stub your toe in an attempt to kick an old derby hat, under which was purposely placed a brick, or did you fall for that old "wallet gag" this morning? Actually those April fool pranks seem out of date according to a consensus of opinion along Front St., the more modern style is to call up a friend, one who smokes a pipe preferred, and ask him if he has "Prince Albert in a can". If the reply is "yes", the prankster merely adds "Keep the lid on or he'll get out."

Today is April 1st, and from time immemorial has been known as All Fools' Day. What the real origination is not easy to answer, but its origin lies somewhere in the hidden past of Europe. "April fool jokes" do not seem to be practiced as fervently as in the early nineties, but occasionally some person will think up a new gag, but perhaps the most famous April Fool joke was perpetrated by Thomas Hood, an Englishman, who lived many years ago. He sent a telegram to a prominent politician and his day that read — "Fly. All is discovered." There was a vacant lot in the house of Commons the next day.

April fool jokes are slowly passing out of the everyday life of Canadians, as was realized when a survey of the downtown area was taken today, without the resemblance of one being attempted on the money reporter.

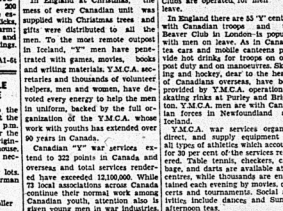
POLICE BLOTTER

Toronto police sought the assistance of the Belleville authorities in the possible identification of two teenaged boys who left Toronto on Monday and were believed headed for Montreal aboard a coal bicycle. The names of the runaway boys were given as Robert Hood, age 14 years, height about five feet eight inches and of fair complexion. Robert was wearing a suede windbreaker when he left home and was still in possession of it. With him is believed to be 16-year-old Carrol Gerdel.

Chief Kidd announced today there were no thieves at the police station awaiting the owners' identification. The bikes were picked up by local constables and placed in the outlying areas of the city limits.

Belleville Police Court had two teen-aged lads at the police station on Saturday morning, the questioning lasting for several hours and entering of four places of business in the west hill sector over the weekend, nothing to substantiate arrests resulted. Other clues have been picked up by the police in the meantime and are being fully investigated.

In a series being necessary last night the cell block at the police station was accompanied by ten tranients.



Two heroines and a hero, or Mrs Agnes Sullaran, Fredric March and Francis Dee, as they appear in "So Ends Our Night," the stirring picture of modern-day love and drama, which is opening next at the McCarthy Theatre.

"SPECIAL SERVICE" — Chapter Fifty-Five

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

It seemed a fantastic nightmare to Marie that Nino—who had been her friend, her guest, her fiance would now, at Felix Northrim's bidding, carry her off into war. She lay crushed against him as he ran out of the villa with her in his arms. Even when he thrust her beside him in the auto, she didn't believe he meant her harm. But when the car started she roused herself from shock.

"What are they doing to Tony?" she cried. Worth was back there at the mercy of those ruthless men. They would kill him!

Nino had locked the door on Marie's side of the car. But in his panic he had forgotten the window. Marie leaned perilously out; she saw Tony bolt from the villa, she waved, and cank back, mino must-n't know that Tony was free.

The deepening light of the afternoon slanted across Nino's narrow head. His hands trembled on the wheel as he careened the powerful car around the turn at the bottom of the hill.

"I shall never forgive you for this", it was the first time Marie had spoken.

"I could not help it", Nino said, in despair.

Once on the main road, he drove somewhat slowly as if he dreaded that which lay ahead. Marie looked disdainfully at him; then up at the mirror. A car was coming along behind them. She lowered her eyes to hide their gleam. Tony Worth was in that car.

Marie said in a low, stinging voice, "You're viler, to my mind, than the others. Your cowardice is our friend. Yet you have sold yourself to our enemies. And you have made love to me for my money!"

She glanced away at the mirror. The long white car following them had dropped behind, but was catching up again.

"You don't understand", Nino turned toward her. "Felix is a devil. I have never been wicked, believe me, dearest one. But Felix knows my failings. My family is old and proud. For their sake— He gazed remorsefully at the glittering blue and white around them—the Mediterranean, the smooth road and hills. "If you really only love me", he murmured brokenly, "we could go far away. We would forget Felix, your money—everything. And I would worship you".

Marie shook her head. "I'll never love you," she said. "How can you really go through with this despicable scheme?"

Lipp smiled, "I can go through anything to have you".

Marie bent swiftly and bit his hand.

The car shot at a crazy angle across the road. Nino recovered at the wheel, veering back to their own side. He slowed down; stopped. "You have won", he said, tonelessly. "You would rather die than be with me?"

"I'm not going to die". Marie looked once more into the mirror. She caught a glimpse of Tony's grim, set face before the white car zoomed up, crowding alongside. Then Tony was out on the road, pulling like a madman at the locked door on Marie's side. The Marchese raised his head, staring as at a ghost.

Worth flashed around to Nino's side, reaching in. "Get out and take it!" he said in a voice low with concentrated fury.

Nino climbed out. Marie after him. She went quickly to Tony and put her hand on his arm which was hard as rock. "I knew you'd come", she said. "You'd strike him, Tony. He's—down".

The Marchese Lippi squared his shoulders, but his hands hung limp at his side. "It is better so," he said, and shrugged. "I don't blame you, ol' man."

"No—no!" Marie cried, clinging to Tony. "He isn't as bad as you think".

The muscles around Tony's jaw softened as he looked at her pleading, upturned face. Nino waited, with no notion of flight or defense.

"I suppose I'm a sap", Tony said at last. "Beat it, Lippi, before I change my mind!"

"Decent of you, Worth". Nino sounded whipped. But he didn't hurry. He lifted Marie's hand, bending reverently over it. Then he walked away in the direction, the Monte Carlo; a slender figure, no longer jaunty in the sunshine.

"They'll catch him in the end", Tony said; his gray eyes troubled. Then irresistibly his arms swept out, and Marie went into them. He had earned his moment. Later he remember it when she returned to all the things he couldn't give her?

"Sweetheart," he said at last, trying to keep his voice steady, "I must go back to the villa. We have to think of Eric and Theresa. You want to help, don't you?"

She nodded, her eyes brilliant.

"This is how, then," he said, "I'll take Northrim's auto. You use the car I was in. Go back to Cannes. Send the police to the villa. Then wait for me there, or on the Serena. You'll find Pop Hamm and Captain Buckner pretty worried about you".

He kissed her once more. "Will you do that?"

"Yes, Tony," he said, so meekly that he looked at her with mock suspicion. "Be a good girl", he grinned.

Worth climbed into the yellow car, his face grim once more. He might not have much of a chance before the police arrived Northrim wouldn't let him escape a second time. And Hloto . . .

Marie obediently followed in the white car.

His heart constricting. Tony Worth slowed the auto at the bottom of the hill leading to the pink villa. He leaned out to wave to Marie. She would soon pass by in the white car on her way to Cannes and safety. His job was almost done.

It seemed like a crazy adventure. Yet it was very real.

Tonight back at the Ad, CENTRAL MAN WANTED FOR SPECIAL SERVICE. At any rate, he reflected, he hadn't failed the girl at old Judge Fairchild, who would soon have his ward safely home for the coming-of-age ceremonies spotlighting Schuyler millions once more. And Tony hadn't failed. Ed Keeler's intelligence chief, Felix Northeim's agency—his international clearing house, his whole devilish business —was being smashed. So Tony should be happy. He wasn't.

Then Marie drove slowly along the lower road. Tony saw her face against the blues and golds of the Riviera. He waved, sighed and started the car up the hill. He had no illusions about that which he faced at the top. He must still settle with Felix Northrim, his deadly foe, and the killer Luigi.

If he ever got out alive, he'd call Ed Keeler and all our force. Ed would be on hand, along with the Statue of Liberty. He'd go back with Ed to the little apartment on Waverly Place and find himself a job . . . . Thoughts of the future were shattered when Tony looked up in the mirror.

There was Marie in the white car following close behind up the hill. He had no time to stop now. He motioned her away — violently. She shook her head.

Tony slapped on his brakes. He had nearly reached the two firs flanking the path to the house. He slid out of the car. Then he saw the bodies.

Marie ran to him. Her choked cry floated into space as she saw Luigi sprawled top-sided.

Under the fir, "Major" Thelma lay like a fallen tree, his huge fists clenched—daring anyone to pass. He had been "bumped off". But Eric had made his last tale come true. He had battled with Hloto, the man he most dreaded, to the death!

In the Baroness Lazar's bedroom, neither she nor Felix Northeim moved after the Marchese Lippi ran out, carrying Marie Schuyler. The kidnapping had been a last resort. Then Tony escaped. Eric Thelma rushing after him; Hloto and Luigi on their tracks. None of these had come back.

"Where can they be?" Northeim fretted. He looked almost appealingly at the woman who for so long had been faithful to him. "What can have happened, Theresa?" His pale eyes begged her to reassure him. "Nothing must go wrong", he said anxiously, tugging at his thick lip. "I can always count on Hloto". You can count on no one, Felix." Therese stood in front of him with a strange smile on her thin crimson lips; a smile which had puzzled him and made him uneasy since he had been left alone with her. She seemed so tall . . . .

"You see, my dear Felix," she went on, "in all your schemes to subvert America, you've forgotten one thing, and that is common decency. You play on nater, and hate is poison, Felix. You've been poison for years of that poison".

She walked over and picked up the red carnation he had earlier torn from her dress. She walked back to him and flung it at him. "I thought once that red was our symbol of mutual love. But read now means . . . . bleeding!"

Her hand slid into her bodice where the knife was tucked.

"Theresa!" Northrim protested. He felt uneasy . . . . Yet, Felix Northeim, who gave orders and received reports from all quarters of the world; he who always inspired fear. "You're mad, Therese!" he blustered, taking mincing steps away from her. "These stupid people — Hamzad and Vorwick — they have them grovelling, begging me to allow them to use my resources— my—"

"Yours—you—That's all you can offer them — yourself, Felix. Yet you haven't done any of the things you once dreamed of". Her bitter smile still played on her lips.

"There is no one like me!" Northeim boasted. "Hloto will be here soon. No doubt he had gone after that fool Tony Worth. Ach, why do I worry? Lippi has Marie and Iordan—"

He interrupted that thought. "When my plans fail, I make others, Therese". He looked at her again . . . . "I do you". His voice wavered. "You are more alluring than ever. The white carnations —yes, I meant them as a final warning. But I fear to you now, we shall go on together".

La Lazar moved closer. "I do not believe you, Felix", she said softly.

He retreated from her eyes. He wished Hloto would hurry.

"You have taught me to hate you, Felix", Theresa answered her voice quiet. Its rich, husky tone sank. You would like not to believe me. Nevertheless, I hate you, Felix. I hate you!"

The high frameworx of Northeim's cheekbones stood out gaunter. He wanted Therese now. You cannot hate me," he said, trembling. "My Therese! Beautiful—" His hand went to her shoulder . . .

That hand went through her like fire, burning the last shreds of love to cinders. "Keep away from me, Felix!"

His receding approach grew more insistent. "You love me, Theresa. Say you love me".

"Yes—this way!" The knife flashed out. He backed away, grotesque in utter fear. Then and Fate's fingers directed that blade. She struck true.

WALL STREET

New York, April 1 (AP)—The stock market today stepped warily into the second quarter and, while scattered favorites managed to tack on fractions, numerous issues failed to go anywhere.

A few steels, rails, motors and specialties did fairly well and the lively low-priced utilities of the previous session were in vogue, but gegs were active now and then. The pace slowed appreciably during the fourth hour.

Stocks given a lift at one time were Warner U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, N.Y. Central, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Anaconda, International Nickel, DuPont, Allied Chemical and General Electric were preferred.

In the Canadian section Dome Mines advanced 1 1-8 points and Wright Hargreaves one point. McIntyre and Lake Shore Mines held steady while Gunnar, 4 in the Red Lake district, gained 1-2 point. Distillers Seagrams clipped 1-2 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 1 (CP)— Trading picked up in the industrial shares in the early market session and stronger prices gave the group an index gain of 0.31. Golds were held steady. Canadian Pacific, Jonesa are not related.

Massey Harris fell. Bell Telephone, Fanny Farmer and Canada Cement were in demand at better prices. Distillers Seagrams moved up 1-4 to 21 1-4 and the Abitibi issues weakened, presumably as a result of plan, but Abitibi preferred displaying a lower interest rate on the preferred.

Upper Canada, Pamour, Aunor, Wright Hargreaves and Lake Shore were gold group gainers and in the base metals, a gain of 1-8 cents to 1.17 for Base Metals was the only change of any consequence.

Western oils were dull and prices held unchanged.

Peruvians Occupy Hangar of German Airline at Limatambo

Lima, Peru, April 1 (AP)—Peruvian troops have occupied the workshop and hangars of Lufthansa (German airline) at Limatambo airport, Lima, and have Junkers and Heinkel liners at the hangar. The occupation was carried out last night.

Transportation circles in New York heard that Peru had prohibited operations of the German air line on the heels of the recall from the German merchantmen in Callao Harbor.

Whether the suspension was temporary or permanent was not known. The line is affiliated with three other air lines in South America.

SAYS ORDER GIVEN BY MEXICO TO SEIZE AXIS SHIPS

Responsible Source Says Marines and Customs Guards at Vera Cruz and Tampico Ordered to Take Ships

PROTECTIVE CUSTODY

Mexico City, April 1 (AP) — A responsible source at the Mexican navy ministry said that orders had been issued to marines and customs guards at Vera Cruz and Tampico to place twelve German and Italian ships in "protective custody."

The Mexican gunboat Queretaro, which has been patrolling the Gulf of Mexico, steamed southward toward Tampico with 100 marines to board the nine Italian ships and one German ship. The Queretaro will remain there as a precaution against any dash by the ships to the open sea.

Two Axis ships at Vera Cruz will be taken over by other forces.

One civilian and a guard of ten or 15 men will be stationed on each ship to prevent the ships from being scuttled, the Navy Ministry informant said.

London, April 1 (AP)— Persuian plans assuring the Pacific Ocean lifeline of merchandising to Munchen and Hermonthia , which the Axis has built many refineries reported to have found the ships today 110 miles after a dash by the Peruvian government planned was not known.

Caracas, Venezuela, April 1 (AP) —Fires broke out simultaneously early today in the Italian and one German ship in Puerto Cabello and hours later the conflagrations were uncontrolled.

Those were the Joli Puerio, Teresa Odero and Frotiers, Italian tankers, and the Sesostris, German freighter.

The fires caused alarm in the city and many gathered at the docks. Crewmen threw themselves into the sea to escape and were picked up by launches.

Churchill to Thank Navy, Army, R. A. F. For Many Victories

London, April 1 —(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that in the speech of Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, in New York March 25 advocating world-wide economic collaboration after the war "is in full accord with the general outlook" of the government.

Mr. Churchill announced he would make a statement on the war situation the day the House adjourns for the Easter holidays, which begin April 11, and also would offer a resolution of thanks to the navy, the army, and the air force for their assistance to Greece and the Mediterranean and the Middle East.

Sugar and Eggs Found by Police in Herchimer St. House

Police searched the dwelling at 49 Herchimer St., Hamilton, today following which Chief Kidd announced that about 200 lbs. of sugar and a large quantity of eggs, alleged to have been stolen from the Harris Bakery over the week end had been found.

Following 48 hours of diligent investigations a police posse, headed by Chief Kidd, Detective Sergeant Irving P. C. Thomson and Provincial Constable Ernest Hall (C.I.B.) researched the home of W. E. Pair, 49 Herchimer St., where they later said they found the sugar and eggs and three dozen eggs. Sometime early this morning, Detective Sergeant Irving the Harris Bakery, Sinclair St., and took the pound of sugar and nine dozen of eggs, Mr. Sandy Cummins, the proprietor claimed. Pair was taken to the police station for questioning, while police continued their search of other places in the city in a quick effort to solve the breaking and entering of four places of business in the west end district.

Over the week end the Reid and Harper cabins were entered, the Harris Bakery and Sandy bakeries on Sinclair St. "This is a start in the cleaning up of these petty robberies, that have baffled the police for so long," Chief Kidd said. "I hope to have the entire mess cleaned up," added Chief Kidd as he got into his police car from which are at the police station also.

PINCH OFF RESISTANCE

Athens, April 1 —(AP)— Dispatches from the Albanian front said today that a Greek surprise attack had pinched off the centre of Italian resistance on a dominating height in the central sector and the Italian companies were wiped out.

Two hundred prisoners were taken, the dispatch said. The Greeks attacked on both flanks as Italian troops concentrated on the trenches and barbed wire entanglements.

NAZIS EVACUATE

The government sought to claim the Italians as a matter of rumors circulated throughout the country, but took extraordinary measures to meet any emergency.

No Change In Worry

He told the population in a broadcast address last night there is no cause for worry and that the government "is trying to relieve the anxiety of Italians and our neighbors." But he added, almost in the same breath:

"In the interest of the state, the people are all to obey, to a man, all duly orders, to give their lives for the good of their homes, fatherland and all they have. Then the army, air force and navy are ready to do their duty."

The train on which Von Heeren departed for Berlin pulled out of the Belgrade station only eight minutes before the twilight deadline he had set for the departure of all German nationals.

Approximately 1,000 Germans were crowded aboard. The train was an hour late leaving because of the strain on railway facilities caused by the frantic flight of persons of many nationalities seeking to flee the country.

Von Heeren acted briefly to would report to German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop in Berlin tonight upon arriving in Berlin, but made no other comment.

Italians Join Germans

Some diplomatic sources expressed belief that the sudden rupture of man-Yugoslav relations which Nazi quarters described as "intolerable" "desperate and practically hopeless" a threat to the Axis in the Balkans because Hitler is not ready for decisive action.

Such a view was given some support by dispatches from Berlin, in which quarters close to the Nazi spokesman as saying "the time for Germany to take a stand has not yet arrived."

They were pretty badly frightened in Belgrade, and they showed the station but got out without any help.

"Wood from the smashed cars was all over the place. It sure was a mess."

Other eye-witnesses said they saw a German soldier pull the pin and roll a hand grenade under a bench filled with Italian soldiers. Flames and Piremen Plunkett then were dead.

Plunkett was the last riding on the tender of the passenger train, just behind the engine. He said after the accident he boarded the train at Chesterfield Inlet, 100 miles south of Inkerman, trying to get to Smith's Falls to look for work.

"I was sitting on the tender when the accident happened. I was riding in a freight train," the Montrealer said. "It began to fall toward the station and I jumped. I was thrown against the boilers a few feet ahead.

"I was dazed but not badly hurt. I pulled myself up to the top next to the engine. That is all its side.

"I certainly feel lucky to be alive."

Bertha Crouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Crouse R. R. The little girl had been confined, suffering considerable pain, it was not realized that she had fractured her leg. She was taken to a doctor in Napanee who had her admitted to hospital. The fracture was reduced by Dr. G. S. Craig and the girl is reported to be doing nicely.

THE WAR TODAY

By GUY BROADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Germany is said to have sent numerous planes to Libya and nearly fifteen divisions of about 15,000 men in all to face the northern and eastern fronts of Yugoslavia, from whose firm "no" to Axis threats sent Germans and Italians scampering to the borders.

There was no indication of immediate hostilities between the two countries and a German spokesman said decisive operations "probably will not occur for about ten days—a postponement possibly to be ended by expected much sooner or considerably later.

Yugoslavia, apparently expecting a Nazi ultimatum arising from Premier Simovic's refusal to sign the gaining support of the Croat minority in his country which the German fifth column last week was believed trying to stir up trouble. The Germans sought to spread belief that Yugoslavia was too shaky internally to offer a threat to Germany's plans, but last night Vladimir Maczek, one of the Croat leaders, declared there were reported to have reached an agreement which would probably result in Macek remaining within the new government as Vice-Premier.

FREIGHT CAR

No Passengers Injured

About 35 passengers were riding in the coach behind which left Montreal yesterday afternoon for Perth, but none was injured.

The freight was also eastbound, from Smith's Falls to Montreal. Part of its load was war materials. Like most fast freights, it was not carrying any brakeman, and was speeding past the station at about 40 m.p.h. if not more.

From the other direction came the passenger train, slowing down for the Inkerman station.

The passenger train was almost stopped, its engine level with the station; half the 68-car freight already had passed it.

Then something went wrong with the freight. Its freight car, the last half of the freight swayed and twisted. A car bobbled across the station platform, then the engine and locomotive and throwing it into the path of the train.

The remaining freight cars thumped, bumped, jolted, jumped into splinters, rearing on end as they piled into the wreck, piling up more than 300 feet of ties and rails.

Railway officials in Montreal and Ottawa said cause of the accident: did not know immediately. Officials but railwaymen and others at Inkerman said a broken wheel or a defective axle on one of the freight cars was to blame.

Engineer Is Side in Station

"I rushed over to the station," he said, "and by the time I got there the station was all in a heap. It was a mess."

"As I got closer I saw that the engine of the passenger train had come on its side in the station.

Pte. Fennett, the station agent, said Bill Adams, conductor (or brakeman, later died), were climbing from the wreckage when he arrived on the station. They were pretty badly shaken up. Engineer was still inside of the station but got out without any help.

"Wood from the smashed cars was all over the place. It sure was a mess."

Other eye-witnesses said they saw a German soldier pull the pin and roll a hand grenade under a bench filled with Italian soldiers. Flames and Piremen Plunkett then were dead.

FEDERAL AGENTS

Winding Axis propaganda in the "protective" seizure of Axis shipping the U.S., with an eye to criminal prosecution, sent federal agents to investigate sabotage found on some of the ships.

At the same time, administration officials indicated that they were ordering a close surveillance of Panamanian, Costa Rican and Honduran ships.

In the Western Hemisphere, meanwhile, there was also shown the effect of Axis government's week-end seizure of the 69 Axis merchantmen.

Two Set Afire

Two German merchant steamships were ablaze early today in the harbor of Callao, Peru, their seacocks opened by their crews, after the vessels had sought to leave the port but had been forced back by a Peruvian cruiser which fired shots across their bows, it developed.

A few hours earlier, two other German merchantmen had sailed away from Callao without papers.

Cuba, in what was interpreted as an unmistakable hint to conform with the United States, took over an Italian ship, the Capo Nola, and one of the Havana harbor.

Although responsible sources reported, was planning to take custody of a dozen Axis freighters now in Cuban ports.

Take Summary Action

Cuba thus joined Panama action against the officers and crews of the Italian and German ships which were fired at San Jose yesterday to thwart seizure. The conflict resulted in the death of one communicado, charged with arson.

Meanwhile, the United States and Chile followed closely the reports of developments in the Pacific area but did not indicate what future moves they might make.

Maritime circles estimate that there are at least 60 German, Italian and Danish ships in Latin American ports. German tonnage alone is the bulk of this total.

For the immediate present apparently, the eventual disposition of ships taken over by the United States was being left in abeyance. Officials said that no decision on government attorneys had been asked for opinions on how the United States could legally be declared forfeited because of the allegedly armed character of the Axis merchantmen.

Will Dismiss Protests

The decision of the United States government to seize the ships was taken as further evidence that the administration did not intend to relinquish possession of the ships, although Italy and Germany and Berlin accordingly would be disposed to protest.

Danish Ships Not Included

The immediate seizure was only against German and Italian ships. For the present at least, the United Danish ships were not included.

Judging by actions and comment, officials seemed to consider "the ships were fired on" a justification for the seizure of Axis ships, but in the case of the Danish ships, the government has drawn a distinction between Danish officers and crews, Germans and Italians were classified as belligerents, but the Danes were recorded "stranded seamen."

In the case of the Danes, crew members and officers were removed and housed in camps, under the captains of Danish ships, on the other hand, were permitted to remain on board, with a skeleton crew.

BRITISH USE

They left that afternoon.

Pte. Fennett, the station agent, reconnaissance planes again found the seven destroyers — about 35 miles from Italian Albania, within 15 south of Crete.

Vice-Admiral Henry Pridham-Wippell, with the Orion and the other cruisers and destroyers of the the southeast, and Admiral Cunningham was about 90 miles farther northwest with the battleships.

The British cruisers turned north, and contact with the Italian fleet was established. The bulk of the Italian warships, however, turned northwest, and the British fleet followed to keep touch. After sighting the Littorio class battleship 16 miles north about two hours later the British cruisers again lost contact to keep out of range and draw the enemy toward Admiral Cunningham.

Half an hour later, at 11.30, torpedo planes from the Mediterranean attacked the Littorio class battleship. One possibly hit the stern and the enemy force headed for home.

The British cruisers lost touch but almost immediately joined forces with the battleships and the "whole of our forces pressed on after the enemy," the admiralty announced.

About this time naval bombers again attacked the Italian force, including the Littorio class battleship, and scored a direct torpedo hit. The planes attacked again in the early afternoon and this time reported three torpedo hits on the battleship, three misses.

Between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Royal Air Force planes attacked for second two direct hits on a cruiser, one on a destroyer, and two probable hits on another cruiser.

At 4 p.m. Admiral Cunningham issued a report from his flagship that the Littorio class battleship's speed was "considerably reduced," the narrator continued, and the commander in chief ordered the cruisers to press on to regain touch.

They did, just after dusk, and some of the accompanying destroyers entered to within 3,000 yards and stayed back in order to screen the battleships.

Cruiser Pola Damaged

At 10:30 p.m. the heavy cruiser Pola was reported damaged and stopped, and three miles off the port, or left of the battle fleet, which turned at once to engage it.

While accompanying the Pola the battle fleet sighted three more Italian cruisers crossing its course from starboard; or the right side. The battle fleet "held its fire" the officer said. "The enemy must have been taken completely

Canada Has Not Lagged in Adding Mechanized Equipment for Her Army

By JACK TRACY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 31 (CP)—Machines have replaced horses in the Canadian military world and Canada has not lagged in transforming itself into a highly mechanized striking force on wheels. Ontario has played a prominent part in creation of this mechanized force.

Ontario's armoured divisions and armoured armoured and tank-brigade units in the province, and the biggest military camp of its kind in the Dominion, the Camp Borden area, trained for the highly-specialized duties required for the efficient operation of the machines. The need for more and more armoured vehicles is reflected in the decision to carry on recruiting indefinitely for these armoured units in the R.C.A.C.

As a result of the influx of thousands of soldiers Ontario has assumed a greater international flavour by training officers from many other jurisdiction in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The army and navy branches of the Canadian air force have been and training at Camp Little Norway in Toronto last summer. This camp has been closed and troops moved into training quarters at Camp Borden and Camp Petawawa. Belgian legion began training at Portsmouth in the eastern part of the province.

Almost mid-winter negotiations began for a training ground for a Polish legion made up of Poles from all parts of Canada and the United States.

Alderman's Allegation Brings Sharp Rebuttal From Members Of City Council in Session

OTHER BUSINESS

Claiming that civic business in Belleville, during committee room proceedings on Thursday night prior to regular council meetings, was conducted in a most unorthodox and unbusinesslike manner, Alderman Thomas Marshall touched off a spark, that apparently drove hard into the personalities of the local council and drew heated rebuttals at Monday night's council meeting, when he alleged, that last Thursday night's committee meeting was conducted in a most disgraceful manner. Remarks of drive sharp replies from Mayor Glencoe Thompson and certain members of the council.

Having served on the city council in Belleville for five years prior to 1941, but never in my period as an alderman have I witnessed such disgraceful conduct as was seen at last Thursday night's committee meeting," suddenly stated Alderman Marshall as the remainder of the council sat in awed silence as he continued.

"Thursday's meeting touched off the situation and I'd like to say here it's about time we all got down business in committee as the proceedings are willing to be conducted orderly. Your Worship, you are the Mayor and you can handle such situations in the future and see there is no repetition of such haggling," continued Alderman Marshall, but no outward indication was given the gallery as to what the inferences were.

Mayor Surprised

Interrupting Mayor Thompson said: "I'm glad Alderman Marshall would direct his attack towards me. I've always tried to conduct the committee meetings in a business-like manner, but if I don't have the co-operation of Alderman Marshall and every other Alderman, in the council, I suppose we don't have things run smoothly, but I'll assure you Mr. Marshall there will be no repetition" and still there was no indication of the reason for the altercation.

"There seems to be something else behind here and I just don't know what it is all about," injected Alderman C. R. Clapp.

"You were there Mr. Clapp, but on the future I do hope we can get together and be harmoniously," answered Alderman Marshall.

"I'm surprised at Alderman Marshall's remarks. Why I personally heard Alderman Marshall say once, that Mayor Thompson conducted the best and most orderly committee meetings he ever attended.

"The whole trouble is—there are too many aldermen," interrupted Alderman Marshall.

"Oh, I knew the answer would soon come and it's just a case of too many aldermen. Is that it?" snapped up Alderman Jack Allin.

"I feel that matters should not have been directed towards His Worship, but rather to Alderman Marshall, who talked quite a bit himself. As to the matter of fact all of us are prone to talk too much and too long and after 10 o'clock we all were actuated to do little," suggested Alderman E. C. Butler, following statements that the matter suddenly hailed and the air abruptly cleared as the council proceeded its routine business.

The minutes were read and approved and accounts were passed without further interruptions.

Mayor States Position

Mayor Glencoe Thompson made it quite clear that the city council nor the City of Belleville Industrial Trade Union, insofar as their grievances are concerned. Last night during council meeting, His Worship, Mayor Thompson, inquired if there were any other questions present desiring audience with the council. Gerald L. O'Brien, Secretary of the Belleville Fire Fighters' Union, No. 497, rose to introduce three ladies, Secretary of the Ontario Fire Fighters' Union and forthwith His Worship stated Mr. Byles, if he was representing the Belleville Firemen and if he had a grievance to submit. The latter indicated in the affirmative.

"This council or the city do not recognize grievances from unions. If your grievances have not been first taken to the Fire Chief or the Chairman of Fire, you are most certainly out of order and not acting to our bylaws," warned His Worship.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding here, it's not meant to be placed in jeopardy," replied Mr. Byles as he conversed quietly with three members of the Belleville Fire Department.

"Such matters should be presented through the Fire Chief and Chairman of Fire," added Alderman Harold Armstrong, and Mr. Byles retired stating he was quite willing to conform to the bylaws, but had been misinformed. "I'll be back later Sir," smiled Mr. Byles as he begged to be excused without so much as an inkling being heard relative to the suggested grievances. It was Alderman Allan H. J. Clarke rose and read the fire bylaw pertaining to such matters. Alderman Wm. J. Ellis stated grievances must be passed through the Chief and Chairman of Fire and Alderman Clarke as he explained the bylaw pointed out individual firemen ample protection in the matter of grievances.

"The fact is understood it an appeal must first be made to the Fire Chief, and Board of Fire, and then the individual can then appeal to the council (meaning the Chairman of Fire)" acted Mr. Byles.

"That's correct," concluded the Mayor.

City Business

In committee as a whole Alderman Frank Pollwell was in the chair as accounts were passed and motions carried. Tenders for 20 tons of calcium for the fire department were asked, while the city accepted an offer of $50.00 for two lots, 47 and 48 situated on the east side of Dufferin Ave. The application was made by Mr. Nicholas Scholes of 31 Pine St., who agreed to erect comparable dwellings with those in the district on the building site. An application to have an outside electric light placed in the alleyway off Campbell St. at the rear of the A. A. Hall, was passed while a request to have a "no parking" sign placed at Lipsett's was refused.

In reference to an inquiry submitted by the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company re the closing of the lower end of James St. in an effort to discourage any measure of assistance and to protect the company's transmissions, a special committee reported it was impossible to close the street at this time, as the said property did not belong to the city. A letter from the City Comptroller disclosed the property in question, the old Allen coal yards, will not become city property until July of the current year, with tax arrears now amounting to $800. The property was offered to the Reliance Company for $1,000 cash, however.

Relief Cultivation

"Will there be any city land available for cultivation by the unemployed this year?" queried Alderman Rollins when the subject of unemployment relief in 1941 was discussed and land cultivation act was opened.

"There has not been one lot sold that was cultivated last year, but there is no reason why the land so that was cultivated last year, but there is no reason why the land is not available, but this comes under the heading of Alderman Marshall's special property committee," revealed Alderman Clarke, chairman of the committee.

A report tendered to the council by E. A. Hardy, director of Civic Employment Relief, Toronto, showed that the total expenditures for unemployment relief under this plan last year amounted to $920.25, which sum included 16 lots and 63 back yard gardens gown. The value of the produce grown amounted to $1,476.00 as the report showed.

"This sound encouraging and the city should be continued," suggested Alderman Rollins, as the council approved of such action as agement of the tilling of vacant lots and back garden vegetables for relief consumption in 1941.

Treasure to Pay Accounts

At the Thursday night committee meeting the following accounts and recommendations were passed, which were ratified by the regular session of the council last evening. "When the monthly relief account for previous month has been approved by council the City Treasurer shall immediately draw and cash the cheque for the amount of all the accounts and shall instruct the creditors that the corporation is prepared to pay accounts for month concerned was now recommended, which unanimously approved.

The lot on which the Kerr boat house was located will be offered for sale and the offer of Mrs. George Seams, Sr., of $15.00 for a lot on north side of Franklin Street was accepted and the other stipulations required in such sales. Another offer of $10 from Mr. Wardle for a lot on Chatham Street was accepted. Mr. Wardle will pay taxes from date of deed and erect a house within twelve months in keeping with other residences in that locality.

Solicitor of Mayor Thompson, Alderman Clapp, Marshall, Rollins and the City Engineer were appointed to interview Mrs. Fred Kingsley re the Bell Block bylaw and proposed regulations regarding the franchise and report back to council at the next meeting.

Bylaw No. 2 to amend Bylaw No. 1 to provide for the appointment of a Board of Health was passed.

Application to have an outside electric light placed in the alleyway off Campbell St. at the rear of the A. A. Hall

Capture of Asmara Puts the Fascists With Backs to Sea

Nearly 100,000 Italian Troops Still Fighting In East Africa Now Cornered-British Head Toward Addis Ababa

Cairo, Egypt, April 2 (AP)—Victorious British Imperial forces were said today to have cornered some 100,000 Italian troops still fighting in East Africa and to be driving in for knockout blows.

Major action was on two fronts: Capture of Asmara, capital of Eritrea, put the survivors of some 40,000 troops who escaped in the recent bloody battle of Cheren with their backs to the sea—where the British naval forces dominate.

In Ethiopia, British columns struck inland from captured Diredawa toward Addis Ababa, the capital, on the heels of the Duke of Aosta's retreating army.

The Duke's original forces at Addis Ababa have been estimated at 40,000 and British reports said smaller garrisons withdrawing toward the capital from other parts of Ethiopia probably would increase the total fighting strength to 60,000 men.

The fall of Diredawa put British forces in command of the strategic town of Awash 120 miles east of Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad leading to the Gulf of Aden.

This completed encirclement of the capital, for on the other three sides British forces already hold control, though columns driving toward Addis Ababa from different directions are far from the city.

Formidable Obstacles Ahead

There remained formidable obstacles, however, to the advance on Addis Ababa from Diredawa. The capital lies 250 miles from Diredawa along a winding valley flanked by lofty ridges from which Italians could harass Allie advance.

The British command said that the advances in Ethiopia and Eritrea had been inaugurated by extensive damage to highways and railroads wrought by retreating Italians.

The natural obstacles in Eritrea also are considered as formidable. Asmara stands near the brink of a 6,500 foot escarpment which descends abruptly to the coastal plain scored sharply by the Red Sea. The chief objective of Massaua, 75 miles by rail from Asmara, on the next British port.

British authorities had indicated that Cheren and Asmara were keys to the defence of Massaua, and that once they had driven Italians out into the flat coastal plain the capture of Massaua and the end of fighting in Eritrea, would follow quickly.

The British command placed little importance on renewed activity in Libya, describing it as "normal enemy"—presumably Italian and German—activity and mechanized units was reported yesterday near Mersa Brega on the Gulf of Sidra.

Mersa Brega is about 30 miles northeast of El Agheila, where marked the limit of the British advance westward. British forces under Lieut. Gen. O'Connor reached El Agheila in December and described their withdrawal as a matter of adjusting the front.

THE WEATHER

CENSUS QUESTIONS WHICH FARMERS WILL ANSWER

Canadian Agriculturists Will Give Details to Enumerators

Ottawa, April 2 (CP)—The Canadian farmer will give the story of his experiences when a census enumerator calls on him this summer, census documents issued here today by the Trade and Commerce Department indicate.

The farmer will give his racial origin, time of residence in Canada, period of operation of the farm on which he lives and how the land was acquired as owner, part owner, tenant and farm laborer. He must give his main source of income and his gross returns from outside work, along with incomes from boarders, lodgers, overnight cabins and campers.

Those living on the farm and the sons must be stated, and the farmer must say how many members of his family, 14 years old and over, worked without pay. Hired labor must be accounted for, with the estimated value of board, rent and room and board furnished labor given in 1940.

Comparison of Acreages

Comparison of acreages in 1941 with that in 1940 is required along with details of crops, including the total value of the farm and its buildings, a record of farm machinery and automobiles, mortgages, agreements for sale, co-operative selling and purchasing, farm expenditures and gardens and orchards, both for the current year.

The enumerator will inquire into the condition of the land, areas unimproved, woodlands and their value, areas of wheat and other grains, the census requires sowings in 1940, the quantity harvested, kept for seed or feed or otherwise disposed of. Value of grain held or to be sold must be given along with the area sown or planted for harvest in 1941.

Similar information will be sought about hay and tame crops, potatoes and roots, miscellaneous field crops, fruits, vegetables and seeds.

Livestock, poultry and bees are the subject of other questions. The wool clip must be stated, the number of sheep shorn and clipped, numbered and valued, and trading in livestock during the year recounted.

March Best Month In Production Of Bombers, Fighters

London, April 2 (CP Cable)—Britain produced more bombers and fighters in March than in any other month in the war, the Evening News said today.

The newspaper was said to have included "large numbers" of Stirling, Halifax and Manchester bombers, and Whirlwind and Tornado fighters in addition to the latest Spitfires, Hurricane, Defiant and Fulmar models.

Charges U.S. Aluminum Interests Had Kept Production Rate Down

Washington, April 2 (AP)—Charges were laid before Congress today that a "conspiracy by the Aluminum Trust" and a "bunch of self-seeking men" have for years kept down the production of aluminum from which the United States needs for defence, Representative Arnold said today.

Chairman Arnold, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, made that assertion to a House of Representatives appropriations sub-committee hearing in testimony made public today.

Because of this conspiracy, Arnold testified, the German "production was more than triple what it was down in France, England and America, and they are doing it today."

Arnold was asked whether the situation was restricting plane production.

"That is the reason they (the Germans) are able to expand their planes because they have the aluminum," he replied.

He credited Germany with an aluminum production 33 to 50 per cent greater than that of the United States.

Without elaborating at length on "the conspiracy," Arnold said the situation dated from 1931 when the Aluminum Company "to avoid our anti-trust laws" formed a Canadian corporation, Aluminum Ltd.

This concern, he stated, began to divide the world's aluminum markets with other countries. The

Croats and Serbians More United and Wave of Patriotism Sweeps the Country

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 2 (AP)—An Italian Legation spokesman announced today that "certain conversations" between Italy and Yugoslavia, which had led to reports of possible adherence of Yugoslavia to the Tripartite Pact, were "attained no results and no negotiations are now in progress."

The Fascist spokesman said the talks between the Italian minister and Premier Dragisha Cvetkovitch had been held "to see if any possibilities existed for establishing relations between Belgrade and Rome."

In mid-afternoon there had been no further conferences between the Premier and the Italian minister.

Rumors that the Italians had taken the role of intermediaries between Premier Cvetkovitch and Premier Dusan Simovitch, of Serbia, were based only on "brief conversation yesterday" in Italian quarters said.

Maintain Restrained Attitude

The Yugoslav government maintained a restrained attitude toward Nazi press and radio attacks as intense diplomatic activity over its relations with the Axis was indicated.

Premier Peter annulled one of his few royal decrees—the act abolishing the Senate. The act, annulled on Tuesday, cancellation probably was prompted by political repercussions which considered it undesirable at this critical moment.

The Yugoslav minister to Berlin, Ivo Andric, after two days in Belgrade, returned to his superiors, started back to Berlin last night, the Yugoslav news agency announced. The German minister to Belgrade, Viktor Von Heeren, is in Berlin.

12TH BOMBLESS NIGHT FOR LONDON

British Planes Torpedo Nazi Merchant Ship Off Continental Coast

London, April 2 (CP)—A German plane was shot into the sea off the east coast of Britain in western England, in today's first daylight air activity.

Bad weather during the night forced Royal Air Force planers to remain grounded and restricted German operations against Britain to the Channel coast and southern England. London had its 12th successive bombless night.

The Air Ministry reported German attacks on British airdromes yesterday stating that "the raiders swept in under cover of low clouds, dropping bombs and causing several fatalities at one station.

"The serviceability of the airdrome was not affected," the communique added.

Emissaries Of Britain, Poland Welcomed By Residents Of Dominion

Ottawa, April 2 (CP)— Canada welcomed to her soil today high emissaries of Great Britain and Poland and from them received messages of unshakeable confidence in the ultimate victory of democracy.

Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, new High Commissioner from the United Kingdom, and General Wladyslaw Sikorsky, Prime Minister of the Polish government in exile and Commander-in-Chief of the Polish armed forces, were in Canada on different missions but both with the same eventual aim—overthrow of the forces of aggression.

To the people of the Dominion, Mr. MacDonald on his arrival expressed Britain's gratitude for their help in the war. "We have in Canada," he declared, "all the comradeship of Canada throughout the war," said the successor to Sir Gerald Campbell.

"From every province soldiers and airmen have been teeming across the ocean, and are playing a splendid part in the struggle to clear the earth, the sea and the skies of the vile enemies of mankind."

The spontaneous co-operation of the free peoples of the empire, he said in a statement, would outlast the discipline of the dictators' "enslaved armies and peoples, and it will gain a glorious victory."

Poland Standing Fast

Speaking from the saddle leading to a group of his own people soon after his arrival in this country yesterday, expressed both the same sentiments; and he added that Poland herself, was standing fast, despite the Nazi yoke.

His spoke, not of the high courage shown by the people of Britain. That was the kind of courage he said, that would bring victory and the liberation of the countries trampled beneath the Hitler war machine.

Mr. MacDonald was reticent about discussing the immediate tasks before him. "I am a commissioner now, a politician," the slender young emissary explained with a smile. He had no intention of visiting the United States immediately.

Speaking from his experience as Minister of Health, he found Britain had stood up under aerial warfare "remarkably."

Purpose Not Made Known

General Sikorski was expected to come to Ottawa, the Polish capital in exile in Canada was not made known by himself or members of his party. There was no confirmation of recent reports that a Polish army would begin in Canada.

Post-war formation of a Polish-Canadian commonwealth will be discussed by the Polish leader with President Roosevelt when he visits Washington in the near future, a spokesman said.

CREWS LAUDED

Berlin, April 2 (AP)—Seizure of German and Italian ships by the United States government was branded as gangsterism today by the Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz.

Lauding German and Italian crews for incapacitating the vessels, the semi-official publication said: "That the North American gangster government has missed full in the merit of those German and Italian seamen who did what they could to rob the late President of the fruits of their efforts."

Asked whether Mexico, Chile and Peru would be included in Germany's list of countries considered, reply to the American action, authorized sources said it was unlikely, but said they didn't know positively.

Turkish President Sends Message To King Peter II

Istanbul, Turkey, April 2 (AP)—President Ismet Inonu has sent a message of congratulation to King Peter II of Yugoslavia, who took the throne in last Thursday's overthrow of the anti-Nazi regency, Turkish government, it was announced officially today. Diplomatic relations had been withheld until the 17-year old King replied.

The text of the messages were not disclosed.

Turkish newspapers under government control continued to assert that Germany is preparing the most dangerous situation in the Balkans while Italian forces take place Britain in strong position to send forces into the Balkans to defend the expeditionary force already in Greece.

Tarvit Ekrar said that "the Balkans and the middle east without fighting.

"We do not think she will experiment with conquering and holding supplies of the United Yugoslavia insist on complete freedom. Germany will have to fight. If so, she would be pinned into doing something she do not want to do."

AIR RAID ALARM SOUNDS IN CITY IN SOUTH SERBIA

Three Foreign Planes Reported Reconnoitring Over Skoplje

PLANES DISAPPEAR

Skoplje, Yugoslavia, April 2 — (AP)—An eight-minute air raid alarm was sounded here at noon at this city of southern Serbia when three foreign planes reconnoitred over the city and then disappeared.

During the night the city was blacked out for an hour and during early morning all lights were shut off in fast. These were practice measures.

Skoplje Under Martial Law

But the alarm which came at noon was the first real alarm. The population took cool calmly and waited until the all clear signal sounded.

"For all we know war may come in any day this way," an official said.

Skoplje lies midway between Belgrade and Albania in the Vardar River valley, which is the main strategic route for a German attack on Greece.

Thousands of Croat soldiers are constantly passing through Skoplje en route to Albania. There is a steady stream of women and children in Serbian and Albanian dress, even from distant Adriatic Croatia, to their homes in Albania's mountains.

Soldier husbands of the women say: "We can fight more calmly if we know our families are safely tucked away beyond reach of the enemy."

Transport Planes Seized by Peruvian Gov't. and News Agency Barred in Country

Washington, April 2 (CP)—United States intelligence services, it was learned authoritatively today, have concentrated their efforts on determining whether any German or Italian officials in the United States instigated the wholesale sabotage which crippled most of the 30 ship vessels seized in American ports during the weekend.

If the complicity of any diplomatic or consular officials should be established, informed sources said, the State Department is ready for immediate action. The guilty officials will be handed their passports and their prompt recall will be demanded.

Officials said that preliminary evidence pointed to seem "very evident" that there was coordinated direction of the widespread sabotage, but a formal pronouncement on this morning that the strike was "completely effective."

Harry B. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said the strike "shows an extremely unpatriotic attitude on the part of the communistic element to ruin our national defence effort."

Mayor John L. Carey, of Dearborn announced this morning that he sent the following telegram to Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner and Oscar G. Olander, Commissioner of Public Safety:

Request Police Aid

Sporadic Fighting Between Pickets, Non-Strikers Seen

Police Virtually Helpless For Time But Soon Gain Control Of Situation

Detroit, April 2 (AP)—Strike disturbances in which a score or more persons were injured near the Ford Motor Company today led to an order from Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner for state police to maintain order there.

The Governor, maintaining close contact with the strike situation from headquarters in a Detroit hotel where he conferred with Ford officials and state labor mediators, announced he was ordering the full available strength of the state police to attempt to end clashes between strikers and police.

Intermittent fighting was reported from several points near Ford's big Rouge plant, the world's largest industrial unit which employs more than 85,000 workers.

750 Police Ready For Duty

State police were reported to have 750 officers ready for duty in the strike emergency.

Officials of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) who called the strike shortly after midnight charging "deliberate provocation" by the Ford management, claimed this morning that the strike was "completely effective."

Harry B. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said the strike "shows an extremely unpatriotic attitude on the part of the communistic element to ruin our national defence effort."

Thanks of Humble People Expressed

By D. E. BURRITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 2 (CP Cable)—The gratitude of the humble people of London was expressed to the people of Canada today by Sir George Williams, Lord Mayor of London, for generous donations of money and clothing and letters of encouragement which have come from even the remotest sections of the Dominion."

At an informal luncheon tendered the Lord Mayor to Canadian newspapermen, Sir George said: "I realize that what the Canadians are doing for us is only a minor part of the great contribution they are making in the war effort, but on behalf of those who have lost everything I want to thank your people for all they have done and are doing.

"People in all parts of our Dominion responded to our urgent call and Canada especially has played a tremendous part in helping succour our needy.

"Not only are they sending money and clothing but they are writing an astounding number of letters of sympathy and encouragement which I can say are deeply appreciated. We know from their words and actions that they are with us and that is a great comfort in these times of hardship and pain."

Canadian Troops Not In Greece

Ottawa, April 2—(CP)—Since the fall of France no suggestion has been made that Canadian troops now serving in England should be sent to another theatre of war except for the dispatch of small detachments for special work at Gibraltar, defence minister Hon. J. L. Ralston told the House of Commons Tuesday.

(From time to time there have been reports that Canadian soldiers had been sent to Greece. Canadian authorities previously refused to comment on these reports and Col. Ralston's statement is the first official word that no Canadian troops are there. It has been identified them as "an almost complete division of Canadians." The public department in Ottawa, at that time declined comment on latest statement, although there have been other reports —not denied—that Australian troops that Canadian troops had landed in Greece.)

Britain And U. S. Agree On Japanese Actions In China

London, April 2 (CP)—Britain and the United States are working closely and Britain views Japanese actions in China with increasing disapproval, Lord Halifax, British Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

Questioned about Tokyo's attitude toward the "open door" policy, Mr. Butler responded that he had taken no opportunity to acquaint the Japanese Ambassador with this British view.

The British Government, he said, is unable to recommend Japanese insistence that the "open door" principle remains intact with "developments" in China.

War Correspondents Practise News Coverage Tactics In Case Of Invasion

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, April 2 — Military, diplomatic and news writers piled in army cars, the five Canadian war correspondents and the British public relations officers practised news coverage tactics for a mythical German invasion of this island.

Military headquarters say it probably would be terrific and confusing campaign for reporters to cover, so we took a tip and travelled with Canadian troops on a three-day manoeuvre to see problems at close range.

Dover, from London came Alan Bill of Southam Newspapers, W. T. Cranfield of the Toronto Telegram, M. H. Halton of the Toronto Star, and Harold Dingman of British United Press. From Canadian corps headquarters we joined them for the "advance" to the coast.

Capt. Gillis Purcell of Toronto, Canadian public relations officer and Lieut. Eric Gibbs of Edmonton, British officer in charge of Canadian military headquarters, London, two correspondents to each car and mapped out the quickest route. Safari-fashion, we moved off with driver sleeping bags, haver-sacks, and camouflaged cars.

All in uniform labelled "Canada War Correspondent" we hooked up with a reconnaissance battalion and the writers rode pillion on motor-cycle combinations. The cold afternoon in the vanguard of the advance.

SIDNEY FACTORY OLDEST IN DISTRICT

The history of Sidney Town Hall Cheese Factory dates back to several years before confederation, which took place in 1867, making this factory one of the oldest in this district, it was learned on Tuesday from Mr. Clem Ketchenon, secretary of the factory.

Mr. Ketchenon recently had communicated with Ottawa asking information regarding the original charter of the factory and was informed that the charter had been taken over before confederation and was listed as Sidney Town Hall Factory. The company was re-organized in 1892 when it was given the name Sidney Town Hall Cheese and Butter Company.

BABY CHICK SALES SHOW AN INCREASE

Greatly increased sales of baby chicks noted in this district for the advance of sales of comparative sales in other years, indicate that district poultry raisers are preparing early to meet the demands of increased production of eggs, according to local hatchery owners and dealers of baby chicks.

These increased sales have been noted despite the fact that the weather has been anything but favorable for chicks of brooding age. Prospects of slightly higher egg prices owing to the increased Canadian export quota to Gt. Britain has been partly responsible for poultry raisers buying their flocks, it was stated. Indicative that the increased sales are not just characteristic of this district, one large Canadian hatchery firm announces that chick orders now total 300,000 more than in 1940.

Covering the entire cheese-producing area of Hastings County, special Department of Agriculture and other prominent dairy speakers have delivered interesting addresses to cheese patrons of this district in the "More Milk for More Cheese" campaign, H. L. Pair, Hastings Agricultural Representative said today.

Over forty-six meetings have been held in the county during the past two weeks in which over 700 cheese patrons have been present, the government appeals. Improperly Addressed Mail Main Reason For Delay, Non-Delivery

A request that local residents sending articles and letters through the mails use particular care when addressing envelopes or parcels to avoid delay and possible non-delivery was issued by Postmaster J.V.C. Trustach this morning as the result of an influx of mail at the local office during the past few weeks which has been rendered unusable owing to lack of address or insufficient address.

On one day recently eleven letters and cards were received at the local office which were undeliverable for this reason and had to be sent to the dead letter office in Ottawa, while not a day goes by this city but a number of mail in this nature are received, it was stated.

Wrong or addressed envelopes cause the most delays in delivery of mail and the problem which postal clerks have to contend with in this matter is indicated by the fact that fifteen letters were received at the local office recently which were addressed to Front Street but streets named were unheard of in this city. Two addressed to Bridge Street also had no addresses whatever and when the names appearing contained in the conventional salutation it proved impossible to identify the writers and these letters are also being sent to the dead letter office.

To minimize the inconvenience by non-delivery of mail it is strongly advised to state return address on all mail. Ninety-five per cent of delays and non-delivery of mail is caused by insufficient or wrong addresses being given and yet calls to the post office by anxious residents asking why such a letter has not been delivered are a very frequent occurrence, according to Mr. Trustach.

THREE ARRESTED FOR SERIES OF CITY BREAK-INS

REMANDED IN CUSTODY

A series of robberies, that have terrorized the smaller business places in the outlying districts of Belleville for the past few months, and also several local points, were arrested on Tuesday, Chief Kidd revealed today as the trio responsible for the three-count crime were were remanded to the custody of the county jail on 22 counts of breaking, entering and theft, when arraigned before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace today.

The charges against the youths were given as William E. Pair, 49 Herchimer Street, and alleged leader of the gang. Wm. J. Orr and William A. Woodcock, all residents of the west hill sector of the city. Fingerprints were taken from two of the alleged culprits by Detective Fred Ross and Chief Kidd today and the charges were preferred on counts of breaking and entering the Harper, Reid and Company Ltd. Store, Alexander's news store, Queen Victoria Public School, King George Schools, the Harris and Parry bakeries and several other small outlying places of business, that have been burglarized during the past few months.

"I am thoroughly convinced, that Pair is the leader of the trio and he has proven a bad influence upon the other two boys, who are much younger," Chief Kidd stated today after the trio had been questioned and remanded in custody.

"Four bicycles were also accounted for during our investigations and practically every break-in or robbery to have taken place in Belleville of late has been accounted for by the arrest of these boys, except the robbery at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, who intimated that statements had been taken from the accused youths, but the contents of the statements were withheld by the police pending trial.

Police recovered a large quantity of sugar and one of Pair's bicycles yesterday and alleged the goods had been stolen over the past weekend from the Harris Bakery.

Famous Empire Stories

THE STORY OF CEYLON

The story of Ceylon, one of the most beautiful islands in the world, dates back thousands of years, for it was inhabited long before history was written. Its history gives any traveller a land of perpetual spring. No snow is ever seen there, and the trees are always green. Luscious fruits abound in endless variety; flowers bloom in unimaginable luxuriance, and birds and butterflies are everywhere.

Strange animals roam its forests, strange fishes are found in its waters. For ages it has been famous for the riches of its precious gems, and many are still found there. Withal, the varied beauty and grandeur of its rugged mountains and blossoming valleys are ever the wonder and delight of all beholders. It is an important possession for many ways, being the centre of a large import and export trade.

In the sixth century before Christ, Gautama Buddha, the founder of the Buddhist religion, was said to have made three visits to the island and left his footprint on the top of the lofty and beautiful mountain known as Adam's Peak. For hundreds of years the Buddhist priests, nuns, men, women and children, have climbed this mountain to worship the sacred footprint.

The earliest inhabitants were an inferior race whom their conquerors called Yakkos and Nagas, words which mean "demons" and "snakes" because they worshipped demons or serpents. Descendants of these Yakkos still live in the mountains and forests of Ceylon, and are called Veddahs.

About this time the Singhalese (or Sinhalese), a people from Bengal, came over and took possession of Ceylon. Wijaya, their first king, brought a few followers, won an easy victory over the uncivilized natives, and married the daughter of one of their chiefs. He and his descendants after him ruled in the island for about 800 years.

The Singhalese themselves had to fight against strong enemies, the Malabars, or Tamils, of Southern India, whom they failed to conquer. The Tamils finally settled in the north of Ceylon, and the Singhalese in the south.

In the year 1505 the Portuguese began to invade Ceylon, at first for the purpose of procuring spice, especially cinnamon, which abounded there. They built forts along the coast and carried on a cruel warfare off and on for about 150 years. After the Portuguese came the Dutch, who occupied the island for nearly another 150 years. While less brutal they still were selfish tyrants. The Singhalese, who still maintained a kingdom of their own, with Kandy, a remote mountain fortress, as their capital, rejoiced when at last the British came and drove out the Dutch.

It was on the 5th of March, 1539, that the first Englishman, Ralph Fitch, set foot in Ceylon. About 250 years passed, however, before any real attempt was made to conquer the island. Then, toward the close of the 18th century, Britain and England were fighting for mastery in the seas of the East, and the British attacked the Dutch in Ceylon in order to protect their Eastern possessions.

Lord Hobart, Governor of Madras, the headquarters of the East India Company, fitted out an expedition to Ceylon, and with very little fighting an easy victory was won. The forts along the coast, held by the Dutch, surrendered, the Portuguese promised to be modest private property, and the people seemed well content to see the British flag waving on their walls in place of that of England.

We have seen what a sorry hand the Portuguese and Dutch made of their conquests in Ceylon, and what miseries the conquered people endured at their hands. Things were to be a much pleasanter story if we could say that the opposite was true of the new conquerors from the very beginning of their dominion in Ceylon. It is true that in time peace, prosperity, better government and many other benefits followed the British conquest, but in the beginning it was not so.

The reason of this lay partly in the uncertain and unfamiliar temper of the people of Ceylon, and partly in the fact that while British ideals, then as now, were peaceable and just, some of the men entrusted with the very responsible task of establishing England's rule, were unworthy of that trust.

Ceylon had been captured by the officers of the East India Company, and quite naturally they were anxious to govern and trade in this very rich and very lovely country. Mr. Pitt and other English statesmen would have greatly preferred to choose and send men from England to manage affairs, but they agreed at first to leave them in the hands of the Governor and Council of Madras.

We must remember that the whole island was not yet subdued. A Tamil king still ruled in Kandy, though he was at this time friendly to the British. Mr. Andrews, of Madras, was sent as ambassador to this king, and was also given a large force of men to guard him during the revenue and other affairs of the country. This was no easy task. Many changes were needed, but Mr. Andrews bent his unbounded energy and troubled himself to consider their desires. He made sudden and unwise changes, and put into various offices foreigners whose extortion and cruelties speedily brought about a revolt, resulting in much loss of life.

Ceylon was then formally made a British Crown colony. But the Hon. Frederick North, who went out from England as first Governor to Ceylon, proved to be another unfortunate choice. The King of Kandy died, and as he had a daughter, Princess Raja Singha, an eighteen-year-old nephew of the queen, was made king in his stead. But the Kandyan Adigar, or prime minister, Pilame Talave, formed a secret scheme of getting rid of the young king and having himself enthroned instead. With this in view he asked Mr. North to help him.

Mr. North did not agree to all the Adigar proposed, but to a certain extent he fell in with the treacherous designs, promising to bring in the aid of 1800 or more British soldiers when the plot should have progressed to a certain point. Mr. North had an idea that the British might in this way secure a stronger foothold; and also he argued that what he agreed to do was the only way to save the young king's life.

They went ahead with the scheme. As you may suppose, it didn't work out just according to plans. The attempt failed disastrously, and the disappointed prince Talave then formed a new plot, which included the driving out or destruction of the British. Thousands of natives were induced to join in the revolt. The British in the neighbourhood of Kandy were overcome and massacred, many others escaping to tell the tale.

The British forces that remained in the island were too much reduced to take any revenge for many years, and England, being then at war with France, was unable to send the reinforcements asked for by Mr. North. Further revolts followed from time to time, with terrible bloodshed and misery, and the young King Kandy took a revenge on his enemies too horrible to be told. This led to his overthrow. The British Singhalese chiefs conferred with the British and assisted them to drive out the savage king. The whole island then came under British rule.

Once peace was restored, and in fact, before that time arrived, numerous improvements were begun and carried out. These reforms brought a large measure of happiness and contentment to the people of Ceylon, who very soon bet their distrust and dislike of the British. Good roads were built, new industries introduced, religion and education promoted. Today, though conditions have not yet reached perfection, there is steady upward progress.

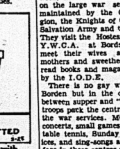
EARLY START WITH CANNAS

Planted among shrubs or used as strong accents in the large flower border, the new hybrid cannas are lending in popularity. The old-time tall-growing cannas, having small flowers which bloomed late, are said to be compared to the new dwarf hybrids, having an abundance of beautiful flowers which appear early. These new hybrids come in a startling garden of apricot, watermelon pink and coppery hues.



Early start indoors with canvas

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, rhizomes of cannas should have been carried over winter should be divided now and potted in rich garden soil. Cut the root into single pieces, each having a strong bud. Three eyes can be potted up two together.

Barely cover the eyes with soil. Use a light, rich, sandy soil and keep the soil moist until growth begins. Keep the potted cannas out of drafts and place where the temperature is from 70 to 80 degrees. About the end of May, after all danger of frost is over, the plants may be removed from the pots and planted outdoors.

War Service Organizations Doing a Fine Job for Troops, Sailors, Airmen Everywhere

Voluntary Associations Look After Troop Comfort, Recreation and Educatiion — Off-Duty Hours See Fighting Services Avail Themselves of Comforts Provided

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer)

Camp Borden, April 2 — Canadian soldiers get the best military equipment that science and money can supply. Their gas masks are proof against any known war gas. They are carried in trucks which are the last word in motorized military vehicles. They get everything, from shoe laces to shaving material, required to keep them in physical health and comfort.

Departments dealing with national defence, however, expect voluntary war services to fill another most important need of our fighting men. The government supplies rations, but not recreation. It gives the men "tin hats," but not table tennis. It furnishes magazines for rifles, but not for reading. These spare-time needs are met by organizations included in the Canadian War Services Fund, which is now nearing the end of its campaign for $5,500,000 with which to carry on this all-important task.

In Canada's large permanent military camp here, 16,000 men from all over Canada every day ask the question: "Where do we go tonight?" In a startling number of spots, even on the large war service centres maintained by the Canadian Legion, the Knights of Columbus, the Salvation Army and the Y.M.C.A., they visit the Hostess House of the Y.W.C.A. at Borden's gate to meet their wives and children, mothers and sweethearts and they read books and magazines supplied by the I.O.D.E.

There is no gay white way at Borden but in the off-duty hours between supper and "lights out" the troops pack the centres operated by the war services. Moving pictures, concerts, small games tournaments, table tennis, Sunday evening services, and sing-songs are the steeling fare in these centres of warmth and cheer. Reading and writing rooms are "crowded all day canteens, on a non-profit basis, supply beverages, sandwiches, chocolate bars and other necessities not available elsewhere in camp. The huts are at least half a mile apart and there is no overlapping, as each centre serves the men in nearby barracks and each takes turn in showing the same movies during the week.

Each centre has a large auditorium seating 800 to 1,000 men and with a well-equipped stage and motion picture equipment. As many as three showings a night may be given in one of these auditoriums, reaching 3,000 men. In each centre are reading and writing rooms, a games room, and a canteen. Church parades are held each Sunday in all, as well as meetings for many religious denominations. Mobile entertainments and tea cars from these centres are sent out on week-end excursions and guard duty and carry supplies to men in hospitals.

The centres are open to all men in uniform, without regard to rank or creed. The Canadian Legion educational program has more than 3,000 men at Camp Borden taking correspondence courses on various subjects. There are also special efforts for all soldiers solve their problems. For example, an eminent man from Northern Ontario had left home 20 years ago and wanted to write his mother and father if they were still living. The Salvation Army found his parents in a distant part of Quebec and they were reunited with the son before he went overseas.

No women are allowed in Camp Borden except during visiting hours. Visiting hours but just outside Borden's main gate is the Hostess House of the Y.W.C.A. to provide a meeting place for women and children and their friends. Here are bands and fathers. Bright with chintz and comfortably furnished with the hospitality of full-time volunteer women workers, this house has a comfortable lounge, writing and reading rooms games room, first aid and rest rooms. Hundreds of soldiers make use of the canteen, lounge and rooms daily as a pleasant respite from camp routine.

Thousands of books and magazines are provided each week by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire. These are distributed by an Auxiliary Service officer among the war service centres and unit canteens. Books, sweaters, scarves and other gifts for soldiers are also supplied by this organization.

The answer to the soldiers' question: "Where do we go tonight?" is given by Camp Borden and by the Canadian War Services who are asking the Canadian public to support them.

Whitby, Ont., April 1 (CP) — A Canadian Pacific Railways express from Montreal today smashed into an automobile transport on Dundas st. at a level crossing near here today, scattering its load of new automobiles and a light truck over the right-of-way.

Harold Marshall, driver of the transport, was uninjured when the locomotive ploughed into the big machine runs behind the cab.

Motherall said the locomotive appeared close to him he could feel the heat from it. He said he neither saw nor heard the express coming.

Police Chief Elliott of Whitby said Motherall "got over the tracks with his tractor but that was all. The train ripped off the trailer and banged and battered the cars, truck and trailer down the tracks."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Glad to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If your bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It just decays. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Waste poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks gloomy.
A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. It takes those good, old-fashioned Carter's Little Liver Pills to set these two quarts of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Refuse substitutes. Insist on the name Carter's Little Liver Pills, 25c.

DEMOCRACY STRONG AND CAPABLE

The free world has never had any doubt of the ultimate strength that democracies can develop. Aggressors, Hitler and Mussolini, have claimed that the democracies were weak and would not fight or if they did that they were totally effete. The lie has been proven false again and again. Britain's answer has been given in terrific telling blows and actions against the aggressors. She frustrated Hitler's offensive against her, she has smashed the Italian Empire, destroyed about half of Italy's fleet, Italy's pride and glory, and pounded relentlessly her land forces, driving them across North Africa almost to the borders of Libya and French territory, and everywhere in East Africa has driven the Italian forces into endless retreat.

The Greeks, a small state, have hurled defiance in the face of Mussolini and forced the lie down his throat. Yugoslavia has hurled a bomb in the face of Adolf Hitler. Though the land of the Serbs and Croats is not great in numbers or material is, yet Yugoslavia is brave to fight even to death for maintenance of her freedom.

"Invincibility" claimed by the aggressor pair is a fake, bluff and fraud. Axis powers so far have not the inspiration of freedom. They fight for vicious principles.

Democracy is a power of the spirit and soul, it is the light of progress, it bears good news and can use material weapons with more telling effect than armed forces which have become so materialized in their outlook that the ordinary motives do not help them. Axis leaders are so bent on destruction and barbarism in the expansion of Nazism and Fascism that higher ideals play no part. Nazis and Fascists have none of the reaction which comes from defence of a worthwhile ideal. The enemy "isms" are built on fraud, lies, deceptions, war-making, motives of policy which have always brought destruction in their wake for those who follow them.

Power is needed to defeat a bully aggressor but the spirit is a factor. Britain's soldiers, sailors and airmen, as they fight, carry with them nobility of principle which is a weapon the Hun and Axis dread. For the foe have sold themselves to evil and must pay the price in being blinded to truth and reality. Hitler with all his material strength has erred more frightfully than ever Napoleon did. He blundered because the evil he followed blinded his eyes.

Militarism did not strengthen Italy; though it gave her armaments, it did not give her wisdom and she is losing her armaments at a rate which alarms the Fascists and Hitler. Italy is losing to Britain which has greater spirit and a saner view, a nation which is inspired to sacrifice itself to victory regardless —practice justice, defend the right and honor freedom.

The full strength of democracy is not yet felt. But there are most encouraging signs of the reaction to the present trend shows how ready nations are to take courage. Views just expressed in the Turkish press are that Hitler cannot win and that it will lose the war sooner than expected because he failed against England and because he misjudged the Balkans who he presumed to believe would not fight for liberty. The allies of Britain will grow as the tide is now turning to sweep Hitler and Mussolini to their doom.

MOTOR REGISTRATIONS, GASOLINE TAXES

How much Canada travels in motor vehicles is made clear in the official figures just released for the year covered from the 'motor vehicles registrations, drivers' permits and gasoline taxes in Canada which in 1939 aggregated $79,915,560 as compared with $67,475,045 in 1938, a gain of 18.4 per cent. The large increase was in the gasoline tax which rose from $41,247,346 in 1938 to $51,954,560 in 1939, an advance of 26 per cent.

Motor vehicle registrations increased in all provinces during 1939, with the result that the total number for Canada as a whole was 3.2 per cent higher at 1,439,245. This total included 1,190,021 passenger cars, 23,474 trucks, 2,644 buses, 12,322 motorcycles, 1,143 tractors, 305 ambulances and hearses and 752 cranes, service cars, etc.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS . . .

BY

Observer

"PERFIDIOUS ALBION . . ."

Their sailors sprang to action posts, in misty evening, blue-clad ghosts,
For word had flashed by radio, "A convoy sailing north."
The proud Italian flag aloft, "For Mussolini, this is soft."
The gunners softly chortled as the ships sailed bravely forth.
Three cruisers, two destroyers and a number of torpedo boats
Cleaved "Mare Nostrums" foamy blue, in search of British prey,
They sang of "Mia Carissima" in piano and fortissimo,
Horizon's blue showed wraithy smoke, "They're here," commanders loudly spoke,
"To action—show these English swine what Italy can do."
Then staggered back—amazed surprise, flashed suddenly in frightened eyes,
The "merchant convoy" instantly had turned to "Navy Blue."

Then loudly spoke the British guns, in salvoes, singly, "fours" and "ones,"
Three cruisers, two destroyers sank, like stones in glassy pool,
Laughed softly, as with thumbs upraised, they murmured "April Fool."

April first has come and gone, and many a harmless joke was perpetrated. Some of the less hereabouts were not satisfied with being "fooled" once but were prime bait for the second helping. Still, as the office Romeo says, "April first is like that disease called love. If she fools you once, it is her fault, but if she fools you twice, it is your fault." Ain't it the truth?.

"My kingdom for a hose," he cried
And with his arms extended wide,
Knelt down in city streets to pray
For rain to wash the sand away.

The Scotchman stormed into the editorial rooms the other day. He ranted and he fumed. He swore a good Gaelic oath and fixed the city desk with an irate eye. "The name is Macpherrhairin, not McPhirson," he shouted, "and if ye repeat the wee mistake I refuse to borry your blasted paper again."

A London doctor, says the Woodstock Sentinel Review, was shot in the fracas which is probably as painful as being stabbed in the melee or struck in the scuffle. Still more pathetic is the story of a doctor who has been fined over a dispute with a waitress who received a kick in the altercation.

Mussolini is reported to be a sick man. No wonder. He has had his Libya removed; lost his Gaul friend, France, when he stabbed her in the back; has a bad case of general disability; suffered a fracture of his Djibouti and other rail-ways; his navy has been stricken with diptheria; his Eritrean pipes are clogged and he is taking British treatment for Asmara; his Abyssinian armies are being anaesthetized by Ether (opian) troops, and he is rapidly drifting from the various seats of war because his main bases have been subject to severe attacks of Australian "Diggers." His Herr Doktor Adolf is thinking of sending him to Berne—so are the British, but they don't spell it the same way.

Then there's the story of the twelve Italian aviator prisoners captured by a British warship after they were shot down. Put to bed in the top bunks they were discovered to be black and blue the next morning.

"Well, sir," explained a sailor, "one of them kept saying 'Spitfire,' 'Spitfire,' in his sleep, and every time he said 'Spitfire' the other eleven balled out."

A new necktie, made of glass fibre, can be cleaned in an instant with a damp cloth. This, of course, will be included in the courtesy service at the filling stations, we're afraid.—The Pas Northern Mail.

Orange

Trailer City—Winter Garden, Fla. March 28.—In and about the Growers City of Winter Garden in Central Florida the great citrus packing houses are working at high speed. The Orange Growers' crop is pouring in so must be handled and shipped to the markets of the north. Making a visit to a very large grove where there is a grand of colored boys (25) were clipping these luscious Temples from the trees we found much to interest us.

The trees in this grove had all been budded when set out so instead of growing tall they were about the height of a medium ladder and spread out into a nicely rounded tree. Much fruit could be clipped off from the ground. These colored boys are expert at the job and are paid by the field crate. This crate over runs the regular orange box by a bit and it is packed and sent north. In the place of baskets a deep canvas bag is used held open at the top by a metal hoop which is worn by the bound canvas goes over the shoulders to prevent cutting in, as when this sack is full it is, indeed heavy. The pickers use a small flat pair of clippers to snip off the fruit. Full work clipped must at show any clipper marks, while the stem must be less than a quarter of an inch long.

These boys are able to earn approximately $6 for an eight-hour day. The way they are able to clip these oranges off the tough twigs is surprising. They seem to roll into his bag in a continuous stream.

Citrus tree branches have long sharp thorns studded along them. A picker has a light, thin ladder against the tree from any direction, then quickly mounts to the cluster of golden fruit just seems to roll off. The tough nature of citrus wood is able to endure a lot of rough usage in this matter where placed. Unlike our apples, citrus fruit is not bruised so can be handled much more roughly. The Florida grower's method gathering this crop of Temples was composed of some 20 pickers, a forewoman and man while a tall white-clad young fellow with high leather boots heeled the job.

Several large platform trucks were driven down the rows of trees and when a picker's bag was fully loaded with full field crates then slowly over to the nearest house. This young boss was a Mr. Saddler, but it's Mrs. Saddler who is the boss. The Saddlers are in the growing business in a large way, owning many groves and have some twenty miles. This young Southerner had an interesting story and was very kind, giving us much information along with it. The field grove which permitted us to clip off fruit from any tree that struck our fancy, as samples to carry away with us.

Picker Finds a Rattler

A little excitement was thrown in during this visit. One of the boys picking a few trees up from where we stood had a rattler strike at his foot rather while clipping off fruit close to the ground. This snake was killed about the same time orange which he wanted to gather. His only means of defence was the ability to pelt it with oranges as a club or a stone was not handy. He used the whole 40 acres. This he proceeded to do when the snake disappeared, down a hole in the ground. A dozen or two fine oranges pelted as a small shower of rain on the spot. The visit to this large grove did not entail any walking as we rode in a car among the hundreds of trees.

Following up the gathering of the fruit comes the packing and the packing houses, several hundreds feet long with a single storey, occupying the full length of the shipping platform. Here the fruit is given a final washing, coloring, sorting and packing machinery. The packing is done by girls, mostly young colored girls. They are paid by the box and are able to earn good wages. They become lighting fast at wrapping and packing the fruit in boxes. With one hand, the left, they seize the branded white tissue paper wrapping. With each right they have already aided the orange from the bin. They then give a twist to the tissue wrapping is slapped upon the orange. With a third the wrapped is fined. The right hand is placing the wrapped orange in the box and by the time left hand has another wrapper ready, the right has another orange, more as swiftly as the shuttle of a sewing machine.

Contests

Down at Cook Park, where the Toronto Maple Leafs are taking their Spring training, an orange-throwing contest was staged recently. The champ hailed from Winter Haven and was white. Claude D. Brown was crowned king of the Florida Orange pickers thereby winning himself $100. His throwing per snipped off about 1,750 oranges in 8 hours from a landfall of some 5,000 spectators. Brown snipped off 219 oranges in the perfectly picked commercial fruit during a trolling sun. At the sound of the starting gun Brown bounded up into his trees and began his task. Two boys were supplying clippers and flying oranges. Along with this unusual contest was an orange chiffon pie eating contest for boys under 14. Hands tied behind them, the little contestants dug head first in pieces of pie. Ninety-seven pies were in the winner emerging with his face plastered with meringue and with himself a fine new baseball glove. Also in the pie beauty contest open to girls from the packing houses. A lovely beauty from Post-proof was the winner. Also in the juicing contest the winner sucked 12 oranges through straws in short order, assimilating a full load of juice and seeds in three minutes, slipping under the table, records of chambers from which the water can be pumped and shot out by means of various appliances.

The Labor Situation

New York, April 2—The labor situation in this country is a little more complicated than it appears to be to the average Congressman.

For twelve years now there has been vast unemployment in the United States. A friendly pro-labor administration that is convinced that the maintenance of a relatively high level with commensurate purchasing power is good for business and good for stability, has nevertheless been unable to find work for several millions of men, particularly in the unskilled classes.

Now a huge defence program is actually creating a labor shortage. It labor, after twelve years in a seller's market with no buyers, suddenly finds itself in a buyer's market it goes out for a raise. In other words, it acts the way any human man acts, under the old "classical" law of supply and demand.

* * *

Labor unions have been in the defensive in America throughout most of our history. With the New Deal administration, they got the best break they have ever had. There was a vast extension of organization. In a period of great strain, stress and depression. It was more fast and it was pushed step by step by many employers. That kind of development does not usually result in a very enlightened leadership. The leaders get to the top in the rough and who can produce the goods.

* * *

This situation was further complicated by the fact that it was an experiment of prohibition proportions. A lot of gangsters, racketeers, hijackers and shakedown boys, all through the collaboration of the respectable but illegal world, saw its repeal left a lot of them unemployed. Some went straight, some bers racket and some went into trade union racketeering.

* * *

Add another complicating factor, the Communist Party, sympathizers and fellow-travellers. They run some unions in this country and they send them in a high-handed manner that has nothing whatever to do with democracy. The Communist Party activities, furthermore, have nothing to do with Socialism, or with genuine reactionists, much more interested in the life of the Soviet Union than in any future America. They are trained in underground conspiratorial methods, and bent on producing chaos, the production of chaos being the international party line.

* * *

The people of the United States, the bulk of civil liberties have got the guts to outlow the Communist Party, and yet have enough intelligence to see that the Party is not create only a certain restricted number of Communists, so we have a monstrously situation that the Dies Committee and the Department of Justice seek to track down individuals, and the result is a lot of petty persecution and no solution whatsoever. The Communist Party has the right to run a candidate for President of the United States but a party member has the right not to teach in New York schools.

If we could get these things straight in our heads, we would know what to do about Communists. First, we would

DOCKS AND WHARVES

In these days of rapid naval expansion frequent mention is made of "graving docks."

There are two general classes of nautical docks.

Wet docks and tidal docks, which are used for berthing, loading and unloading ships, or for repairing boats, or enclosures in which the water is kept at a certain level by means of gates.

Dry docks, graving docks, hydraulic docks and floating dry docks, which are used for constructing, repairing and cleaning ships, vessels and boats.

The dock is usually between two piers or projecting wharves is also called a dock.

In every day talk we often use the word dock when pier, wharf or quay would better express our meaning.

RESEMBLANCE

I think it's this way; must be so,
Tin Hi in image here we grow
And in our conduct all can see
The God we've struggled like to be.
The God we worship here survives,
Reflected in our daily lives.

I think it's this way; God is part
Of every human mind and heart,
And not in Heaven's remotest
Is worshipped there or quite forgot,
Is seen, though little understood,
In every motive that is good.

I think it's this way: All men grow
God's image by the love they show;
That neither hymn, nor prayer, nor creed
Proves God so well as simple deed.
That is our characters men see
Just what we think our God must be.

HANSON URGES FREE GIFT OF FLOUR TO BRITAIN

House Carried Over Wide Range of Topics in Discussing War Expenditures Bill

DEBATE CONTINUES

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 2 (CP)—With the double-barrelled objective of aiding Great Britain and educating British householders to the merits of Canadian flour, Conservative House Leader Hanson would have Canada make a free gift of flour to Great Britain.

Varying his previous suggestion that Canada contribute 100,000,000 bushels of wheat from vast surplus stores in this country, Mr. Hanson yesterday suggested the same quantity of the wheat be milled in Canada and the flour shipped overseas.

He suggested the flour be sent directly into the home of the British consumers and identified as Canada. He thought the cost might be $100,000,000 but asserted this was not too large a gesture for Canada to make to the United Kingdom.

Debate on the supplementary war appropriation bill for $135,000,000 carried the House over a wide range of other topics, from shipbuilding to relations between Canadian overseas troops and the British home forces.

At the evening sitting, Mr. Hanson urged the re-establishment of a great commercial shipbuilding industry to restore to Nova Scotia yards the glory they knew in the last century.

"The people of Nova Scotia demonstrated in the last war that they could build steel ships of very large capacity," he said.

"It can be done again, and I ask the Minister (Navy Minister Macdonald) to review the whole position in the interests of Nova Scotia and the Maritime Provinces.

"Let us get back to something of the position we once occupied in the world in relation to the sea," this country in relation to the sea."

Mr. Hanson charged the government lacked a long-range policy on shipbuilding and said that while the construction of small warships like corvettes was important the building of cargo ships to meet the present shortage and to provide a revived shipbuilding industry in Nova Scotia after the war should be guished.

Percy, Black (Con. Cumberland), who initiated the shipbuilding debate, said shipyards capable of built, said shipyards should be started building steel ships should be started in Nova Scotia without delay and that the steel for the ships should be rolled in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Black said the people of Nova Scotia were not satisfied with the government's explanation why Nova Scotia yards were not being used to a greater degree. During the last war steel ships up to 10,000 tons had been built in New Glasgow, if the Federal and Provincial governments acted they could get Nova Scotia yards operating to capacity.

Navy Minister Macdonald said there were no shipyards in Nova Scotia at present capable of building steel ships, except the Halifax shipyards which were doing other essential war work. Wooden ships large enough for use in convoys could not be built there, either.

But there had been opportunity for Nova Scotia yards to build small naval craft, he said. The Yards had either refused to bid or their prices were too high.

The Minister said government financing of new yards in Nova Scotia could not be justified at a time when yards on the St. Lawrence River, Great Lakes and British Columbia were capable of handling all the orders at the moment.

No Shortage of Facilities

"So far as ships of war are concerned," he said, "there is no shortage of building facilities. Our shortage in the next year is going problem is in the trained personnel. to be to get the trained personnel.

"The shipyards of Canada are on the job and ahead of schedule."

In the cargo boat and other steel shipbuilding industry, so far as he was aware, no yards were turning away business and there was no sign of yards being overburdened with work.

Mr. Hanson said that might be true as far as a "limited program" was concerned, but there was a large question involved. The ministry should explore all methods of building up a commercial shipbuilding industry.

"What I visualize," he said, "is a commercial enterprise that may be assisted in its initial establishment by the government."

Answering earlier questions from Hon. Grote Sterling (Con. Yale), defence minister Ralston said Canadian forces overseas were governed by the visiting forces (British Commonwealth) act and that relations with the British authorities were cordial and intimate.

House objected to one provision which would give Game Wardens the powers of Justices of the peace anywhere in Canada. The lawyers argued it amounted to giving a police officer the powers of Judge, jury and prosecutor as well.

Bowing to the opposition, Mr. Crerar agreed to let several sections stand over for further consideration.

Mr. Crerar said during the afternoon that several hundred civilian enemy aliens arrested in Great Britain and sent to Canada for custody had been returned at the request of the British government, presumably for release on the ground their sympathies were anti-Nazi.

Mr. Crerar said during the afternoon suggestions from A. M. Nicholson (CCF-Mackenzie) and Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) that some such aliens be permitted to remain in Canada on their release since they were skilled technicians.

Mr. Crerar said the admission of immigrants required careful supervision but a few such people who had close relatives in Canada had been permitted to remain under a form of probation.

The Day in Parliament

By The Canadian Press
TODAY

The House will continue consideration in committee of the $135,000,000 supplementary war appropriation bill.

YESTERDAY

The House continued debate on the supplementary war appropriation; opposition leaders Hanson suggested Canada give Britain flour milled from 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, and urged re-establishment of a great commercial shipbuilding industry in the Maritimes. Defence Minister Ralston outlined statutory provisions governing relations between Canadian forces overseas and United Kingdom forces; Opposition and government members opposed one section of a bill designed to assist in enforcement of provincial game laws.

The Ontario financial secretary leader Dandurand reply to a Montreal Gazette editorial of March 29 which dealt with one of his recent Senate speeches. Conservative Leader Meighen protested that important legislative problems were being handled by order in council, and charged the government was "thumbing its nose" at the legislative rights of parliament.

Detailed With British

The Canadian corps, commanded by Lt.-Gen.-A. G. L. McNaughton, had been detailed to serve with the British forces and so came under the British commander-in-chief, Sir Alan Brooke, if Sir Alan wished to employ the corps in operations he would consult with Gen. McNaughton as a matter of military practise.

If the corps were to be moved outside the United Kingdom the approval of the government of Canada would be sought, Gen. McNaughton was responsible to the government of Canada for the administration of the corps.

"Since the change in the situation resulting from the German invasion of France and the low countries, asked the minister, "no suggestion of any kind has been made to Canadian military authorities or to the Canadian government that its forces should extend beyond the United Kingdom, except in one instance where the government requested and the Canadian government approved the dispatch of small detachments of Canadian troops to carry out special work at Gibraltar."

Proposed Bill Opposed

(Canadian engineers were sent to Gibraltar for work on strengthening the fortifications and tunnelling.)

Earlier in the day lawyers in the House opposed sections of a bill sponsored by Resources Minister Crerar which was designed to assist in the enforcement of Provincial Game Laws by preventing the sale in one province of game or furs illegally taken in another.

NEWS AGENCY BARRED

Lima, Peru, April 2 (AP)— Peru last night barred the German news agency "Transocean" from operations in this country on the ground that its dispatches are "spreading news that may disturb the good international relations of Peru."

The Interior Ministry's decree added that the agency might also "hurt the national sentiments of other countries and affect our democratic institutions. Therefore it is resolved to cancel the permit given Transocean to operate in national territory as a news agency."

Rome, April 2 (AP)—The Italian High Command claimed today Fascist troops were punting up stiff resistance against numerically superior British forces in the Awash river valley between Diredawa and Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia.

Italian troops also were said to be trying to stem the British advance in Eritrea.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma gave me another piece of candy out of her box when I promised not to eat any more candy this afternoon she was sewing to herself on her sewing machine and I had a idea, saying, Hay ma, do you like pets?

Why, I said depends, I've never felt too cordial tords cats, ma said, and so on. Well I was thinking I was a little pet, ma, there it is on your best right hand.

Meaning my new jumping mouse on the end of a rubber tube, and I quick squeezed the bulb and the mouse started to jump, and ma gave a awful scream, Take that thing out immeediilly, how dare you bring a live mouse in here.

It's not alive, ma, it's just rubber to have fun with, I said, and ma said, Well you know how I feel about pets of any condition whatever, so get it out of here, do you hear me.

Gosh, ma, it's not my fault it you dont want it, I offered it to you, I said, I bet if you offered me some thing I bet I'd keep it, such as a piece of candy, I said, and ma said, My, you make me feel very gilty and remorseful. Very well, then, I'll keep the mouse, and thank you very much, she said.

Me thinking, Heck, good night, my jumping mouse now.

And after a while I said, Well hay ma, if you're really not particular about the mouse you can have one of my books instead. I'll write in the front, To ma from Benny, to prove it's really yours, I said, and she said, No thanks, it's silly of me to feel that way about mice, and I think I'll just keep it to overcome my scruples.

Aw G. ma, there's no use straining yourself, I said, and ma said, All right, take a piece of candy and get back to your work and I wish you dont want me to change my mind you'd better not ever let me see it again.

Wish I wont.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, April 2

A FAIRLY fortunate and interesting day is presaged by the aspects above mentioned. There may not be any startling developments but neither will there be cause for any untoward dangers or disasters. It might be well to be cautious in the handling of all writings, documents and publishings and also to exercise ordinary precaution in travelling. Some slight tendency of friction with elders met in social contact but superiors and higher-ups should be favorable.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly favorable and fortunate year, while matters moving in customary grooves, but with some promise of recognition or tokens of preferment from superiors or those in high places. They may be disposed to resent merit or offer friendly as well as financial aid. Use precaution in handling manner of writings, agreements and documents of importance. There may be a trivial slight from elders in a social or sentimental way. Although generally things are warming and pleasant.

A child born on this day should gain the confidence and support of its superiors and may make fair progress in life. It may be subject to anxiety with papers and it travels may hold slight dangers. Early training solid. Integrity and truth might not be amiss.

FAMILY RE-UNION IN "Y" HOSTESS HOUSE

This young fellow badly wanted to see his daddy, a sergeant-major in a tank battalion training at Camp Borden. Mother and he went to the Hostess House operated by the Y.W.C.A. just outside Camp Borden and they had a lovely visit with dad. The fce cream cone helped, of course. The "Y" operates Hostess Houses at military camps across Canada, which provide restful, homelike meeting places for soldiers and their families.

Women Stand Behind Every Man in Fighting Services; Y. W. C. A. Doing Fine Effort

Hostess Houses Provided by the Organization Source of Rest for Wives of Troops Visiting Loved Ones—Rooms Registry, Travellers Aid, Other Forms of Service

As part of its war work program, the Young Women's Christian Association provides meeting places where wives, mothers and sweethearts may visit with their men in uniform, assistance in locating lodgings in overcrowded cities or towns, help to women and children travelling from one end of Canada to the other because of wartime conditions, and clubs for lonely wives of soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Believing that behind every man in the navy, army or air force there stands a woman and that a most important factor in keeping up the morale of the man in uniform is the service given to his womenfolk at home, the Y.W.C.A. at the request of the Dominion Government, is playing an important part in Canada's war effort.

Establishment of a chain of Hostess Houses at the barriers of military camps and in strategically centres has provided thousands of women with a comfortable resting place on the occasion of their visits to camp. Prior to the establishment of such houses, women coming from long distances to share a few short hours with husband, son or sweetheart were forced to wait out-of-doors at the camp gate. Now there are cozy, like lounges, reading rooms, recreation rooms, first aid centres, tuck shop in Y.W.C.A. Hostess Houses across Canada. Some of the houses offer over-night accommodation to women who have travelled great distances.

Hostess Houses, while primarily designed to serve the women of Canada, are also constantly serving the men of the forces. Even on the larger hosuey staging weekly dances to which they invite groups of volunteer dancing partners. More important than the physical form of the Hostess Houses is the number of human problems solved within their walls. An elderly grandmother recently travelled from another province and arrived at the camp barrier only to learn that her grandson was in the guardhouse. The "Y" hostess took her in, provided her with lunch and a place to rest until a meeting could be arranged with the soldier, allowed to be visited by his bride of a few weeks, entrusted to the "Y" hostess that his pay wasn't due and he was broke. The "Y" arranged room and board for the young bride.

Across Canada the Y.W.C.A. operates a rooms registry service. In some cities the authorities have turned the whole problem of locating living quarters for wives of military men to the Y.W.C.A. Travellers Aid, for 60 years or more an important part of Y.W.C.A. work has been increased across the country to help women and children travelling from one point to another. Information booths have been set up in "port" cities to assist soldiers, sailors, airmen and their relatives and friends.

Another major war service of the Y.W.C.A. is hospitality for men in uniform. Every regular Y.W.C.A. building in Canada has opened its doors to men of the services and their women friends. Teas, dances, Sunday five-o'clocks, and entertainments are constantly planned to serve lonely, out-of-town men and women. Hospitality in private homes is also arranged for thousands of men in training.

With the coming of spring a new branch of the Y.W.C.A. war service will go into operation—service to women of the Land Army.

All the service organizations which ordinarily appeal separately for funds have united in one nation-wide drive for $500,000 under the name of "The Canadian War Services Fund." Included in the campaign, which opened this week are: the Canadian Legion, I.O.D.E., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

SALMON LOAF CAN BE MADE WITH CHEAPER GRADES

If you add a rich sauce

TAKE a tall tin of pink or coho salmon. Mash it and add a little browned onion. Blend in well, a tablespoonful of H. P. Sauce. Add 1½ cups mashed potatoes, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 2 teaspoons butter, ½ cup milk. Mix thoroughly and press into a baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs; bake for 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serves 4 persons.

Cheaper grades of salmon are just as nutritious as the sockeye and the addition of H. P. Sauce brings out the flavour so deliciously that everyone will remark on the fine taste of your loaf. You can use H. P. Sauce for many other foods. It greatly improves soup, stew, beans, macaroni, fried meats and fish, also salads and sandwiches.

QUATERNION Y. P. U

Quaternion Y. P. U. met Monday evening at Front Road United Church with a slightly below average attendance. The meeting opened with a sing-song led by the president, Miss Helen Brown presided over a very inspirational worship service and she also had charge of the program itself. The topic presented was "The Life of Jesus". A short discussion period followed the program. Miss Marion Daniel led a short period of recreation and the very successful evening closed with everybody singing "The More We Get Together."

Position of Women In World Today Theme Of Meeting

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church held their regular meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Sherry on Dundas Street.

The attendance was good and the discussions were keen and interesting.

Mrs. Kerr conducted the business and plans were made for a party at the School for Leisure. Fifteen dollars was voted to the work of the Red Cross Unit of the Guild. Mrs. Frosts who is honorary president of the Society, was a guest and brought a brief message.

Mrs. Gibson was in charge of the devotional period and her theme was "Religion, our door of hope".

Miss Tickell led the discussion on "the position of Women in the World Today".

Mrs. Hearst traced the history of women from early times when it was necessary for women to share the duties and labour equally with men to the parasitic place she has occupied through much of history.

Dr. Noble spoke on the place of women in health and quoted some very interesting figures to prove her points.

Women's duty is to see that child' birth is made safe, that children are born healthy and to see that children are not handicapped by accident or disease.

Our infant mortality rate is 4.3 per thousand living births as compared to 2.3 in Holland. Over half of these deaths are preventable. The records of the V.O.N. service show that their work here is only about half the average for the whole country. In 1926 sixty-one of every thousand babies born were killed in their first year.

One city school found that four out of every ten pupils had one or more physical defects.

These figures show that if we are to survive we must attend to the health of the children.

In the discussions following Dr. Noble's paper it was unanimously agreed that medical examination and a health certificate should be required before a marriage could take place.

Mrs. Miller spoke of women's part in war and showed that there is still much that we can do. She told of the daughter of an Englishman who is assisting in Canada to help the cause.

Miss Hall read a paper on "Women' part in Politics". While the franchise has not had all the good results that we hoped for, still since women have had the vote much social legislation has been enacted.

Mrs. Buchanan told of woman's place in religion and felt that since women do so much of the work of the church and Sunday School it is to say in forming the policies.

Mrs. Hearst thanked all those meeting the need of play—recreation—and hoped for still more happiness of women. She said the recreation lends colour to our lives, vitality to our bodies and strength to our bodies.

Mrs. Northcott thanked the association for co-operation in the Red Cross tea which was such a success. Mrs. Ferguson took the devotional period and closed the chapter. The story of Pentecost and Peters story or sermon to the people.

Mrs. Ackerman and Mrs. Osborne reported writing to different Women's Associations as to how they organized money and several reported the social method that they usually was using. A questionnaire was conducted by Mrs. Osborne and many valuable information received.

The meeting closed and a beautiful solo by Miss Calley and refreshments served by Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Price's unit.

'Tis Time for Parents to Be on Guard Against Measles

For the next few weeks, watch for outcroppings of measles in your community, and try to keep your children from coming in contact with it if you can. Particularly if any child is under four years of age; for it is among children two to four years that measles has its highest mortality rate. Late winter and early spring is the "measles season".

Measles is distinctly a disease of childhood. But it is unwise to adopt the attitude, as some do, that children "have to have" measles anyway, so the sooner they have it and get over with it the better. This isn't true; it isn't inevitable that your child will get the measles. But, more important, the later he gets measles the better. The older he is the better he will stand the infection.

Measles is another of the childhood diseases that Dionne Quintuplets have never contracted. Every spring, I have kept my fingers crossed, though, because it is so infectious that it might invade our nursery at any time in spite of all our precautions.

Measles are dangerous not so much because of the effect of the disease itself but because of the complications that so often follow in its wake. Bronchitis is the most frequent complication. When a small child or a baby gets measles, bronchitis is almost invariably its companion. Now and then this bronchitis leads to pneumonia.

It takes from 10 to 14 days after exposure to it for measles to develop in a child. The first symptom is usually what may seem to be an ordinary head cold—a slight fever, a persistently running nose and perhaps a slight cough.

In a couple of days the fever drops. If your doctor examines him at this stage, he will find the first definite symptom—a peculiar rash on the inside of the cheeks and on the soft palate. This consists of a few bluish reddened areas about the size of peas.

These spots always mean that the patient has measles for 2 days or more before the rash appears. First it comes on the sides of the face, then on the chin. Later it will likely spread down onto the chest.

At first this rash consists of many small, round slightly raised areas varying in color from pink to bright red. In a few days the rash changes color; the round spots become irregular blotches of pink, slightly raised tissue. After it has spread to the chest from the face and neck, it will keep on spreading until it covers the whole body.

This spreading of the rash is accompanied by a marked rise in temperature and the child becomes irritable. The eyes become reddened and he cannot look at light.

This is the acute stage of the disease. It usually lasts three or four days, then the temperature begins to fall. The youngster who makes a rapid recovery from the disease isn't unusual.

7 NEW MEMBERS NOW IN KIWANIS

Initiation Ceremony Carried Out on Largest Number to Join Club at One Time

Nearly one hundred per cent. attendance and the addition of seven new members into the Kiwanis Club made the luncheon of that organization at the Queens Hotel on Tuesday one of the most memorable in the history of this Service Club. There was no special speaker but real comradeship prevailed and the new members were given a royal welcome into Kiwanis. The club is at the greatest strength of its history and to Eddie Logan, former chairman of the Membership Committee, and the present incumbent of that office, Jack McIntosh, can go the credit for the fine progress. These two members have given freely of their time and ability and have brought into the club business and professional men of the highest calibre, who will be capable of carrying fully of their time and experience.

Trenton Campaign Gets Underway

Trenton (Special)—The Associated War Charities campaign got underway here today, with fifty workers canvassing every town business and industrial plant in the town.

Campaign officials plan a quick, thorough and successful campaign which has last today for only one row. In that time, it is hoped that the objective of $6,000 will be collected. Already $2,000 has been donated to the fund by volunteer workers which gives the committee hopes that the campaign will be very successful. Never before has this town been asked for such a large amount.

Chairman Ed. Simmons called a meeting of the workers last night at the Town Hall and final instructions were given to the canvassers.

Bay Ice Bound

Although the sun has been shining on the bees in the last few days, there is no sign of a breakup of the ice covering the Bay of Quinte or the Trent River. The ice on the bay remains solid with only a few open spaces to be noticed near the shore. On the Trent River there are a number of open spaces but the ice still covers long stretches of the river.

To Supervise Cadet Training

Major Angus Mowat, Officer Commanding the Headquarters Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has been placed in charge of cadet training in this district. Major Mowat is still in command of the company but will make trips to the various schools in the district to supervise the training.

Company Quartermaster Sergeant C. Trevnor of Headquarters Company, has been transferred to Brockville where he is to be a Sergeant Instructor. Other changes are expected in the setup of the regiment.

Charge Reduced

A charge of reckless driving against Kenneth Shoniker, was reduced to careless driving here yesterday by Magistrate F. J. Butler. Shoniker was found guilty on the charge and fined $5.00 and $12.50 costs.

The charge of reckless driving was laid following an accident on Dundas Street East, when the Shoniker driven car collided with a parked car owned by Jack Rupert.

Testimony at the hearing revealed Constable J. Taylor stated that the Rupert car was parked on the north side of Dundas Street, which is exceptionally well-lighted. The Shoniker car was travelling westerly and collided with the left rear of the parked car. The impact knocked the Rupert car 28 paces further west on the street, while the Shoniker car travelled its own length. Damage to the Shoniker car was estimated at $300," he stated.

"The accused informed me that the speed of his car was between 25 to 40 miles an hour," stated the constable. "Gerald Willman, Trenton, a passenger in the Shoniker car received a cut on the chin, abrasions, cuts on the forehead and bruises on his knee and leg."

Shoniker told the court that his car was about six feet away from the parked car when he first noticed it. "There was a car coming towards me at the time," he said.

Production Suspended At Allis-Chambers

Milwaukee, April 2 (AP)— The strike bound Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, scene of violence Monday in which 48 persons were injured, suspended production today at the request of state and local authorities seeking to prevent recurrence of disorder and bloodshed.

The order closing the plant came last night after peace officers had clashed in a three-hour battle with pickets in front of factory organizations, strikers and sympathizers who attempted to break up a back-to-work movement climaxing the 10-day strike.

Company President Max W. Babb, announcing the shutdown, stated that he acted at the urgent request of Governor Julius Heil and Sheriff Joseph C. Shinners and that the situation now was "in the hands of the Federal Government" for protection.

Heil, whose automobile was stoned in the thick of the battle, also announced today he had asked President Roosevelt that the situation "is absolutely out of hand and all the peace officers available."

The outbreak of violence was the most serious in 24 hours at the plant which was reopened last Friday after 10 days of Navy Secretary Frank Knox and Defence Co-Ordinator William Knudsen to speed up production on $45,000,000 in urgently needed defence orders.

AT THE BELLE

"Mr. & Mrs. Smith"

Coming back with a bang to highspeed comedy-making after four consecutive successes, Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in "Mr. & Mrs. Smith", now playing at the Belle Theatre. Also at the outstanding comedy offering of the season, and which teams the two favorites for the first time.

The story is particularly adapted to the fun-making talents of the two stars. Carole Lombard portrays as David Smith, a prosperous New York attorney and Miss Lombard as his wife of three years' stormy standing. Their frequent quarrels are automatically concluded by a mutual rule that both parties shall remain in their bedrooms until they have made up.

If the process works admirably until David learns that because of an error in a land survey their marriage was illegal, and that he and Ann are each free to marry anyone. David's ill-timed sense of humor leads him to conceal the discovery, and this infuriates Ann, who makes up her mind she won't remarry him.

Avoiding David's frantic efforts at reconciliation, Ann begins seeing a good deal of David's law partner, Jeff Custer, and this leads to further fumbling complications than ever, especially when Jeff's straitlaced Southern parents take a hand in the affair, and when Ann finds herself dancing, which of her two suitors to marry.

How the affair ends at a Lake Placid winter resort after a hectic time is had by all, makes the gay conclusion of this laughter-packed offering. Gene Raymond enacts the role of Jeff, and the trio is said to constitute the most entertaining triangle on the screen today.

Directed by Alfred Hitchcock, the gifted genius who made "Rebecca," Academy Award Winner for 1940, and director of "Pursuit's Correspondent," "Mr. & Mrs. Smith"/now on the Belle screen, will reveal a new technic in comedy picturizing in that the story is told throughout with bright dramatic fashion — Hitchcock innovation that is reputed to add much to the picture's zest.

Featured in support of the three principles are Jack Carson as a playboy chiseling attorney, Philip Merivale and Lucile Watson as Raymond's parents, important roles also fall to Charles Halton, Virginia Tracy, Esther Dale, Adele Pearce and other well-known players. The highly modern settings number a swanky office suite, two Park Avenue apartments, a men's club, the World's Fair, a department store and a winter resort, among the more important backgrounds.

A new edition of radio's favorite program, "In Formation Please," with Louis Hirschfield as guest star and "Peoples of Canada" the latest of the Canada Carries On series will also be exhibited.

Highlights Of Local War Services Drive

Upwards of two hundred and fifty enthusiastic canvassers and other workers fired the opening gun in the Belleville drive for $15,000 for War Service Organizations yesterday morning, and reports from the headquarters at the Y.M.C.A. today indicate that the inaugural response lived up to committee expectations.

A number of large contributions have already been received by members of the Special Gifts Committee under the chairmanship of Frank Meagher, the Mayor, and $1,000 leading the parade. Smaller contributions are coming in at a rapid clip and the end of the first day's campaign, and it is expected that by tonight a substantial progress toward the objective will be made.

Indicative of the spirit of the younger employees of Belleville is a two-dollar contribution sent in to headquarters by the Gordon Street Girls' Club. This live organization is composed of seven small girls under 16 years of age. They operate under the sponsorship of Mrs. McCaw of Gordon Street whose son Jim at present in England with the Canadian forces has written a short letter describing the fine work being done by the various war service organizations over there.

Residents of the rural sections of the County are also responding and the fact that the county has taken up the medium of the Special Patriotic Committee of the County Council, they have already contributed liberally to the cause. All are coming forward with private contributions over and above the quota to this effect have resulted in the organization of many canvassing committees in outlying communities with power to add to the quota already established if the various districts may wish to do so.

In Tweed, Sam Curry, proprietor of the Tweed News, has been officially appointed as a collector, while Madoc contributions will be taken care of by Mr. Wright, manager of the Madoc Review and Principal O. Hall, Tweed. Other appointments in villages of the county are pending and will be announced today, according to Secretary Joe Shorti.

An appropriate and timely letter from Squadron Leader Secretary Shorti from a Gunner Trinkett, now in England with his regiment in which he heads the activities of the Canadian War Service organizations operating in that country. He says in part: "The organizations are doing a good work over here for the Canadian boys .... We opened our first hostel about two hours ago. Writing rooms and clubs throughout the length and breadth of Scotland and England...it is a help to know you have a hearty welcome waiting you at the club. IT IS JUST LIKE BEING AT HOME AND THEY APPRECIATE IT. BOYS OVER HERE APPRECIATE ... I have not been here for months but I know where to go when I get disheartened. I for one and thousands of others give the greatest praise for the happiness the organizations are bringing us and which we hope will continue to bring us."

Campaign officials today stated that canvassers report a cordial reception from the city citizens covered in the inaugural day's work yesterday. Residents of the city, realize the duties and the need for the campaign and indications point to their endorsing the work of the various organizations in a material way.

Trenton canvassers will inaugurate their activities on Thursday. Officials from that town report that active endorsing the work of the already in the fund coffers.

AT THE McCARTHY

"SO ENDS OUR NIGHT"

Based on the famous Collier's Magazine serial, Erich Maria Remarque, "So Ends Our Night," the David L. Loew-Albert Lewin production of Friday-Saturday March, Margaret Sullavan and Fredric March are said to be their finest premiere at the McCarthy Theatre next week. United Artists release, "So Ends Our Night" was directed by John Cromwell and the screen adaptation features Glenn Ford, Anna Sten, Erich von Stroheim, Ronnie Bohm, Leonid Kinskey and Lionel Royce.

Briefly, the action of "So Ends Our Night" is concerned with the moving and poignant love story between Ruth Holland, portrayed by Margaret Sullavan, and Ludwig Brenner, played by Glenn Ford. The story is unfolded in several European settings and is told through the eyes of political refugees who shuttle across the continents in order to escape tyranny and terror.

One of the largest sets built for the production was a carnival set depicting the Prater, known as the "Coney Island of Vienna." At one end was a brilliantly-colored merry-go-round with real animals of all descriptions in ride—giraffes, lions, tigers, elephants, zebras, ostriches. Other highlights on the set included a flea-circus, an animal side-show, a shooting gallery, and a mind-reading act.

Willie Schaeren Mendes acted as production designer for "So Ends Our Night." Mendes, who won the 1939 Academy award for his work on "Gone With the Wind," designed the sets in all of the picture, with drawings visualizing each shot and camera angle.

One of the Nation's outstanding contemporary composers, Louis Gruenberg, was signed by Loew and Lewin to write the musical score for the production of "So Ends Our Night." This marked Gruenberg's debut into the field of Hollywood feature film music. The composer achieved great fame with his opera, "Emperor Jones," and has written 66 other major works. His only other film work was the widely-acclaimed score for the government-made picture, "The Fight For Life."

United States was allocated 28 per cent, Germany 20 per cent and Great Britain 15 per cent. In this country, he said in his testimony, production was methodically reduced to boost prices and collect "all that the traffic would bear."

When Hitler came to power, Arnold continued, he told the German Aluminum Company that was "not interested in restricting production," and the German company served notice on the other members of the cartel that it would not abide henceforth by the 20 per cent limitation.

The others, he alleged, replied: "All right, but do not disturb our little game. Let us continue with our plans."

That response delighted Hitler, Arnold said. Germany's aluminum production thereupon doubled, he put needed for plane construction.

PAY FIVE CENTS FOR EACH NAME IN CENSUS TAKING

35 Cents for Recording Details of Every Farm of Five Acres or More

Ottawa, April 2 (CP)—Five cents will be paid census enumerators for every living Canadian recorded in the population schedule form which will be carried by enumerators as the count of Canada's population proceeds this summer, the Trade and Commerce Department made known today.

About 17,000 enumerators will make the count, starting June 2 and carrying with them stout, white paper sheets which when completed will give the names of members of every household, war service, the exact place of residence, value of the home or rental paid, the kind of dwelling and the number of rooms.

Period of residence in the province and municipality must be given with information as to place of previous residence. Immigration, naturalization, racial origin, language, education, education, religion, occupation, industry, class of worker or employee must be given.

Country Districts

Working in country districts, the enumerator will be paid 35 cents for recording details of every farm of five acres or more, and 25 cents for those under five acres. For schedules dealing with fruits and vegetables he will receive 25 cents. For abandoned or idle farms the information he collects will be paid for at the rate of 10 cents. For every entry of livestock, animal products, fruits, gardens, etc., not on farms" he will receive five cents per family.

Collection of details on merchandising and service establishments brings the enumerator five cents.

Expense Allowances

Allowances for expenses vary. In localities outside cities in Ontario, the enumerator will be paid in lieu of transport and other outlays an allowance of $5 per 100 names in addition to other payments, on a fractional township being counted, where there are less than 100 persons, the pay will be in proportion to the size of the township.

Where the census enumerator has to use his own car, he will receive seven cents a mile by statute. The same rates will be granted enumerators where they are required to use their own cars.

Hitler's Diplomatic Representatives Staying in Belgrade Can Ill Disguise Their Nervousness

Most German legation aides have filed the city; Nazi air and military attaches have been denied the use of their private planes, and all but 15 official German automobiles have been shipped from the country.

The three cars remaining declare they will not leave unless war breaks out, but they have set up a "control system" so that the legation can know at any moment of the day or night what leaves there and why in hasty departure.

While still insisting on full diplomatic privileges, they now have taken the Swastikas off their cars and no longer wear Nazi emblems in their lapels.

BILLION CASH FOR NEW ORDERS

President Roosevelt Presses for 'Action and More Action' by Authorizing Outlay of $1,080,000,000 Under Lease-Lend Law

Washington, April 2 (AP)— The United States had the first $1,000,000,000 in cash on the barrelhead today for the great flood of supplies needed to carry out the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend program.

Under rush orders from President Roosevelt, four government departments undertook the task of placing numerous contracts for military materials, machinery, prescriptions, for agricultural commodities, and for miscellaneous supplies.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed in his press conference yesterday that he had authorized the expenditure of $1,000,000,000—more than one-seventh of the entire $7,000,000,000 appropriation—and had turned the procurement job over to the army, navy, agriculture and treasury departments.

The announcement, coming less than a week after the President signed the huge foreign aid measure, brought a statement from the administration to press for "action and more action," as his new slogan for victory.

The $1,080,000,000 in new orders bulked larger than any single Army order ever made or to be made from the expanded supplies of United States army and navy. The lease-lend law authorizes this $7,000,000,000 of present stores up to the amount of $1,300,000,000.

Italian Destroyer On The Red Sea Sunk By Planes

London, April 2 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that British naval aircraft of the East Indies command had sunk an Italian destroyer of the 1,536-ton Panteru class.

The destroyer was attacked after the Italian flotilla had left Massaua on the Red Sea, toward which British East African forces now are driving, the Admiralty said.

OTTAWA CITIZEN FREED OF CHARGES LAID BY CROWN

REASONS OUTLINED

Ottawa, April 2 —(CP)— The Citizen Publishing Company, Ltd., was acquitted today by Magistrate Glenn E. Strike on two charges laid under Defence of Canada Regulations in connection with an editorial published last Jan. 11.

The Magistrate based his dismissal of the charges on Section 39 B (2) of the regulations which rules that "it shall be a defence to any prosecution . . . to prove that the person accused intended in good faith merely to criticize, or to point out errors or defects in, the Government of Canada or any province thereof, or in either House of Parliament or the legislature of any province or in the administration of justice."

He said, however, that he had found some difficulty in interpreting the section and added that he might very well be the subject of considerable criticism in appeal.

Editorial Termed Subversive

The Jan. 11 editorial was published in The Citizen and The Evening Citizen and was entitled "Subversive" and referred to Minister Lapointe in the House of Commons.

"When the lads came home from overseas after some months of service in the real business end of a Bren gun they will know better where to shoot Minister Lapointe and crank did in the years of debt and privation after the war."

It was the defence contention that the editorial had been "couched in metaphorical language," said Magistrate Strike, "and referred to another editorial" published last March 1 in The Citizen which set forth in the paragraph in question meant "to shoot with bullets."

It was unfortunate in that case, he said, that there was no indication in the Jan. 11 editorial that it referred to anything contained in that editorial.

He contended nihil no harm was meant by an accused person was no defence and it was the court's duty to consider what the consequences might be placed on the editorial by the ordinary reader.

He said he thought the case might well have been taken before a jury.

Had to Consider Section

Magistrate Strike believed that the editorial was "capable of the interpretation placed upon it by the crown," but that section 39B (2) also must be taken into account.

The Magistrate recalled defence Counsel E. F. Newcombe's arguments when the case was heard March 19, on behalf of freedom of the press. The press in common with all individuals in Canada had freedom, Magistrate Strike said, but it was a fundamental principle in Canadian law that with every right went a corresponding responsibility. Lack of precedence "on this particular subject," however, added to the difficulties of judging the case and it was not easy to discover the exact meanings of some of the sections of law involved.

Mr. Mercier, he said, had "very fairly" stated when the case was heard that the Citizen was a reputable newspaper.

The matter of the Jan. 11 editorial was first raised in the Commons by M. J. Coldwell, acting C. C. F. House Leader.

The company was charged under section 30 of the regulations on the grounds the editorial had been "prejudicial to the safety of the state or the efficient prosecution of the war" and also "likely to prejudice the recruiting, training, discipline or administration of His Majesty's forces."

Fees of not guilty was entered on each charge.

An East Coast Canadian Port, April 2 (CP)—Hundreds of men, wearing the King's uniform sped today to various parts of Canada, to fill the gaps in battalions in the Empire's master plan for total war. They arrived here yesterday after an uneventful trip from Britain.

Soldiers, sailors, airmen, airplane ferry pilots and merchant seamen all were eager to tackle their new assignments in the defence of freedom. One group of more than a hundred probably will fight no farther than they travelled from home after seeing service in England, Iceland and France.

Most of the men in khaki came back to teach the lessons they had learned under the rigors of actual warfare to men training in Canada.

Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price of Montreal, commander of the Third Canadians, returned to command the forces in the United Kingdom. What might be placed on the editorial by the ordinary reader.

He said he thought the case might well have been taken before a jury.

Bruins Fight Uphill Battle To Square Cup Semi-Final Series With 2-1 Win Over Leafs

Series Square at Three Games Each With Final in Boston on Thursday

CAIN SCORES WINNER

Drillon Scores First Goal of Game With Bauer Evening Contest Shortly After

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, April 2 (CP)—The last long mile leading to glory or oblivion faced two National Hockey League teams today as the Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs rolled along on the same train toward Boston. Ahead of them was the seventh and final contest of the series to determine which team will continue in the hunt for the game's highest award—the Stanley Cup.

On the brink of elimination Bruins fought uphill to a 3-1 victory over Leafs here last night to even the semi-final round at three wins each. The final tilt is scheduled for tomorrow night and the winner will meet Detroit Red Wings in a best-of-seven game series for the trophy.

Both teams played cautiously last night and when the Leafs ended the night's first midway through the third period, a crowd of 14,890 fans were wild as they visioned their favorites as world champions. But the vision was blasted when Bruins pulled their late April Fool's Day trick — two goals in one minute and 21 seconds.

Bruins Favored

Neither team skipped down to the mirror for a spell this season, again Bruins won Toronto's role as Bruins. As he did in their last start here, Cain was the hero of the night, tallied the winning goal. It came with only 12 minutes play remaining.

Dit Clapper carried the play for the payoff goal as he passed ahead to Terry Reardon. The centreman was off balance but straightened up enough to get a pass to Cain as he uncovered on the right side of the Toronto net. Turk waited until Broda made a move, and then counted.

Three Goals in 3.12 Minutes

Cain's goal was the third in two minutes and 13 seconds, the flurry starting when Gord Drillon circled the Boston net and Frankie Brimsek. After taking a pass from Nick Metz, Drillon raced down the left side, carried the puck around the net and shot for the near corner. Brimsek seemed to have the puck blocked but it trickled around his leg.

Both teams were shorthanded due to penalties. Cain's goal occurred and the bench warmers — Milt Schmidt of Bruins and Reg Hamilton—were still cooling their heels for fighting when Bobby Bauer evened the count. He stopped Flash Hollett's shot, swung around the net and beat goalie Turk Broda with a hard drive.

After the game Cain admitted that he has played most of the series with a sore right hand. But the injury didn't come in action — after the first game in Boston a well-wisher shook Herbie's hand so vigorously that he's had trouble ever since keeping a tight hold on his stick.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association will be held in the King Edward Hotel in Toronto Saturday, but how the picture has changed in the past two decades. We well remember one annual meeting about ten or twelve years ago when the voting power from leagues in Eastern Ontario was about as it is except everything into office and voted down proposals they did not fancy like short fences in the wind. But then that day'ain't ain't no more and unless we have badly misjudged the new policy of official delegate to represent a league from the entire Eastern Ontario zone will be R. A. Elliott, of Deseronto, who announced to this corner recently he would be making his annual trek to the annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association, and will no doubt enter the Northumberland League into the intermediate "B" series as has been Mr. Elliott's practice for some years past.

According to the agenda for the annual O.B.A. meeting, as issued by Secretary Billie Snyder, two amendments have been proposed, both of which have been advocated by Central Ontario delegates for many years. The Association executive will propose to have the annual meeting of the Association held on the third Saturday in April, instead of the first. For years past Mr. Elliott and his baseball cohorts from the central region have advocated holding the annual meeting later, proposing the last Saturday in April. Up in the Central Ontario Bay and other isolated districts there are still snowbanks as high as the tops of cars, so how can the parent body expect the baseball mentors to be too baseball-minded so early in the season? The Association executive will also propose to have the residence rule read "May the Lady or Tiger Not Know" as another feature baseball interests in the east tried in vain to bring in the attention of the association for years. But now it's too late, we're afraid.

The outlook for baseball is anything but promising in the area from Oshawa to Kingston. There is an outside chance senior clubs may be operating in Peterborough and Oshawa, but the once-flourishing Lake Shore League seems to be floundering on the rocks of despair, trying to so many of the league players having enlisted in Canada's fighting forces. A proposal was forwarded to the Lake Shore executive suggesting Bowmanville, Port Hope and Cobourg organize and play a series with Peterborough and Oshawa. If this plan had been accepted, then interests in Belleville might be planning to reorganize the baseball picture locally and seek affiliation in this proposed senior league. However, that plan is so remote now that the only salvation to assure a little baseball in the Bay of Quinte district is to have the South Hastings League function and capitalize on the fact their sponsors able for miles around.

With few exceptions competitive sport has little room for athletes past middle-age. Most of the pace-setters are in their 20's, but every now and then an extraordinary star comes along who is able to keep with the leaders at an age when he should be just talking about his achievements of the past. However, there is Willie Hoppe, who just won the world three-cushion billiards crown at 53. Walter Hagen, one of golf's all-time aces, soon will be 50, but he can still shoot a great game and is feared wherever he appears on the links. Bill Tilden, of tennis fame, is another bordering on 50, while there's Charlie Root, Chicago Cub pitcher, who is well over the two years young. Many others are in their late 30's, but for the greater part the top-notchers are in their late 20's, one Ted Lyons was the Boss of baseball at 23, the same age as John L. Sullivan was when the Boston "strong-boy" took over the No .1 slot in the fistic realm.

Veteran horsemen of the district will regret to hear of the death of Charles E. Fralick, 83-yer-old Kingston resident and the Island Lyng at his home early Tuesday. Before the turn of the century, the late Chas. Fralick owned and operated a race course on Cataraqui Bay, as well as a stable of harness horses. He was a well known hotel keeper in Kingston for half a century and Bert Fralick, projectionist at the Belle theatre, is a son.

Do you remember when Toronto Maple Leafs edged out a 3-2 victory over Montreal Maroons to enter the Stanley Cup finals nine years ago tonight. Bob Gracie scored the winning goal after 17 minutes, of overtime. Leafs went on to defeat New York Rangers in two and win the only year they have managed to do so.

With the exception of heavily fattened coffers, the Boston Bruins and Toronto Leafs are no farther ahead than they were before they started the Stanley Cup play-offs. Last night the Bruins took a decided edge over the Leafs, that is judging from Foster Hewitt's secondhand account of the proceedings. After six games they're all even at three games each and the final and deciding game takes place in Boston. All of the hockey was played in a very few minutes in the third period, as the game was a very exceedingly cautious in the early stages. Drillon and Hamilton drew major penalties and Cain broke off the spark for the opening up of the proceedings. Both teams flew into action and Gord Drillon counted the fifth goal in N.H.L. play-off hockey. Bauer evened matters in less than a minute and before the onslaught had ended Cain scored the winning goal for Boston making it two-one and that's about tells the whole story as to how the game panned out, seventh and final game. Actually it'll be former who will be crowned champions of the Stanley Cup play-offs for 1941 and the latter who will be left to wait another year.

Did You Know — The Philadelphia Athletics have won 2991 games in the American League under Connie Mack in the last forty years ....And the A's have lost exactly 2991 games in the same period.... Page Bob Ripley.....Bill Cook's favorite player in all of golf is a 6-1 win over the Hershey Bears in the American League finals.....That the Bears are coached by Herbie Mitchell, former Belleville right-winger?....Mitchell fired most of the goals for Belleville in that neverto-be-forgotten Allan Cup series finals of 1916.....Joe Gordon has only made one error in the field as a first baseman with the Yankees....Joe DiMaggio is going to install an artificial ice plant at the Welland arena....It's the same thing every spring—the Toronto Maple Leafs win all of their games during the spring training period... no charge for alterations.

GUNNAR BARLUND TO MEET CONN

Betting Fraternity Do Not Favor His Chances Against Title Holder

Chicago, April 2.—(AP)—Gunnar Barlund, durable Finnish heavyweight, will be eligible for membership in the "Sum-of-the-month club" if he can upset Pittsburgh Billy Conn Friday night in Chicago stadium.

The 196-pound Finn, an in-and-outer for several years, is given almost no chance to get by the fancy - punching Conn despite a 12-pound weight advantage. The betting fraternity has set the miniature heavyweight up as a 6 - 1 choice over Barlund.

Los Angeles, April 2 (AP)— Two hundred dollars a race was the rate to pay for four jockeys to "pull" their horses at the 1939 Hollywood Park season, Irving Sanghusch told a superior court jury trying five men yesterday on horse racing fixing charges.

Sanghusch, who said he was known to horse race men for 20 years as Jimmy J. Murphy, testified he himself received another $200 as go-between. Fixing charges against him were dropped when he became a state witness.

He said Bernard Einstoss, alias Barney Moscow, arranged with him to bribe riders and gave him the money to pay them on 25 days of the 1939 Hollywood Park season.

On five other days, Sanghusch said, he received the money from Einstoss' brother William and from C. W. Kivel, and on one occasion "when the jockeys were clamoring for $2,500 or $3,000 that was owed them," Benjamin Chapman produced the sum.

The Einstoss brothers, Rivel and Chapman are defendants in the trial, along with Sol Greenberg, a former jockey and trainer. The State charges the first four hired Greenberg to fix races after Sanghusch quit and told the State Racing Board about the alleged arrangement.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Scattergood Baines"

Small town life, its anxious moments and excitement, its petty jealousies and altruistic sacrifices, its ostracization of outsiders and its closely interwoven neighborliness, are all a part of the background of the story of "Scattergood Baines," coming next to the Capitol with popular Guy Kibbee in the name role.

A "colorful" figment of Clarence Buddington Kelland's imagination, Scattergood Baines provides the homely setting for this first of a series of film adventures which would have shown he was trying to help them.

Comedy is supplied by "Hipp," in the person of Donald Meek, and "Dink" Trout as "Finy." The particular dollar of humor associated with the philosophical "Scattergood," of course, is supplied by Guy Kibbee. Carol Hughes and John Archer are the romantic interest who find themselves on the rough course of true love.

"Ghost Valley Raiders"

Donald Barry, who is appearing currently at the Capitol Theatre in his first starring role in Republic's thriller "Ghost Valley Raiders," second feature, is one cowboy who never uses a double.

Barry appears in all the trick riding and hard fighting sequences in this actionful western show, which launches the young star in new phase of his meteoric career. He appeared in "Wyoming Outlaw," his work in which was responsible for that of John Garfield, in "Days of Jesse James," and in "Three Faces West."

Barry, prior to being chosen as the star of "Ghost Valley Raiders" in the War Effort Of Postmistress Highly Praised

LADY NANCY CURTISES

Mrs. M. Mumby, postmistress at Springside, recently was given the second fifty-three dollars to the British War Victims' fund raised by a war effort she sponsored in her neighborhood.

This undertaking started from a small group of men gathered around the stove in the post office and general store for their evening chat. Mrs. Mumby commented to put the men to their tasks in arranging for an evening's entertainment for them. The Orangemen donated the use of the Orange Hall and the local teacher acted as master of ceremonies. Every contestant was rewarded with prizes donated by travelling salesmen, local merchants and village folk. There were actually too many prizes and an auction had to be held at the end to fifteen cent cake went for one dollar and a half.

The committee in charge of the concert was composed of Mrs. Hiram Mumby, president; Mr. Robert Fleming, finance; Chris. Bateman, entertaining contestants; Mr. Thompson, games, contests and tricks; Fred Micklejohn, detailers; Mrs. Mumby, stories and yarns; Sid Mason, tendering and collecting; Reg. Mumby and Lorne Johnston, stage directors.

Mr. Mumby has received a number of letters commending him for her effort. One from Mr. Joseph H. Mullan, who organized British War Relief Society Incorp. in 1939 in Toronto, in which he says, "I hope "that all your surrounding towns and villages will follow your good example."

In the city which he organized there was raised in four months $16,000 in cash plus $4,500 in-new clothing while there was sent over to Britain one feeding kitchen, donated by the Sixteenth Club of Eglington, N. York.

Mr. Mullan says:

U.S. May' Crack Down' On Food Speculators

Washington, April 3 (AP)— The United States administration, it was learned today, may act soon to "crack down" on food speculators suspected of seeking "undue" profits either from domestic needs of from those of Great Britain and the other nations marked for lease-lend aid.

The question of food profiteering was understood to have figured prominently in official conferences now in progress looking to formulation of a broad program to assure adequate supplies both for domestic and foreign aid requirements.

Indications were that the details of the general program would be outlined in the near future in a formal government announcement.

"SPECIAL SERVICE"

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

Marie refused to stay alone with the bodies of Luigi and big Eric Thelme. "Eric was no brave — as brave!" she sobbed.

Tony put arm around her. His eyes watched the Lazour villa for signs of the Japanese. No use telling Marie now the real story of "Major" Eric Thelme. Alias Leif Sturleigh; the lad who was born an American and would wish to be buried near Portland, Maine. And so he should be.

"Listen, honey". Tony said gently. "If anything starts again, don't panic, you're still Northcote's last card. Run as you never ran before. Get back to the car and go for the police".

They walked up the villa path together. Then they heard someone crying, dreadfully. The door was open. They walked in; stopped short on the threshold.

It was Anna who cried. She hovered behind her beloved mistress.

Baroness Lascar stood as if she never again would move from that spot. She still held the knife. She stared down, without expression, at the remains of Felix Northcote. The light rug was more crimson than the carpet where he were. The emerald of his snake ring still shone in fading sunlight.

When Tony saw what was there, he thrust himself in front of Marie. She dashed past him and flung her arms around Theresa.

"You poor — poor soul." Marie kissed a cheek that was hollowed and cold.

Theresa loosened Marie's arms, without emotion. Her voice had less its resonance. "I used to love him. But, I . . . killed him"

Tony said quickly to Anna, "Miss Schuyler and I will do all we can for her. Those police. Where's the Jap? If he's anywhere around, the Baroness is in danger".

Marie stood by his side, her head drooping. Madame Lascar turned to them. "Thank you" — and said hopelessly. "I don't want to be helped". She dropped the knife to the floor.

Tony led Marie out of the villa. The warm perfume of flowers filled the air. Far away they could see the Serena, trim and white on radiant waters.

Marie's eyes seemed larger and darker in her white face. She stumbled a little as they passed Eric Thelme's covered corpse.

"We'll leave the yellow car here". Tony forced himself to round matter-of-fact. He helped Marie into the white auto and took the wheel in silence.

Marie huddled next to him, lost in thought . . . Tony guessed what she was thinking. He said quietly "Don't be sorry, my lamb. Think of it this way: Northcote was working against our country. Your money and you were to be sacrificed, to make war from within, turning our people against each other. If he hadn't made his headquarters on the Serena, we might never have caught him".

Marie's lip quivered. "I'd never have met you if all this hadn't happened". She put her hand on Tony's arm. "But I can't help it—I mean wishing I wasn't somebody—or other with all this money that does harm".

Tony patted her hand and said, "Listen, Marie, you'll be twenty one in less than two months. It's up to you, now that you know what money means for good or evil". His pause was short "I'm talking like Dutch Uncle. You needn't be self-conscious about having a penny or millions if you're well, sort of use it the decent way. There's a lot to be done back home, you know".

Marie gazed at the ripe, white and gold cities resting. "I don't know what you mean" she said slowly. "But — Tony, I can't do it all alone. I'll need an advisor — somebody I trust".

The car almost got out of Tony's control. He pulled it back on the road. "I'm a lawyer, of course," he said. "But I've had no practice — I couldn't".

"You couldn't what, Anthony Worth?" For the first time in hours, there was a hint of laughter in Marie's voice. "My lawyer will get plenty of practice. He'll have to be with me most of the time".

"Thanks, Tony. It's all fixed then," Marie murmured demurely.

"What's fixed?" Tony further slowed down the car.

"Why, you've just asked me to marry you", she said. "And I will. So it's all fixed"

"I did nothing of the kind", Tony objected. "Why, you're framing me!"

"I thought you said it wouldn't be a hardship to be with me most of the time. I'm not mistaken in the sky. . . "Of course, if you'd rather not . . ."

Tony stopped the car. "I want to marry you, and you know it," he snapped, "but I don't want a red cent"

"Do I care?" Marie cracked back. "You talk about my responsibilities. What about yours? My money and your training make sense as a combination. Not that I haven't sense, too". She flashed a gamin smile. "By the way, darling, who asked who to marry which one? I'm all mixed up".

"We'll discuss that later". Tony stopped the car before he took hold of her. Odor sprouting by and two young people completely absorbed in each other.

When Tony started driving again, Marie's head was on his shoulder. "Sit up, client!" he growled at her. "As your lawyer and husband-to-be, I insist on public dignity".

They went first to the Prefecture and saw chief of police, who was excessively relieved to see Miss Schuyler. He had set all his own superb system in motion, he explained, to find Mademoiselle. He hoped Mademoiselle would believe that his system was without flaws. For a long time this Baroness Lascar had been "suspecte". His men were on their way out to her villa.

Meanwhile, with Captain Buckner's amicable assistance, the scoundrels who had dared mutiny were in jail. Cables had been sent to America. And Monsieur le Capitaine, himself, was on shore.

"I'm very kind, Mademoiselle," Marie said sweetly. "Please be good to the Baroness. Mr. Worth and I will do all we can for her. She is sick. You understand? Also, your men will find Major Thelme dead on the villa grounds". Her voice trembled. "He was a brave man, Monsieur, and died to save . . . others. Mr. Worth and I—will attend to everything —his funeral, and — She couldn't go on.

Monsieur le Chef de Police understood. He turned to Tony. "Monsieur Worth". Tony bowed. A slightly worried look ruffled the Frenchman's poise. He lowered his voice.

"A friend of yours has been in-and-out, Monsieur, since four o'clock. He is a giant, a madman, with very red hair. He has been sending wires and shouting — a Monsieur Kee-ber. He has the credentials—"

"For the love of Pete!" Tony yelled. "You don't mean to tell me Sir's here! Where is he? ? Listen, darling—we've got to find Sir. He's my pal. Why, he's—he got me into this!"

They didn't have to hunt far. They drove along the promenade of the Croisette, got out of the car on the Casino. Then over two hundred seconds, topped with a queer head, rushed from somewhere and bounced against Tony.

"You old son-of-a-gun!" That was Sir, nudging, slapping, pumping at Tony's hand.

"You big bozo, where did you come from?" They grinned at each other.

Sir Keeber boomed. "The Chief sent me over as soon as we got your cable from Corfu. I'll say you've had a swell job!" Then he saw Marie and backed off. "Oosh! he mumbled, and flushed up through his hair.

Tony's lips twitched. "Marie, this is the intelligence wiz who helped us at the finish. Ed, my fiancee, Miss Schuyler".

"Oosh!" Ed muttered again.

"Hello, Ed." Marie held out her hand. "Oosh!" she cried, and Ed was here from then on.

"Where's the launch?" They sighted it and walked down to the pier. Captain Buckner stepped out trim in his blue serge. There was handclasping around his neck.

"Glad you're back," he said dourly. "Everything's under control, Miss Schuyler. I've signed up a new crew. We found your maid, the chef and the secretaress in a hospital. They'd been drugged".

Marie hugged him. "I'm going to marry Mr. Worth, and we're all going home on the yacht".

"It's about time", Captain Buckner tried unsuccessfully to frown. But his news was a load off his mind. He liked young Worth. "We've got the guy", he announced, chuckling.

"Hiroto?" Tony gave a whoop. "But how—?" Then he saw Ed Keeler grinning again. The latter said modestly, "Well, soon as I arrived, not knowing what went on, I decided out to board the tub — yacht—" he corrected himself, looking adoringly at Marie. "This tricky little guy was hanged around — we've tried to catch up with him for days. So I took him. I mean I didn't break any French laws. I got him on the Corsica—American ground. Understand?"

"Nothing to it!" Ed looked at Monsieur Chef de Police again. What a gal! He said casually, "The Jap had enough drugstuff packed on him to blow up your ship, Marie". . . Nice boy—Hiroto.

"Where have you been all after, noon?" She pounced on Marie, glancing at the new man—Ed Keeler—as someone she should know.

Tony said casually, "Oh, we've been in a few fights, attempted abductions, homicides, and so on".

Eve shrieked. "How perfectly awful! And there I was in Monte Carlo with the Posters. But after that impossible bunch I thought had to go somewhere". She didn't look toward Tony. She felt guilty. After all, she had promised him she would stay with Marie.

But all Eve's worry vanished when Marie's hand clutched on Tony's arm, and she said, "You needn't worry, darling; the trouble's over now. And we're always going to be all right, aren't we, Tony?"

Recording of Evidence Played Into Earphones

Los Angeles, April 1 (AP)—Judges are abandoning their gavels—their courts are unusually quiet these days. Recordings of evidence, gathered in cases now are being played into headphones used by the Judge, Jury, lawyers and defendants. Spectators sit quietly by—not having the slightest idea what's going on—and fall into a comfortable snooze. It's up to the Bailiff to tiptoe around and keep them awake.

Butter Prices Slightly Lower

Toronto — Ontario butter prices weakened under quiet, spotty conditions, held slowly during yesterday's session of the Toronto open produce market.

Although still light, fresh receipts of the Ontario product showed some increase on the butter market and, with no corresponding increase in buying, prices again eased. Most of the days small volume of business was at these prices. 1 grade creamery solids was transacted at 34½ cents a pound, but the odd sale went through at 34¾ cents and at 34 cents a pound.

There was no change in the situation on the egg market. Receipts increased but offered volume is satisfy local requirements and they appeared to be clearing fairly well at steady prices. Bluring packed and Government inspected shipments sold at unchanged quotations a ¼ cent to 1 cent a dozen premium.

Amendment May Allow Retention After Retiring Age

Toronto, April 2 (CP)—The Legislature Committee of the Ontario Legislature today approved an amendment to the Mariticipal Act empowering the Governor-in-Council to empowered to allow any municipality to continue in office.

Controller Thomas Tennant, who submitted the amendment, said it would give the government the authority to retain the services of municipal officials after they reached the required age of superannuation. No Mariticipal appointee over such authority could be retained for more than five years, he said. The amendment would not be in the meaning of the public service act, but the government would make up the difference between his superannuation allowance and the salary he received when he reached the age of retirement.

The bill, as it goes to the legislature, provides that no person shall be appointed a Magistrate who has reached the age of 65, no Magistrate who had held office for two years shall be reappointed except for misbehaviour as determined by the prime Court Judge, the retiring age of Magistrates at present is fifty will be 75 years and for those appointed hereafter 70 years the retiring penalty is to be fixed by the Magistrate by the city wherein he presides.

NAZI CREW LEAVES TANKER AFTER SEIZURE BY U.S.

In a dramatic move the United States government seized 36 Italian ships and 35 German ships in 18 ports from Portland to Panama and took their crews into custody. The Pauline Frederichs has been in Boston harbor for thirty months unable to run the British blockade. The other German vessel seized was the passenger liner Westerwald. Slades, Fla., which was chased into that port by a British warship last year.

A.H. Acres Criticizes King, Gardiner, Lapointe, Members Of Ont. Cabinet

Toronto, April 2 (CP)— Former Premier George S. Henry will be inaugurate the night sessions in the provincial Legislature tonight when he speaks for the first time since the Legislature opened in February. Mr. Henry, Conservative member for York East, will be participating in the budget debate.

Mr. Acres, Liberal from Carleton, declared Prime Minister King should discipline Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Lapointe, the latter, he claimed, being the real Prime Minister of Canada.

"I say to Mackenzie King to get rid of Gardiner and Lapointe and he continued. "They are separating the provinces, dividing the Dominions, to the western farmer and Lapointe because he is not fairly representing the great French-Canadian race. We cannot have unity with those two gentlemen in power."

He said the Dominion government "had no definite intentions with our oldest agricultural colleges," as he referred to the transfer of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph to the Defence Department for the training of air wireless operators.

Harry Nixon never have been touched except as a last resort," he said.

Touching on the government's plan to borrow $1,000,000 he declared that while he believed in rail grading, if this was enforced in the payment of wages the small packer would suffer. He asked that Agriculture Minister Gardiner tell the various districts he permitted to go into these grading rail grade the hogs for bonus purposes.

Says Manion Ignored

Mr. Acres precipitated a spirited clash when he declared he disagreed Mackenzie King for "ignoring" his recommendation for the appointment of Hon. Hon. R. J. Manion, in the position of Governor-General. "Roosevelt, he said, had called upon Wendell Willkie and Mr. King had not seen fit to ask the assistance of Mr. Manion.

"He has not," replied Mr. Acres, "he was the first man I asked him."

(It was announced at Ottawa Saturday that Mr. Manion had been authorized by the King government to proceed to England to consult with Canadian military and air quarters in Great Britain and U.K. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton on the question of the work of aviation services in the field.)

"His own party threw him overboard," declared John Glass (Lib. Toronto St. Paul's).

"His own party hasn't threw him overboard," replied Mr. Acres. "But if they were to get quiet, your party will throw you overboard."

Mr. Acres, at the outset of his address, declared that Hon. Farquhar Oliver, Minister of Public Works, and a former United Farmers of Ontario member rose to the elevation to the cabinet, had "played politics until he got there."

"He tenders his resignation to Mr. Hepburn and they cry and he goes back in again," declared Mr. Acres.

He said he didn't believe the members of the cabinet knew what was going on in the government and declared that Premier Hepburn "pulled the wool" across in two years.

"It makes one wonder what we are fighting Hitlerism for," he said. Says Lauzier Doesn't Know His Job

Mr. Acres said Premier Hepburn had gone "outside his party" to select Hon. Robert Lauzier as Minister of Mines. Such men as W. L. Miller, Algoma Manitoulin; W. O. Mann, Temiskaming and J. M. Cooper, Sudbury, should have been consulted for the position.

"Every man in your Department says more about the job than you do," he declared as he directed his remarks to Mr. Lauzier. "There are other candidates for premier."

Turning to Hon. P. M. Dewan and his Department of Agriculture, Mr. Acres declared there were "too many white-collared inspectors telling the farmers what to do. That is what is wrong with agriculture."

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, he continued, didn't know what he was doing and if he spoke his "honest Irish mind" he would admit it. He asked why "the third greatest heritage of the province" was being given to the Defence Department.

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, he continued, didn't know what he was doing and if he spoke his "honest Irish mind" he would admit it. He asked why "the third greatest heritage of the province" was being given to the Defence Department.

"Personally I would do anything for Mr. Heenan, but I have no use for him as a minister," declared the member for Carleton.

The Ontario Government was urged by W. J. Gardhouse (Lib. York West) to follow the practice of the Western Canada of diverting the charge against horned cattle from the Ontario and Toronto Stock Breeding Associations.

Dealers 81 Per Head For Horns

In this province $1 per head is collected from the horned cattle reaching the stockyards and this money goes to the packer in recompense for the horns due to the meat and hide by the horns. Mr. Gardhouse declared the packers receive between $80,000 and $100,000 annually from this source.

In addition to this, he continued, the horns are ground into meal which is shipped to Great Britain for mixing with plaster in the refining of sugar, and the result the packer got additional revenue.

Mr. Gardhouse said the cattle disease was taking a tremendous toll among cattle and was probably the only method of combatting it was by calf vaccination.

In reply to Mr. Gardhouse's suggestion, Agriculture Minister P. M. Dewan said that he believed that the cattlemen in the province was not unanimous in favor of the change.

He made in diverting the money received for horned cattle to the Breeders' Associations.

With regard to bang's disease money has been provided in the estimates for the control of this disease.

C. O. Fairbanks (Lib. Lambton East) recommended decentralization of industry and urged assistance in the form of free taxation for Ontario's natural gas industry which has been in difficulties for the past winter, due to shortages of gas.

Elsewhere in the western hemisphere, the story yesterday was one of seized, fired or scuttled axis shipping; of crews in custody; of governments rounding up their pushed—with the threat of criminal prosecution—in the background.

Since the weekend, 36 vessels have been taken into custody by Latin-American nations; 11 have been fired or scuttled, and two have taken flight in some cases the governments reported to a sterner show of force than the United States.

Peru was the outstanding example. She dispatched warships and planes 110 miles to sea. I ran successful effort to overtake two German ships which fled without sailing papers, and used a cruiser to prevent the escape of two others which later were fired by their crews.

Safety Measures Adopted

Because of the destruction of these two ships and the flight of the two others, armed Peruvian troops—as a safety measure—protected two Lufthansa transport planes and the German air line's hangars and workshops at Lima Tambo Airport.

Climaxing the crowded day, the Peruvian government barred the press news agencies from access from further operations in the country. The closing order came after dispatches were "spreading news that may disturb the good relations" internal offense of Peru" and which also "affect our democratic institutions."

Venezuela, in whose ports four axis ships were destroyed by fires, announced that it would "protect itself to the governments of Germany and Italy in the name of the necessary by the gravity of the incidents." Armed guards prevented the firing of Peru's and which also "affect our democratic institutions."

Chile, like Peru, is not conciliating Nazi funds in the country to conform with the new order of axis merchantmen in Puntarenas Monday.

Mexico used naval detachments to take possession of 11 axis vessels, but there are no reports of any effort to scuttle her before the boarding party arrived. Panama announced that another boarding party was thwarted when the crew of a German freighter set their ship on fire. The record of the day led an observer to the conclusion that his government might take precautions to prevent similar sabotage.

non-union. This condition cannot be permitted to exist longer; fleets are blocked off, citizens are being beaten and murdered in their lawful attempts to return to work. Immediate action on your part is imperative."

Offer Made by Union

The C.I.O. United Ford Organizing Committee offered today in a letter to Director of the Office of Production Management at Washington to send back to work in the Ford plant all its members who are "loyal to the National Defence effort."

The offer was made by Richard T. Leonard and Sidney Hillman: "If you can obtain the Company's co-operation, we are ready to have a representative of O.P.R. or the U.S. Department of Labor indicate which rouge employes are needed for National Defence Work and to facilitate their entrance into the plant."

Principal violence this morning centred at Gate 4. Two actions which occurred between U.A.W.-C.I.O. pickets and non-strikers who came to the plant gate also battled the Unionists in the street.

Before the 7:00 A.M. Ford General State Police on duty, Bennett said in a statement that the Governor has chosen to let these men "work out their problems" as drunk, take complete control of the city streets by "deputizing" 1,000 Ford employees who are not in any way to blame for the trouble.

Two men were slightly injured in today's fighting were negroes. Several others were arrested. Several pickets were slashed by razors or "knives."

Shortly after 8 a.m. (E.D.T.) the C.I.O. Committee issued a statement reporting for work, about 150 pickets with bricks and clubs battled the 1,000 employees climbing over a fence to reach the plant grounds at Gate 4.

A few minutes later, about 200 men, mostly negroes, armed with steel rods, bolts and bits of metal, assaulted pickets at Gate 4, forcing them back and began pelting the C.I.O. pickets who picked up the missiles and threw them back.

Officers Intervene

Police were virtually helpless for a time, but when the fighters broke up a group of officers moved in, intervened and separated them, escorting the non-strikers behind the plant.

Attempting to enforce the strike which halted night production at the sprawling plant, the Committee ordered pickets to block Miller Road, skirting the Ford plant, with cars of the Ford property, halting all except police and officers engaged in the strike.

Several rocks were hurled and an automobile windows smashed as it was tried to break through the blockade. Some workers who succeeded in reaching the plant said reaching gate four of the plant they found the pickets had not entered, but were unmolested.

Former Premier Resigns

Scores of automobiles were parked bumper to bumper on Miller Road, outside the plant, employing more than 80,000 workers, stretched for nearly a mile. Traffic was at a standstill open, and police cars passed back and forth in the confusion.

Several hundred pickets at Miller Road and Dix Highway, and several cars loaded with negro employees, were halted by windows sash. Another negro drove through the gate before he was attacked by a hostile crowd, and his automobile smashed, but entered the plant.

Police also have greeted a delivery truck which broke through the C.I.O. picket line.

By 8 a.m. EST an almost steady stream of workers were entering the gate four overpass into the plant and pickets were taken from the gate. Police estimated that about 75 remaining at gate four.

Road Completely Blocked

The situation became completely blocked Miller Road near "Eagle Gate" No. 4 where most of the men enter the plant, but cars were backed out to prevent passage of police or any others approved by the pickets.

Many cars were driven from the plant area and workers arriving on them had to walk to the plant. Others walked to the plant.

The dispute, climax of a four-day campaign by the United Automobile Workers to organize Ford plants, began Monday morning when thousands ceased work in several departments of the factory on the River Rouge in suburban Dearborn.

Federal officials described the move as a "sit-down strike" and Governor Murphy appealed to Van Wagoner of Michigan for state police to assist in restoring order.

Van Wagoner, leaders charged employees were forcibly kept inside the plant by Ford guards and the Ford service department. Later all the 30,000 workers the Union said were employed in the plant left the last of the plant.

The Ford Company has some $150,000,000 in defence contracts. Industrial observers expressed belief the strike would affect only some work on defence projects.

YUGOSLAVS TRY

Milan Gavrilovic, Minister without Portfolio, returned from conferences with Premier Simovic and leading strategist to reports Tuesday was trying to form a three-cornered "neutrality pact" with Bulgaria and Turkey.

Observers agreed such a pact would strengthen Yugoslavia's hand in trying to resist pressure, but there was no immediate indication Premier Simovic would accept Yugoslav minister to Russia—Constantine Fotitch—as a member of the cabinet.

Reports also persisted that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who conferred with Premier Simovic in Greece, in Athens yesterday, would come here with General Sir John Dill, chief of the British Imperial General Staff, for talks with Yugoslav leaders.

All evidence pointed to the prospect that Britain would not accept a statement concerning their intentions from the Belgrade regime and the actions of the diplomatic scene shifting.

In Berlin, the commentary Diensi Aus Deutschland declared last night it was "impossible to accept an increasing aggravation" of relations between Germany and Yugoslavia.)

Indignant to Prese

Premier Dusan Simovic, meanwhile, appeared to have united the disunited parties in efforts to reconcile differences between the Serbs and Croats, Yugoslav leaders and achieve a united front.

It still was uncertain whether Vladimir Macek, Croat leader, would consent to enter the Simovic cabinet as vice-premier, but some observers said that Ivan Subasitch, governor of Croatia, or August Kosutic, vice-president of the Croat Peasant Party might take the post with his blessing.

Subasitch and several of Macek's lieutenants were en route to Belgrade today for a conference after lengthy conferences of Croat leaders in Zagreb yesterday.

Indignant at Press

The Premier identified itself with a denial of German press assertions that German troops had been massed on the subject of a reign of terror in Yugoslavia, but indignation in Belgrade at such attacks ran high.

Thousands of Serbs, Croats, Bosnians and Montenegrins poured into urban centres to volunteer for army service in a sudden surge of patriotism.

Steady flow of troops trains toward the northern and the eastern frontiers continued and there was heavy new German troop concentration reported in the Rumanian section of the Yugoslav border.

A general exodus of foreigners of all nationalities continued, and the railway stations throughout the country were jammed with crowds awaiting transportation to the south.

Troops with fixed bayonets stood guard, however, to enforce a government order against panicky flight of Yugoslav civilians.

THE WAR TODAY

By GUY ROBADEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The German press and radio—strictly under the thumb of the government—has launched the first major blitz of attacks on Yugoslavia, which, in the past, have preceded military action against other European countries, notably Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Both the press and radio spread numerous stories of "atrocities" allegedly committed by persons of Yugoslavia against Germans.

Whether these yarns were intended merely to freshen the regular government into surrender or German demands or whether they presaged a physical attack on the Yugoslavs is not clear. At any rate they had little outward effect on the Yugoslav administration which continued its preparations to meet attack if necessary, and, reported, sought a neutrality alliance with Turkey and Russia.

Others were reports the German adventure in Bulgaria has not entirely met the approval of the Russians and disturbances have been reported from Belgrade.

It should be noted in this connection that those Balkan countries which have joined the Axis are not classified as members of the tripartite alliance between Germany, Italy and Japan, but became mere junior partners, with obligations to supply all sorts of military and economic aid to Germany—and with practically no gain except the dubious "guarantee" of German non-belligerency.

Of the actual war fronts British forces have taken the Eritrean capital of Asmara and are pressing toward the, sea port of Massaua, having overrun all but scattered 40,000 Italian troops fleeing toward the port from which they hope to escape. Massaua is cut off by the Royal Navy. Events predict a speedy end to the Italian campaign.

In Ethiopia British forces reoccupy the Addis Ababa-Djibuti railway toward the capital reported on that route and along the railway by wreckage left by the retreating Italians.

Latin American countries, following the lead of United States, have broken off diplomatic relations and Danish ships while Axis crews have been seized or scuttled elsewhere. The United States has 69 in custody.

U.S. DEMANDS RECALL OF ITALIAN NAVAL ATTACHE

BRITISH SPEED UP CONQUEST OF EAST AFRICA

Diplomatic Circles Express Belief War Is Inevitable

Motorized German Troops Reported Massing In Rumania Opposite Yugoslav Frontier

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 3 — (AP) — Vladimir Macek, Croatian peasant party leader, announced today he is entering the new government, thereby making Yugoslavia a united nation in face of threatened war with Germany. Macek had withheld formal acceptance of appointment as Vice Premier.

Macek said he hoped that "despite all difficulties piling upon us we can, with collaboration and a common effort, preserve peace and overcome the difficulties which dark times recently have brought upon us."

Germany ordered all her Legation staff save two men home to Berlin, leading diplomatic circles to express the belief that Hitler has decided that war with Yugoslavia is inevitable.

Only the German air chiefs, naval and military attaches were exempted from the recall order, which a legation source said would be fulfilled by nightfall.

Motorized German troops were reported massing in Rumania opposite the Yugoslav frontier town of Nish (CRYN), only 50 miles from Belgrade, and at Szeged in southern Hungary.

The German radio, in early morning broadcast heard at Belgrade, which preceded the Nazi entry into Sofia, Bulgaria, accused the Yugoslavs anew of committing atrocities against the German minority in the country.

Prepared Barricades

Indications that the recall order was unexpected were seen in the fact that last night the staff members had been making extensive preparations to barricade themselves in the legation it was came.

Large supplies of food had been stored in the building and firearms

22 FERRY PILOTS ARRIVE IN N. Y.

All Have Completed Twelve Months in Actual Theatre of War

New York, April 3 (CP)—A group of 22 Royal Air Force pilots and 30 mechanics in New York en route to Montreal to ferry bombing planes to Britain, told of their experiences on bombing flights over enemy territory.

The men, who leave for Montreal tonight, arrived on the Netherlands freighter Bodegraven. All the men, including a youth of 18, had completed at least 12 months of air operations against the Germans before being sent across the Atlantic on the plane-ferrying assignment.

A 22-year-old flyer from Middlesex reported dropping six sticks of bombs on a German cruiser of the Hipper class in his last assignment before leaving for the United States. "We saw her sink and she certainly got a hit," he said.

This flier said that of all German cities he has seen, Mannheim apparently bore the greatest devastation. "The area along the Rhine were burned to the ground," he said, "the whole city was definitely as great as Coventry. Our bombs had messed up the water controls so the Jerries just had to let the fires burn."

In the party was a Canadian who had been principal of a public school in Canada. He left his position and gone to England before the outbreak of the war because the teaching profession was actually only for "old maids and pot-bellied old men."

British Warship No Place To Heil Hitler

Alexandria, Egypt, April 3 — (AP)—A British warship is no place to heil Hitler.

A German officer, an observer aboard the gunless Italian cruiser Bolzano, stepped up a ladder at the side of the British destroyer Mohawk, and the salute was rescued.

He extended his right arm and clicked his heels. Then a British seaman standing on the quarterdeck.

The sailor's fist landed squarely on the German's jaw and toppled him over the quarterdeck into the sea.

"When you come up take your place in-line and salute proper-ly," the sailor advised.

GOVT ALLEGES ADMIRAL ORDERS SHIP SABOTAGE

Note Delivered to Italian Embassy Says Lais Was "Persona Non Grata' to U.S. Government

HULL RELEASES NOTE

Secretary Did Not State Whether Similar Action Contemplated Against German Officials

Washington, April 3 —(AP)— The United States today demanded the immediate recall of the Italian naval attache in Washington, Admiral Alberto Lais, on the grounds he was connected with the sabotaging of Italian merchant ships in this country.

State Secretary Cordell Hull sent a note to this effect to the Italian ambassador, Prince Colonna, on orders of President Roosevelt.

The note, made public by the State Department, declared that Admiral Lais was a "persona non grata to this Government as naval attache of the royal Italian embassy at Washington," and requested "that Your Excellency's Government withdraw him immediately from the United States."

The note said the action was taken because "serious facts and circumstances" which had come to the attention of this Government "constitute Admiral Lais' misuse of the commission by certain persons of high standing in the service of the United States."

President Roosevelt, the note said, had decided that the continued presence of Admiral Lais in the United States "would no longer be agreeable to this Government."

Hull, in releasing the note at his press conference, said he could not take up at this time the question of whether similar action might be taken against German officials in the United States.

It was recalled that the captain of an Italian ship was put under ward-en in Texas was quoted by officials as saying that he had orders from the Italian naval attache in Washington to destroy his engines.

Two German and 28 Italian merchant vessels have been taken into U.S. ports since the war's outbreak and only yesterday the State Department said it had received new and vigorous protests from the two powers.

Today Morgenthau said he and Attorney General Jackson were "studying" possible action to forfeit these ships to the United States.

Although each Embassy has sent the other packing, including the crews of the ships and crews, the United States has not yet received a formal reply.

Officials, however, have indicated the replies will be outright rejection.

Great 15-Inch Shells Turn Italian Ships Into 'Colossal Masses Of Fire'

By J. WES GALLAGHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Athens, April 3 (AP)—Survivors of the Italian cruisers Fiume and Zara told officers of the Greek air force on arrival here last night that British warships destroyed their craft in last week-end's naval battle "10 minutes before we were able to fire a single shot," and caused enormous casualties.

Interrogated by Greek warship, the Fascist sailors said that hundreds of seamen and officers, the captains ped below decks went down with their vessels when the ships of the Royal Navy opened fire Friday night.

(During the lengthy battle, the units of the Royal Navy sank three, probably four, Italian cruisers and two, possibly three, destroyers, as well as damaging the 23,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto The Royal Navy-suffered neither ship damage nor casualties.)

A 21-year-old gunner on the Fiume, one of the few on duty when the amazing British attack was launched said:

"We were cruising along about 8 o'clock Friday night when suddenly in the distance, about three or four miles away, big searchlights were flashed.

"For a few seconds we thought they were the flash of another Italian cruiser although we had sighted one British warship just before dark.

"The lights of ships almost immediately followed the searchlight and simultaneously we were hit by a salvo.

"Before we could bring a single gun into action the ship was listing too badly to fire.

"Then we started settling. I just had time to jump aboard a life raft floating alongside as the Fiume's deck went under. I'm sure hundreds of others were trapped below deck."

Other survivors told a similar story but the action was so swift many did not know what happened.

Those rescued did not know what happened to the battleship Vittorio Veneto because they said it was several miles away.

Dies Predicts United States At War With Axis Within Ninety Days

'England and U.S. Will Win War After Hard, Bitter Struggle by Joint Invasion of Germany and Italy Through Greece and Balkans,' His View

Macon, Ga., April 3 (AP)—Congressman Martin Dies (Dem-Texas) predicts that the United States will be at war with axis powers within 90 days.

The chairman of the House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Activities made his prediction last night in an interview in which he also declared threats of sabotage against the naval base plant under construction here.

"England and the United States will win the war after a hard, bitter struggle," Dies said. "It will be won by a joint invasion of Germany and Italy through Greece and the Balkans."

The Texan said he believed it was the United States' duty to fight, and to send an army to Europe.

Investigators for the Dies Committee have been in Macon for several weeks, he said, checking on movements of men believed in the pay of foreign governments.

Dies said the government's seizure of Italian and German ships in the United States harbors has prevented the blocking of ports vital to the nation's defense. He said it was the axis plan to sink the ships in harbor channels to block them.

SAYS F.D.R. HINTS SUGGESTIONS ON CONVOY 'ABSURD'

Opponents of Convoy Idea Believed Reluctant to Accept This as Last Word

PRESIDENT'S POWERS

Washington, April 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt, a well informed legislator said today, has told congressional leaders that suggestions for using the United States Navy to convoy supplies abroad were "too absurd to talk about" at this time.

On Capitol Hill, however, opponents of the convoy idea showed reluctance to accept this as final word, and one of them said he had information that the question of convoying ships as far as Iceland was under consideration.

Several Republicans said they had voted against the Senate-House lending a 10-day Easter recess with the understanding that they were afraid that some action involving convoying might develop during their absence.

Democratic Senator George (Dem.-Georgia) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he had heard nothing to indicate that the administration was thinking of inaugurating convoys, and he predicted that the President would not act without consulting Congress.

In George's opinion, the President would have the final authority

POLICE GUARDING STRIKE-CLOSED FORD CAR PLANT

Representatives of Company and Strikers Consider 'Plan of Settlement'

SOME BACK AT WORK

Detroit, April 3 (AP)—Violent but isolated outbreaks of fighting occurred near the strike-closed Ford Motor Company plant this morning and Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner announced that resumption of mediation conferences with C.I.O. and company officials had been postponed.

Four negroes in an automobile were beaten severely by Union pickets who chased them nearly a mile from the main plant gate. Three of the pickets were struck down as a car following the negroes' machine sped through the fighting group at a speed which witnesses estimated at 60 miles an hour.

The clash occurred in heavy traffic on Dix Road, a block east of Miller Road along which the Ford River Rouge Industrial plant stretches, for a mile. Three of the negroes, whose car was overturned, fled; the other was picked up by Dearborn police and taken to hospital. The car that struck the group of fighters sped away without slackening speed.

The United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), seeking a contract from the only big non-Union auto manufacturer, has called a strike vote

PREMIER TELEKI, HUNGARY, TAKES LIFE AT BUDAPEST

GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

Interior Minister Will be Acting Premier Until Replacement Found

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer,
London Specialists

Budapest, Hungary, April 3 (AP) —Count Paul Teleki, 62-year-old Premier of Hungary, died unexpectedly in the night and hours later the mystery of his death was partly clarified in an official Hungarian news agency dispatch which said he committed suicide.

The agency gave the manner of death was determined by physicians who examined his body. No explanation was immediately forthcoming. Friends said the Premier took poison.

The Hungarian government was said to have resigned as a result of Teleki's death.

"Before ending his life," the dispatch continued, "he wrote a last letter in which he explained he no longer felt himself capable of fulfilling his difficult and unhappy task. Attempts to hide his suicide in Hungary have not succeeded. The death of Teleki has made a deep impression."

(A second dispatch from Budapest said: "Although no Government communique has been published on the subject, it is no longer denied that Premier Teleki committed suicide.")

Hungarian newspapers said that Teleki "met a tragic death" and that he had left a letter, "the contents of which are unknown."

London, April 3 (CP Cable)—The death of Hungary's Premier, Count Paul Teleki, provided diplomatic circles here today with a first-class mystery and there was some speculation whether the action related to the future use of threatening German demands on Hungary.

One story was that the farewell note left by Premier Teleki—contents of which were kept secret in Budapest, reference to "a difficult and unhappy task."

Hungary has signed a secret pact with Yugoslavia several weeks ago, a pact that may have contained clauses which, perhaps, the Nazis have been exerting pressure upon Hungary to force Hungary to denounce the agreement.

Hitler may wish to induce the Hungarians to give more facilities on German troops passing through to use the country as a troop transport corridor. The Nazis would like control of the fierce Hungarian infantry along the border of Yugoslavia in case military acts un-

Lieut. David A. Croll Likes Fast Pace Set By His Reconnaissance Unit

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, April 3 (CP Cable)—Mounted on a motorcycle, Lieut. David A. Croll is leading the time of his busy life these days with his New Brunswick armored division reconnaissance battalion, Canadian army.

Croll, Liberal member of the Canada Legislature for Windsor-Walkerville and Mayor of Windsor who was granted leave of absence to join the army as a private, was assigned to the rough and tough "recce" outfit after completing an intelligence officers course at a British school. He likes the fast pace his unit sets.

"It's a picnic even in rain or cold being with these modern cavalry-men," he said attacks in motorcycles and armored fighting vehicles," said the former MP.for.

Lieut. Croll, a native of Canada, he has been in since graduating as an engineer.

Tanned and fit, Croll is in charge of 15 dispatch riders. He roars about the countryside daily with his men.

"The calf us the suicide squad of the Canadian army over here, but it isn't as bad as it sounds," he said. "The boys can take care of themselves even if we have the kind of advance units because we're issued with power. It's really a swell job."

Remnants of Duce's Eritrean Army Heading for Border

Fleeing Italians May Make Stand At Adaua Sixty Miles From Asmara—Position Of Aosta's Army Insecure

Cairo, April 3 (AP)—British advance troops in Ethiopia have captured Mieso, on the Addis Ababa-Jibuti Railway about 180 miles east of the Ethiopian capital, the Middle East Command announced today.

In North Africa, the British Command announced that the Italians in Libya had withdrawn to positions north of Agedabia and that this movement followed up by Axis mechanized forces. Agedabia is about 95 miles north east of Agheila and a short distance inland.

Third of Way to Addis Ababa

The capture of Mieso carried the British forces almost a third of the way to Addis Ababa from Dire-dawa, where they cut the railway line leading to Jibuti on the Gulf of Aden in French Somaliland.

In neighboring Eritrea, where the British forces have isolated the colonial chief of Asmara, Imperial troops were reported continuing their thrust eastward. This indicated that the Fascists were retreating along the coastal road toward the Ethiopian border instead of toward Massaua, Eritrea's chief seaport some 72 miles northeast of Asmara.

Military observers said the fleeing Italians might make a stand at Adaua (Ethiopia), 60 miles from Asmara on an excellent highway. It was at Adaua that Ethiopian forces under Emperor Menelik II routed an invading Italian force in 1896.

There were reports the Italians would attempt the 300-mile trek southward to Addis Ababa to join forces with the army of Duke Pietro of Aosta, Viceroy of Ethiopia.

2nd Italian Destroyer Sunk, Third Sinking

Further Losses to Italian Ships Trying to Leave Bari Port

The loss of the first destroyer was announced yesterday.

400 NAZI SEAMEN IN NEW QUARTERS

Crew of Scuttled Liner Columbus Now in New Mexico

Fort Stanton, N.M., April 3 (AP)—Here in the mountain cattle country of New Mexico 1,000 miles from salt water, a strange new life has begun for 400 German seamen.

Only a handful of them at the war, they have been interned by the United States with little or no choice but to wait for what the future may bring.

In December, 1939, their ship, the North German Lloyd liner Columbus, was scuttled in Davis 400 miles off the Virginia coast under the guns of an approaching British warship.

Dished by Britain in efforts to get home through Japan, 513 officers and men were held at the Seagoville, Texas, detention camp until the mercury soared to 110 degrees, and then were moved to this mountain-ringed site.

Here, the Government in mid-March sent most of them to New Mexico to make their home behind a high wire fence in renovated barracks on the, U.S. Marine Reservation. Later guards from camp are granted for business.

Cost of maintaining the crew has been estimated at $18,000 a month, borne by the German Government through the Swiss Legation.

CRIME SITUATION IN SLUMP

Clovis, N.M., April 3—(CP)—The county jail has been empty for a week and the crime situation is in a slump, but being slump, a woman walked into the sheriff's office and said she'd be put in jail so she could finish an unexpired term. Sheriff Bill Collins said it wouldn't be worth the trouble to put a lady one prisoner. The woman was reported to return home and come back later.

Had weather over the continent kept both British and German Air Forces grounded during the night.

The Air Ministry announced that British bombers scored bomb hits yesterday on two armed merchant ships off the Netherlands coast and left one of the vessels sinking.

The communique said two planes were missing after yesterday's operations, which included attacks on a German radio station and three airdromes.

London had an air raid alarm today when a German scouting plane was sighted over the capital, but it veered away and the all clear was sounded after a brief interval.

There will be silver collection taken with the entire proceeds to be turned over to the British Firemen's Relief Fund.

NEITHER OF PERSONS CALLED PRESENT

The name of Miss Clara Sanford, 217½ Coleman Street, was announced for the major prize of $750.00 at the Capitol theatre last evening. The selection for the second offer was given as Mrs. J. Keith Underdonk, person, address 36 Morrell Street. Neither of the persons, whose names were selected, were in the theatre at the time of the announcement. The offer will be increased next week, Manager Macaran, manager of the Capitol theatre stated today.

ICE IN BAY MAY BE LATE IN MOVING OUT

Owing to the exceptional thickness of the ice in the Bay of Quinte this past month, the fact that the spring has been cold, resulting in slow disintegration of the ice fields, the ice in the bay will be several days later than usual in moving out, was the prediction of one well-known local fisherman this morning. He stated that with his cronies at the club rooms of the Wheat Sheaf Bowling Club.

The bay usually is clear of ice by April 15th or 16th, it was stated, but this year there has been no sign of the ice fields beginning to break up. With the exception of a few days of open water to the east of the bay bridge, the ice still remains solid reaching from shore to shore. Motors have been using it in the Moira River, however, is wearing thin in the vicinity of the river mouth and open water can be seen to a distance of approximately 150 yards south of the railway bridge. Ice in the harbor remains solid with only the occasional break near the bank.

ALTERATIONS BEGIN AT CITY FIRE HALL

Alterations to the Belleville fire station with the view of permitting quicker and easier ingress and exit of hose trucks, hook and ladder and wagons are commenced this morning by a gang of workmen under the direction of Edgar Foster, local contractor.

An archway will be cut in the street wall along the south partition of the room which houses the motorized equipment and a set of double doors will be placed therein. The firemen's brass pole is being moved from its present location to the rear of the room and will be positioned nearer the centre of the room and to the left of the two fire trucks.

These alterations were considered necessary by the fire commission of the city council to provide a quicker getaway for the trucks when answering an alarm. At the present it is necessary to turn the hose truck and hook and ladder wagon to one side to get the set of doors.

SYRUP QUOTED AT $2 PER GALLON

The price of maple syrup suffered a slight decline from quotations asked the last Saturday's initial offerings and sold on the Thursday market for $2.25 per gallon, $2 per gallon, a decline of 5c per quart or 25c per gallon.

Only a few vendors offered springtime's table delicacy, and all reported that cold weather had retarded the flow of sap during the past few days. The presence of a considerable depth of snow in some of the bushes gave rise to the prediction that there would still be plenty of sap, however.

REDNERSVILLE MAN INJURED FACE IN FALL ON PAVEMENT

Falling heavily to the pavement on Front Street near Bill Cook's restaurant last night, John Hutton, Rednersville, suffered severe lacerations of the mouth and face, and was taken to Belleville General Hospital following an urgent call to the Martin Funeral Home for ambulance service.

Hutton, who was reported resting comfortably today, was walking along the main thoroughfare on his way to see a city physician, when he suddenly tripped over striking his face and head on the sharp edge of a grating. A large crowd of spectators gathered while the man lay on the pavement, apparently suffering from severe shock and injuries.

FROST BOILS APPEAR ON EAST HIGHWAY

Motorcycle Patrolman J. W. Hatch warned motorists to proceed with caution on Highway No. 2 east of Belleville. The highway immediately east of the four-lane road, at the junction of the Point Anne lane, has heaved badly due to the spring thaws making driving conditions exceedingly treacherous," explained Constable Hatch. As he continued to say some of the upheavals were to such a height that it is advisable to drive motor vehicles in second gear.

Fire Destroys Truck Load Of Beer On Highway East Of City

Fire, caused by the friction of blown-out tires, totally destroyed a tractor trailer, the property of the Hyrak Transport Company of London on Highway No. 3 twelve miles east of Belleville early today, and the entire contents of the tractor trailer, which consisted of 700 cases of beer in transit were also destroyed.

By unconfirmed reports the cabin from the transport, Herman Willard of Exeter, Ontario, and driver of the outfit, saved the valuable part of the transport from destruction, however.

Willard told Motorcycle Policemen Hatch and Slote, who investigated, that it was his opinion that two inside tires on the loaded wheeled trailer must have blown out and the resulting friction caused the fire. The driver tried in vain to get the blaze under control with the use of a hand fire extinguisher. The wooden constructed tractor trailer fell easy prey to the spreading flames and was completely destroyed, while the cardboard cases containing the beer fed the blaze. The interest heat caused many dozen bottles of beer to explode, serving the lighter with glass and impeding the progress of motorized traffic until highway workers finally brought the fire under control and cleaned up the debris.

TRIBUTE PAID INDIAN NAVY

London, April 3 (CP)—The Admiralty paid tribute today to the work of the Royal Indian Navy in the Italian-African campaign.

It disclosed that it was from ships of the R.I.N. that the first troops were landed in the recapture of Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, and that troops and supplies were landed from R.I.N. ships in Eritrea prior to the fall of Cheren and Asmara.

The Admiralty statement also revealed that the R.I.N. had played an important part in the work of escorting and patrolling in the Indian Ocean.

Italian Position In Albania Said Precarious

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

Washington, April 3 (AP).—There can be but one interpretation of the startling fall of an Italian detachment and its mountain artillery from Mazzaua, last Italian toe-hold on the Red Coast of East Africa. Word of the surrender of the port to the British on the 27th of the month may come at any moment to strike another blow at Italian morale.

The British Admiralty announced the destroyer was sunk by air bombs and that the ship interrupted. The attempted dash itself is more important than the unhappy fate of the ships, since it could have been ordered only in view of expected loss of the port. It was suicide on the part of any Italian craft bottled up there. That was obvious even before the two ships went to meet their fate.

From the moment of the British occupation of Keren, mountain gateway to now-taken Asmara, Eritrean capitol, the end of Italy's empire-building venture there has been in sight.

Fall of Massaua probably will free additional British troops for use in Greece or elsewhere, but how many can only be conjectured. There has been no authoritative estimate of the size of the force Britain must keep in Eritrea to garrison the 40,000 Italian troops said to have composed the Eritrean garrison, left to Italians.

Massaua might have some tactical value to the British Navy. The latter's hold on all eastern approaches to the Suez Canal is already so complete, however, that keeping Massaua is available. Red Sea bases would not mean much.

Complete collapse of Italian power in Eritrea—and it may have come already—would be a satisfying aftermath for British morale to the smashing British naval victory in the Ionian Sea. It would mean another jolt for Mussolini's people. Home officialdom continues to be still another militar, disaster of far greater consequence might come to Italy if the German-Yugoslav crisis should flare up.

Such fears in Rome are indicated by admittedly unsuccessful Fascist efforts to drive a wedge between and Belgrade in a peace-keeping role. Italy's left flank in Albania, where the Greek-Italian conflict is still stalled in the south, is an in- of the question.

River Free Of Ice From Mouth To Point Above Corbyville

The Moira River, has but one reaching ice fragment in her mouth and Dr. Nature with the aid of a warm weather assault today has succeeded to remove the impediment within a day or so.

All that is left of the ice-shackles which have bound the river since last December is a small field of rotting ice adhering to the west bank halfway between the lower city bridge and the Canadian Pacific Railway structure.

From this point to a spot well to the northward of the Corbyville bridge the stream has all the appearances of Spring. With the exception of a few ice-drag-remnants that still cling to the banks, the river is clear of all ice formations, to the above mentioned point.

The bay proper, however, is still a ice-locked except near the bridge but a general break up is expected momentarily. City officials state that a strong westerly wind will break up the fast disintegrating ice.

The winter just past, it was pointed out, has been conspicuous by its lack of flood menace. Weather conditions, for the better part of opportune, were such that there was no heavy outpouring of rain or thaw waters from the northern areas, and this, in turn kept water levels at a winter normal level.

Early Spring was productive of no heavy rains, another important factor in flood possibilities, a temporary congestion of frazil ice in the river-mouth, was offset by prompt action of city officials aided by opportune weather conditions. A steady current in water flowed down from the northern stretches of the river and this aided by warm breezes, and channels cut by city workers prevented any actual ice gorgeduring the thaw.

THE STORY OF HONG-KONG

How came that far-off outpost of Hong-kong, which on the map looks so little and lonely and lost, to be a part of the British instead of the Chinese Empire? We shall see.

China had been a civilized country for about 4,000 years. By slow stages the people had risen from crude beginnings to a fair degree of education and culture, and then they had settled down in the belief that they were the only people of any importance on the face of the earth, that their Emperor was the ruler of "all under Heaven," and all other peoples outside their Celestial Kingdom were nothing but "barbarians." For centuries China, thus wrapped up in self satisfaction, made little further progress until at last a big necessary change was brought about. To the English more than to any other nation the credit of this change is due.

In 1635 the British East India Company began to trade in a small way at Macao. The Portuguese were already occupying a post at Macao near the mouth of the Canton River. For about 200 years the Company continued this trade, but it was uphill work right along. The Chinese officials and authorities looked down on all traders, and the English were treated with the utmost contempt. The aim of the East Indian Company was simply to make money, and the Governors and Directors, who remained comfortably at home, instructed their traders to put up with all insults and indignities that might be offered them rather than risk losing the trade and its profits.

All this was extremely humiliating to English pride, and things began to grow unbearable when the authorities, in addition to other innumerable insults, claimed the right to try English offenders in Chinese ports by the cruel Chinese criminal laws rather than once an Englishman failing into their power had suffered death by strangling.

At last when the Company's charter expired in 1834 it was not renewed, but trade was thrown open to private merchants. At the same time three Superintendents of British trade were sent out to Canton, Lord Napier being the chief of these. His mission was an extremely difficult one. He tried to place commerce in China on a more satisfactory footing and maintain the honor of England, but was able to accomplish practically nothing. Before long he fell ill and died, broken down by the hopelessness of his task and the endless annoyances he had endured from the Chinese. After his death things went on as before for a while, but too far.

After about three months Lin ordered the refugees to leave Macao, and the Portuguese Governor, Pinto, refused to protect them. So one day in August, men, women and children with all their belongings, and more than half expecting at any hour to be massacred, set sail for Hong-kong. Here for a time they lived, about 3,000 people in all, on board the ships in the harbor. They were short of food and in hourly peril of their lives, for the Chinese had already committed murder and other outrages, and were encamped on the mainland near by. The island itself was little more than a barren rock, about thirty square miles in extent, and the British had then no thought of remaining there permanently.

Captain Elliott again proposed a return to Macao, but was again refused. Meanwhile, Lin prohibited provisions being supplied to the British, and commanded that they were to be fired on whenever they went on shore.

Word was sent to England as to how things were going on. Before a reply could be received a battle was fought at Chuenpi between two British ships and five Chinese war-ships, in which the Chinese were beaten. Afterwards the English ships removed for greater safety to Tungku, and Hong-kong was for a time deserted.

At last the English Government sent out an expedition of seventeen men-of-war and twenty-three troop ships, with about 4,000 soldiers to aid the distressed British in China. An endeavor was made at first to come to some satisfactory arrangement with the Chinese Government but that failing, a second battle was fought at Chuenpi. The British came out victorious, suffering no losses except a few wounded, while the Chinese lost two forts with many men and ships.

A treaty of peace was then formed, by which the Chinese agreed, among other things, that the island and harbor of Hong-kong should be ceded forever to the British Crown. The British ships then re-entered at Hong-Kong, and on the 26th of January, 1841, the island was formally taken possession of in the name of Queen Victoria. The British flag was hoisted, and "all the ships-of-war in the harbor made the hills re-echo with the thunders of the first Royal Salute ever fired in Hong-kong."

However, the Chinese did not long abide by this treaty, and in a short time the war was renewed. Its result was a still more decisive victory to the British. By the Treaty of Nanking, signed in the following year, the cession of Hong-kong was confirmed and several other important advantages were gained. These included the payment of large indemnity by China, and the opening up of several ports to trade. Peace, friendship and mutual respect were also established between the two countries.

In the course of time the peninsula of Kowloon also became a part of the colony. The fine city of Victoria was built, and the once bare island became a busy, flourishing gardens, and a miniature forest of shade trees. Hong-Kong has always been a free port, and it is now one of the most important of British colonies. Vessels of all nationalities may be seen at any time in its busy harbor, and its shipping trade has been enormous, exceeding even that of London, Paris or New York.

In 1911 the British and Chinese Governments made a treaty agreeing to abolish the opium traffic gradually by lessening the amount grown in India and China and increasing the duty on it. Thus the long strife came to a happy end.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Papleas Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you may weigh about as much as you ever did—eyes look healthy and strong, yet you can't get going. You feel bad in your legs, down, tired and peppless.

Why not see your doctor? He may haven't got enough red blood cells in your blood to do the work they should do. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your motor car, so it takes red blood cells—or red blood cells plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you that peppy feeling.

Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. They are widely used to help make new blood by increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today.

GERMANS ON FASCIST SHIPS

Germans aboard the Italian fleet which was superior in numbers of ships to the British navy who gave the Italians such a thrashing at sea late last week, can now have some conception of the problem which faces Berlin and Rome when it considers the British fleet as a factor in the war.

It was a good thing the Germans were aboard, they could see for themselves and they can help the Italians to explain.

If they did not realize before, they must realize now that the Royal Navy is a powerful agency and that Britain did not err when she put trust in ships. The navy is the power that has helped to throttle the German Reich by blockade, that played a great part in the war on the north coast of Africa, that controls the Mediterranean and Suez, that dominates the seas and is a bulwark in the defence of Britain against any attack Hitler might launch.

Besides the navy Britain has the peerless Royal Air Force and the greatest and most highly trained and best-armed army Britain has ever raised.

Germany can take some of the blame since Germans were on the Italian ships and are believed to have exerted pressure on the Italian naval chiefs.

THE BALKANS

Again the typical German campaign of press and radio is presenting a lie to the world and to the German people about the situation in Yugoslavia, claiming that German nationals had been subject to a reign of terror in that country. This is the threadbare method of Hitler. The Yugoslavs have seen the system work in other countries and though they know what the future may mean they are determined and unwavering in their support of the new government. They have heard the call of their Premier, Gen. Simovich, who has urged calm and has called on the people to give their lives if necessary, should the occasion arise, for their homes, their country and their king. This is the spirit with which they have faced the Hun who strives to terrify but who has again failed.

Will Hitler hesitate and delay or will he try to go forward? He has met an unexpected barrier which has been thrown across the path the Nazis had mapped. Italy, it is said, has been striving to negotiate between Yugoslavia and Germany for it is said she may be subject to a powerful attack in Albania by the British, Greek and Serbs if Hitler tries to force the hand of Yugoslavia. This remnant of Albania is about all that the Italian empire now consists of.

At several points in his career Hitler has faced a dilemma and lost. One was when he was brought face to face with Britain across the channel and waited or hesitated and another instance is the situation now facing him as he tried to play a hand in the Greek war and to coerce into the Axis camp the Yugoslavians. Today Italy badly beaten partner, Italy, is much concerned about her prestige and unable to do much or anything for herself.

Earlier in the war Italy had not been exposed and under attack as she has been these past few months. Hitler is not as free as he once was, now he has to think for the Italian state and of the weakness of the Italian state which is probably more of a liability than an asset to this other dictator.

Meanwhile the situation remains intense.

BANDS

A plea for more bands is made by the Montreal Star, which says that "nothing gives a greater lift to the spirit than the music of a military band."

It is pointed out that "plenty of competent bandsmen are available and that what is lacking is money." The hope is expressed that the Government will be able to fix this cash soon. It is said the amount needed would not be large and that the expenditure would be justified on psychological grounds alone, though the Star points out that it can also be supported on other grounds relating to the better training of the troops themselves.

Around Belleville the music of bandsmen has been of great assistance in the aid of the war effort in many forms.

BY Beachcomber

Memories of the old Mississippi steamboats, paddling up and down the "Father of Waters"; Prince-hearted gamblers, shoe-string ties flowing from snowy white bosoms, black slouch hatted moustachioed buccaneers of the gaming tables; crinolined belles of the sunny south; happy singing stevedores, and all the glamor that was the life of the gay sixties, were revived here yesterday with the appearance of a small but effective derringer revolver.

The little gun, which could and can yet for that matter, puncture the ace of spades or a man's gizzard at five yards, was the prize weapon of the gay cavaliers of the rose-colored pathway of the good old days and many a gambler carried a derringer up his right coatsleeve and a flock of aces in the left.

Elmer Sandercock, amiable superintendent of the Hastings County Home, was delving in a box of souvenirs some time ago and came across the "spitfire" of the "Sporting Sixties." It is a compact little weapon and in the hands of the right person would prove as deadly as it is convenient.

The little fella fires seven shots from a revolving cylinder, the chambers of which each constitute a barrel. It has a hearty kick when operated by a powerful spring. The barrel is constructed of heavy steel, while the strong grip which tapers from a quarter inch at the top to nearly an inch at the bottom is made of brass.

Another "pleasant" feature about the gun, which more than lives up to its formed name of "My Friend," is that its butt serves as a very potent "knuckle-duster." The entire weapon can be secreted in the hand of the ordinary man, its barrel being only 1½ inches long. A hole in the lower part of the grip serves as an extra grip should the weapon be used as a "silencer" or to add strength to the weight of a blow. The little finger is inserted in this hole which when given the holder's hand the additional power of one inch of solid brass with which to further his arguments.

According to "Sandy" the derringer is in perfect working order and fires .22 calibre shells. It can split a pea, grant a permanent divorce, cause a man to forget his income taxes, rid one town of the mother-in-law menace, eliminate landlords, dispatch a wild dog, or a nagging wife, and grant permission for his own family to collect his insurance at a range of between five and ten yards.

The little gun, according to an engraved inscription, was made in 1864, and has a serial number well in the 1,200's. It was a favorite weapon with the dashing blades of the sixties who made a living from the green cloth atop the gaming table in the then modern saloons, riverboat cabins and private residences where sometimes there was a final hand. It could be hidden in the cuff of the coat, and the dexterous hands of the colorful gamblers of that period could wield the weapon with as much skill as they could extract a jack of spades from a trouser cuff.

One story of that famous period is to the effect that authorities probing the killing of a gambler in a saloon, discovered no less than six derringers in as many coat-sleeves, and all sat around the death table. A single barrel in each weapon had been fired, but only two holes were apparent in the body of the slain gambler. Those boys could split a nickel with a catapult at a hundred yards.

And if the lads didn't want to go to the extreme of injecting a little lead into the enemy, he could, with a quick twist of the wrist, reverse proceedings and crush his opponent with the knuckle-dusting apparatus that went with every derringer.

Topping off the subject, there is the story of the Semitic gent who "made" a London society club. During a poker game he was told that members did not have to expose their hands at the "call." They were considered gentlemen. Their word was good enough. Asked how he fared he replied, "Lawd Veah de Veah vun the first game, but I vun all the rest."

Londoners Lunch As Of Old

(By GEORGE EDINGER)

When night hangs over the City of London the whole place is silent and empty. Your steps echo through the deserted, cheerless, offices, counting-houses and banks. In the business heights of a street you may not meet a living soul, except for the wardens and fire watchers, perhaps a volunteer or a Home Guard, for only 14,000 live in the City. And those few housekeepers, caretakers and watchmen, like those who attend the churches built 800, 500, 300 years ago for merchants who lived in their counting houses and mon with their homes in the City of London. And that is something, for to-day there are only seven private houses in this financial centre of the world.

But come back to those streets any time between 12 and 2 o'clock on a week day. You would find the business full with men and women, mostly barebeaded: bankers and brokers, clerks, secretaries, typists and doorkeepers, hurrying off to lunch. At that hour almost all the City's business is done over lunch. All the restaurants and lunch counters, the hotels and eating houses, between the offices and the banks are crowded to the doors. Life must go on, even though the ruins of burned-out churches are strewn by the street.

In one hour half a million people must be fed. Fed on a magnificent scale or a meagre one. Some of the City's lunch hour is taken from a pound to sixpence on a City lunch, as the saying goes, and there is a wide range of surroundings there are in which you can lunch.

Big restaurants, lofty, air-conditioned, central-heated, are crowded out with their tables set with linen, silver and glass. Behind counters, marble-topped, with concrete stand brick-built inns that fill with smoke and noise, customers They look out over stone-flagged courtyards, where the old cobbles have disappeared in the last coach clatter in more vividly than he remembers it, and where the last twenty years' experience in grilling them. And that coffee is only blended in London. The secret is in London. The secret was told once by Mr. Isaac D. Bullock and Kate, which lay off the harbor during the winter, have been hauled into the wharf and are being lightened of the remainder of their cargoes of coal.

Capt. Eccles has sold the schooner D. D. Bullock to Capt. Edmunds of Port Hope for the sum of $4,000.

Farmers have commenced ploughing at Cherry Valley, Prince Edward County.

Mr. R. Grass of Trenton was in town this week.

Mr. J. R. Orr of the Madoc Review was in town today.

sandwiches. Lounging against the counter, sprawling over one of the stools, the customers, sis and talk over their cups of coffee. You may know all about a Canadian railway that is going to do wonders with a branch line to a new mining centre. Another tells you under his breath that there is no copper in that South African quarry. There is a brewing chat. A fellow in a back bowler hat who has heard about an oil well under a tea plantation in India, now, if he only had enough money to buy that tea plantation, he could get down to the oil and make a fortune for himself. Everything is known. And the more he drinks the more confident he is about it all.

The milk bars are rather quieter. They are newcomers to the City, but they have established a popularity the last few years. There are half a dozen of them now. Hot and cold milk flavored with bone or chocolate, fruit juices, tea in summer, hot soup in winter, all these they serve out to their guests for a few pence in two or three minutes.

But there are some people who will not go into any bars or restaurants or tea shops. They take their lunches all packed up for them in a box, which they can take away to eat under the plane trees in the few green spaces in the City of London. You find them on the seats in Lincolns Fields and in the churchyards, feeding the crumbs to the sparrows. And sometimes the sparrows are there before them, waiting at the seat they know. Then there will come to occupy; for the London sparrows are as regular in their lunch hour as the people who work in the City of London.

Then, behind the counting houses of the City merchants and the halls of the different companies, are the quiet courts and corners. They are full of the cooing of pigeons that walk with all the pride of outshelled East India merchants, or stride like the Indian captains of the last century, who once mourned their ships, filled with spices, ivories and rare pearls from the New World, at the little docks you still find in the City of Thames, where it flows by the City. In every one of these courts, at any time between 12 and two-thirty in the winter, two or three City workers lunch on their own, or enjoy in the serenity of a more leisured age. But that meal is not one to appreciate better than the worker who comes out of the office to eat his sandwiches where the typewriters never cease to clatter and a telephone bell never ceases to jangle.

Yes, it still goes on. Air raids have wrought savagely with the City of London. Many of the finest building places and some of the new ones have been swallowed in the glare of incendiary bombs. The courtyards of lone, kept close by twenty generations of constables and keepers, are blocked now with heaps of rubble and choked by chunks of fallen masonry.

Many girl typists go off to lunch with the Air Raid Wardens' shrapnel helmets slung on their backs, and the City clerks wear the khaki uniform of the Home Guard. But the age-long atmosphere of the City lunch hour still hangs about the broken streets, throughout the days still drifts the fire, the hopeful firewater still talks of riches to be had at last, the sparrows still wait patiently for the crumbs of their lucky lunchers. Even of them wait a long time now and nobody comes to feed them. From the regular customers of the hotels, inns and coffee houses, and seats in the squares, the bombs have taken their toll. Well, it was the way they would have wished it, they died doing their job.—Hamilton Spectator.

A Dispatch Of 1588

Letter to London Times:

Sir,—It would appear to be as miraculously lucky as Herr von Ribbentrop has been, and no doubt prepares to be again, we might yet discover in Berlin a letter sent or being sent to Berlin by the Reich Governor under today's date:

"Dear Adolf: Maybe I spoke out of turn when I told you that Majesty had prepared, and we should escape the dangers of some Armada. Actually it has failed to conquer England while losing your hold on the sea. It is unexpected even in the condition we had intended it to be, with respect to the vital point of secrecy, &c., we might with luck and God's help, count confidently for a successful issue. . . . But things are not going well, and we only have the English had time to arm for their defence. It is a form sillances . . . but the French are in Paris and Mussolini, to frustrate our aims."

Actually this was written by Cardinal Farnese, Spanish Governor in The Netherlands, in a letter to Philip II, dated July 30, 1588—five months before the rout of the Spanish armada.

PETRIFIED LIGHTNING

Petrified lightning is the popular name of a fulgurite (from the Latin "fulgur," meaning lightning), which consists of tubes of fused and formed vitrified sand, made by the passage of lightning.

When lightning strikes sand a temperature of several thousand degrees Fahrenheit is created and the particles along the central path of the bolt are fused, grains are volatilized, driven outward and fused into a glass tube, the interior of which is more glossy and smooth as glass.

Such tubes of fulgurite extending to a depth of 30 feet or more have been found, and occasionally they branch or have inches in circumference, although generally they are smaller.

As a rule the thickness of the walls of the tubes is not more than one-thirtieth or one-twentieth of an inch.

Sand dunes unprotected by vegetation are continually shifting and often petrified lightning tubes have been uncovered by the wind above the surface.

Fulgurites are very fragile and must be excavated very carefully even by piece and reassembled for display purposes.

The two fine specimens found by Miss Henry in Florida, one of which is about ten feet long with branches at the end, will be displayed in the Academy of Natural Sciences at Philadelphia.

Many people are puzzled whether to say "it lightens." or "it lightens."

Dictionaries recognize "to lightning" as a verb, but "to lighten" is regarded as the better form.

Shakespeare provides the good example in "Romeo and Juliet," the famous balcony scene Juliet says to Romeo:

> If it be thus,
> For I have yet to learn the sconfuest lesson night:
> It is too rash, too unadvis'd, too sudden;
> Too like the lightning, which doth cease to be > Ere one can say it lightens.

"To lighten" means to flash and was originally used as a verb long before "lightning" was used as a noun.

James Otis, credited with starting the American Revolution, once expressed a wish to die by being struck by lightning. Shortly after that he was killed by a thunderbolt.

The Thirteenth Plane

By GEORGE WELLER
Athens Correspondent of the Chicago Daily News

Well, even the growing control of the air over Albania by the Allied forces has its mental hazards, as proved by the nasty five minutes through which the ground staff of a Greek airfield reported to have passed not long ago.

On a reconnaissance flight over an Italian position, 12 Greek machines, each piloted by a Greek, operating in formation. About an hour later, as the prearranged hour for their return, the ground crew were seen, like black specks coming over the mountains, at the end of the valley.

"Are they all there?" asked the Greek commanding officer.

"Yes", replied the spotter, his binoculars at his eyes.

The commander was just writing down the usual "All our planes returned safely" when the spotter yelled:

"Wait a minute—wait" His lips were seen moving. He scratched his head. Suddenly there were glasses at an aircraftman, standing near by.

There, quick, have a look! Count them, and count them fast! How many do you get, 12 or 13?"

There was a general dive for shelter and the ack-ack guns, amid cursing of Italian duplicity.

By this time, however, the commander had gotten out his own binoculars and was on his third count. There were 13 planes all right, 12 of which were Greek Curtiss wings and an Italian plane in their midst, which had been captured with its crew in midair on its first recorded air surrender of the Albania front.

'Twas so a thousand years ago
And will be so with each return.
Another thousand years will know
Tulip and daffodil and fern,
The sweet arbutus and the columbine,
The breat of mother earth will grace,
And should there be a million springs,
The last of them will still repeat
The glory of familiar things
At those which make our seasons sweet.

Trees filled with song and birds in flight.

D. D. President Pays Official Visit To Rebekah Lodge

A very pleasant event took place in the Oddfellows' Temple, Belleville, on Tuesday evening of this week, it being the official visit of the District Deputy President of District No. 30, Sister Evelyn Bailey of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, who was accompanied by other members of that lodge.

At the opening of the Lodge the D.D.P. Sister Bailey was introduced by J.P.N.G. Sister Pollitt and after initial ceremonies welcomed the usual business of the Lodge proceeded. The reading of the Charter for one of the veteran members, Sister Kerr, who now was a very faithful and much loved member of Quinte Lodge was beautifully rendered by a number of Quintena Rebekahs.

Nassau In the Bahamas

By G. E. D.

The first time we saw H.R.H. the Duke of Windsor, the Governor or the Islands, was the opening day of the horse races. We sat just behind his box in the club stand. I gazed at him several times and thought "Is it possible that this man was ever King of England?" He did not look it.

The horse races here are pretty crude affairs after seeing Hialeah in Florida and Santa Anita in California but they serve their purpose for those who enjoy the betting. They are held each Friday afternoon during the tourist season and it is a real holiday. Every place of business is closed and main street which is usually crowded is dead as a door nail.

The next we saw the Duke was in the golf course as we drove by. One can always pick him out by his/rather gaudy attire. He plays practically every day.

We saw him also in church. He is intensely nervous, not still two minutes at a time. He seemed like a lack of reverence or dignity. The churches are not filled here as they are in Florida; seems to be a different type of tourist crowd.

The next time the Duchess was with him at the Golf Club where Joe Kirkwood gave an exhibition of tricks with a golf ball. Chairs were placed all about for the audience as the exhibition takes over an hour. There were two much finer chairs than the others and Mr. Tucker of Winnipeg, gave a colored attendant a dime to move Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Deroche could sit in them. After a time my eyes were directed to the roadway where the Duke and Duchess were getting out of their car. Immediately an attendant came over and asked our ladies to move their chairs as they were for Royalty. So while Steward sat in the seat of a King for a day, Mrs. Deroche sat in the seat of a Duchess for a minute.

I advise every golfer to see Kirkwood perform if you get the chance. What he does with a golf ball is simply marvellous. He keeps a running humerous chatter all the time. He placed five balls in a row straight out in front of him about ten feet apart and hit each ball a large drive while all the time looking at an object in the distance. He said "That explodes the theory you must keep your eye on the ball". He placed three balls on top of each other and made a clean stroke of the centre one; drove two balls at one time, making them cross each other in the air, etc. etc.

Saw the Governor and his wife at the Exhibition Tennis Match. Professionals—Don Budge, World's Champion, Alice Marble, World's Lady Champion, Bobby Riggs, Lady Champion and another man, played on the grounds of the British Colonial Hotel while they sat up in the balcony.

Saw them at the opening of the Bahama Annual Fair, also twice at the Theatre, once to hear Rich Draper who is in a class all by herself, and once to hear one Lucile Watson as Raymond's strait-laced wife and Jack Carson as a playboy. Esther Dale as Chuck's mother, Charles Halton as a Chamber of Commerce member, Betty Compson as a Broadway gold-digger have parts which are supporting roles, and handle them brilliantly.

"Mr. & Mrs. Smith"

Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery, teamed for the first time in RKO Radio's new film "Mr. & Mrs. Smith," which opened yesterday at the Belle theatre, have a delight to theatre-goers with their brilliant interpretations of Ann and David Smith, well-to-do young New York matron and successful lawyer-husband.

The story of Ann and David is published on an intimate and sparkling fashion and directed superbly by Alfred Hitchcock, who deserves plaudits along with the stars. Among the rules by which the young couple get along is one which requires them, in the event of a quarrel to remain in their bedroom until the matter is settled. Another dramatic ordinance provides that once every month each can ask the other one question which must be answered honestly, regardless of the consequences. While these regulations are theoretically fine, in practice they make great demands on both parties.

David learns that because of a legal technicality he and Ann aren't really married. Both are free to marry her about it—not aware that she, too, has learned of the unusual situation. When David doesn't immediately suggest remarriage, Ann agrees bereft and throws him out of their apartment. Bewildered, David tries to forget Ann, succeeds too, but finds that his law partner, Jeff Custer, has come into the scene, and is making a strong play for Ann himself. Complications ensuing complications make for uproarious comedy, the action of the story leading to some of the funniest scenes in recent years as Ann tries to make up her mind between her two suitors.

The two stars are ideally cast in this merry offering, and Gene Raymond, film-featured, has again display did job as the rival partner. Ann featured are Phillip Merivale and Lucile Watson as Raymond's strait-laced parents and Jack Carson as a playboy. Esther Dale as Chuck's mother, Charles Halton as a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Betty Compson as a Broadway gold-digger have parts which are supporting roles, and handle them brilliantly.

Director Hitchcock, of "39 Steps" fame who turned out "Rebecca" Academy Award Winner of 1940 and "Foreign Correspondent" as dramatic masterpieces, here proved he is equally supreme in the comedy field. The Boys Appreciate Help From The Folks Back Home

Letters of Appreciation of the Work of War Services Organizations Pour in From All Branches of the Fighting Services at Home and Abroad—You Can Help by Giving Freely Now

Thousands of letters are written every month by the men in our armed forces in Canada, in Iceland, in Newfoundland, and overseas, voicing appreciation of the comforts and diversions provided by the various Canadian war service organizations—comforts made possible by money contributed by public subscription voluntarily by "the folks back home."

Writing in the Hanover (Ontario) Post of February 6th, 1941, Corp. W. B. Allison, R.C.A.M.C., said in part:

While I am speaking of societies let me not fail to mention the names of several more who are helping the soldiers in many ways:

(1) The Salvation Army, by its entertainments, free movies, writing paper, etc.;

(2) The Canadian Legion the same way;

(3) The Y.M.C.A., the same way and in addition they furnish and maintain recreation rooms in various units;

(4) The Knights of Columbus, the same, plus an issue of cigarettes till patients in the hospitals where they are distributed by the priest during his weekly rounds.

In a letter to the editor' columns of The Toronto Daily Star, dated March 6, 1941, "Six Pilots-to-be" stationed at No. 1 Manning Depot, Ont., said:

"This is a vote of appreciation. Almost every Canadian service organization invites a group of airmen to its annual concert, dance or some other function. These invitations are telegraphed to the Y.M.C.A. here, and Mr. Tommy Armour, the secretary, makes the arrangements for the men to go. For the boys from distant points there is always a Good Time, and have kept many a man from spending Sunday in barracks.

Sergt. Starry Mellon, R.C.O.C., C.A.S.F., writes from Trenton to the Star on February 19, 1941:

"... While on the subject of boosts, may I put in a couple for the Salvation Army and the Red Cross. As in the last war, they're still doing a swell job and appear to like it here. On occasions I have found, along with many others, the Red Cross in London to clean white sheets, good food, a willing smile and a welcome, at a time when most people are sitting pretty snugly in their air raid shelters ..."

Mrs. J. W. Cook, writing to Mrs. Davis at the Barrisfield-Vimy Canp, Y.W.C.A. hostess house near Kingston following a visit to the hostess house there, said:

"... You were so kind.... I cannot tell you how much we did enjoy and appreciate the opportunity your Hostess House afforded us. you can be assured you gave one soldier and his wife a parting never to be forgotten and your lunch was excellent...."

Paying a warm tribute to the I.O.D.E. and the Y.M.C.A., Private Lee Eames, Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, wrote in the Picton (Ontario) Gazette on February 13, 1941:

"This letter is to thank the public and all the people who have given to the cause to help the boys overseas. Among these the Salvation Army ..... They gave a party on New Year Day for many hundreds of the town where we were stationed. At last all boys were present and they all received presents also fruit and a sum of money. Also the boys always give three motion picture shows a week....."

Lieut.-Col. W. C. Kocourek, R.C.A.S.C., C.A.S.F., writing in the Ottawa Citizen from Trenton on December 5, 1940, said:

"I would like to express to the organization my sincere thanks for the Christmas parcel which arrived from the Red Stfield Women's Auxiliary. I did not think I would get one, but mother recently wrote and told me....."

Lieut. W. C. Palmer, R.C.E., writing from Overseas in the Christmas News of December 21, 1940:

"The Beaver Club (operated by the Y.M.C.A. in London, England) is really a wonderful place. There' are lounge rooms with easy chairs and easy chairs. There are always good Canadian papers and magazines and of course there is lots of real Canadian food, such as hamburgers, sandwiches, maple syrup, and such things. The Beaver Club is appreciated by all Canadians who regard it as a home away from home."

AT THE CAPITOL

"SCATTERGOOD BAINES"

A graphic example of the need for preparedness even in the peace time of today is given in the fictional town of "Coldriver," is brought home emphatically in "Scattergood Baines," now showing at the Capitol with Guy Kibbee in the title role.

Accepting the prosperous calm with complacency their surroundings with many of the townsfolk, the inmetic source of their welfare to high-handed methods, and the need for timely action of their leading citizen, town storekeeper and sole owner of the railroad—are combined in "Scattergood Baines"—saves them from disaster.

The drama, filled with action and suspense, is lightened immeasurably by many moments of comedy. Kibbee appears in the role originally attributed to "Scattergood Baines" in a quarter of a century of appearances in short comedies in the famous stories by Clarence Budington Kelland—and "Trivia" Thomas brings all the humor of his radio characterizations to the silver screen. And Willie Best colored comedian, enacts the laugh-provoking part of Jefferson Davis, assistant in "Scattergood's" store. Ann Rutherford, Eddie Quillan and John Archer also appear.

Walter Catlanne directed for RKO Radio.

"Ghost Valley Raiders"

After Republic Pictures officials saw the first picture in which Donald Barry is starring role, "Ghost Valley Raiders," the second feature which were on display, they were so pleased with his performance that they decided to award him the leading role in the next serial to be produced on that list, "Adventures of Red Ryder," based on the popular cartoon strip.

Barry plays the role of a Government Agent in his initial picture in his new western series, with Lina Basquette in the feminine interest, and Leroy Mason, Tom London, Jack Ingram, Ralph Peters, and Curly Dresden as members of a splendid supporting cast.

"Peoples of Canada"

The Canadian Series Carries On short, "Peoples of Canada depicts" Canada's variegated pan . . . her present unity of purpose, freedom and tolerance . . . the well spirited of human spirit which makes victory a must effort. The Canadian Universal News and short chapter of "Dick Tracey's G-Men" close the bill.

Red Cross Notes

The regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on April 1, in the Red Cross Rooms.

April 1, 1941.

Mr. President, Members of the Executive,-

The amount of supplies forwarded to headquarters from the new offices and workroom of the Belleville branch is sufficient evidence of the continued loyalty of this city to our work. Knitted comforts for army, navy, Women's Auxiliary services in England, British civilians in bombed areas have been completed, in number 811. Clothing for all ages and sexes have been made by the different Auxiliaries, 464 articles in number, and many of these tailored for older women; many quilts again have been donated as well as four lovely all-wool blankets; these are made from scrap and new wool collected by the Collegiate group under Miss Brown, who raises the money to have these blankets woven. Some 288 hospital garments were made on request from our headquarters.

Each month the branch works on a quota basis and the type of garment or comfort, the size, color and number needed, are all supplied to our branch. So we ask that our office be consulted before any garments donated to the Red Cross are made.

The Red Cross building at Campbell street is in use almost constantly; in the mornings the cutting out groups under Mrs. Martin McCreery and Mrs. A. B. Collins, in the afternoons the various auxiliaries meet to sew or work on jerkins, and at night the packers do their work. A new auxiliary has been formed at Bewer Creek under the convenership of Mrs. J. W. Pack, Marmora.

The convener again wishes to express her gratitude to all those who have co-operated in loyal fashion.

Respectfully submitted,

Florence M. Laster,
Convener, Workroom.

SELECTIVE THINNING FOR VEGETABLES

Careful thinning applies the principle of selective service to vegetables. When the seeds have been planted too thickly or when the germination has been complete, the seedlings are apt to come up crowded. Thinning should begin early, the earlier the better. If no poor judgment to allow more plants of any one variety than are wanted to crowd those that are desired.

Selective training for vegetables

Thinning is particularly important with seed planted indoors, for overcrowding induces "dampening off." As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, you should carefully pull out enough seedling plants to give growing room to the remaining ones. If not properly thinned, the crowded seedlings become spindly, with a poor root system and weak stems. At first, it is likely that only every other plant need be pulled out.

Pinching off the seedlings at or just below the surface of the ground instead of pulling them out is to be discouraged, as the roots left in the soil may rot and cause trouble for those remaining.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Must She Return His Watch

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year I have been going with a young man of 21. I am 17. We were engaged until I thought that perhaps I was too young. Now the engagement is off and I am going out with other boys. My ex-fiance gave me a watch for Christmas. Shall I give this watch back to him?

Judy.

It's an unwritten law among what are known as "dear" people that gifts are returned when an engagement is broken. But sometimes when gifts of this nature are inexpensive, a boy may ask his former fiancee to keep trifling gifts rather than submit him to the twinges of getting them back.

As you are still friendly with your ex-fiance, why not ask him if you shall return his gift?

Wonders If He Can Trust Himself

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few years ago I had an accident which left me with extremely painful, almost paralyzed hand. I took to drinking to forget, didn't work, started to ride freight trains, stopping only a few weeks to work here and there.

A year ago I returned home. The family doctor told me I was shortening my life with constant drinking. Then I met the girl whom I love dearly, and I stopped drinking. Now the doctor gives me a longer lease on life with the right sort of living. I'm now studying with the hope of being admitted to the bar. Sometime people keep telling my girl things about my past, but enough to keep her from admitting she love me. She's afraid to marry me because she thinks I may go back to my old way of living.

How can I prove to her that I really mean to do the right thing? And the biggest question of all is: I trust myself? After all my years of wandering, can I settle down and live a normal life?

A. F. M.

Human nature being what it is, we must have faith in ourself and not harbor doubts concerning failure or the inability to trust ourselves. You've pulled out of the worst of your difficulties; you're in love with the right girl, and I think should give you the courage to keep on. Most decent citizen until she realizes you're a pretty good matrimonial risk.

No "Star Boarder"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married two years to a man 57 years on. I am 37. He moved into my home and never been satisfied with anything, is stingy, treats me like a child, and never says a pleasant word in fact he doesn't talk to me at all. I get him three meals a day and he pays board. Now he wants the money I earn. Will he have to support me until six months ago. I won't part with the money as he tells me he can get out. He thinks all I am entitled to is my clothes, and so do the five dollars he paid to get married gives him the right to take everything.

I am a good wife, many men wouldn't know what to do. Would you advise me to take my furniture and move out and go back to work? I have been alone for fifteen years and was happy.

Always Unhappy.

Please be satisfied with one love another day until you put your affairs in order. Your income people keep telling my girl things about my you have not the money to employ a good lawyer, go to the Legal Aid Society, the Domestic Relations Court or similiar organization in your city. From the tone of her letter, I infer you are one of those amiable women born to be exploited.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHEAM

Girl's Public "Face-Fixing" Distinguished Man

You'll never get to really clever girl overdoing this hurtness of "making up" when she is with a man. She may give one quick peek at herself in her vanity mirror, one quick and inconspicuous use of her powder puff. But no smart girl continually looks at herself in her vanity mirror, turning her head this way and that to see that everything is to her liking; dabbing or splashing the powder on her nose and cheeks while she pulls her mouth down in monkey-like grimaces, fusses with her hair, pulls it here and pushing it back there, smoothing down here somewhere, applying her lipstick and pulling the lips together to achieve the desired roundness.

You won't see a really bright girl doing this. Why not? In the first place, she knows it's not good form and she knows that mannerisms is an important asset to her. But perhaps more important to her success of romance, she realizes that all this fussing detracts pitifully from her beauty. It's a sure way of dissipating her beauty. If he has any sense or sensitiveness at all, he'll begin to wonder why all this making up and consider it unnecessary. What, he will begin to wonder, does this girl look like without her make-up?

He'd like to talk with this girl he's invited to dine with him. But the minute he starts a conversation, out comes the vanity-case and she's at it again. All those pleasant qualities he hoped she'd have charm and cleverness, courtesy, a warm-hearted awareness of another person's merits, interest in something besides her own physical appearance—all these graces she abandons while she's busily prinking.

Yes, "disillusioning" is probably the word that's beating at his consciousness. His pride is hurt, his interest has cooled. And Romance, which may have been hovering around the corner, slinks dejectedly away.

Telephone Courtesy Tip

When you telephone to a person to ask for a favor or to get some information and the person is not at home, it is obviously more polite to leave a message that you will "call again" than to ask the person to call you. Then properly, you'll ask for only one favor, not two!

The Stars Say

For Thursday, April 3
By GRENVILLE KLEISER

THIS DAY may be notable for the introduction of some new influences or intriguing variations to tax and perhaps, judging by certain conflicting planetary configurations. Sudden opportunities for change, innovations or other breaking away from routine may be looked for. Elders and work seem to be concerned, and while benefits and growth may be counted upon, yet there may be signs of treachery, subtlety and chaotic thinking and ill advised action.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which sudden opportunities for gainful change, new work, innovations and reforms may materialize and assure growth, enhanced possessions and financial success. But there are signs of pitfalls, snares, intrigue.

A child born on this day should be clever, ingenious, original and hard working, probably along lines of research, invention or other professional vocations. It may have a subtle mind but be sadly imposed upon.

White Slave Ring Probed In Montreal

Montreal, April 3 (CP)—Deputy Director Louis Jargalle, Chief of Provincial Police Detectives, announced last night an extensive white slave ring in the city had been broken with the arrest of an Hallidaytown woman who jet the outfit and the detention for questioning of 36 other women.

Jargalle said the leader of the ring lived separately in an expensive apartment in neighboring Westmount and would be arraigned in court today. He said it was necessary to withhold her name.

"We began investigating eight days ago and made the principal arrest three days ago," he said. "Information has been obtained to show that a number of young girls from country districts near Montreal and from the city itself have been victimized by a ring we believe to be in existence...."

Simultaneous raids have been made for several days on a number of suspected premises and 58 women have been detained for questioning and arraignment in court. No arrests in this case have been made but we have broken a nefarious scheme which has been in operation for some time."

"ALL SOLDIERS WELCOME"

In this Knights of Columbus Canadian Army hut at Camp Borden, Ont., soldiers of every denomination are welcomed. Meeting picture shows, concerts, small games—from tennis to checkers—and reading and writing facilities are made available to thousands of men each week. In K. of C. army camps in Canada and overseas such huts bid "All Soldiers Welcome."

K. of C. Army Huts, Important Factor in Maintaining Good Spirit Of Fighting Forces

Provide Canadians in Uniform With Comforts, Recreation and Homelike Places Where They Can Enjoy Home Life Movies, Writing Paper, Candy Cigarettes, Athletic Equipment, Games, Included in Free Gifts

Providing Canadians in uniform with comforts, recreation and homelike places where they may enjoy the pleasure of social life ranks almost equally with the provision of munitions and supplies, in the opinion of Frank C. McDonagh, chairman, Toronto district, K. of C. Canadian Army Huts. Mr. McDonagh, a veteran of the last war and the Knights of Columbus huts were as important a factor in maintaining the good spirits of the men in this war as in the last.

"On a recent Saturday night I dropped in at the K. of C. Huts at Barriefield Camp. I was very comfortable and warm. The writing room was filled with our grand young Canadians in uniform, writing home to their folks. In one corner there were a couple of very serious games of ping-pong being played, and in another, a keen contest of darts was occupying the attention of a large group; he said.

"It was a cold night and the wind was sweeping in from Lake Ontario across historic Fort Henry, and the free cups of the warm coffee and cocoa were much appreciated. As I looked into the faces of these young men who are protecting those of us who must stay at home, I wondered just how much the people of Canada realized the place these auxiliary services have in the lives of our men, particularly those in the front line of Britain.

"To us in civilian life, an extra cigarette, a chocolate bar, a cup of hot cocoa, a movie, may seem a small and unimportant thing, but to the men undergoing hardships and fearing death for us, the men who have given up the creature comforts that we take for commonplace, the value of these little items is beyond calculation.

"In the 46 K. of C. Huts in Canada, the slogan over the entrance is 'All Soldiers Welcome.' Wherever there are Canadian forces in Canada, Iceland, Newfoundland, and England, you will find a Knights of Columbus hut or mobile tea wagon, ready to serve all, regardless of their religious affiliations."

There are other K. of C. services. Movies are provided free in 25 camps, and at six outlying forts. Four million sheets of writing paper, 1,500,000 envelopes, candy, and cigarettes have been given away. Athletic equipment, games, radios, pianos, have been provided to scores of camps.

Two thousand dollars worth of soldiers' comforts were shipped to out boys in Iceland; $10,000 was spent in similar work in Newfoundland. Plans are under way to extend the K. of C. services to several new Air Force schools.

In Great Britain, 19 supervisors are working directly with the Canadian forces providing recreation, sports, motion pictures, etc. In addition to supplies purchased in England, the Knights of Columbus every month ship 500,000 cigarettes, 15,000 chocolate bars, 5,000 pounds of magazines, and thousands of pounds of coffee, tea and sugar, from Canada. Last Christmas 800,000 cigarettes were distributed overseas.

Thirty-three units have been provided with orchestra instruments; sewing service is maintained in many points; meals and lodgings are given to men on leave; in 14 of 39 military camps the K. of C. has been asked to provide service or canteens.

Six war service organizations which ordinarily appeal separately for funds have united in one nation-wide drive for $5,500,000 under the name of "The Canadian War Services Fund." Included in the campaign, which will open March 26, are the Canadian Legion, I.O.D.E., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

We were eating supper, tasting ester good on account of ma having made it on account of being Nora's day off on account of being Thursday, and ma said, O deer, I dont mind the actual preparation of the meal, it's the proverbial clearing up afterwards that's the dark side of the silver lining.

Dont give it another thought, we'll pitch in like good fellows and practically do all the work, said my self. Benny? pop said, and I said, Sure, G.

Well that's a grain of relief, I admit, ma said, It oughtn't to take any time if you really pitch in and you say like a couple of Trojan horses, she said, and pop said, Those horses, she said, and pop said, Those dishes are practically washed, wiped and put away right now. Benny and I are experienced kitchin assistants and we're raring to go. Many a the time we've helped to make order out of kayoss back in the old kitchin. Do you remember the time I dropped the lid of the sugar bowl and Benny caught it before it touched the floor? What reasonwork, he said.

Dont remind me for land sakes, ma said. If you break the lid of a nice like that the whole thing might as well be discarded—for all practical purposes, she said, and I said, Sure, pop, you might as well of dropped the bowl instead of the lid. Jimminy, that would of made it still more exciting without making it any more dangerous, I said.

To drop the receptacle to my self I should of dropped both the bowl and the lid, though I dount if Benny could of caught them both pop said, and I said, Sure I could, pop, you just drop them sometime.

Now that's enough, if you want to drop anything sis drop the whole shebang, he said. Thats more fun!! is one of our last remaining perishable wedding presents, I wish I could remember who gave it to us. If you both dont mind, I think I'll do the clearing up without your valuable assistance, as usual, she said.

With she did, pop and I staying in the dining room and singing Roll Out the Barrll We'll Have a Barrll of Fun to keep her entertained.

Could Not Wear Her Shoes Joints Were So Sore, Swollen

Also Had Bad Stomach, Gas, Cramps, Bilious Spells and Constipation — Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

MRS. BESSIE HERRIMAN

Because of the way Syntona has helped me, I am glad of this opportunity to recommend it to others,' said Mrs. Bessie Herriman, 195 Wellington St., South Hamilton, in a recent report.

"For the past two years, I was in a terribly miserable condition. My joints in my feet and hands were stiff and sore, my feet and ankles were so swollen that I had to wear large shoes and sometimes couldn't wear shoes on at all. I was also troubled with constipation and stomach disorders. After meals I would have a full, bloated feeling and cramps. Sometimes I had bilious spells and would vomit. I was nervous and could not sleep although my system had lost a lot of sleep because of the pains and felt generally rundown and miserable.

"Since I have been taking Syntona, I am entirely free from constipation and feel better than I had known in years. The pains have gone out of my joints and the swelling has gone down to where I can wear my regular shoes with ease. I got relief from the constipation and stomach troubles, sleep better and feel better in every way. My eyes are clear now, whereas previously I used to get spells when I could see spots floating before my eyes.

Go to Dolan, The Druggist, Belleville, today and get yourself a treatment of Syntona. You, too, may receive those priceless benefits.

Red Shield Mobile Canteen On View Here Dispenses Doughnuts And Coffee

Belleville residents today saw one of the splendidly equipped Mobile Canteens used by the War Service Organizations for the fighting services at home and abroad in action.

The unit bearing the famous Red Shield of the Salvation Army is one of fifteen now in service in Canada. A number have already been sent overseas, while fifteen more are under construction and will be assigned for duty to the Third Canadian Division.

The famous Salvation Army doughnut, dear to the heart of veterans of the first Great War, was served to residents of the city across the counter of the unit. Fifty dozen of the edibles made at the Toronto Exhibition Service centre of the Salvation Army found their way to the stomachs of admiring residents when the canteen travelled through the city stopping at various points to allow inspection and the "treat" of coffee and doughnuts in exactly the same manner as they are served to the fighting forces.

The coffee was generously donated by the Gold Medal Company through the local branch of the National Grocers.

Fully Equipped

Fully equipped, the canteens are the last word in service for the officer and duty parade of the troops. The Red Shield unit today, was the centre of attraction for hundreds of residents as Major K. M. Barr, Salvation Army superintendent of free Toronto Service Centres demonstrated the facilities of the unit.

Together with Private Ray Palmer, R.C.A.S.C., an American who served with the Canadians overseas and was invalided home, Major Barr dispensed coffee and doughnuts until pointed out the many advantages contained in the compact canteen.

A radio brought in the news of the day besides musical entertainment. A compact cylindrical, gasafe heater in an out-of-the-way corner, in which money and valuables of the troops can be placed. A portable gasoline stove stands ready for emergencies.

Large Coffee Flasks

On a shelf at the front end of the unit are eight two-gallon thermos flasks for the coffee. At the back gasoline stoves heat two eight - gallon water tanks, capable of producing coffee for instant serving to 350 men. On nearby shelves are cigarettes, chocolate bars, biscuits, chewing gum and other sweetmeats dear to the hearts of the troops, while immediately in front of the tasty doughnuts.

At the right rear of the unit is installed a miniature office room where letters can be mailed by the troops.

The Mobile Canteen is here in conjunction with the local campaign for the War Service Organizations.

Tomorrow, a similar unit, operated by the Y.M.C.A. will arrive in the city for inspection and later it will be driven on a tour of surrounding towns and villages where rural and other residents will be given an opportunity to view the units that are doing such splendid work not only for the fighting services in Canada and other parts of the Empire but the war-stricken victims of British.

GOVT ALLEGES

Washington, April 3 (AP) — Unmoved by the more vigorous axis protests, the United States held to its intention today of investigating the sabotage of seized German and Italian ships and prosecuting persons responsible.

The new protests—the second since the "protective" seizure of 30 axis merchantmen last weekend—may cause some delay in the formal reply being prepared by the State Department, it was said, but will not alter this government's position that its action was fully justified.

Western hemisphere waters, meanwhile, became the grave of two more German vessels, raising the total of axis shipping losses to 19 for the last four days.

The two Nazi vessels which fled Callao, Peru, on Monday without sailing papers were located in flames 200 miles at sea. There were no lifeboats left on the sinking hulks and no trace of their crews. It was uncertain whether the ships had been fired and abandoned, or whether they had fallen prey to an armed Canadian auxiliary known to be operating in the vicinity.

Many Make Ready to Leave

Further south on the west coast of South America another German freighter put to sea from Talcahuano, Chile. Three other Nazi ships in Chilean ports also made ready to leave.

As an ever larger number of axis merchantmen were afflicted by the new "protective" seizure policy, not all the diplomatic notes were originated in Rome or Berlin. The government of Venezuela lodged strong protests with axis envoys at Caracas last night because of the burning and scuttling of four German and Italian ships in Venezuelan waters.

Sabotage Termed "Deliberate"

Venezuela termed the sabotage "deliberate", a "scandalous" violation of hospitality, and "a premeditated crime which is punishable by our laws."

The Yokohama harbor will be given nearly seven square miles of protected anchorage with the completion of a new breakwater outside the two present breakwaters.

Sees New Generation of Warriors

Gen. John J. Pershing, who commanded the A.E.F. in the last war, is shown arriving at Fort Sam Houston to occupy a ringside seat at a big army maneuver in the Texas pines. Fourteen thousand men and some two thousand motor vehicles, including artillery units and engineers, participated in the review.

Meanwhile, Mexican authorities announced that they had thwarted a plot last night to add nine more vessels to the axis ship graveyard destroyed in western hemisphere waters since Sunday. The vessels were taken over by authorities Tuesday, but their German and Italian crews were ordered to remain aboard.

The plan, officials said, was to destroy the ships some time during the night. The officers were lured ashore by a ruse and immediately arrested. Then the crews were promptly moved and placed in custody. German seamen on one ship resisted but were overpowered by armed marines. A T.N.T. bomb was reported found in the exhaust pipe of one tanker.

The Nazi axis protests to the United States, delivered yesterday, took special exception to the action of authorities in impounding crew members from the seized vessels.

GEORGE S. HENRY RAPS HEPBURN ON HYDRO POLICY

Charges Power Sold to Messena, N.Y., at a 'Loss' From Ontario Plant

DEBATE ADJOURNED

Toronto, April 3 (CP)— Former Premier George S. Henry will resume his address in the budget debate in the Ontario Legislature today and the assembly looked for a renewal of the criticisms and witticisms of the veteran Conservative member for East York.

For nearly three hours last night Mr. Henry lashed at and ridiculed in turn the Liberal Government of the cabinet. With his voice growing weak and the hour getting late he received permission to adjourn his address but he was about to embark upon his remarks concerning the budget.

The extent of his address he charged that Premier Hepburn was seeking to "sell" the report of a hydro electric power to Massena, N.Y., at a "loss" by permitting himself with "a flag."

Power under this cost the Hydro Electric Commission $13 per horsepower at a 70-load factor was being sold at the international boundary line for $14.50 per horsepower at a 90-load factor, Mr. Henry's opinion, he declared, paid the cost of transmission to the New York point.

Making Abominum

(Earlier Mr. Hepburn said the power, which he said was recalculable, was being sold to electric and manufacturing aluminum parts for British airplanes. A representative of the Aluminum Company Corporation in the United States had asked, he said, that the additional power be made available to the plant.

"I presume the Prime Minister will cover himself with a flag and decide whether or not axis shipping is doing to help win the war," remarked Mr. Henry.

Mr. Henry declared hydro had been given away. The present government took office with the result that the province had the apparent reserve of power in the province.

Mr. Henry declared Premier Hepburn's "boast" that the largest sum ever voted to education was to be given this year was only half the truth.

Actually only 12 cents of every dollar collected was to be devoted to education in 1941, while in 1931 and 1934 it ranged from 20 to 22 cents on the dollar.

"I charge the Prime Minister with being indifferent to education, particularly to universities," declared the former Prime Minister.

The Prime Minister should get not $13,000,000 but $20,000,000.

Secondary Schools Slighted

Mr. Henry said it was the cost of secondary school education that was partly responsible for the heavy taxation in the municipalities and it was the government's responsibility to aid in this expense.

"It is one of the tragedies of life when an ambitious boy and girl cannot get a proper education because of lack of money," he said as he advocated a system of scholarships "to help these young people along they way."

Mr. Henry criticized what he said were "extravagances" by the Niagara Parks Commission and declared $600 was spent on a hen house at the park.

"My friend is talking nonsense," interjected Hon. T. B. McQuesten, chairman of the commission.

"Oh no I'm not and I'll show him it is black and white," replied Mr. Henry.

Another $2,500 was spent in a park opening "that must have been a great jamboree for the commission's friends."

Keep Up With Joneses Henry Charges

Mr. Henry deplored the building of dual four lane highways and said Mr. McQuesten's sole ambition was to build roads on a par with those in the United States—roads that served a population of more than 100,000,000 as against Ontario's population is only 3,500,000. (3,752,000 last census).

"He is just trying to keep up with the Joneses," he remarked.

The 74 miles of the Queen Elizabeth Way had cost $18,000 a mile and it was "extravagances" like that which prevented the province from paying for its highways.

"The people in this province want economy in highway expenditure," Mr. Henry asserted.

Mr. Henry wondered whether it had been advisable for the government to pay freight charges for western feed grain when there was so much grain in the province that could be transported to those points where a need existed.

He said he agreed with the House opposition leader, Col. George A. Drew, that there was a necessity for a Dominion-Provincial conference on agriculture.

Needs Careful Study

"Agriculture is sorely in need of a careful study," he added.

He declared that non-enforcement of the speed laws in the province was primarily responsible for the numerous highway fatalities. Responsibility for this non-enforcement, he said, rested upon Attorney-General Gordon Conant who had control of the highway police.

Parliament Hears Howe Report On Dominion's Shipbuilding Industry

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 3 (CP) — Britain's wartime demand for cargo ships drew a response in both houses of parliament yesterday as Senators and members of the Commons urged "all-out" efforts to build such vessels in Canada.

The debate in the House drew from Munitions Minister Howe the statement that expansion of the shipbuilding industry in Canada has been and will be rapid but that it must be orderly, with expansion of supervision along with increases in the number of workmen employed.

The discussion in the Commons took place on the $135,000,000 supplementary war appropriation bill for the last fiscal year which will be considered further today. Finance Minister Ilsley expressed hope the bill, as well as other supplementary estimates for 1940-41, could be passed before the Easter recess.

The debate grew sharp at times as opposition members charged there was contradiction between a statement on shipbuilding made the night before by Prime Minister Mackenzie and Mr. Howe's remarks yesterday.

Mr. Howe said ships would be built as rapidly as possible consistent with safety, but declared that there was no immediate intention of opening new yards.

"It is the intention to use existing yards to the fullest extent and to build additional berths where additional berths can be built and can be maintained after the war, but only after that, to explore the allocation as regards the shipyards," said Mr. Howe.

20 Contracts For Merchant Ships

Mr. Howe said up to the present 20 contracts had been placed for 10,000-ton standard British type merchant ship construction programme, being placed in "especially good capable hands" and he hoped soon to be able to announce the list which would be made with the approval of the House.

The British government has spoken for the output of certain ships," he said, but the Canadian government is going to have the output of the ships for the war.

Opening of the steel plate mill at Sydney, Mr. Howe said, was expected at the moment because no ingots were yet available as raw material, all the output of the Sydney steel plants going to the United Kingdom.

Plans Now Complete

Plans now were being drawn, however, for completion of the open hearth furnace at Sydney which would make operating of the plate mill possible. The minister said an open hearth furnace would cost $1,500,000 and take eight months to build. It would take 18 months to get the plate mill in operation.

Prime Minister Mackenzie said the failure of Nova Scotia builders to obtain contracts for Fairmile boats had in no way held up the war effort, because other yards were able to do the work. He repudiated an accusation by Clarence Gillis (CCF, Cape Breton South) that in his speech Monday night he had implied the builders were saboteurs or were trying to make more profits than other yards.

Need Cargo Ships

Senator C. C. Ballantyne, (Conservative) during debate in the Upper House, said Canada's "great need of the hour" was cargo ships.

"Large cargo boats can be built in eight or nine months" he said. "We could also build three or four cargo ships for what it would cost to build a destroyer.

"We should give up the idea of building warships and concentrate on building cargo boats."

The Senator defended the shipbuilding program in the first Great War under Sir Robert Borden's Union government. He said a recent charge by Munitions Minister Howe that the program had been "haphazard" was "not only unfounded and unfair, but totally inaccurate."

He suggested Mr. Howe should call in shipbuilding heads for a conference, instead of sending the director of shipbuilding scurrying across the country to investigate facilities.

Findings Of Board Will Not Be Given

St. John's, Nfld., April 3 — (CP Cable)—The Newfoundland government has received the report of a special court of inquiry that investigated the plane crash in which Sir Percival Bowring and two others were killed, but it will not be made public in this country.

"It has been decided by the government that publication of the report would not be in the public interest," a government statement said last night. The report was submitted by a court composed of three judges and experts which investigated the Feb. 21 crash at the request of the Newfoundland government.

Sir Frederick, on his way to England in a plane built in the United States, was killed with two of his staff when the plane, when it crashed near Musgrave Harbor, Nfld.

Findings of the inquiry, the government said, had been studied with purely technical considerations affecting the immediate and underlying causes of the accident." It was also copies of the report were being sent to the governments of Canada and the United Kingdom.

MONEY RAINS IN STREETS

New York, April 3 (AP)— Down on the Bowery, where anything with 15 cents is a veritable corpus, they have dreamed of days for years.

Yesterday in the streets. A robber who had snatched $150 from a storekeeper fell dropped all but $10 as he fled. He was captured after a four-block chase. Of seven of bohos who joined in the pursuit, not one could be found to explain what happened to the rest.

BUGLING A SOFT JOB

Camp Bowie, Tex., April 2 (AP) —The job of bugling for the boys in the 36th division cut of bed is, more or less, a pipe. The bugler simply reaches under his cot, leans back on his pillow and blows the notes right in a forward inspiration. Four large amplifiers placed about the post do the rest.

FIG. 2

Cut extended portion from the Thin (Flank) Side to provide a flat, stable surface parallel to the Ham bone on which to rest Ham for carving.

FIG. 3

Lay piece thus removed to one side for later use. Meat is to be served cold. Makes tasty luncheon dishes.

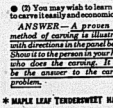

FIG. 4

Turn Ham over so that it stands firmly on the cut surface made in Fig. 2, preferably with generous platter to hold juices. Then cut a couple of slices from the shank end as illustrated above.

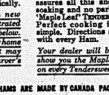

FIG. 5

Now begin to slice almost parallel to the bone, as indicated, starting at the thin bones. These slices will all be cut across the grain of the meat.

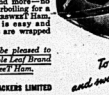

FIG. 6

Remove and serve the slices cut in Fig. 5, then turn Ham on its side.

FIG. 7

Repeat slicing as in Fig. 5, until you come to the shank bone. Then cut about 2 inches from the round end of Ham.

FIG. 8

Now turn the Ham back to original position 1. Carve the shank end, finishing at the shank bone. Remove slices from the round end, following along the bone as before.

● Without Ham for Easter Sunday, it would hardly seem like Easter. For in Canada, Ham is the traditional meat for the Easter Season. So, here's what we suggest:

● (1) You will wish to choose a Ham that is sure to be tender, of sweet flavour, and easy to cook (no parboiling).

ANSWER—Just ask your Butcher or Grocer for a "Maple Leaf" Tendersweet Ham.

● (2) You may wish to learn how to carve it easily and economically.

ANSWER—A proven new method of carving is illustrated with directions in the panel below. Show it to the person in your home who does the carving. It may be the answer to the carver's problem.

● But first, be sure to choose a "Maple Leaf" TENDERSWEET Ham. You will find it considerably more than just a Ham. You will find it plump and tender. You will find its delicate flavour distinctive. Its sweetness will make your mouth water. The new and scientific process by which TENDERSWEET Hams are cured and smoked assures all this and more—no soaking and no parboiling for a "Maple Leaf" TENDERSWEET Ham. Perfect cooking is easy and simple. Directions are wrapped with every Ham.

Your dealer will be pleased to show you the Maple Leaf Brand on every Tendersweet Ham.

Toronto Leafs And Boston Face Do-Or-Die N. H. L. Tussle In Seventh Game Of Their Series

Sudden Death Game Will be Played in Boston With Bruins Favored as the Winners

A TOUGH SERIES

Jack Church Will Replace Bingo Kampman on the Defence for Toronto Leafs

Boston, April 3 (CP)—After one of the hardest-fought Stanley Cup playoff series on record, either Toronto Maple Leafs or Boston Bruins comes to the end of the road tonight and the other will advance into the Cup final against the waiting Detroit Red Wings.

Each with three victories, Leafs and Bruins will meet before an overflow crowd at Boston Garden in the vital seventh game, a game that the Bruins earned when they downed the boys and defeated the Leafs at Toronto Tuesday night in the sixth game.

When Toronto won here last Saturday night and needed only a single victory to take the semi-final, gloomy Boston fans were resigned to a defeat in Toronto and the end of the Boston season.

But today as they besieged the ticket windows at Boston Garden all that was forgotten. They believed the Bruins had found themselves after having been upset by the loss of centre Bill Cowley.

In this unusual series, the Bruins won their first game at home by a shutout, 2-0. But the next two games here were Toronto victories, 5-3 and 3-1, in overtime. Intermingled with these games were a Toronto victory at home, 7-3, and two Boston victories in Maple Leaf Gardens, both by 2-1 scores.

The Leafs, established again at their University Club headquarters, are expected to put Jack Church back beside Wally Stanowski on the defence. They kept Church out of Tuesday's game due to a knee injury, and Bingo Kampman, who played in his place, was uncertain and out of condition after a long layoff with a damaged foot.

The Bruins built their confidence on two major factors:

1. Little Bobby Blake, who suffers a deep cup in the instep in the first game, has finally recovered his full effectiveness. He scored a goal in the sixth game.

2. Mel Hill, the "sudden death" hero of the Bruins' 1939 Stanley Cup victory, has unexpectedly proved himself a sound centre player. He was injected into Cowley's place between Roy Conacher and Eddie Wiseman Tuesday and played a stout game, completely tying up dangerous Bill Taylor, Leaf centre.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, April 3 (AP)—A win for Lou Nova over Max Baer tonight would be a swell birthday present for his manager, Jay Carlen....Claude Passeau, the Cubs' pitching ace, deducted for two dead mules in his income tax and says he will dig 'em up if anybody thinks it's a gag....Zeke Bonura, who was sold to Minneapolis, still is moping in New Orleans.

One sure bet:

A remarkable man is Maxie Baer. The great big man who's in our hair.

Against Lou Nova he may look awful

But win or lose, he'll talk a lawful.

Under threat of a $10 fine, Pee-wee Reese and Reiser of their Dodgers have shaved off attempts at mustaches....Joe Medwick, the swaggering again with a 17-game hitting streak that included four homers in the last four days.

Abe Simon has made 40 personal appearances since his shindig with Louis....Derby winter books are getting a heavy play on Paimond. Big English importation of E. P. Woodward, Texas oil man....Jack Keating sent a long letter to Dempsey trying to explain that news-paper interview in which he said Joe Louis could lick the Manassa mauler of old.

Baer took $2,000 to $1,000 he would kay Nova.

ST. LOUIS FLYERS PULL SURPRISE

Faced With	Score	Elimination	Win Over
Kansas City	4-3	In Overtime

St. Louis, April 3 (CP)—St. Louis Flyers, faced with the brink of elimination after losing the first two games of the best-of-five American Hockey Association final playoffs to Kansas City, came back into the running for the championship last night by winning the important third game from the Americans 3-2 in the fourth overtime period.

A goal by Freddy Hergert with the help of Leo Carbol in 1:45 of the fourth overtime session was the game-winning blow. The Flyers previously had taken a 2-0 lead in the last five minutes of first period play. At 15:26 of the period Fido Purpur opened the scoring with a drive on a set-up by Carbol. Four seconds before the period ended, N. Smith of the Yanks got the second goal.

Sydney Weakened For First Tussle With Montreal Royals

Montreal, April 3 (CP)—Bill Gill, coach of Sydney Millionaires, said last night that Goaler Mel Snowdon, a forward, would see action in the second game of their best-of-five Allan Cup semi-final series with Montreal Royals.

Snowdon, down with a Charley horse muscle in Sydney's series with Halifax Navy for the Maritime championship, will start the game, Gill said, tonight. Gill said. The second game will be in Montreal Saturday night.

Frank Carlin, Royals' coach, said he will use the same team that appeared against Toronto Marlboros in the last game of their series. That meant Johnny Mahaffy, who covered second for the Leafs, will help Royals defeat Marlboros 6-1 in that game, will still be on the Royals' bench.

Both teams will leave for Ottawa Wednesday morning. After that they will sleep in railways cars that will be hooked on to a train leaving Ottawa for Montreal Friday morning. Millionaires decided to sleep in a railway car because they were unable to secure accommodation in crowded Ottawa hotels, but the Royals insisted that players be treated whenever they played in Quebec Senior League games there.

SKATING STAR IN ARMY

Toronto, April 3 (CP)—Ralph McOrath of Toronto, Canadian and Ontario American figure skating champion, has been commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps and will report at Brockville, Ont., for Active Service early Friday.

McOrath, 21, at present taking part in a skating carnival at New York.

BILL SUMMERHILL TO HELP BARONS

Flashy Right Winger for Cleveland to See Action Against Hershey

Cleveland, April 3— (AP)—Bill Summerhill, flashy right wing of the Cleveland Barons, will be back in the lineup tonight against Hershey Bears in what the Barons hope will be their last local appearance of the hockey season.

The contest will be the second of the best-of-five-game playoff series for the American League championship, with the third and fourth games scheduled for Hershey Saturday and Tuesday. The Barons hope to split three games this season, the four, making a fifth here unnecessary.

Home ice always gives a supposed advantage, but the Barons were forced into an overtime Tuesday night to win the first game, 4-3.

Summerhill was out of the lineup Tuesday night with an ulcerated tooth.

Joe Jerwa, the defence man who scored 19 goals during the season, is out with a broken hand, and Goalie Joe Roberts is on the bench with a bad ankle.

Alfie Moore, who tended the net in the opener, will replace Roberts again.

Sports Campaign Pushed By Leader Of Second Division

Somewhere in England, April 3 (CP)—This spring the 2nd Canadian Division will be fit as Guards in a big way.

Between route marches, weapon training, drills and exercises, an important athletic program is launched. Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum is determined to have his men as hardy as possible and is rushing the sports campaign.

A divisional order sent to all formations and units by a senior staff officer's headquarters reads: "The successful campaign in Libya was made possible by the splendid physical condition of our troops. Sports training is an important factor in the physical development of the soldier and the General Officer Commanding is not satisfied that the best results have so far been obtained from this training.

"It is therefore requested that sports programs be reviewed by all commanders, and unit commanders. The G.O.C. also directs that all officers take an active interest in sports training."

The details of the drive have been encouraging. Boxing shows were held, cross country races staged and soccer leagues put into full swing. Softball first entered the camps.

The men welcomed the new sports activities, and scores of young officers joined the men on the playing fields.

The four auxiliary services aid the program with equipment and help in organization through the supervising officers. Gordon Gould of London, Ont., Y.M.C.A. supervisor as Divisional Headquarters, is directing.

Basketball

Running up a rather one-sided score, the Belleville "Y" senior cagers defeated the "6.A.R.D." hoopsters 63 to 21 in the final scheduled game in the Y.M.C.A. War Service Basketball League last evening. The quintette now will meet the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" in the league finals.

Jack Dickens returned to the "Y" fold to bounce the locals on a torrid attack that netted him 17 points. Cole, Saunders and Dufresne also were well up in the locals' scoring in a walk-away score. The locals netted 24 points to the Airmen's seven in the first half. Croucher and Black were the best for the losers.

The line-ups: "Y"—Tenghetti, Croucher 6, Reid 4, Black 8, Jackson 2, and Wilburn 2. Belleville "Y"—Wickerson 4, Cole 14, Saunders 12, Dufresne 13, Robertson 2, Pudgeon 10 and Marsakas 4.

Referee—Cliff Yerex; umpire—Ed Shorts.

In the "Y" basketball league play-offs, which commence next Monday, the Crusaders will meet the Musketeers in the girls' finals, while Belleville "Y" will play the "Fliers" in the War Service finals. During the course of the "Fliers" and "Y" quintettes have won seven games apiece.

JUNIOR ROYALS, OSHAWA TO MEET FOR EAST TITLE

Montreal Eliminates Ottawa and Oshawa Generals Take Marlboros

SENIOR ROYALS IN

(By The Canadian Press)

Two tickets to fame in Eastern Canada's junior hockery finals were clutched today by Montreal Royals, with the payoff nearing in both senior and junior divisions.

The myriad of aspirants for the right to represent the east in the Dominion finals has been weeded to two clubs each in the Allan and Memorial Cup divisions. Half of each eastern final ticket is held by the Royals.

The Senior Royals, three times on the Allan Cup trail in the past three years, set the wheel spinning again tonight at Ottawa. Their opponents in the best-of-five series are Sydney Millionaires, the highly-touted sextet from Cape Breton who have four members of last season's champion Kirkland Lake Blue Devils on their roster.

"The Royals are trying for a crack at Gerbec's Cup," Carlen said. "It years in their series with Sydney. The drought is but a short dry spell compared with the province's junior racket, however, where Quebec has never held the title in 29 year of Memorial Cup play.

In fact, the Junior Royals will be attempting to take the province into the Dominion final for the first time in their eastern final with Oshawa Generals Nov. 25 and their third straight Memorial Cup as representative of Quebec.

Both Clubs Impressive

Both the Royals and the Generals gained the final last night and each did it impressively. The Royals ran up a 12-2 score to eliminate the Ottawa Senior and District champions, at Ottawa while the Generals won their title by defeating the Marlboros at Toronto, 8-4, over the Marlboros at Toronto.

First team to win two straight Cups, Oshawa has been regaled this season by the reduction of key men and elevation of others to the senior ranks. They have strong replacements, however, built about a nucleus of last year's winners.

Leading the way in the final game of their series with Marlboros was their first-string centre, Bill Ezinicki, one of three second-year men—Wally Stanowski, McAtee and Bob Sawyer. The unit counted for a total of 12 points.

High-scorer for the Junior Royals all Ottawa was Buddy Bowcott of the Cards' regular nine will be new-Walker Gouger will do the catching share of the catching, with Steve Mesner at third base and Jackie Walker in left field.

CLEVELAND— The Indians are holding Murray Howell, International league batting champion, and Jim Bagby, Jr., pitching ace, until Tom Hegan likely will be kept as catcher for Cleveland.

DETROIT — The Tigers plan to use Bill Ferrell in left with Barney and Robert N. Harris, who hit .312 for Beaumont last year, at second baseman.

WASHINGTON — George Archie, veteran fielding first baseman in the Pacific Coast league, appeared to have clinched first with the Senators.

NEW YORK — It's sort of strange to find a flock of rookies filled at practically every position on high-flying Yankees. But Joe McCarthy is doing just that during this spring. Phil Rizzuto, shortstop (unless he's drafted), is the only one who definite dates for start of all games in the play-off series.

Many Amendments Ready For Meeting Of Baseball Assoc.

Toronto, Apr. 3 (CP)—An amendment to allow clubs to sign players after the season has ended to replace men who have enlisted in the Canadian armed forces will be among those in the Minor District and the Toronto Baseball Association when April 5.

William J. Snyder, Secretary of the Association said that two other proposals would come before the meeting. One is from the Inter-County Association to change the rule to allow players making their last season in their respective groups to advance to clubs in a higher league in the O.B.A., playdowns, regardless of whether they participated in the O.B.A. playoffs.

The second proposal, also from the Inter-County Association seeks an amendment to make the Senior O.B.A. play-off games take the form of a round-robin series between the winners of all senior groups, also that the O.B.A. set a definite date for start of all games in the play-off series.

Memorial Cup Survivors

(By The Canadian Press)

Four teams remained today in contention for the Canadian Junior Hockey Championship and Memorial Cup with finalists known in both eastern and western sections. Montreal Royals and Ottawa Canadiens were eliminated last night.

The Survivors

East—
Quebec—Montreal.
Ontario—Oshawa.

West—
Manitoba—Winnipeg.
Saskatchewan—Saskatoon.

BERLIN CLAIMS 11 SHIPS SUNK

Berlin, April 3 (AP)—The German High Command claimed today that its planes and submarines had sunk 11 merchant vessels totalling 77,300 tons.

Six of the vessels—large tankers —were claimed to have been sunk by Nazi combat planes yesterday at the entrance to St. George's Channel between Wales and Ireland.

Five other ships totalling 33,300 tons were claimed to have been sunk by a submarine in attacks on a convoy in the North Atlantic.

(Confirmation of or comment on these claims was not available from British or independent sources.)

Between the Lines

By Jan J. Colling

With the major baseball leagues all time—Gerald Priddy and Phil Rizzuto—the New York Yankees will be a master of ten days here are a few of the rookie players who seem headed towards stardom with their respective clubs.

Let's look at them by clubs:

BROOKLYN—Hal Reniff, pitcher; Pete Reiser, played a third of last year with the Dodgers, is a good outfield bet.

CINCINNATI — Dick West, up from Indianapolis, will do part of the Reds' backstopping.

PHILADELPHIA — Hard-hitting Dick Allen is set at first base, while Lee Handley and Stan Benjamin play Llewellyn and Ross Hemsley likely to be among the flychasers.

ST. LOUIS — Creighton Hof of the Cards' regular nine will be new-Walker Gouger will do the catching share of the catching, with Steve Mesner at third base and Jackie Walker in left field.

CLEVELAND — The Indians are holding Murray Howell, International league batting champion, and Jim Bagby, Jr., pitching ace, until Tom Hegan likely will be kept as catcher for Cleveland.

Phil Rizzuto, shortstop (unless he's drafted), is the only one who definite dates for start of all games in the play-off series.

Do you remember when New York Rangers whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3 a year ago tonight to take the two-game lead in their Stanley Cup final series. Leafs came back to take the next two games and level the series but Rangers won the fifth and sixth games and the cup.

This evening a delegation of softball interests will meet with the Exhibition Park to view the proposed new softball diamonds, as suggested by Parks Commissioner C. B. Colling at a recent meeting of the Exhibition Park Commission. President Ted Schwab and Treasurer Jack Hall of the Minor Ladies' Softball League and Secretary Harry Knell and Alderman Harry Rollins of the Senior City Softball League have been invited to join the delegation and view the proposed changes, while inclined the shifting of the present diamond ale more closer to the grandstand. Actually what ball fans desire is a closer connection to the action in game and more particularly to be in close enough proximinity to give the participants the well-known Brass critics' and make it stick. Whether the Exhibition Grounds is desirable for softball still doubtless be decided after the "munkhall" delegation's trek to the Park Grounds tonight.

Perhaps this is why Pie Traynor is no longer manager of the Pirates. Lethbridge Ready To Meet Regina

Lethbridge, Alta., April 3 —(CP) —Maple Leafs carrying Lethbridge Maple Leafs' colors, senior hockey championship for the first time in Allan Cup playdown history, were ready to meet Regina Rangers, now coached by Freddie Metcalfe who did Maple Leafs master-minding last season, a big Leafs' rebuilt and better joining their provincial crown last spring, eliminated Trail Smoke Eaters with a 6-3 victory here last night to enter the western final. Victory was made possible by the three-goal sniping of 23-year-old Mel Lunde, a right-wing product of Edmonton.

The win was Lethbridge's third in the series. Opening game ended in the scoreless draw and then the British Columbians took two straight, 5-1 and 2-1 before Maple Leafs deadlocked the round with 3-2 and 6-3 victories.

Sport Spice Take your choice between Montreal Canadiens and the Montreal Royal juniors,in the next round, the Generals having flashed their true form at the right time in the Gardens last night to beat the Marlboros 8 to 4 ....The Generals were always in front after McAtee opened the scoring early....Another one to take a fling at is the Senior-Junior hockey "Commonalare" series in the Allan Cup playdowns....Some weeks ago we suggested the clubs of the Royals, would be Allan Cup champs and there ain't no change of heart ....The Detroit Red Wings don't know whether to go to Toronto for the Stanley Cup finals on Saturday night or Monday night....Maybe a matter of a few hours will determine on which foreign ice the Red Wings will battle....The Ranger-Leafs crunched a play-off berth in the Y.M.C.A. War Service cage loop by beating the "6.A.R.D." quintette from the Air Force 63 to 21 last night....Set 'em up again.

POLICE COURT

"This is nothing short of sacrilege and I'd suggest the County should provide a new Bible for this court," commented County Crown Attorney Col. B. C. Donnan, K.C., at the opening of today's police court proceedings, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the Court House, when he held the court Bible in his hand and viewed its tattered condition.

"The front cover has become detached, the leaves are dog-eared and generally speaking the Book has out-worn its usefulness and needs replacing," further suggested Col. Donnan. Magistrate Butler intimated he would take the matter up with the proper authorities and the proceedings continued.

$100 Fine Assessed

Frank A. Correll, Belleville, was fined $100.00 and costs and his driver's permit was cancelled for six months, when he was convicted of reckless driving. The charge arose out of a fatal motor accident near Marysville last October, when the late Percy Furrs, Napanee, sustained fatal injuries when a motor car driven by Correll was in collision with Furrs' truck.

A motion for a permanent injunction restraining the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation from broadcasting the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey games was dismissed by Mr. Justice Henderson in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

"War If Necessary" Heading On Editorial In New York Tribune

New York, April 3 (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune today offered "war if necessary" as the phrase to express the present outlook of the United States upon the world scene.

In a leading editorial captioned "The Issue" the newspaper said the time has come when the United States must "definitely adopt upon the policy of aid to britain and all who fight with her.

"It is not enough," the Herald Tribune declared. "It is not that the United States is in a desire for peace or become belligerent in mood. The feeling for war is as strong as ever. It is rather that as the threat to America has become world-wide and the cause of freedom stands up for fight in His life in Greece and in Yugoslavia as in England, Canada and Australia and in the Americas generally the time to state not merely their immediate aims but their ultimate goals.

"That resolve seems to us well expressed in the phrase at the head of this editorial."

Ilsley Denies Scheme For U. S. Dollar Parity

Ottawa, April 3—(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley told The Canadian Press today that as far as he knew no negotiations for a scheme to be planned for an exchange agreement, by which the United States would accept the U.S. dollar at par in purchases in that country.

Trade between the two countries is largely entirely based on the official exchange rate of approximately 10 per cent. discount on Canadian dollars in United States funds, maintained by the United States, and this market has been considerable fluctuation. Canadian dollars in that market advanced today 2½ cents making the discount 12 9-16 per cent. top price for the year.

The main reason given in New York for the advance was rumors that the Canadian parity and dollars States would accept Canadian dollars at par was likely to be negotiated.

Officials here said there was no difficulty existing in Canada as to the advantage to this country of bringing Canadian dollars to par. While removal of the discount would help in payments for war purchases, it said, the discount provides Canadian industry with additional protection in the Canadian market. Many Canadian-made goods in competition with goods brought in from the United States.

This discount also results in Canadian exports of gold, newsprint and other goods shipped to United States, selling at 10 per cent. more in Canadian dollars to the firms producing them, than would be the case if there were parity between the two currencies.

Wavell Is Praised By Earl Of Athlone

Victoria, B.C., April 3 (CP)—The Earl of Athlone in an address to the Canadian Club here tonight paid high tribute to the intelligent application that he termed the principles of war.

"Remember that it is no good our having tanks unaccompanied by tanks, airplanes, guns, ships and equipment if we do not know how to use them," the Governor-General said, "for more complicated the waging of war becomes, the more essential it is to see that it is in the hands of intelligent people.

"You cannot make good military commanders out of intelligent beings but you must also have a good basis."

For this reason, he said, officers in the fighting services should study the principles of war, "not by reference to any dry-as-dust textbook, but by reading the histories and the biographies of great leaders."

Close union of the three fighting services was an important ingredient for victory, the Governor-General said. In the present war "the essentially interlocking nature" of the services had found a "supreme and perfect example" in the Libyan campaign directed by Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell.

One car of Western butter sold locally on a basis of 34 1-4 cents a pound and a broken lot changed hands at 34 cents.

Quiet trading kept current supplies clearing fairly well at steady prices on the egg market. Government inspected shipments of the three top grades in the graded section traded at 1-2 cent to 1 cent a pound higher.

by to order naval escorts for merchantmen to any ports where the ships may go legally. The neutrality law, he pointed out, prohibits American shipping from entering the combat zones defined by presidential proclamation.

Question of Ireland

As to Ireland, George noted that the island was not now within the confines of the combat zone. However, he said, there might be a question of international law involved on sea traffic to Ireland, because the little kingdom, which British forces have occupied, was recently included in Germany's announced counter-blockade area.

There was speculation as to the nature of the "purely naval matter" which Mr. Roosevelt discussed late yesterday with Navy Secretary Frank Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark. The assumption that the subject matter included consideration of new measures in the domestic defence and the British aid program.

Some sources thought that the question of more naval aid for British might have been explored.

Farm Horses Sell At Lower Prices

Good farm horses are selling at from ten to fifteen dollars less than one year ago in the Quinte district according to the weekly crop report as compiled by the Ontario Department of Agriculture from information received from agriculture representatives. Grade cows and heifers range in price from $70 to $90 with good grade cows bringing up to $95.

Generally speaking there will be a large acreage of hay in Prince Edward and Hastings, although a few farmers have reported a shortage. Hay was lower in selling value with the result that more has been used than normally.

Winter wheat, rye and new seeding has come through the winter in good condition there being no winter injury. Indications now of the fields permitting frost to later heave the roots resulting in winter-killing.

Say Oil and Wheat Trains Bound for Italy Are Seized by Yugoslavia

Budapest, Hungary, April 3 (AP) —Newspaper dispatches from the Yugoslav border today reported that two Rumanian trains carrying wheat and oil to Italy were confiscated by th. Yugo slav government.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Aprile 3 — The Department of Municipal Affairs will be asked to grant this town permission to spend $1,500 to operate and organize municipal garbage collection throughout the town.

Criticism of the present inadequate method of garbage collection and disposal was voiced by various members of the council. A motion by Councillors Ryan and Couch criticized the present method of garbage collection and stated that in the future all vehicles loaded with garbage be covered so that garbage is not allowed to drop off on the streets.

As no money had been set aside in the estimates for this year, it is necessary to obtain the permission of the Department of Municipal Affairs before the money can be spent.

To Request Town

Champions of the Quinte District Rural Hockey, the Glen Miller hockey team will be banqueted in the Community Hall, Glen Miller. Glen Miller captured the Dr. J. J. Robertson trophy for the second time in succession by eliminating all their opponents in the playoffs held in Belleville.

Flocks Still Bought

Mr. H. Strong, Trenton building contractor, has purchased the planing mill on Front Street operated for many years by the late James H. Reddick. The business will continue to manufacture sash and doors and other items in connection with the building trade.

It is expected that the plant will be re-modelled to some extent and will be open for business again by a few days.

Accident Causes Tie-up

A four-car accident caused a tie-up of the traffic in the main block of this town yesterday afternoon but no one was injured in the accident. Considerable property damage was occasioned to three motor cars.

The accident happened when Sgt. J. K. Lowry, R.C.A.F., Trenton, stopped his car on Dundas Street West in order to park. A second car driven by Camille Chaumont, and a third car driven by Ralph Weaver jumped behind the first car. The fourth car, driven by Gerry Haynes, Trenton, collided with the Weaver car, which in turn collided with the Chaumont car. Damage was extensive to the Haynes car, the Weaver car and the Chaumont car.

Workmen are making an effort to level the pavement on Dundas Street East which has heaved considerably in the past week.

THE WAR TODAY

By GUY BROADES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Germany today called home her entire Legation in Yugoslavia except two men and the move was interpreted in some quarters as an indication the German High Command is about ready to launch an attack on the kingdom should Hitler give the word.

Additional German troops were massed on the Rumanian frontier, bringing the total to Italy were confiscated by th. Yugo slav government.

Such acts by the Germans and Italians by a German official who might be another move in the war of nerves—a final effort to frighten Yugoslavia into submission to German's demands—but Yugoslav authorities said they saw little chance that war could be averted.

The sudden death in Budapest of Count Teleki of Hungary further beclouded the Balkan situation as it left Hungary temporarily without a government at a critical time when Germany may seek to use Hungarian soldiers in an assault against Yugoslavia.

It was announced in Budapest that Interior Minister Ferme cesser is named.

Keresztes-Fischer who commands the police and gendarmerie will be Acting Premier, Teleki's post.

Despite German bombast regarding its intentions toward Yugoslavia, there was obvious nervousness today lest Yugoslav troops should eventually regard themselves as the fifth successor state of Adolf Hitler's Reich.

Additional Italian troops were massed on the Albania to join Greek and British forces there. Such an eventuality would almost certainly sweep the Italians pushed into the Adriatic.

Elsewhere—in East Africa—the big-wigs Rumania at Italy's fleeing forces were headed for the shores of the Red Sea where their escape appeared cut off by the Royal Navy which announced yesterday the sinking of an Italian destroyer and capture of a German merchantman, seeking to escape from the port city of Massaua.

Other Italians, enfolded by converging British forces, fled toward the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa where they were expected to join further isolated comrades-in-arms for a possible last stand.

REMNANTS

Military spokesmen said the rugged mountain terrain of interior Ethiopia would aid the Italians in fighting a harassing rear guard action.

British authorities acknowledging the Duke of Aosta's mettle as a fighter, nevertheless pondered on the position of his army—surrounded by 30,000 British troops massed on the high central plateau—untenable. Presently the Duke's troops in Eritrea, in Eastern Ethiopia, in the winding Addis Ababa-Massaua road from Diredawa to the capital along the Red Sea coast.

British and native patriot troops were reminded that May 2 would be the fifth anniversary of Haile Selassie's flight from Addis Ababa before the advance of the Italian troops. The implication was that it would be a logical day for his return.

British forces minimized the importance of withdrawal of their Somaliland forces from desert shores of the Gulf of Sirte—in Libya. The scorching heat of summer, they said, would hamper by white troops they said. Present skirmishing was considered as a threat by the German and Italian forces to the Suez Canal possible British force in Cirenaica.

British Warmly Greeted

Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, April 3 (—(Reuter)— (AP)— Imperial British troops marched into Asmara, capital of Italian Eritrea, today as Italian troops retreated southward into Ethiopia along the only highway they hadn't for conquest.

British planes flew just above the level of the city roofs as the general entered Asmara, and a Union Jack soon drove through streets lined with Italian troops and natives and of fluttering handkerchiefs. Hundreds of Italian women refugees, among the first who waited.

A few miles to the south other British planes repeatedly bombed Italian troops and vehicles streaming toward Adigrat and Massale, in Ethiopia, for what may prove to be the last Italian stand in Africa.

Trucks Plunge Into Canyon

One South African Hurricane pilot, in a wild dive-bombing attack, thrilled, swooped so low over a column of Italian transport that two of them plunged off the road into a canyon a thousand feet below.

Perspiring British Tommies advanced over fresh hundreds of Italian prisoners and huge stores of munitions. The advance came through the Eritrean capital to serve notice of the fall of Massaua, the colony's chief seaport.

It is not known whether the Italians intend resistance in front of Massaua, where they would have the right wing on the Red Sea and possibly the British navy to contend with, or trying to escape by the coast road through Zula.

POLICE GUARDING

facturer, maintained picket lines at plant gates—without the barricading of roads which the company said stopped all employees from entering the factory premises.

At any rate, none of most of yesterday's riots and of a serious rise in tension. The lines of police lined up across the gate. Behind them were their service men. Outside the gate a picket line strolling in a circle in the usual manner marched.

One man who tried to enter the gate, only to be turned back by the service men, was severely beaten by assailants who left the picket line to intercept him as he was leaving. The injured man who was then taken through the gate to the plant hospital, was said to be a timekeeper.

Some 5,000 persons, most of them negroes, left the plant during the night and only about 200 were in evidence today.

Can't Halt Automobiles

Capitain Maurice Lyon of State Police instructed the pickets to stop their parading on the roads approaching automobiles and demanded identification of occupants.

James F. Dewey, United States Department of Labor Conciliator, declined to discuss his settlement plan "until he was, recovered in a 90-minute conference last night with C.I.O. officials and Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan.

After a three-hour meeting with the union committee representing the Ford Company, Dewey said that "no conclusions of any of the matters in the dispute" had been reached, but scheduled another conference with company officials for today.

Under a Union-Company agreement with Van Wagoner, Dewey said, about 1,000 workers, including stenographers, payroll clerks and administrative help, were called to work this morning in addition to an undetermined number of maintenance workers and those needed in various departments to protect the property.

The company appealed to President Roosevelt last night for "your assistance in ending terroristic mass picketing, violence and other lawless acts so that our employees may resume work and make possible our full participation in the National defence program."

PREMIER TELEKI,

Count Teleki's widow and wife's sickroom late last night, then returned home, where he was found dead in bed by his servants this morning. His private office also was sent asserted. It said he died of a heart attack.

Teleki was chief of one of Hungary's great landed families and often was regarded as Regent Admiral Horthy's right hand man, remaining in the cabinet longer than any other premier in the country's history.

Teleki was born in Budapest, April 8, 1879, and was a professor of Geography at Budapest University before entering politics at the close of the first Great War.

He became Minister of Social Affairs in 1918 and Minister of Peace Negotiations the next year, in which capacity he helped to formulate the peace settlement.

In 1920 he was made Foreign Minister and in the same year formed two cabinets, both of which fell after existing for a few months.

He went to the United States in 1921 to deliver a series of lectures at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. Later he served on several League of Nations committees.

Premier Since 1939

He fought a sword duel in 1926 with Count Stephen Karolyi, son of a former Hungarian Provisional President, and received a slight cut on one hand.

Teleki concurred after Count Karolyi remarked that he could not see how Count Teleki could sleep under the responsibility of having sent a Prince and a Budapest Bishop to the Nazi prison camps after a great franc counterfeiting scandal.

For several years, then, Count Teleki was in eclipse until he returned to the cabinet of Premier Bela Imredi as Minister of Education in 1938. He became Premier on May 15, 1939, and a week later announced the signing of a treaty with the Rome-Berlin axis.

He made calls on Mussolini and Hitler in 1939 and 1940 and was present at the ceremony at which Hungary became a full-fledged partner in the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

It was in Teleki's regime also that Hungary took part of Southern Transylvania by an axis-dictated settlement.

and ammunition, were concealed there.

"We worked out a scheme to defend ourselves," one legation member related. "We would feel perfectly safe while our troops were crossing the frontier and capturing Belgrade."

The Yugoslav army of 1,200,000 men, mobilized last week, held ready for any emergency and it was believed that the nation would stand solidly behind the government should war come.

Observers Agreed

Observers agreed the outlook was more serious than at any time since last Thursday, when young King Peter II and his military advisers deposed the regency government which had joined the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance.

The order recalling the German legation staff was received by Dr. Gert Feine, the young charge d'affaires, in a coded telegram from Berlin at 7:30 a.m., (2:30 a.m. E. D. T.).

Dr. Feine, who has been in charge of the legation since Minister Viktor Heeren went to Berlin to settle this week to report, immediately began the clerks and attaches from their beds and ordered them to work.

Two German news agency correspondents, the only ones left in the mission still in Belgrade, were ordered to accompany the diplomatic staff.

Burn Legation Documents

Some of the clerks at once started burning documents.

The newly appointed Governor of the Banat will be Josef Rodojcic, a part of Yugoslavia with a mixed population of Serbs, Croats, Germans, Rumanians, and Slovaks; Belgrade dispatches reported expected sacrifices and discipline on the part of all citizens.

The government apparently attempting to avoid any direct affront to Germany, Italy and Russia, but left firm denial last night of the Nazi "atrocity" charges.

Disclosure that Yugoslav defence measures included the secret mobilization of troops on the Adriatic coast came last night when the Belgrade newspaper Vreme, featured home in fear of a sudden outbreak of hostilities, run into minefields and were sunk.

Envoys Hasten to Office

As news that the German diplomats were leaving capitals of scores of other nations hastened to their offices to keep in close touch with the rapidly developing situation.

Officials of the Italian legation in Belgrade burned documents while the staff already had been made, it was believed, to feel safe as the country had been received from Rome.

A Fascist spokesman expressed belief that despite the gravity of the situation "war is not inevitable" and said the Italians still were "working constantly" to widen, to establish contact between the Italian and Yugoslav governments.

"The only answer we can make to these charges is to remain calm and strong in our unity and prepare ourselves to defend our independence, integrity and freedom."

The Yugoslav press gave prominence to two telegrams which leaders of the German minority in the Banat section bordering Hungary were said to have sent King Peter pledging allegiance to his government.

The leader of the German minority of 513,000, most of whom reside in the Banat area, was reported to have conferred with Premier Simovitch yesterday for the second time this week.

Hands of vacuing neutral legations were expected to remain in Belgrade, sending a part of their staffs, with the Yugoslav government should it decide to remove to some south Serbian location for greater safety.

The entire staffs of the British and Greek legations were expected to follow the government.

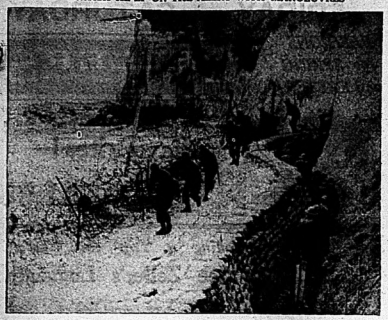
Exports of searchlight and airdrome beacons from the United States reached an all time high valuation of $3,300,000 last year, compared with $247,720 in 1939.

BRITISH KEEP ON THE ALERT WITH MANOEUVRES



A contingent of British troops pictured carrying out war-like manoeuvres on one of the beaches on the southeast coast of England. The troops constantly carry out these exercises in which they practice dealing with a force of enemy troops assumed to have landed on British shores. In this way they keep themselves fit and accustomed to the technique of seashore fighting.

BABY ALIVE AFTER THREE DAYS ENTOMBED

Pictured as she slept peacefully in her hospital cot is 10-months-old Irene Marriott, who was buried for three days in the ruins of her Merseyside home when bombs wrecked the house. Little Irene's body was protected by that of her father, who was found dead. One of the baby's arms was broken and her head was injured, but doctors say she will recover.

$5,202,058 Paid Railways For Troops Transportation

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)—Payments to Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways for transportation of navy, army and air force personnel between Sept. 1, 1939 and Feb. 28, this year, totalled $5,202,058 said a return tabled in the House of Commons at the request of T. L. Church (Con., Toronto-Broadview). The Canadian Pacific was paid $2,626,822 and the Canadian National $2,573,226, the return said.

Belleville Soldier Returns to Canada After Losing Leg In Bombing Raid

Pte. Thomas Watt Says Bomb Landed Two Feet From Him

THINKS HIMSELF LUCKY

Toronto, April 3 —(CP)— A large group of Canadian soldiers returning from active service overseas on permanent or temporary sick leave, reached Toronto today and crammed up their general impressions on the declaration: "The British sure can take it and Hitler need never hope to invade England."

Mayor Fred Conboy and other civic officials were on hand to welcome the men along with a cheering group of relatives.

Among the group was AB. Joseph Neale of the Royal Navy, greeted by his mother, Mrs. John Woodley, who had not seen her son for the past 16 years. He was born in England and had never been in Canada before. Neale was on the submarine Swordfish, lost, recently, and he escaped the fate of his fellow crew members because he had left an sick leave just before the submarine departed on her last cruise.

Cpl. John Scott of the Engineers, whose home is in Winnipeg, went through two air "blitz" in two weeks. "That's all the action I really saw, other than the odd bombing," he declared. "I was in a coastal port when the Germans dumped tons of bombs on the town and then just two weeks later I was in the same thing again. They did a lot of property damage in one town but very little of it was along the river. Most of it was in the residential area and there were quite a few casualties."

"It was a clear moonlight night," said Pte. Harold Hooper, member of a Western Ontario regiment. "They came over in waves. I saw a parachute drifting down and figured it was somebody who bailed out, but I started running toward it. It turned out to be a land mine. I hit quite a way from me but it knocked me farther than a pancake. Boy, was I glad I hadn't run faster."

Watt Was In Station

Not so fortunate was Pte. Thomas Watt of Belleville, who lost his left leg while on leave in London. "I went in a station," he said, "when this baby dropped two feet away from me. I was lucky I didn't lose more than a leg."

Watt said he retained consciousness throughout the raid and until he had been taken to hospital. That was six months ago.

A casualty during the famous Canadian expedition into France [illegible] N.W. R. Sleeman, [illegible] Ides, was hurt in an accident ..... a Bren gun carrier. . . . I tipped over and I got my shoulder smashed," he explained. He was on the way back to the coast and, believe me, we weren't wasting any time."

One of the youngest veterans of the present war is Pte. J. McCarrol, 20, of the same Highland Regiment, who is back in Toronto after having spent four days in France at the end of the Blitzkrieg. To Pte. McCarrol, who has been invalided home because of stomach trouble, going to France was like going in a hurry with German troops on his trail, "wasn't worth bothering about."

"We got across to France without any trouble and were some distance inland when we found the Germans closing in on us," he said. "We just turned around and headed for the coast. A lot of the men were on the train, but we headed for St. Malo and were evacuated from there."

BRITISH ANXIOUS OVER SAFETY OF ITALIAN CIVILIANS

Issue Warning That Ethiopian Natives May Take Revenge on Civil Population

ARRIVE IN TIME

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, April 3 —(CP)— As the collapse of Italian resistance in Ethiopia appeared near, the British East Africa command reiterated today its previous warnings that precautions be taken to protect the Italian civil population from possible Ethiopian vengeance.

When British forces entered Dire-Dawa last week it was found that Ethiopian natives already had started pillaging Italian civilians who had remained in the town. The British troops arrived just in time to prevent the situation getting out of hand.

Today's warning read: "Following recent reports, grave concern is felt that the Italians may delay their request for protection until it is too late for forces to prevent anti-Italian natives from seeking vengeance and massacring Italians among both soldiers and civilians."

ODLUM TRAINS TROOPS AND SELF FOR CAMPAIGN

Believes This Year Will See Canadians in Some of Big Battles of the War

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, April 3 —(CP)— Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum vigorously trains his 2nd Canadian Division and himself for field campaigns, in the belief this year may see the Canadians in some of the big battles of the war.

The General, points the way by walking more than 10 miles a day and taking part in frequent manoeuvres. "It is my certain duty to safety of every man in the division safety of every man I nthe division is my responsibility," he said in an interview.

At 7 a.m., he strides down roads near the mess for six miles to the headquarters of artillery and infantry who see this man passing in his red-labbed tunic, riding breeches and high leather boots—the uniform he wears practically all the time now. In the afternoon he walks some more.

Getting by with about five hours sleep each night, the commander spends much time at night reading modern military books to keep abreast of current tactics which he co-ordinates with practical knowledge gained under fire in the first Great War.

Another theory he has in training personal health and the way coming campaigns will be fought. A chat with Prime Minister Churchill was the highlight.

GAYDA SAYS AXIS NO LONGER BOUND

Declares Authors of Coup d'Etat Adopted Violently Hostile Attitude Towards Italy and Germany

Rome, April 3 (AP) — Virginio Gayda, Fascist editorial spokesman, declared today that Germany and Italy "no longer feel bound to respect Yugoslavia's territorial integrity and political independence guaranteed when the Peaser Bilomir regime signed the Axis pact.

In his first comment on the Belgrade coup, Gayda wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia:

"By a single gesture the authors of the Belgrade Coup D'Etat not only deliberately renounced those positions they acquired, although [illegible] powers, to also adopted a violent hostile attitude which leaves no room for hope in the existence of freeing them of their obligation."

The new government's position, Gayda asserted, must be "speedily and completely clarified."

Never Before In Such Short Time 'Such Galaxy of Victories'—L. George

'They Dazzle Eye, but Take Care They Do Not Blind Us,' He Warns

FOOD PROBLEM SERIOUS

London, April 3 (CP)— David Lloyd George warned the House of Commons today that the food problem, "although serious in the last war, was not as serious as it is now."

The Prime Minister of 1916-18 spoke after Robert Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, had stated he expected to have 3,750,000 acres plowed up this spring.

Addressing his remarks to the treasury bench and remarking that other Ministers besides Mr. Hudson should have attended the debate, Mr. Lloyd George remarked that "you do not eat now."

Never before, he declared, in such a short period of time, had Britain experienced "such a galaxy of victories."

"They dazzle the eye," he said, "but take care the 70th not blind us."

Germany had great victories before 1914-18, he said, but she neglected her agriculture and she was beaten.

Vast Estates

Mr. Lloyd George criticized people owning vast estates with deer parks.

"People should not be allowed to have that much land to grow meat as they want, while other people are rationed," he said.

"I say to my Tory friends who voted 17-60, by maintain private ownership after the war that we had better stir up some of those people. It does not matter who you rain so long as you keep the people from clamoring for what we win the war."

Observing that shipping losses in the first 18 months of the first Great War were 1,900,000 tons while corresponding losses for this war were 5,500,000 tons, he urged the appropriation of £100,000,000 ($445,000,000) for reclaiming and planting derelict land.

Co-operation Of Everyone Needed To Achieve Objective In Campaign

The War Service Organization Campaign temperature is slowly rising.

Today the thermometer registers $8,000, only one-third of the way to the total, and ten thousand dollars still is to be collected if Belleville is to reach its quota of $15,000.

There is no time for delay. The objective will be reached, But in order that it may be will only be accomplished by the co-operation of every campaign official, worker, canvasser and others connected with the drive is necessary.

Co-operation is paramount. It is the essence of success in any normal undertaking and this little [illegible] campaign is not a [illegible] It is the essential ingredient. It is of the utmost urgent, and one of those things that must, and will be done.

Belleville's lads in the fighting services will not let her down, nor fail their country and their mates when the supreme moment arrives. In the first terrific shock of battle the gallant lads of the Maple Leaf will be in the van of the fight, and their faces towards the foe, even as their fathers did twenty-five years ago.

And in the inevitable surge of victory, when with faces flushed with the knowledge of a job well done they turn their arms, we back here at home will stand up and cheer with them and for them. A glow or pride will swell in our hearts. Pride in the fact that they were Canadians and our own flesh and blood. Pride that they have once again upheld the best traditions of their fighting forebears and British ancestry.

Sure, all of us will be proud.

But shall we look back and say, that we did not look after the boys, o rback them up as we should have done before the dawn of victory ushered in a new lasting peace. Shall we say to ourselves, with little [illegible] poignant pangs of regret pricking at our conscience, "We could and should have done more."

Let it be said that Belleville's residents failed in their duty to their country and their fighting services. Never let it be said that the boys came home, not with the smiles of the conquering heroes, but the disappointment of misplaced faith. Never let it be said we stood and waved flags, as the lads marched away to the front, and have it said about us that flagwaving was all we did to give a few dollars from their savings, but their life's blood.

They did this voluntarily. They did not have a canvasser call at their home, and ask them to give this and that to their country. They recognized the need of their services, and they gave them freely, willingly, and without thought of remuneration.

This week, the residents of this city will have an opportunity to "back up the boys." The canvassers are even now calling at your homes. Think it over. Give all you can. Give what you think you can afford, then double or triple it. And don't forget the payments can be stretched over a time limit.

To win the war we must back up the boys who will bear the brunt of the terrors. Let us put that Belleville them.Answer by the to-the-breaking point, and show the Dominion and the Empire, that in the immortal words of Churchill "We shall not flag nor fail."

THREE KILLED AS FREIGHT TRAIN HURLS PASSENGER ENGINE INTO STATION

Fred Plato, engineer; Wallace Plunkett, fireman and William Maxwell, section foreman, met death when a 68-car freight train broke an axle at Inkerman, Ont., and sideswiped the engine of a passenger train which was just drawing to a stop and toppled it on the station. Engineer Plato, fireman Plunkett and section foreman Maxwell, who were riding in the cab of the freight, were killed instantly when the train, which was not due to stop at Inkerman, was roaring through when one of the centre cars began to buckle and jumped the track, hitting the waiting passenger train. 3,000 ITALIAN PRISONERS TAKEN IN ERITREA

UNITED STATES FLATLY REJECTS AXIS PROTESTS

British Expect Massaua To Fall At Any Moment

Eritrean Harbor Believed Last Possible Stand Of Italians In Their Oldest Colony —British Lose Bengasi

Cairo, Egypt, April 4 (AP).—The Royal Air Force has struck back fiercely at German and Italian air forces moving up the Mediterranean coast in Libya, Middle East headquarters announced today.

The new attacks on enemy bases followed the withdrawal of British forces back 180 miles from the most advanced point of the British invasion of Libya, when the R.A.F. struck.

Bomber aircraft of the R.A.F. made a heavy attack on enemy motor transport convoys in the Mersa Brega area of Tripolitania during the night of April 2 and 3, the communique said.

"After dropping bombs which were seen to burst among the vehicles, setting a number of them on fire, aircraft descended to low altitudes and strafed with machine-guns, causing stopped several more vehicles by machine-gun fire. A successful bombing raid was also carried out on Tripoli's aerodrome."

Mersa Brega is about 150 miles south of Bengasi, Italian port which the British forces have retired. In his communique today, Wavell said the town had been evacuated.

The British-Indian force, estimated at about 30,000 men, smuggled across from Libya—probably by way of Italian-held Tripoli—has been built up into a smaller British force which withdrew westward and is believed to be ready to make a stand at Derna, 224 miles east of Benghazi, which has a good fresh water supply.

At Massaua, the Red Sea port which is believed the last possible stand of Italian troops in their oldest colony, British warships appeared trapped between the imperial land forces and the Royal Navy fleet and planes in the Red Sea.

Somewhere in the fastness of the northwestern Ethiopia hideland apparently were the 20,000 to 40,000 survivors of Italy's famous Eritrean army. Five hundred miles farther south the Duke of Aosta's Ethiopian army was falling back toward Addis Ababa, with imperial columns in pursuit.

Known As 'Battle Of Cape Matapan'

London, April 4 (CP)—After consultation with Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, Commander in Chief of the Mediterranean fleet, it was officially has decided that last week's long-distance naval victory of the Italian fleet will be known officially as the "Battle of Cape Matapan."

Cape Matapan is in southern extremity of the Greek Peloponnesus, off which several of the Italian ships were sugaged and sunk

$50,000 FIRE LOSS

Toronto, April 4 (CP)—Damage was estimated at more than $50,000 after an early morning fire gutted Columbus Hall in central Toronto today. The building was headquarters for the Knights of Columbus in Toronto and one of the city's oldest landmarks.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 4 (CP). — The weather has been cloudy and cool in Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan and comparatively mild farther west, while in Ontario it continues fair, and it has been moderately cold in northern districts.

WARNS BRITONS OF MEAT SHORTAGE

Shortage Will Continue for Several Months Because of Claims on Shipping for Middle-East Campaign

London, April 4 — (CP) — The Government warned Britons Thursday to expect a meat shortage.

The Minister of Agriculture, R. S. Hudson, told the House of Commons there is bound to be a shortage of meat "because of claims on shipping of the Middle East campaign" and that the shortage will continue for several months.

He added: "We shall have to kill off more of our stocks to meet this."

A Labor member, William Leach, demanded that food be grown on Lady Astor Cliveden estate and other such large estates in the country.

Leach asked the Minister if he would "take steps to use some of a Buckinghamshire mansion where a head gardener and 18 gardeners are employed, where 20 efforts are made to grow foodstuffs except a few flowers, and where orchard blossoms were camouflaged with inter-army lettuce."

Mr. Hudson said that at the beginning of 1940 there were under only 26 per cent of farmland under crops but this had been increased to 31 per cent, adding: "The Government's drive to have new land plowed up.

NO. BOMBS ON LONDON

Lone R.A.F. Pilot Shoots Down Nazi Bomber as it Arrives at Home Air-Base

London, April 4 (CP)— Strong British air force units last night bombed the French port of Brest, where the German battleship Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are sheltering, and also attacked enemy tanks at Rotterdam and docks at Ostend, the Air Ministry announced today.

Observations cost the Royal Air Force four planes, a communique said.

Poor visibility made it difficult for pilots to ascertain the results of their attacks on the naval base "but heavy bombs were seen to fall across the dry dock and several fires were started in the port," the bulletin added.

Last night's attack, the 48th of the war on the important French port, began just since Sunday, when bombs straddled the docks at which the two big warships have been lying.

German warplanes, meanwhile, directed a four-hour assault on a southern town in the west of England, a communique said a number of fires were started but extinguished before the raid ended.

London had two bombless alerts, one in the early afternoon and another in southern England and in the home counties during the night, but no German bomber was shot down.

British Contact Main Body Of Retreating Enemy Near Asmara

Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, April 4 (AP)—British forces advancing southward on occupied Asmara, capital of Eritrea, have made contact with the main body of retreating Italians and have taken 3,000 prisoners, the enemy more being rounded up, advices from the front said today.

The imperial forces were said to have caught up with the Fascists at Adi Ugri, 40 miles southeast of Asmara on the highway leading toward the Ethiopian frontier. Mopping up operations between them and the Eritrean capital were under way.

At Adi Ugri, 180 British troops who had been held prisoner by the Italians were released and taken to Asmara.

Some observers predicted the early fall of Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital, despite the known presence of heavy Italian forces between the city and British troops now advancing along the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad.

The biggest Fascist concentrations were reported along the Awash river, 100 miles east of Addis Ababa.

Along with the thrust and the drive from Eritrea, other British and native columns are pressing forward the Ethiopian capital from the north, south and west.

The Italian garrison at Asmara seemed prepared to fight a delaying action, the first British prisoners from Eritrea retreat south along the Adowa and Adigrat roads.

212 Merchant Ships, 50 to 60 New Shipways Authorized Under Aid Act

Half Billion Dollars Allocated for Purpose, Roosevelt Announces—Another Half Billion Authorized for Existing Military Equipment to be Turned Over to Nations Resisting Aggression

Washington, April 4 (AP). — President Roosevelt announced today he had allocated another $500,000,000 under the lend-lease legislature act for 212 new merchant ships and also 50 or 60 new shipways.

He told a press conference he also had authorized expenditure of another $500,000,000 for existing military equipment to be turned over to nations resisting aggression.

At the same time, the President disclosed that if no fighting is taking place in the Red Sea the United States government might remove that area from listing as a combat zone and permit American vessels to carry cargoes there.

Roosevelt also hinted that that effect, he said, were a little premature. He said the area also might be taken in two or three days.

Previously the President had announced allocation of $1,000,000,000 of the $7,000,000,000 aid appropriation authorized by congress last month.

Mr. Roosevelt did not say whether the 212 merchant vessels and the 50 shipways would be solely for the aid program or would be used also to build in with domestic defence efforts.

Considered Further Allocation.

In addition the President said he is considering allocating another 1,500,000,000 to 2,000,000,000 for lend-lease aid.

The new allocations for new equipment, now under study, embraced army, navy and actually, he said, the President said.

He did not break down the $500,000,000, except to recall he had already mentioned some of it would go to China.

FOREIGN POLICY DECLARATION EXPECTED SOON

Yugoslavia Cabinet Holds Extraordinary Session to Consider All Angles

NEW DEFENCE MEASURES

Belgrade, Ljubljana and Zagreb Remain Calm Upon and Undefended Cities'

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 4 — (AP)—The Yugoslav cabinet staff rushed fortification of the strategically-important Vardar Valley today while awaiting the dice to fall for peace or war.

More men were being called to the colors and hurried to the defence of key railheads.

An all-important cabinet session which began at 10 o'clock followed by Premier Dusan Simovic's longawaited declaration of foreign policy was postponed.

Weeks Ahead of Offer.

The delay followed the arrival of the Croat peasant party leader, Vladimir Matchek, with whom he took the oath of office as Vice Premier.

He talked at length with Monsignor Ivan Shubashitch, whose efforts to preserve peace and then went to a conference with Crown Prince Paul, Regent, who declared yesterday he was joining the government in the hope peace could be preserved.

The war and the declaration of Yugoslav policy, in response to Germany's demands for sacrifices, probably would be made tomorrow.

Informed circles said any prediction concerning Yugoslavia's final expected declaration would be pure guesswork because the government itself had not reached a final conclusion but a series of new defence measures prepared the country for the worst.

A communique announced that Belgrade and the populous northern centres of Zagreb and Ljubljana would be proclaimed "open and undefended cities" in the event of war.

Belgrade, the national capital, scarcely 50 miles from the Rumanian frontier where German machine-gun nests bristle, already has been reported massing. was blacked-out for the first time last night in a half-hour emergency air raid drill.

Refuse Demands To Release Ships And Crew Members

Action May Have Effect Of Bringing Relations With Axis Still Closer To The Breaking Point

Washington, April 4 (AP).—The United States today flatly rejected German and Italian protests over the seizure of Axis ships, saying the action was necessary to protect the vessels in American harbors from sabotage.

The State Department made public notes replying to the two protests each received from the German and Italian embassies which demanded release of the 32 Italian and two German vessels seized last week-end.

State Secretary Hull, in rejecting these demands, announced he communicate further with the Axis embassies when investigation of other phases of their complaints is completed.

Bluntly, Hull expressed surprise at the "extreme assertions and demands" and declared that the German embassy had failed to support its contentions of violations on the international law or a treaty of friendship and commerce between the United States and Germany.

Hull said the declaration of Yugoslav policy, in response to Germany's demands for sacrifices, probably would be made tomorrow.

Shells Scream Over Heads Of King And Queen

Somewhere in Southern England, April 4 (CP Cable)—Shells screamed over the head of the King and Queen on a windswept hillside yesterday during their visit—and a stormy tour of the southern command, Major-General Montagu G. H. G. Alexander, general officer commanding the southern command, and staff officers with their Majesties watched the shells from 75-pounder field artillery and from heavy target of 500 enemy parachute troops at a range of 1,500 yards.

The King and Queen saw antiaircraft defences simulate an enemy target of 500 enemy parachute troops at a range of 1,500 yards.

Unionists Keep Picket Lines Moving as Situation Hourly Grows More Confused

PEACEFUL NIGHT

Detroit, April 4 (AP)—Restrained by a Federal Court order from interfering with employees entering or leaving the strike-bound Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company, Congress of Industrial Organizations unionists kept picket lines moving Thursday as the situation hourly grew more confused.

United States District Judge Arthur J. Tuttle issued the restraining order after finding C.I.O. members "took possession" of the Ford plant area in suburban Dearborn and "made laws which they enforced, in violation of the laws of Michigan and the United States."

Officials of the striking United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) Union headed by Walter Reuther at a Junction petition was a "deliberate violation of the Wagner Labor Relations Act" and that Federal Judge Murray D. Van Wagoner to make an effort to open the Rouge plant during a period of conciliation."

They announced they would seek dismissal of the order before Judge Tuttle today.

Production might passed peacefully on Miller Road, scene of strike violence Wednesday and Thursday. The Rouge plant, largest single industrial unit in the world employing 85,000 workers, stretches for more than a mile along this highway.

On other strike fronts, however, there were these developments:

The walkout of the C.I.O. in an attempt to win a contract with Ford moved into its third day.

ADMIRAL DARLAN AND FRENCH SHIPS

New York, April 4 (CP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation said last night there was "no question" that Admiral Darlan has promised Germany full collaboration of the French fleet in seeking an incident with Britain to turn the Vichy government into a belligerent.

The French-language broadcast, as heard here by National Broadcasting Company, said that if an incident does not arise, Darlan may find some way to justify his promises to the Nazis.

HUNGARY'S POLICY TO BE UNCHANGED

Official Declaration Published in Budapest Papers Asserts

Budapest, April 4 (AP)— Neither Hungary's foreign nor domestic policy will be changed as result of the death of the Premier, Count Paul Teleki, an official declaration published in morning newspapers asserted today.

Foreign Minister Laszlo De Bordoncz appointed to succeed the late Teleki, announced he would retain all members of the Teleki cabinet, thus apparently keep the foreign portfolio.

Bordoncz, who aligned his country with the axis but fought against Nazi efforts to bring it completely under Nazi domination, announced in the Hungarian morning and authoritative sources said he had put a bullet through his head.

The nation, today's official statement declared, will not be forced to follow the policies laid down by Count Stephen Bethlen, Count Teleki and Count Csaky."

Ship Survivors Tell Of Sharks Devouring Their Companions

Santa Cruz, Tenerife, Canary Islands, April 4 (AP)—A terrifying account of drowning scores of their comrades torn to pieces and devoured by sharks was published today by survivors of the 8,700-ton British vessel Bradda, sunk by a German warship in the Atlantic March 24th.

Seventy-seven survivors from the Britannic, whose passengers included 490 soldiers, were landed here by the Spanish steamship Cabo Hornos which picked them up after they had been later 700 miles off the African coast.

The Cabo Hornos, en route to Spain from Buenos Aires, picked up a raft with three survivors of the British ship five days after it sank the evening of March 29th. This group said that five of their comrades had been eaten by sharks stalking the raft.

Shortly after a second raft was picked up with seven of the British crew on board. Three of these recently passengers and crewmen had died during the two days on the raft, five disappeared.

A third heavily-laden raft was sighted and its occupants were taken aboard the Cabo Hornos. Survivors from the Spanish ship said survivors on this raft were so weakened that they had not strength enough to lift the water to use as a pedestal so that a shark quickly snapped it off.

This man and another who was injured were placed under the care of the Cabo Hornos' physician.

The survivors said the German warship gave the passengers and crew of the Bradda time to abandon ship. Then, they related the German vessel fired a shell and sent a shot into her prow that sank her.

The 8,700-ton Bradda, which was said today they had received a request that the British freighter Western Chief, formerly a United States ship, had been torpedoed off the the fish coast while en route to New York in ballast.

The freighter was built in Portland, Ore., in 1918 and was laid up by the U.S. Maritime Commission sold her to Britain last February for England, unloaded a general cargo and was returning here.

Fascist Losses In Ionian Sea Battle Heaviest In Naval Fight Since Jutland

By LARRY ALLEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Alexandria, Egypt, April 4 (AP)— Italian casualties in the Battle of the Ionian Sea probably were the heaviest of any single naval engagement since the Battle of Jutland, British naval authorities said today.

Thus, they asserted, the original British estimate of 3,000 Italians lost in the engagement last weekend may actually have been much higher.

In the Battle of Jutland British lost 6,274 officers and men and the German High Seas Fleet, 3,058. That was on a much larger scale than the Ionian Sea engagement, but both the number of ships engaged and those sunk.

At Jutland German losses were one battleship, one battle cruiser, four light cruisers and five torpedo craft; and the British losses were three battleships, three cruisers and eight torpedo craft.

In the Ionian engagement the Italians lost three cruisers and two destroyers for sure and possibly another destroyer, while a battleship was at least heavily damaged. Britain lost only one plane.

In addition to the Italian casualties, British casualties were confined to the crew of the one naval plane.

"Thousands or bodies of Italians could be seen in the Ionian Sea the morning after the Italian cruisers and destroyers were sunk," one officers of the cruiser Gloucester said upon returning to this port.

"They were strung over a 15-mile stretch off Cape Matapan," said one officer. "Most of them lay face-down in big cork life jackets.

"Sometimes there were groups of 10 or 12 bodies in the water. Many of the bodies were badly mutilated."

ITALIANS SCUTTLE TWO DESTROYERS IN RED SEA

London, April 4 (CP)—The scuttling of two Italian destroyers by their crews in the Red Sea was announced by the Admiralty tonight.

The Admiralty said a third Italian destroyer, reported yesterday to have been left in sinking condition, had now sunk.

REPORTED MUTINY IN ITALIAN FLEET OVER WAR SAILINGS

London, April 4 —(CP Cable)— The Independent, Paris news agency said today that reports reaching it via Stockholm suggest that there was a mutiny in the Italian fleet because of the presence of Nazi officers aboard Italian warships sunk in last week's battle of Cape Matapan.

Yugoslavs Look To Mountains To Nullify Axis Advantage

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 4 — (AP)—If war engulfs Yugoslavia, it will be a mountain war with fierce fighting behind the chief tracks of the defenders.

Yugoslavia's peasant army of 1,200,000 men—outnumbered and outgunned by Germany and Italy—can live on mountain is worth 10,000 soldiers. This thin kingdom's real resistance would be in the hills where the motorized and mechanized equipment of the axis would be of restricted use.

Rugged highlands criss-crossed by precipitous ranges make up fourfifths of Yugoslavia's 96,000 square-mile area.

Only one-fifth is level enough for the movement of armies on tanks, on wheels and the Yugoslav general staff has had no illusions that it will obtain that in mind.

Long ago the Yugoslav generals

Advance Demands To Mountains

heirs to a fierce military tradition running back 1,000 years, laid plans in case of an attack by Italian and German armies.

Fight Delaying Action

Early today the government announced that Belgrade, the Croat capital of Zagreb, and the Slovene capital of Ljubljana would not be defended.

Belgrade is about 50 miles from Rumania, Zagreb about 80 miles from Hungary and Ljubljana about 20 miles, from Italy and Germany. Thus, Yugoslavia's armies and divisions massed on the Yugoslav frontiers in Bulgaria, Rumania and Austria, the Yugoslav general staff expects those cities would be quickly captured.

DEMAND FOR UNSKILLED LABOR STILL LOW

Requests for laborers at the local Employment Service Bureau continue to be infrequent, Mr. W. Rose superintendent of the local office, stated this morning. Proposed construction on contracts let at Mountain View and Trenton Airports have not yet started and it is expected when this begins the work will take up a considerable amount of the surplus labor in the city.

The additional request from local mercantile firms for casual laborers to fill vacancies in jobs around their premises and farmers seeking help for the summer season comprise the majority of inquiries for laborers at the local office.

FEW FIRE ALARMS DURING THE WEEK

Activities in fire hall circles have been at a low ebb during the past few days, with only one alarm being answered this week. SUMMER COURSES CANCELLED FOR 1941

Without any explanation the Department of Education has cancelled all summer courses for 1941. Educational officials are of the opinion that the step may have been taken to effect economy and that special short courses will be discontinued for the duration of the war, but no definite information is responsible for belief.

The cancellation of the courses, among which are art, music, auxiliary class work, kindergarten, primary courses, education and upper school work will affect teachers attempting to complete work leading to permanent first class certificates.

Lindsay Fair Directors Unfold Secret Of Their Success In Joint Meeting With Local Bd.

If the Belleville Agricultural Society does not have a successful fall exhibition here this year, it will not be the fault of the officials of the Lindsay Fair Board. For last night, President A. B. McLean, dynamic chief executive of that body and five of his directorate paid a "good neighbor" visit here and gave in complete detail the formula for the operation of a successful fair.

Following a dinner at the New Queens Hotel when directors of both the Belleville Society were hosts to the Lindsay delegation, the visitors with President McLean in the role of guest speaker unfolded a story of work, management and operation that brought their exhibition from an $11,000 deficit to the present find financial status it enjoys.

Mr. McLean got right down to the shoulder, emphasing his points with graphic illustration and giving an address that was highly entertaining as well as informative and educational to his listeners. The guests were plied with questions pertaining to various angles of fair operation at the conclusion of the meeting, and additional information was gained through this meeting.

Possess Fine Property

Mr. McLean told the Belleville directors that they possessed first class grounds, fine buildings and a "lovely property." "It is either your fault or your credit, but if you don't have a first-class fair," he said, "and a fair is successful as the ability of its directors to create an atmosphere favorable to the public. A public institution depends on the public attitude towards it for its success. Lindsay five years ago had a $5,000 debt. We spent no or seven thousand dollars to make it attractive to the public, and you know the result," he said.

Lindsay Fair Board during the past four years, has spent $30,000 on improvements, Mr. McLean stated. "This money is returned to the public because we gave them a real show and the idea we had was to do things to give them value for their money."

He sharply criticized the fairs which pay only percentages on their purses. Lindsay, he said, pays 100 percent of this money because it is a position to do so. "Previously we could not do it but the bank got behind us and from then on we have created confidence in the mind of the bank that makes us worthy of credit."

Too Many Running Things

He criticized the Belleville directors in that too many men were apt to run things. He advocated the wholehearted support of the directors to one man. "A fair needs showmanship," he said, "and if you select that man, then get behind him in a body, your troubles are over."

"I preside over my board as a unit. We all advance ideas, and have our arguments, but when the meeting is over we are in complete accord."

A fair without horse races and free attractions is a failure before it it starts, he said. Belleville, in his opinion, has one of the best dirt tracks in Ontario, and it should be utilized. "You cannot run or operate a fair without races" he stressed. "It just can't be done. You have got to give the people a show and the minute you fall back you lose the crowds."

"For every one dollar spent in horse races and free attractions you get two back. You double your crowds by your receipts. That is the main reason why the Lindsay Fair got $30,000 in the past four years."

Suggests Rest Benches

He also advocated the generous use of rest benches in various parts of the fair grounds, where women and children, in particular, could sit down to rest. In Lindsay, the business men got behind the idea, and bought the benches for which their advertising was painted. "Every Lindsay Fair Board has well over one hundred of these benches which are distributed by the fair.

He urged the Belleville directors to create an interest among local business men. "Make them part of your fair. Don't have a directorate composed entirely of farmers, nor of business men for that matter. Mix them up, and you will succeed in creating an organization that will be a distinct benefit to Belleville."

President Needs Imagination

A fair cannot be a success if the President's time is taken up with other matters, Mr. McLean said, in advocating suitable remuneration for the head of any board. "He has got to make things happen and to do this he has got to be alive. Things won't come to any fair board. They have got to be sought and worked for, and a president has got to spend his time on the job if he wants to make a success of this organization."

"Have the nerve to do things the other fellow claims can't be done," the speaker stressed. "Most of they are not too extreme and within the realm of possibility. The imagination and showmanship. You have both. You must exercise them. The greatest thing is to give the public a show. You are in the exhibition and entertainment business and you cannot expect to operate if you don't give the public a little something for nothing. Make people feel free to go anywhere on the grounds. If you cannot create an atmosphere that is healthy and entertaining then your fair can't last."

Criticizes Car Raffling

The "raffling" of cars, Mr. McLean declared, was beneath the dignity of any respectable fair board. "There is nothing healthy, social or educational about it. It is a cheap way to separate people from the public and in the end will destroy the fair."

The whole secret of a successful fair, he concluded, is in creating the proper atmosphere for the public. "Give them value for their money and show up, don't be afraid to spend money to attract them."

Members of the Lindsay Board in attendance were: President McLean were B. A. Wilson, Assistant-Secretary; William Murdoch, 2nd. Vice-President; P. King, 1st Vice-President; Sam Endicott and J. A. Hamilton directors. Mr. C. L. Jewell, manager of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and a former Lindsay boy, was a special guest. In a brief address he advocated local support of outside fairs, so that they will support you." "Take a leaf out of the book of other successful businesses and the fair here will be a success."

Brief addresses were given by Charles Symons, who welcomed the visitors, and by Mayor Ellis Wilson in thanking questions; and the remainder of the visitors. Mr. Fred Chamberlain expressed the appreciation of the Belleville Board and will visit. President Wesley Gray of the Belleville Fair Board will be the chair with Secretary Arthur Burke conducting the meeting.

Axe Almost Severs Hand Of 17-Year-Old Maynooth Youth

Bancroft, (Special)—His left hand practically severed by a blow from an axe in the hands of his father, Gordon McAlpine, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Alpine, residing near Maynooth, was rushed to Bancroft Red Cross hospital on Thursday, where all efforts are being made to save the member.

The accident occurred in the timber lot of McAlpine where father and son were felling trees. The elder McAlpine had just brought down a large tree, and had cut off the limbs preparatory to cutting it into lengths when he struck at his base, when his son reaching across the butt of the tree to salvage the limb, received the full force of the blow as the father swung the axe to sever the remaining log.

The keen axe sheared through tendons and bones leaving the hand hanging. The father applied a tourniquet, which saved his son's life though when he arrived at the hospital 90 minutes later, he was suffering from shock.

The injured youth was taken by car from the scene of the accident to Maynooth and rushed by car to hospital. Later he stated he never felt the axe cut him, as it drove through heavy leather mitts and gloves.

Dr. S. S. Lumb who attended the injured youth stated that he thought the hand could be saved, but would not be normal. McAlpine's condition was reported satisfactory today.

Famous Empire Stories

By Lilian Leveridge

The Story of Australia

The first Englishman to set foot on the shores of Australia little dreamed that he was the herald of the world's greatest Empire, in the largest island of the world—a whole continent in extent. This first Englishman was William Dampier, who came in a pirate ship, the Cygnet, in 1688.

The presence of a Great Southern Continent called Terra Australis, had been known or guessed for many years, but its exact position and extent were as yet unknown. The Portuguese are believed to have been the first to sail, in the 16th century, along both the western and eastern shores. But it was their way to keep their doings secret because they wanted to keep to themselves the advantage of any discoveries they might make. Nothing definite, therefore, is known about these early explorations.

The Dutch were the next explorers. The island of Dirk Hartog off the west coast bears the name of a Dutch captain who landed there in 1616, and 31c years later an English ship, the Trial, was wrecked on a reef near the island.

The most important discoveries were made by Abel Tasman. He was sent out by the Dutch Governor, General Anthony van Diemen, with two ships. Tasman discovered and landed on the island now called Tasmania, but he named it Van Diemen's Land. Afterwards, he discovered the south island of New Zealand, which he called Staten Land. On a later voyage he tried, but without success, to sail through Torres Strait, first discovered by a Spaniard named Luis de Torres.

The Dutch had gained considerable knowledge of the West coast of Australia as well as of these two islands. But they did not know the extent of the mainland, which was now named New Holland. Neither did they know whether these newly-discovered lands were islands or a part of the mainland. After this the Dutch did not carry on their discoveries, for the managers of the East India Company considered exploration unprofitable, nothing of any commercial value having as yet been found.

Then came Dampier, first with the buccaneering crew and afterwards in command of the Roebuck. On this second occasion he spent four months on the west and northwest coast. But though he travelled along these shores for about 1,000 miles he was not favorably impressed with what he saw. However, he wrote and published very interesting accounts of his travels. These helped to arouse and keep awake the interest of others, though many years passed before any new discoveries were made.

At last in 1769 came the famous Captain Cook. He was sent out by the Royal Society of London, in the Endeavour Bark to the island of Tahiti in order to watch and report on an important occurrence in astronomy—the passing of the planet Venus across the face of the sun, which could best be observed from the south seas. This he carried out successfully, and then sailed south to look for Terra Australis. Of course he did not find it south of Tahiti, so he went then to New Zealand. He sailed around both islands and made good maps of them, thus proving that this was not as had been supposed, a part of the mainland.

After that Cook determined to find and explore the east coast of New Holland, which was still unknown. Land was first sighted by Lieutenant Hicks, on April 20th, at a point supposed to be Cape Everard. They sailed north and for ten days later landed at Botany Bay. This bay received its name because of the large number of new plants found there by the two botanists, Sir Joseph Banks and Solander. Trees, plants and animals of Australia are very different from those of all other countries, and the collections and accounts of these botanists, especially of Banks, were of great interest in Europe.

Cook stayed a week at Botany Bay, then for nearly four months continued his voyage. He passed through Torres Strait, landed on Possession Island, and took possession of the whole eastern coast for England. He called this great New South Wales. His vast discoveries in Australia were particularly important because he viewed the land in a favorable light and gave alluring descriptions of it. The reports of all previous explorers had been such as to repel rather than to attract people to the newfound shores.

At the close of the American War of Independence, England was faced with a serious problem. The laws of England were at that time very severe, and for many comparatively small offences a great many men were sentenced to transportation for life. The jails were crowded and something had to be done with them. Thunder of convicts had been sent to America, but now that the colonies had won their independence this was no longer possible.

Sir Joseph Banks suggested that convicts be sent to New Holland, and recommended Botany Bay as a suitable location for a settlement. Afterwards the suggestion was also made of sending American loyalists there. This latter idea, though a good one, was never followed up; but Sir William Pitt, supported by his Cabinet Minister, Lord Sydney, agreed to plant a colony of convicts in New South Wales.

Accordingly a little fleet bearing 717 convicts and stores, under the command of Arthur Phillip, was sent out in 1787. Phillip was chosen as the Governor of the new colony. After landing at Botany Bay he found it unsuitable for settlement, and so moved a little farther north to Port Jackson. Here he had found a magnificent harbour, plenty of fresh water, good land, and good timber. Moreover, it was a beautiful spot.

Phillip's task was extremely difficult, but he was a good and able man, and nothing ever daunted him. He made a splendid beginning, but in about four years' time he had to resign on account of ill-health and return to England. Before he left there were nearly 2,000 acres of land under cultivation, and prospects were promising.

After this new troubles and difficulties arose, chiefly on account of the greed and tyranny of officers placed in charge, who cared for nothing but their own interests. Some of the Governors were just, and a system was established by which many of the worst class of convicts in time won freedom and independence. On the other hand, the greatest harshness and cruelty were too often practised.

Shipload after shipload of convicts arrived from time to time, and fresh settlements were made at various points along the coast. The beautiful island of Tasmania, especially, was made the dumping ground of thousands of the worst type of convicts. Punishments were desperately severe, flogging and hanging being often resorted to, and the poor victims of "man's inhumanity to man" suffered tortures such as we cannot even imagine. And yet, where justice and mercy held sway, many condemned persons rose from the depressions and in time became upright, prosperous and respected citizens.

The aboriginals, the first inhabitants of Australia were a copper coloured race, less intelligent than the Indians of North America. They were not naturally warlike, and gave little trouble when kindly treated. But they were often hunted and killed by the white people; they perished from disease and drink, and the race faded away very rapidly.

Meanwhile the land was being explored and the interior opened up for settlement. Flinders, the first to circumnavigate the continent, recommended that it be called Australia, and after a few years this name was adopted.

In about the middle of the nineteenth century marvelously rich deposits of gold were found in several localities, especially in the colony of Victoria. This was very fortunate. The country rapidly increased in value and importance, and as the golden tidings flew around the globe, many new adventurers and settlers poured into the country. Gold was found more or less in all the states; also a wealth of other minerals—copper, silver, lead and tin. Farming and sheep-raising became important industries.

Conviction came to an end near the middle of the century, and prosperity increased. Settlements spread and flourished; towns and cities sprang up; railways were built. The various colonies struggled up toward self-government, and in 1900 the Commonwealth of Australia was formed by the federal union of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, Western Australia, South Australia (with its dependency, the Northern Territory), and Tasmania. The new Constitution came into force the following year.

The people of Australia have always been proud of their British origin. The continent was won for the Empire without bloodshed, but Australians have proved themselves ready to take up arms for Britain and fight shoulder to shoulder with her in any time of need. Egypt, South Africa, China and Germany, have in turn learned to respect their sturdy strength and valour in arms.

Member Forced To Withdraw Word From His Address

Toronto, April 4 (CP) — John Glass (Lib. Toronto St. Andrew) was forced to withdraw the word "dishonest" during the budget debate in the Ontario Legislature Thursday. Referring to a speech by A. H. Acres (Con. Carleton), Mr. Glass declared the member for Carleton had made an "unjustified criticism and an dishonest attack" on members of the government.

Leopold Macaulay leading the opposition at the time demanded the word "dishonest" be withdrawn and after an exchange of words, Mr. Glass, withdrew it as the request of the acting speaker, R. Patterson (Lib. Grey North.)

Mr. Macaulay pressed the issue, declaring that no member should be accused of making unjustified criticism.

"You did against the milk board," interjected Minister F. M. Dewan. He referred to Mr. Macaulay's declaration last Friday that the Milk Board was "arbitrary" and "it should be lopped off behind the ears."

Several other members began to interrupt, prompting Premier Drew to burn to call for order and Mr. Glass resumed his speech.

It was shown in a return printed in the votes and proceedings of the Ontario Legislature Thursday. Referring to a speech by A. H. Acres (Con. GERMAN CREWS RETURN

Peru, April 4 (AP)—Thirty members of the crews of the German steamships Hermonthis and Muenchen which were set afire and abandoned two days ago 200 miles off Callao harbor arrived here early today. They reached the coast in a sailing boat.

The Muenchen, 5,619 tons, and the Hermonthis, 4,830 tons, sailed from Callao March 31 without papers. Two other German vessels in Callao harbor which sought to follow them later were intercepted by a Peruvian cruiser and returned to port, where their crews set them ablaze.

"SHOWED US THE PATH"

One of the glories which will be that of modern Greece is the knowledge that her deeds this year have inspired the free world. General Dusan Simovic of Yugoslavia has written a letter which appears in an Athenian newspaper, in which he says:—

"As an honest soldier I am bound to admit that it was Greek heroism which showed us the path we should tread."

Greece is small as compared with many races but in heroism her people ranks with the greatest of the world. Her bravery has been magnificent. She has dared a blustering tyrant and keeps him in relentless retreat. She has lowered the prestige of Italy and Mussolini to the lowest. She has demonstrated what a small people can do. The influence of her people's deeds and achievements will not be only to be felt in the outcome of this war but in the reconstruction years to come and will be sung in song and told in story in the ages far in the future.

"Greek heroism showed us the path we should tread." This is the plain and direct tribute of a valiant military chief and expresses the voice of a valiant and brave people, the Yugoslave, for a truly valiant people, the Greeks.

A virture such as this outweighs all the trickery and disgusting and criminal behavior of the two dictators, who have not one shred of glory to point to in their wretched careers.

The Greek and the Yugoslav spurn the tyrant.

PREPARING ITALY FOR BAD NEWS

Italian Fascists are preparing the Italian people for "new painful losses" in the expectation of the loss of Ethiopia with the imminent fall of Addis Ababa.

The course of events of the past three months and more must have prepared the Italians to look for the worst. It has been disaster upon disaster in a series of British and Grecian victories which have led the great British statesman, David Lloyd George, to say that never in British history in such a brief period of time has there been such a "galaxy of victories."

Now approaches the time for the collapse of the African Empire of Italy, and Mario Appelius, Fascist military commentator, asserts that 300,000 British troops flanked by Haile Selassie's warriors are "aided by formidable armament and abundant aviation" are piercing Ethiopia from thirteen different routes.

Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia was one of the most disgraceful exhibitions of barbarism and savagery the modern world has seen. A quarrel was deliberately picked to rob this free people of their country for the glory of Mussolini, Fascism rule has been characterized by accounts and one of the most wretched stories has to be written of the Fascist regime. Appelius expresses no repentance for what Fascism did in that country. He voices only what Fascist plans have gone astray. It is the callousness of the losing tyrant and his satellites. His reference to Ethiopia and Eritrea is only pain for what has happened to Fascist arms, when he says "why here the enemy errs is in believing he can deliver a mortal blow to Italy through our sorrow at Eritrea and Ethiopia." The Fascist is anxious to smooth the way for admission of Italian defeat and makes the hypocritic appeal to the people of Italy.

Writing in Mussolini's own paper, Il Popolo d'Italia of Milan, Appelius says, "Our spirit is prepared by now for new painful losses, some of which were imposed by the humaneness of the Italian command, which is evacuating certain urban areas to save the population the horrors of street fighting."

The British and imperial offensive aided by the Ethiopians, Free French and other forces, has been powerful and humane by their great strength for it has shortened the campaign.

The Fascists will fondly and against common sense cling to their only hope that time they should be afraid of, namely Hitler, may accomplish something which will save Fascism's hide, though the Italians hate the Germans. Germany is a potential enemy of Italy as of every other nation. But the Fascists poisoned by their own doctrine and hopes try to convince Italy that all may yet be well. That is where the Fascists err. They are leading Italy to the inevitable collapse.

ADOLF

A doleful wight
Is Adolf. He
Has one delight:
Necromancy.

He never thinks,
He never smokes,
Nor eats and drinks,
Like other folks.

A chap, I guess,
Who never knew
The friendliness
Of Duggan's Dew;

Nor from the blues
Got relief
By steady use
Of British beef.

Tobacco might Have saved him from His headlong flight
To heathendom.

Nor do I think, -
So very much
About his drink
And food, as such,

But!—At the end
Of Adolf's fight
We can depend
He'll smoke all right.

Ottawa, March 29, 1941 —S.D.H.

In Rome, news dispatches say, Italian students and soldiers face each other outside Yugoslavian and United States embassies. The studes started demonstrations against the foreign representatives following the refusal of Yugoslavia to bow to Nazi edicts, and the all-out aid being given to Britain by the U.S.A. Let one shot be fired and the boys in the embassies may see the astounding spectacle of two warring factions running away from each other.

What price progress? Did you know that one out of every four employed in the United States today depends for his job upon one or another of fourteen industries unknown in 1870?

SIDEWALK COMMENT

One classes coal with Newcastle
And looks for time to Greenwich,
With all this sand upon the streets
They may look here for spinach.

Signs of spring: Little blobs of flowers, straw, and chin-straps in reverse, that the gals call hats; tulips shooting up in out of the way places trying to make a monkey out of adjacent snowbanks; redwinged blackbirds practising themselves in marshes; white shoes and slacks on a local Marlene Dietrich looking in a jewelry store window, while the boyfriend in a fine force blue stands nearby fingering a half buck and looking at fishing gear in the next-door hardware store window; crocus buds blobbing on a Campbell Street lawn; the final notice that that cheque for the first backyard fence chorus when the family Angora has her first date; and the fact that the City Hall clock hasn't stopped for ten days.

Soon the familiar cry will be heard "Suckers are runnin'" and the fish-loving gentry will be digging up spears and whatnot to get their annual spring sport. But as Bertie the Batch puts it, "Yeah, some of 'em will be runnin' to the altar after bein' hooked durin' the winter season."

Abyssinia, Bardia, Tobruk,
Somaliland and Eritrea,
Soon will echo Muss's swan-song
"I surrender, dear."

A legal friend advances the story of Annabel, mule mascot of a U.S.A. regiment who recently departed this life after years of faithful service. After the doughboys had committed Annabel to her last pasture they erected a monument with the following inscription:—

"Here lies Annabel; faithful mule of the . . . Regt. who during her long army career kicked four major-generals, five lieutenant-generals, two generals, seven captains, eight majors, four lieutenants, six top-sergeants, thirteen sergeants, eleven corporals, eighteen privates, and one Mills bomb.

Letter To The Editor

SOLDIER'S WIFE
Belleville, Ont.,
April 2, 1941.

Dear Sir,—

Yesterday a gentleman came to my home in the distribution for the benefit of the soldiers, etc. I think that is a splendid idea, but I have a few comforts, but what prompted me to write this is, what are we looking after the wives and children, with regards to rents being raised and being given notice to move; not anyone that I've heard of, who have soldier's wife I truly believe our city needs awakening. Last week Belleville nearly Trenton, Kingston, Oshawa are being looked after; why not Belleville? no need for homes is great and the landlords know they can get high rents.

A Bewildered Soldier's Wife.

War Time Food Problem

By Logan Clendenning, M.D.

We have not begun in North America to experience any of the discomfort of the food shortages which have been felt in the wake of war, and it is probable we won't, but we should face the possibilities in the reinforced bread that is in the process of being rationed.

This idea was promulgated at a meeting last week attended by the Surgeon-General Thomson Parran and nutritional experts, at which Dr. Paul Spies of Birmingham, Alabama, and Dr. Russell Wilder, of Rochester, Minn., unfortunately cannot subscribe to the statements some of the experts are quoted to have made. Dr. Parran, for instance, is reported to have said of the people of the United States are not getting an adequate diet, and Dr. Wilder, that was also present at that meeting, said it is true that the majority of people in the country who were suffering from vitamin deficiency. Both of these statements strike me as slightly exaggerated but there are undoubtedly many such cases and the new reinforced bread is certainly adequate to supply their needs.

Vitamin Deficiency

Bread is particularly likely to be on the diet list of a certain type of vitamin deficiency patient. This is the lonely person who "batches" and prepares his own meals. The consequence is he is lazy to eat proper meals and depends on cheap margarine and coffee and bread. During the days before much attention was paid to vitamins the laundry was very proud of the improvements they made in processing such foods. It must be admitted that modern fine, white, miller's flour is very delicious. The only thing is that we have found that this product has lost many of the valuable minerals and vitamins. How the Department of Health office, with the co-operation of the millers, has proposed to add thiamine chloride (B1), which is found in the roughage elements of the food and so add this vitamin to refined foods. They also add iron and thiocinic acid, which is found in the element which prevents pellagra.

Other examples of this tendency is the present custom of adding Vitamin D to milk and Vitamin A to oleomargarine. In connection with a limited budget can set foods that are as rich in vitamins as the more highly priced foods.

Experience in the immediate past has shown the value of these precautions.

The effect of the Germans in 1918 is said to have been partly due to starvation, not to bullets. The Germans are saying it and saying it plenty.

* * *

In this society as in all others, the hope lies with the middle — with those who are neither so well off that they fear above all else the final loss of their privileges, nor so poor that they feel they have nothing to lose.

In these people—the skilled and self-respecting workers, the professional group, whose work must always be conducted according to certain standards that take precedence over mere material returns, the intelligent technicians and managements—and in industries, who hold their jobs because of their merit — lie these real the soundest, solidest, most patriotic and most reasonable values and virtues of America.

We have one of the best middle-classes, in the world, and we are predominantly a middle-class nation. The ideal of the American worker is to enter this class, and those in it have little ambition, by and large, to rise higher than a few steps within it. The American middle-class is not plutocratic. It is not class-conscious, and it does not feel itself permanently divorced from and above manual workers. It is socially-minded and democratic.

But there, too, there is apathy about the war, and a apathy about the defence effort.

* * *

I am convinced that the reason is to be found in a statement made by Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, in a recent broadcast. Mr. Hutchins believes that we are being pushed toward war and, unlike the column is vigorously opposing the Administration. But he raises this question:

"Are we to rush to arms every time the Administration gets in danger? If so, we are entitled to know that the future which the British Empire is to be. Are we to put down every tyrant that arises in Europe? If so, we are entitled to know what is to be done to keep tyrants from being worse than the last."

* * *

Mr. Hutchins is demanding to know war aims and peace aims, but if he is not satisfied the duties of Hitler is sufficient. In this I agree in the de e fi e d e fense. Defeating Hitler is enough immediate aim for Great Britain, already fighting for her very life, but it is not aim enough for any nation not immediately and directly threatened. It is perfectly true that neither British nor we can lay down a peace-plan in advance of ultimate realities, but it ought to be possible to articulate a goal for a future Europe and a future international society when a supreme effort is made in the "fight for freedom," or Mr. Roosevelt's "four freedoms."

* * *

Specifically, the American people want to know what a British victory aims at destroying Germany or returning to a policy of leaving Europe divided, or whether it is not time, before the war, they want to know what the outlook is for India. And specifically, they want to know whether the British government or this Administration is thinking about creating a better organization and distribution of the world's goods than that between nations and classes once this war is won.

* * *

To allow the greatest war-maker in history, Adolf Hitler, to capture the peace offensive is inept to a degree. A majority of this nation can be united around a positive aim —never around a negative one. It is not as the war remains negative and nebulous the disrupters of Union must have fertile ground to plough.

The problem whether you can take shelter in a place where enemy action you don't recognize is one that confronted some London dispatch riders recently.

Two members of the Soviet Embassy in London, on their way from West End when an air raid became unusually severe, took to a neighborhood. Seeing a number of people sheltering in a doorway, they stopped their car and joined them.

The door was opened, and everyone was invited to enter.

"His Excellency will be pleased to offer his hospitality to us in the raid lasts", a secretary announced. Others in the doorway sought shelter in the Polish Embassy.

The Soviet delegates decided that protection was of value to demand their withdrawal, so they hastily moved on to seek shelter elsewhere.

She is right in that. Miss Booth's knowledge of food is as astonishing as his knowledge of geography.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Peace Aims Should Be Discussed

New York, April 4—This war is not popular in the United States. Making America an "arsenal for democracy" is not really popular. If the Administration avoids facing that fact it is going to make the mistake of Hi fe. Rather it should face the fact and ask the reason.

* * *

This country is as anti-Nazi as any in the world. That fact has not changed. An overwhelming majority of the people want the British to win. That is also a fact. But they want the British to win without that wholehearted enthusiasm which is going to be necessary for the sort of effort that we must make—to save Britain, and to save ourselves. There is lethargy and apathy. That lethargy and apathy are dangerous I cannot avoid an overwhelming impression—an impression ominously similar to the one that hit me between the eyes like a sledge hammer last spring in France. This society is not obedient, not united, not devoted from a thome alms.

* * *

William Lawrence Shirer wrote in The Atlantic Monthly the first really good journalistic account of the collapse of France. I wish he were writing it somewhere where it would be read by millions. He confirms completely the impression that I recorded upon my return from Europe. Mine, however, was an impression limited to 16 by backed up by voluminous evidence, and entered in a day-by-day diary. He followed the German army into Belgium and into France.

* * *

"There was a complete collapse of French society under the French soul. There was either treachery or criminal negligence on the part of the high officers in the field. Among the civilian population the defeatist propaganda had won the day. And the message was 'Don't fight! Never were the masters so right.'

There was Fascism at the top and Communism at the bottom.

* * *

There is Fascism in top circles and Communism in bottom circles in the United States today. Both of it in both places—more indirect than direct, but there.

In the e n d of a German victory one large branch of the Republican party with some Democrats, would be Vichy-Fascist immediately. In labor ranks there is a considerable minority though throughout the country are not normal. The people sense that Hitler must be defeated for labor than defeat Nazism. The defence program gives labor the opportunity to break the suppression of labor on the ground of a national emergency.

NoGLing could be more calculated to cause confusion and disunity among workers. Nothing would better play into the hands of the Communist agitators. "See," they will say, as they are doing, "the whole defence effort is just a class war against you. Your enemy is in the bosom of the A. F. of L. They are saying it and saying it plenty.

SKIMBLE SKAMBLE STUFF

"Cadre" is a military term meaning a skeleton brigade or other unit consisting of officers around which recruits for brigade or other unit can be formed by adding enlisted men.

A young male fur seal or a bachelor is called a "holluschick" in the Northwest. The word is supposed to be from a Russian term meaning naked or without clothing. Another spelling of "holluschick" is "holluschickie."

In the United States and Canada the "bank holiday" refers to a closing of the bank because of an emergency, while in Great Britain a bank holiday is a legal holiday on which the banks are closed.

The bank holidays in England, when in normal times the banks are closed, on Good Friday, Easter Monday, Whitmonday, First Monday in August, Christmas Day and Boxing Day.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, in his famous dictionary, defined "envoy" as the plural of "enough." It seems that centuries ago English writers were supposed to write "room enough" and "seats enow."

Edward King Kingsborough, Irish antiquarian, spent $35,000 and died in a debtor's prison trying to prove that the Aztec race of Mexico were descended from the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel.

Ontario Legislature Passes Hepburn's $115,000,000 Budget

Toronto, April 4 (CP).—Premier Hepburn's unprecedented $115,000,000 budget for the fiscal year just starting had the unqualified approval of his followers today following the close of the budget debate that started nearly three weeks ago in the Ontario Legislature.

The debate was concluded last night when Conservative Leader George Drew's motion to refer the estimates to the executive Council for the purpose of reducing them by at least $25,000,000 was defeated. On a straight party ballot, the resolutions were passed. Later on the same vote the legislature resolved itself into a Committee of Supply to consider the estimates. One item was passed before adjournment was taken.

Defends Power Effort.

"In completing a defence of his administration, the premier declared that hydro electric power, which the opposition charged was being exported to Massena, N.Y., at a loss, was power for which there was no market in Ontario.

Had this power not been sold, he declared, the province would have been guilty of "gross waste". In addition the government had been urged to release this power for export because it was going to plants manufacturing aluminum parts for British airplanes.

Premier Hepburn read a statement from Chief Engineer John Dibblee of the Hydro Commission which, he said, would document the "misleading statements" of former Premier George S. Henry (Con., York-East) that there was a power shortage in Ontario.

Mr. Dibblee's statement declared the commission had greater power than ever before, and privately owned companies in Quebec and if was to ease the situation in that province that Ontario had consented to continue in effect daylight saving during the past winter. The province's reserve was sufficient to meet "any reasonable demand from war industries up until 1942," the statement added.

Largest Sum For Education.

Referring to Mr. Henry's charge the government was "niggardly" in its grants to education, Mr. Hepburn declared the former premier during his last year in office in 1933 had reduced by $1,300,000 grants to education and at the same time raised the entrance examination fee from $1.50.

"Then the honorable member is hypocritical enough to stand up and condemn this government for spending the largest amount on education this year than was ever spent in the province's history," declared the premier.

He declared that despite Col. Drew's reference to the former mental hospital at St. Thomas as being "a sink hole" it was destined in his opinion to become the air training centre of the empire.

"The hospital buildings are now used by the Royal Canadian Air Force as a training school.)

Premier Hepburn said when his government had a deficit he was condemned as the Conservatives and when he showed a surplus he was also condemned.

"The Tories, while out of office, are the most carping critics and while in office, they are the worst of administrators," he declared.

The Premier admitted the gross provincial debt had increased by $76,000,000 since he took office in 1934 but the Province had $118,000,000 additional assets, including $143,000,000 invested in highways.

Dealing with the charge that his was "a taxing government," he declared the assumption by the Province of the income tax was a case in point. This tax was formerly collected by some municipalities. In taking over this tax, the government had made it applicable everywhere in the Province and the Premier defied anyone in the opposition benches to move for its abolition and the abolition of the subsidy to municipalities.

Fine Highways Pay

His government had been accused of being "extravagant" in highway construction yet the Premier said he could safely say Ontario enjoyed more profits from tourists than any jurisdiction on the continent and good roads were primarily responsible for this.

The opposition had charged, he continued, that the corporation tax was eventually borne by the corporation's customers. The biggest industry in the Province was mining and its best customer was the United States government.

Drew Says, Gov't. Acts as if Country In War at Peace

Col. Drew, in opening his address declared that if the government was sincere in its promise to push the country's war effort to the limit it would "eliminate every unnecessary service and slash every expenditure possible."

"In spite of all its patriotic assertions this government acts as though we are still at peace," he declared. 'It also acts as though it thought we were going through the boom days of 1929."

The government in fact, he charged, was blundering the war effort by diverting from the expenditures of the Dominion government the $12,000,000 surplus by "shameful over-taxation."

The financial statements presented to the House, he continued, were "unreliable" and if the basis of compiling tax receipts was used "serious confusion and addition" follow.

In advocating a reduction of expenditures to a level of five years ago, when the province had 400,000 people Drew declared the province "can and should give an example of saving to its people."

No Economy Attempt.

"There is no suggestion of economy," he continued. "There is no pretence of meeting the wasteful extravagance of the past few years."

The net debt of the province had been increased by $140,000,000 during a period when revenue from taxes jumped from $56,000,000 to $115,000,000.

"The highest taxation in the history of this province is the answer of this government to the urgent demands for economy," Col. Drew asserted.

Farmers were getting prices for their products completely out of line with the price they paid for their commodities and this mounting burden of taxation was one of the reasons for the plight agriculture finds itself in today.

"What does this budget of $115,000,000 mean to the people of Ontario?" he asked. "It means that every man, woman and child contributes $30 to the treasury."

Col. Drew said that while he favored a reduction in expenditures he was not in favor of reducing the amount of money being spent to aid agriculture.

Col. Drew criticized the government for bringing in outside architects for the building of hospitals.

Col. Drew said more than a 1,000,000 was "thrown away on the restoration of a couple of old forts" at Kingston and Niagara-on-the-Lake when the money could have been spent to buy a fleet of fighting aircraft.

Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten interrupted to point out that the work was done before we broke out.

Col. Drew contended that Premier Hepburn should have paid for the advertising that the government ran in the newspapers following the Dominion-Provincial conference. The Premier's attack was entitled "Let's Face the Facts", and consisted of quotations taken from Hansard on the conference.

"Most of the advertisement was devoted to what Mr. Hepburn said but all his offensive remarks were omitted."

Col. Drew said he agreed with the premier that it would be "unthinkable" to plunge the province into an unnecessary "election at this critical time".

The provincial auditor should refuse to approve the payment for the advertisement ($32,965) and should insist on receiving a personal cheque from the premier who ordered this persona advertisement which by no stretch of imagination could be suggested as being of any use the people."

The Conservative leader suggested money could be saved by adjusting the Civil Service Departments with those of the Dominion and eliminating the duplicating services.

Col. Drew said figures of the Dominion bureau of statistics "had debunked" the "rosy picture" of tourist traffic which had served as an excuse for "extravagance" in highway construction.

Five years ago, he said, the government was able to finance its operation with $65,000,000 and there was no reason why this figure could not be approached now, without touching the sums allotted to help agriculture.

THANKS MOSBY'S TONIC—RELIEVED OF BACK PAINS

Mr. Kelly Felt Tired and Sluggish — Complexion Sallow and Pale — Bowels Constipated — Now He Says: "Mosby's Tonic Has Relieved Me. I feel Fine!"

"Oh! How my sluggish kidneys hurt me! The backache. The sharp pains. The stiffness and soreness. And all night long my sleep was disturbed, due to this kidney sluggishness. I couldn't rest. But since I got MOSBY'S TONIC my sluggish-acting kidneys are relieved. Now I can sleep. Backache relieved. Here is a Splendid Medicine!"

MR. BERNARD KELLY

That is what thousands of people here in Belleville and vicinity are saying about MOSBY'S TONIC, a "New Mixture of Roots and Herbs and Other Splendid Medicinal Agents," now being introduced to the public daily in this city at Lattimer's Drug Store, 238 Front St.

And remember—MOSBY'S TONIC not only helps Nature relieve weak, sluggish kidney's but also clears gas and bloat from stomach, cleanses bowels, invigorates the liver action, acts to relieve pains of rheumatic and neuritic trouble, caused by contaminated system. It accomplishes several things in the body at the Same Time.

For instance, just a few days ago, Mr. Bernard Kelly, of 103 Rosehealth Ave., Toronto, Ont., made the following statement. This grateful man's testimonial, praising Mosby's Tonic, follows:

Was Low in Energy; Felt Weak and Sluggish

"About a year ago I began losing weight. At first, Mr. Kelly, I didn't mind it, as I seemed to lose all my surplus fat. But soon I began losing flesh off my body properly, and as a result, my complexion became sallow, and my 'inside' colour and I simply felt worn out ALL THE TIME. I was full of aches and pains, which was due to constipation. My kidneys were in a terrible state of constipation.

"One day a friend of mine told me what Mosby's Tonic had done for him, and he almost insisted that I get this medicine. I did so, and I'm glad I did, for it was the first bottle has given me a great surprise. I began to know, within ONE WEEK I could see the colour coming back to my cheeks, and at the same time this medicine helped me to gain back my weight, and, say, what an appetite-builder this Mosby's Tonic is! Now I eat, like a school-boy, and I have gained in energy and never feel tired. I also found out that it helps my sex and relieves pains. I simply feel fine in general. It is SPLENDID!"

MOSBY'S TONIC is sold here in Belleville at LATTIMER'S DRUG STORE, 238 Front Street

British Show Ability To Stick To Main Issues Says Tribune

New York, April 4 (CP)— The New York Herald Tribune said editorially today that the British withdrawal from Bengasi definitely is a reverse to Britain but "is another testimonial to the value of the Cyrenaican colony; having done so, it then had a base which gave them a powerful offensive initiative.

"They could go on to Tripoli, they could threaten Sicily . they could switch their effort into the Balkans. But for the third it was of no value. They chose the third; and their yielding of Bengasi is interesting confirmation of the thoroughness with which they have done so. They are not filtering men or effort for prestige reasons from what they have taken as their main task.

"If you cannot do everything, it is solid generalship to waste nothing on non-essentials. The swift loss of Bengasi is a reverse, but one easily read in is something of the same judgment and steadiness which, at home, have enabled the British to watch the indiscriminate devastation of their cities night after night without once veering from their own methodical course or avoiding militarily valuables or enemy's war potential, of never being diverted from the main issue. It is a valuable military quality."

Two Youths Given Reformatory Term

Wm. Woodcock and Wm. J. Orr Convicted of 17 Counts of Breaking and Theft

Convicted on seventeen counts of breaking, entering and theft two Belleville youths, William Woodcock, 18, and William J. Orr, 18, were sentenced to serve two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory, and a further indeterminate sentence of six months, by Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C., in local police court today. His Worship made all sentences in the 17 cases run concurrently.

The more serious cases against the convicted pair included:

Entry and theft, Graham Cold Storage, three cases, theft of $50.50.

Two entries into Reid's Dairy, theft of over $20.00.

Entry Harris Bakery, theft of 70 lbs. sugar, nine dozen eggs, cakes and bread.

Entry into Alexander's News Stand, theft of $2.10, purchase of cigarettes;

At Queen Victoria School, entry and damage to property;

At King George School, entry, theft of cash and ammunition;

At Dundas Dairy, entry, theft of pennies and considerable damage;

At Snudden's Garage, theft of cash; register and damage to same;

Theft of four blower's and entering the Belle Cleaners.

Asks For Leniency

R. A. Pringle, local attorney, appearing on behalf of the pair, listened to his clients enter pleas of guilty to thirty-four charges, read collectively by Crown Attorney H. C. Deeman, K.C., to the boys. At the conclusion Mr. Pringle pointed out to the court their tender age. They were encouraged and influenced by a third party. There was much clatter, Mr. Pringle alleged as he urged leniency.

"Times are actually penitentiary counts, but as they were doubtless influenced, the court will take this into consideration and impose the reformatory term," replied His Worship.

Detective Fred Izard, who apprehended the two lads, as well as a third person, William E. Fair, tendered statements given the police by Orr and Woodcock, while Chief Kidd introduced a list of previous convictions from the juvenile court records.

Not Asked to Plead

Later Fair was arraigned on a charge of receiving stolen goods, knowing the goods to be stolen, but he was not asked to plead, as J. J. Howell, appearing for him, requested an enlargement until Monday.

"Under the Criminal Code a person who aids, abets or counsels a crime is equally guilty and I am instructing Chief Kidd to prefer further charges in this case," stated Col. Donnan.

"Do I understand there will be other charges?" asked Mr. Howell.

"Yes exactly it?," replied Col. Donnan, inferring Fair would be charged as an accomplice to the charges preferred against Orr and Woodcock.

Daily Garden-Graph

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY
For Central Press Canadian

Cannas can be grown from seed and will bloom the same year. This is one way to secure new and interesting kinds as the blooms are not apt to be the same as the parent plant.

Cannas seeds are slow to germinate and frequently do not germinate at all. This is due to their hard outer coating which requires special treatment to permit the water to enter the inner part of the seed. Water must be absorbed by the embryo before germination can begin.

How to produce unusual cannas

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, cannas seed germinate quickly if the hard outer seed shell is notched with a file or chipped with a knife. The cut should be made in the center on the opposite side from the seed scar. It is important not to destroy the seed germ which lies close to the scar. The hole need not be large. Soak the chipped or filed seed in tepid water for 24 hours before planting.

Another method used to speed germination is to soak the canna seeds in tepid water for three to five days, or until the seed coat shows signs of softening. To keep the water tepid, place in or near a radiator. The seeds should not be allowed to dry before planting.

Character Study of Miss Roth the Capitol Theatre the evening of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

At the Capitol Theatre on Tuesday evening, April 29, the Canadian Red Cross Society will sponsor the appearance of a lady who has often been acclaimed as the foremost actress of our time, Ruth Draper, known equally as well to London as to her native city of New York, and loved from Baltimore to Singapore, as well as in almost every nook and crannie of the globe. Miss Draper is a traveller, whose road in peaceful times knows no bounds. Even this present theatrical season has found her playing in the capitals of South America, the Caribbean, on Broadway, and on a tour of the principal Eastern U.S. cities and now Canada.

It is difficult to analyze the art of Ruth Draper, or to detail its ingredients. She can make her audience visualize in a minute any one of a hundred different characters and endow them all with verisimilitude. She penetrates beneath the externals and probes the psychological depths of each portrait. There is finesse and color in each interpretation. In comedy which predominates most of her sketches, she can extract more laughs in fifteen or twenty minutes than many playwrights and actors can squeeze out of a full-length farce in an entire evening.

Draper who will appear in person at April 29th., under the auspices of

Water and Health

Many professional heavyweight wrestlers who weigh three or four times a week, may take off as much as ten pounds each time they wrestle and have the ten pounds back when they wrestle again the following night. It can be readily seen, that the ten pounds lost was not fat, it was water.

These men do not have to make any definite weight and so eat and drink heartily between bouts. They are very fond of drinking vegetables and fruits which, together with tea, coffee, milk, and water, put the ten pounds back easily in the 24 hours.

The reason the weight goes back on so readily is that fat tissue absorbs or holds water just as does a sponge, whereas more active tissue such as muscle or nerve, will only take in or absorb the amount of water needed to maintain the structure of this tissue. They will not allow more water than they need to maintain in their tissues, although to keep in good condition all tissues must have plenty of water about them.

We are advised by health specialists to drink eight glasses of water, state that most of us do not drink enough water, which is one cause of constipation and acidosis.

How much water should the average office worker, housewife or clerk drink in the 24 hours? Physiologists tell us that for every calorie of food eaten we need 1 cc. (1/3 drop) of water, so that if we ate 2,000 calories we should need 2,000 litres of drops, that is nearly three pints or a quart. However, when as meals contain over 50 per cent of water and green vegetables over 90 percent, it is estimated that we get at least half of our six glasses in the food, so that we need to drink only three glasses of water daily. If we drink tea, coffee, milk or other fluid at each meal, it explains why many individuals as a main in good health who do not drink any liquids between meals.

As a matter of fact, most of us eat under 2,000 calories per day than 2,000, so that about two quarts 3 glasses of water is supplied by the food eaten.

Generally speaking, keeping in mind that we normally have considerable walking or time other exercise, we can perspire freely, most of us would do well if we drank one or two glasses of water daily between meals and cannot harm us. It will of course necessitate regular fat individuals.

The Stars Say

For Friday, April 4

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A PROGRESSIVE and expansive day is the augury based on very interesting mutual and lunar aspects. While the sounder and more commonplace affairs of daily living may be under prospect of reward and enduring growth, yet things of the higher life and thought are under unusual promise for fruition and keen gratification. It may be in high cultural or professional expression, with full acclaim from public or private sources.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a year of much growth, expansion munificence and gain in the enhancement of the real values of both a human and spiritual life. Jovian, October and January should find their substantial wards and the higher expression of mental and emotional elements which vitalize fulfillment. The professional and artistic creative faculties gain recognition both public and private, while the practical humanitic urges may be enriched by noble gratifications.

A child born on this day should have many startling and outstanding traits of character although having a rather complicated if not confusing mystical, artistic faculty of unusual forms. It may shine in a public pedestal.

Thousands of tests of college students by a Los Angeles physiology professor showed that persons react to signals quicker than normally when subjected to red light, and slower when blue light is turned on them.

Mel "Sudden Death" Hill Gives Boston Stanley Cup Semi-Final Over The Leafs

Fires Winning Goal in Third Period to Give Bruins 2-1 Victory

LEAFS SCORE FIRST

Connie Smythe, Manager of Leafs, Fined $100 for Going on Ice

By H. M. PETERS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston, April 4 (CP)— Boston's powerful Bruins, who dominated the regular National Hockey League season, yoored into the Stanley Cup final with a 2-1 victory last night over a fighting Toronto Maple Leaf team that forced them to take to the last second of the seventh game.

To win, Bruins called upon the opportunist extraordinary, Mel "Sudden Death" Hill, who earned hockey fame in 1939 by scoring the winning goal in three overtime tussles with New York Rangers.

The Winnipeg-born forward, playing centre for the first time in his career, scored at 14:17 of the third period, breaking up a 1-1 tie that had lasted from late in the first period. Giving goalie Frankie Brimsek all the margin he needed to hold off the Toronto sharpshooters to the end.

Hill, who has been little used this season because his eyes have been troubling him, got his chance in star winger Dooley Weiland decided in the sixth game of the series he was the best place of the injured Bill Cowley on his Roy Conacher-Eddie Wiseman line. Hill more than justified the choice, keeping lightning Billy Taylor out of the scoring column for two games, and then emerging the getters here last night.

16,300 Fans Present

A crowd of 16,200 who had sat in grim silence as overtime after minute of the close third period ticked away, found the big, frenzied cheering as Hill, eluding his check deep in the Toronto zone, skated in front of the boards and let go a 25-footer that flashed across Broda's chest into the top corner of the net. Wiseman got an assist on that goal, and both Wiseman and Conacher had a hand in Boston's first goal, by Bill Mollenhi, that wiped out Toronto's first-period lead scored by Bucko McDonald. Both Mollett and McDonald netted long shots that were deflected off opposing defencemen's legs.

Bruins now go on to face Detroit Red Wings in the four-of-seven cup final that opens here Sunday night.

The game cost Conny Smythe, Leafs' peppery manager, a fine of $100 for going out on the ice. He bounced over the boards and raced to centre ice when his young captain, Pete Langelle, was clipped by Jack Crawford in the second period. Crawford drew a major penalty but he had been off only 1-2-3 minutes when he was followed by Billy Taylor of the Leafs for a like banishment because he drew blood from Art Jackson's skull.

Begin And End In Boston

The series began and ended in Boston. Bruins scored a 3-0 shutout in the first game, then lost 3-2 in the second game, also played here. Then they shifted to Toronto where Leafs won 7-2 and Bruins won 2-1. The fifth game, in Boston was a 3-1 overtime victory for Leafs; the sixth a 2-1 victory for Bruins at Toronto and the seventh again a 2-1 Boston victory.

The first two games of the cup final will be played in Boston Monday and Tuesday, with the teams returning to Detroit for the next two matches, remaining games, if necessary, will alternate between Boston and Detroit.

Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, holds a slight hope that Cowley may get back into action toward the end of the series.

MONTREAL HOLDS MILLIONAIRES TO OVERTIME DRAW

Sydney Goes Out in Front With Two Goals in First Period

SCORE IS 3-3

By T. R. WALSH

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)— Montreal Royals fought back from a two-goal deficit last night to hold Sydney Millionaires to a 3-3 overtime tie in the first game of the best-of-five series for Eastern Canada's senior hockey crown.

Royals, pre-game favorites in the series, had to come back fast to overcome the two-goal lead whipped up in the first period by the easterners.

Little Pete Morin's second marker of the night deadlocked the count for them early in the third frame. Both teams threw caution to the winds in the 10 minutes of wild overtime, but both goalies were tops on every assault in the frame.

Next game in the series will be played in Montreal Saturday with the third in Montreal Monday. Ottawa was assigned as referee's home for the round by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Bobby Walton Top Scorer

Bobby Walton was top scorer for the Millionaires. He tallied in the first frame aided by Johnny McReady and Clarence Snow, and in the second assisted by Snell and Remi Van Doele.

Van Doele started Sydney's march quarter-way through the opening period when he caught goalie Bill Durnan flat-footed with a stinging drive from the blue-line.

Russ McConnell, starry Montreal forward, was in the cooler when Walton made it 2-0. Gerry Heffernan and Buddy O'Connor red Morin off at the middle stanza for Royals but a minute later Walton got back his tally.

Just two seconds before the period ended Royals pulled back to within a goal of squaring the game. Paul Raymond, McConnell and Johnny Gagnon went through the Sydney defence together, and Acheson fooled goalie Bill Dickie from in close.

Buddy O'Connor drew an assist on Morin's second goal of the night. O'Connor checked Pritz near the goalmouth and sent the puck hopping over to Morin, who drew Dickie out before scoring easily to tie up the game.

Somewhere in England, April 4— (CP)—Sgt. W. T. Brade of Winnipeg, hard-slugging veteran, who held a string of Canadian amateur boxing titles, won the middleweight championship in the 2nd Canadian Division boxing finals with a first-round technical knockout over Pte. Wilb Ayers of London, Ont.

The winner was a bantamweight on the Canadian boxing team at the British Empire games in Australia and held the Canadian bantam, feather and lightweight titles. He now is with a field regiment and Ayres was a field ambulance.

The light-heavyweight title was won by Pte. Len Rashotte of Tweed, Ont., serving with a Quebec infantry regiment. He defeated Pte. A. G. Burcomb of Guelph, Ont., member of a field ambulance unit, by decision in three rounds.

Three-Round Decision

Pte. Jack Pedan of Toronto, with a Central Ontario infantry regiment, won the welterweight championship from Pte. T. P. Lee, Calgary, member of a mobile bath unit, and poked away at his husky opponent to take the heavyweight championship by a three-round decision.

A second-round technical knockout over Cpl. Jack Barry of Detroit won Pte P. E. Thisault of Montreal the bantam crown without a final fight when no opponent was available. The little Ottawan took on Pte. Euclid Paisley of Montreal in the featherweight final but lost when the fight was stopped in the second round.

Saskatoon Quakers And Winnipeg Rangers In Junior Finals

Winnipeg, April 4 (CP)—Coach Lorge (Baldy) Northcott of Winnipeg Rangers promised today that Western Canada will be entrants in the Memorial Cup final will be a "good series and indicated that if Saskatoon Quakers are to beat Rangers in the western final opening here tonight they'll have to be a stronger team than last year's Kenora results.

Speaking of Thistles who lost in the Memorial Cup final to Oshawa Generals a year ago, Northcott said Rangers are a "better balanced and heavier team."

The third Winnipeg might have been better in goal but we are better on defence. Our forwards are about the same as last year," he said. Other club weights between 165 and 170. We have a pretty fair hockey club.

The Quakers have a record equally as impressive as the Winnipeggers and carry 11 players who were with the club a year ago. Quakers, however, average 156 pounds, with several forwards on the light side.

Coach Russ McCarrie, prominent juvenile coach and hockey executive who is master-minding for Quakers, said when he left Saskatoon last night that with the exception of Harold Jackson, veteran defenceman and captain, the team is in good physical shape.

Quakers are certain the 10,000-seat demand for the first of the best-of-three series will be the best so far this year. We look forward to a sellout." The rink's capacity is 5,000.

Russian geologists following recent experimental drilling have established that gold-bearing sands exist in the Angrena Valley several miles from the West End tennis club on Wednesday, when some 15 local amateurs officially opened the outdoor season on their Holloway Street tennis courts. The West End netters have been playing their favourite racquet game for over a week, but went all out to officially open their season on Wednesday in conjunction with the mild-week half holiday now enjoyed at this time of the year locally. Asphalt courts were laid over the West End tennis courts last autumn which assures the club members of much earlier playing than the conventional grass or clay courts, in which the frost remains until about May. With the exception of the posters, who have been practising their play as occasional round of their favourite diversion in January, the opening of the tennis season by the West End netsters on Wednesday runs off with the official for early opening in 1941. Doug Mayhew, Gordon Barclay, Pat Wilkes, Olive Delaney and Muriel Wardner were a few of the local amateurs seen on the court during spring breezes and slugging their favourite sport for the season's record.

When the Ontario Baseball Association delegates meet in Toronto tomorrow for their annual conclave, one of the proposed changes to be considered is a proposal sponsored by the International League to advance the junior playing age from 20 to 21 years old at the start of the coming year. In both the O.B.A. and O.H.A. the junior age limit has been 20 years of age under prior to the current playing season, but the baseball moguls decided to move this age limit up to 21 years of age. If the delegates give the juniors an additional season in the junior ranks. Strangely enough, and at about the same time it was announced that the O.B.A. would bring this question up for consideration, along comes the Ontario Amateur Hockey Association with the identical same proposal and the change of their bylaws. The Ottawa Valley puck moguls feel they will be doing young hockey players a great favour by keeping them in the junior ranks for an additional season, which means a great difficulty here will be when Ottawa District winners advance into the intermediate ranks next fall—downs, where the junior age limit is still under 20-years-of-age prior to the playing season.

Do you remember when Moncton Hawks won the Allan Cup for the second successive year by defeating Port Arthur Bearcats, 3-2 and 7-1 in the third and deciding game of their three-game series seven years ago today in Toronto. The victory was not unexpected although the Easterners Canada team played without their star centre, the injured Bun Cook.

Strangely enough Phil Rizzuto's place with Kansas City of the American Association may be filled by another youngster of Italian descent—Gerard Scarfiello, a 19-year-old shortstop up from Wenatchee of the Western International League. Scarfiello is said to be a strong throwing arm, is speedy and has handled the ball well in practice. He hit only .266 for Wenatchee last year but scored 112 runs and pilfered 15 bases.

A strangy but severe harmony pervades Cleveland's previously seething hotbed of diamond animosity since the infamous Indian Insurrectionists. Bradley is speaking to Slapsticks. Slapsticks is actually carrying on conversations with Peckinpaugh, who is on good terms with Trosky, and nobody is talking about Vitt. So

Who Are the "Great" Pitchers in the Major Leagues?
Surely the Veterans Whose Records Prove Their Class

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Writer

New York, April 3.—If you were asked to name the best pitchers in the major leagues you'd tally with Bob Feller, Buck Newsom, Bucky Walters and Claude Passeau, and you'd be just about right in your claims.

For, certainly, they are the best pitchers today.

In that "today" is the claims of 14 others, who are about to start another campaign. It is these pitchers, too, who are the best pitchers in baseball.

They are the veterans who have consistently pitched winning ball, year after year. Their records prove they are the "cream of the crop."

Feller Ace of All?

With the exception of Feller, who has the jump on most of his competitors because he is starring at such an early age and thus may set all kinds of records before he is through, baseball's pitchers still have many games to win to rank in a class with such "great" performers as Lefty Grove, already winner of 293 (count 'em) games; Ted Lyons, who has bagged 223 decisions; Red Ruffing, victor in 229 productions; Carl Hubbell, victorious 253 times and many others.

A look-see at the list of veterans still being considered in pitching plans for the 1941 campaign reveals that several of the "stars", specifically, Paul Derringer of the Reds, Fred Fitzsimmons of the Dodgers, Mel Harder of the Indians, Tom Bridges of the Tigers, Lefty Gomez of the Yanks and Lon Warneke of the Cardinals, are being counted on as not only as helpers but as regular starters.

Root in 19th Year

And, this despite the fact that each has won more than 150 games in their careers which have stretched over more than 10 years in the majors.

Take the case of a few. There's Charley Root of the Cubs, now 42 years old. Root has won 193 games while losing 153. He's been in the majors 18 years. He should reach the 200 victory mark and 200 winners this year. Larry French of the Cubs, only 33 years old, could make the 200 circle with 21 wins. Harder, only 32 but a veteran of 13 years with 139 games to his credit, is favorite for the select circle of 200 winners.

Lefty Gomez, only 31 time, fits in the group, should reach the class of 200 winners this year. All he needs is seven more victories. He is 32 years old.

Dizzy Dean, prior to his arm trouble, bid fair to become one of the greatest pitchers of all time. He has won 150 games in 10 years and only 30 years old. But Dean, from all appearances, is on the down grade for good.

Records Show Class

Freddy Fitzsimmons, 39-year-old Dodger, not only has compiled 208 wins in his career but last season his 16th in the majors, he topped the whole Dodger staff!

Lefty Gomez, only 31 years old, may come back for the Yanks this year. He has won 169 games in 11 seasons.

A glance at the record of the 15 pitchers listed above will prove that, with a few exceptions, they have been members, of only one or two clubs throughout their careers. Outfielders and infielders may change clubs often but pitchers like Bridges, Gomez, Harder, Lyons and Hubbell have spent their lives with but one club. Hubbell started with the Tigers, but he has no record with that club.

An attached table gives you some idea what this group of veterans has done thus far. Some of their records, such as Hubbell's, held by the Newsome, the Walters and perhaps the Feller.

Name	Age	Yrs.	W.	L.
Hubbell	38	13	253	154
Dean	30	10	150	83
Derringer	35	10	168	149
Fitzsimmons	39	16	208	141
French	33	12	177	153
Gomez	31	11	168	92
Grove	41	16	293	134
Hadley	32	13	156	119
Harder	32	13	171	136
Lyons	37	13	223	133
Root	42	18	193	153
Ruffing	36	15	229	124
Warneke	31	11	169	95

What is believed to be a record for the early opening of out-of-doors sports and recreation, that is of the official status, was staged this afternoon, the West End tennis club on Wednesday, when some 15 local amateurs officially opened the outdoor tennis season on their Holloway Street courts. The West End netters have been playing their favourite racquet game for over a week, but went all out to officially open their season on Wednesday in conjunction with the mild-week half holiday now enjoyed at this time of the year locally. A strangy but severe harmony pervades Cleveland's previously seething hotbed of diamond animosity since the infamous Indian Insurrectionists. Bradley is speaking to Slapsticks. Slapsticks is actually carrying on conversations with Peckinpaugh, who is on good terms with Trosky, and nobody is talking about Vitt. So today, after countless years of pulling stubborn fast (and long-suffering followers' legs, the Cleveland Indians cut that same pulling act together, according to reports from their Fort Myers, Florida, training camp. They haven't been found in secluded copses with the Indians' scouts who have been together for a month, and Bill Veeck's and a single indignation meeting and they're seeing the Indians back to Peckinpaugh, Cleveland's "fearful little earful of 1940," who terrified the league for the first 1940, are now tossing nothing but benches into the ocean. Peckinpaugh's tip. May it continue with the desire of results with the Indians playing ball, instead of baseball.

Eight years ago last night little Kenny Doherty bounded into hockey's heralded heroes by scoring an overtime goal against Boston in a seventh and final game for Toronto. However, history did not repeat itself last night when Mel Hill scored the Bruins' second cup victory over Boston a two to one decision in a sudden death game and that right to meet Detroit Red Wings for the Stanley Cup. So another All-American Stanley Cup series will feature the world's professional hockey championship, the third in the history of the old mug. Duplicating their feats of the 1939 game the Bruins came from behind to win and strangely enough there was only a matter of a minute between McDonald's first goal for Toronto and Hollett's equalizer. There was no further scoring until late in the third period when Mel Hill, who had been in and out of limited contest sank the "million dollar" counter. Two great teams met in the Boston Garden last night and when the dowds this year, as was demonstrated by the play throughout the entire series.

Sport Spice—The Montreal Royals and Sydney Millionaires battled to a 3-3 overtime draw at Ottawa last night....With the remaining games of the series slated to be played in the Montreal Forum, it should give the Royals a slight edge....After all the fuss in their home town and don't think it doesn't make a difference, the Montreal entertainers ....Out West Lethbridge and Regina are tangling in the Western finals for the Allan Cup....Mel Williamson scored three and had four assists against Owen Sound the other night ....While, reminds us, a contingent of local hockey fans are taking in the Allan Cup game in Kingston tonight....Len Rashotte, of Tweed, who won the middleweight boxing championship of the Canadian troops in England recently ....See where Harold (Goodwill) Cotton announced his retirement as a hockey coach yesterday ....Well, if you insist.

Reconnaissance Planes Fly Over Athens

Athens, April 4 (AP)—Air raiders on reconnaissance flew high over this Greek capital today and were met by several bursts from anti-aircraft guns during a 45-minute alarm. No bombs were dropped.

A communique of the British air force said a heavily successful raid was made on Berati yesterday and direct hits obtained on military buildings in and around the town.

On the virtually dormant Albanian front only patrol activity and artillery exchanges have been reported in recent days.

The newspaper Kathimerini asserted today that the Fascist command "apparently aims now at organizing a defensive position in Albania in the hope of securing an orderly retreat at the moment of Greek action comes."

Italian "terrorism," the newspaper concluded, spurred it to the "murderd hopeless further resistance."

ATLANTIC CITY RUGGED TEAM

Sea Gulls Take on Windsor Spitfires for International Trophy

Atlantic City, N.J., April 4 (CP) Atlantic City Sea Gulls and the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League, a team that thrives on wave-dashing hockey and easily was the toughest team the league this season, ruled slight favorite, today to defeat Windsor Spitfires, Michigan-Ontario League champions, in the opening game tonight of a best-of-three International series for the Hamilton B. Wills Trophy.

Coached and managed by Bert Corbeau, never were shut out during the regular season, doubtless, finishing the regular season in third place behind the league champions, Washington, and the runner-up Baltimore Orioles.

Faced by Harold Dick, a giant 200-pound defenceman, who spent most of the season in the minor pro-ability box to lead the league in that department, the Sea Gulls are in breaking up enemy scoring plays, Atlantic City battled to a tie with Washington in the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States record robin tournament last week. The Gulls became finalists when Herbert Mackenzie, Washington coach, announced that his team had decided to disband.

Ship Downs Heinkel With Forward Mast

London, April 4 (CP)—The steamship Jamaica Producer claimed today to be the first ship to bring down a Nazi bomber with her forward mast. The 5,000 gross ton ship built for the banana trade and owned by Jamaica Producers, Limited, of Kingston, Jamaica, was attacked by a Heinkel 111 when a Heinkel, "gliding low," suddenly throttled up 600 yard, away."

The account said the ship's helm was put hard over into the direction of fouling the enemy with the forecastle or at least of upsetting his plan of attack.

As the ship began to swing, the Heinkel opened fire and at the same time began to climb steeply, the account said. The enemy's fire was returned, the chief officer manning the gun in face of the enemy's close-range fire.

"The German pilot, seeing he might not clear, attempted to swerve but fouled the foremast with his tail. The wireless aerial and pieces of the plane crashed to the deck.

"Those on the deck saw the Heinkel sideslip round the stern. A moment later a huge column of water spouted up as it dived into the sea."

Firmer Undertone On Egg Market

Toronto — Little buying interest was displayed on the butter market as gradually increasing fresh receipts heralded the approach of the main production season. Producers appear anxious to keep stocks at a low level at the same time cash sellers are desirous of moving the fresh make as it arrives, and the result is an easy price basis. No. 1 grade creamery is currently being traded lightly at 34 cents a pound yesterday.

A firmer undertone developed on the egg market with fresh supplies continuing to show fairly well. Prices to shipper on grades A-large and A-specials advanced 1-2 cent a dozen, and Government inspected shipments of these grades added an 1 cent a dozen premium.

Montreal, April 4 (CP)—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter—Finest grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 33 1-4-36; first grade solids, jobbing price, 32 to 32 1-2, 35 1-2.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling at A-large, 31 1-4-31 1-2; A-medium, 29-30 1-2; A-pullets (2 doz.) 23 1-2-24; B-extra large 26; C grade 18-18 1-2. Receipts 855 cases.

Among supported stocks were Pennsylvania, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Texas Corp. and preferreds of Santa Fe and Penn Mangoon.

Favored in the curb were American Gas and Power, Cities Service, Fire Arms, Humble Oil, Brewster Aero and Aluminum of America.

Dullness was the rule in Lake Shore Mines, in the Canadian group, dipped little. Dome Mines were steady while Canadian Pacific vested moderately. The Bond and Market Canada 4s advanced 1-8 point.

British flight-lieutenant plane said bombs a sortie over a German airdrome in northern France, but landed safely down a Nazi bomber as it was about to land. In the air, Ministry news service reported today.

"The pilot dropped bombs on hangar buildings and set fire to machine-gunned landing lights and aircraft on the ground," the news service said.

"The lights were promptly put out. He attacked a bomber as it was about to land and saw it crash on landing."

Before the night's attacks on England, a lone raider dropped bombs on the Scottish coast town at dawn. No casualties were reported.

A single-plane attack during the night on a home county village, however, brought a toll of eight killed and a number injured.

The Air Ministry said the total plane loss for the axis in March was 326, including 120 Italian planes. 178 in the middle east campaign, bombs on Britain, and 28 others for the month. The total Nazi plane loss was 1,551, with 1,225 in combat planes, the Air Ministry said, while the R.A.F. lost 1,221 in the same period.

The British Broadcasting Corporation announced today that the organ, one of the most famous in the world, had been destroyed in the recent night raid on London.

The organ, installed in 260 stops and between 3,000 and 3,000 pipes, was installed in St. George's Hall when the building was built. The BBC said was completely wrecked.

CANADA PRAISED FOR PART TAKEN IN FREEDOM WAR

Rt. Hon. Malcolm Mackenzie Greatly Impressed As Contribution of Dominion

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)—Tribute to Canada for the part she is playing in helping to bring the world of peace at curse," was paid here last night by Rt. Hon. Malcolm Mackenzie a few hours after he arrived in the capital to take up his new post as British High Commissioner.

Seated in the study of palatial "Bonnybrae," the official Ontario residence, the son of Britain's former Premier Public Affairs and newspaperman he was greatly impressed by the great contribution Canada had made and was making towards victory.

The help which is coming from Canada, other parts of the Empire and from the United States is inestimably weight the scales in our favor," Mr. Mackenzie said.

"Our enemies cannot beat us even if we are fighting alone. On the other hand we cannot beat them without this mounting help which is now flowing to us from all parts of it the task of rebuilding peace."

Mr. Mackenzie, the former Commissioner said, had shown they were determined to enjoy their full rights and privileges of sovereignty, but also that they were prepared to pay the sacrifices and perform the stern duties that war demanded.

Before the train left for the Dominion, Mr. MacDonald said he had been privileged to visit Canada's soldiers, sailors and airmen on active service in the United Kingdom.

"I was amazed to find your men so well equipped," he said. Their spirit, appearance and eagerness impressed me enormously."

Paying tribute to Britain's airmen Mr. MacDonald said he had been saddened and shocked to learn the number of Canadians who had been killed or wounded in repelling the enemy's air attacks.

"We owe to these splendid young men, their comrades from other parts of the Empire and our own Dominion, the fact that the motherland is still secure and that her heart is still beating and her courage sure," Mr. MacDonald declared.

Speaking from personal observation of the fine feeling in existence as Minister of Health in the United Kingdom Government, Mr. MacKenzie declared the British people would be found to possess the same strain and courage that characterized many of their assail them.

Describing the enemy's unrelenting assault from the air on civilian centres he said: "I was standing up to the ordeal of high explosive blasts just as heroically as the normal forces. Long before the outbreak of war the Government had prepared to meet the possible outbreak of epidemics."

Parking Lights May Not Be Used For Driving States Ne

Toronto—Several Amendments to the Highway Traffic Act were introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. T. B. Macquesten, Minister of Highways, who said they were the result of the annual technical recommendations of the Registrar of Vehicles.

One prohibits the operation of motor vehicles at night by street with cowl or parking lights, and another permits ambulances and police vehicles to carry moveable spot-lights, the same as Fire Department vehicles.

Previously police were given authority to enter any place where motor cars are stored, and an amendment extends this authority to places where bicycles are stored. Careless driving after charge hitherto confined to motor cars, in now extended to motor vehicles besides automobiles. Bicycles are also covered by another amendment, being the same as motor cars, in the second case, the period from which the serial number must have been removed or defaced.

Under old act a speed limit of fifteen miles was set for parks and public grounds, but an amendment authorizes Councils of cities, towns and villages to increase it of from fifteen to twenty-five.

Parking on the highways is curbed by another section, which prohibits parking of motor cars on the road unless there is good visibility for 400 yards from the parked idle. Previously a car could be parked on top of a hill, but this amendment prevents this.

ATTEMPTED JAIL

One of the witnesses, William Bradd, 26, of Windsor changed his plea to guilty when he appeared before Judge J. A. McGibbon on a charge of burglary of night club on the Canadian Department Store here Feb. 2. He was sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Could Not Ignore Record

Defence Counsel Manuis Frankel pointed out that Bradd had been given a four-year term similar to those imposed on Elmer Dick and Thomas Nicholls and Lawrence Burns, each of Windsor, convicted of participation in the burglary. The other man involved in Louis Sallow of Windsor, who is out on bail awaiting trial.

"I cannot ignore his record," Judge McGibbon said in passing sentence on Bradd. "I feel duty to the public."

Bradd's record was read by Crown Prosecutor J. A. Gannon including three terms in Kingston Penitentiary since 1932.

The men were said to have escaped their cell by removing a brick in a brick wall, then sawing through door-bars. They then broke through the other brick wall into an outer corridor and were said to have been sawing through bars in a window facing the prison yard when they were discovered by Turnkey Wright of the guard. He took them back to their cells.

Given Two Years On Theft Charges

Paul Emil Blake, alias Rene Jolly, formerly of Montreal and more recently employed as janitor at a local theatre, was sentenced to two years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary by Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., after pleading guilty had pleaded guilty to two charges of theft and additional counts of contributing to the delinquency of a home.

Blake, who was employed as janitor at the New Queen's Hotel, stated in his statement that he committed Crown Attorney B.C. Donnan, K.C., urged penitentiary sentence after reading Blake's long list of previous convictions. "This man gave two wrong names when he was questioned insisted his name was Rene Jolly," testified Detective Fred Leard, who also added that restitution had been made in all cases.

In replying to the Italian note, Hull cited Admiral Darlan's loyalty to the action in using the Italian fleet against the Germans should the crews whenglanced necessary to prevent the surrender of warships or injury sets prevent danger or delay to any harbor or ships of the United States.

Of the Italian ships taken over in the United States, Secretary Hull said 23 of them were so badly damaged by their crews that it would be necessary to render possible their use to the Axis.

"These concerted and widespread acts of destruction on a part of officers and crews in violation of specific provisions of the statutory law of the United States set at a time when the vessels were obeying the orders of the Italian Government, our ports cannot be viewed with equanimity," Hull said.

Reserve Rights

As to the Italian inquiry about the United States regarding the status of Italian vessels in the harbor was receiving the attention of the appropriate authorities "and the Government reserves the right to take such action as may be considered necessary for the protection of the interests of the United States and its nationals."

The flat rejection of all Rome-Berlin charges, based on evidence of some diplomatic sources, may have the effect of bringing relations with the axis still closer to the breaking point. It was learned that the note's replies were completed not long after the United States asked for the return of Italy's fleet. The diplomatic attache here, because of alleged connection with the widespread ship sabotage.

Italians Withhold View Undetermined

Although the refusal to surrender the warships came as a shock to immediate status to some extent, it left unanswered the question of the ultimate disposition.

A Maritime commission spokesman said not to be aware of the name, told reporters it was probable that the ships merely hold the status for 30 days or so and then resume their Italian flags, determine what can be done with them."

In this connection, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida's was suggested today that the government seize the ships for operation by Italian and Spanish ships seized last week-end in United States ports.

Suggests Release to Britain

Pepper, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters that the vessels either should be transferred directly to British or placed in the American merchant marine so that an equal number of ships could be released to the British.

In addition, Pepper declared, the United States should take over the French ships here, including the giant passenger liner "Normandie" now tied up at New York.

The first intimation that any western hemisphere nation intended to take ownership of seized axis shipping came from Mexico City. A responsible foreign office there said last night that it had practically been decided to expropriate the 24 Italian and German vessels now in Mexican waters. The expropriation, to cancel pre-war axis indebtedness of about $12,000,000 for petroleum purchases.

Mexican authorities also said that the vessels would be turned over to a scuttled Italian tanker.

Italian Fleet Safe Reply

The State Department meanwhile awaited a reply from the Italian government to the demand for the immediate recall of Admiral Alberto Lais Italian naval attache, for his "connection", with "acts in violation of the laws of the United States."

Prime Colonna reported that this note had been forwarded to Rome and that he was awaiting instructions.

State Department officials said no time had been fixed for the naval attache's withdrawal but that it was expected he would be recalled within a few days.

YUGOSLAVS LOOK

War Taken To Hills.

The war would be taken to the hills and that there it likely would resemble the five-months war in Albania, Greece and Italy's Libyan campaign.

Yugoslavia's island to have a land in that fight too if war would be hurled immediately by Germany and Italy with troops the Fascist armies into the Adriatic with Greek assistance.

As for the Germans, the Yugoslav officials said that they considered Nazi thrusts in the event of war:

1. From Hungary to Belgrade.

2. From the Rumanian frontier down the Nish-Salonika railroad concentrating across from the Yugoslav town of Bela Crkva to Belgrade.

3. From Bulgaria toward the strategic railway junction of Nish, a 150 mile from the Greek border.

Should attack from Yyuslendi, southern Bulgaria, through Yugoslavia from Greece and the Nish-Salonika

Large numbers of Yugoslav soldiers concentrated along the southern Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontier, presumably to prevent a thrust into the mountain passes and keep open the railroad between Greece and Yugoslavia.

No Static Warfare.

Military observers don't expect the campaign—if war comes—to be 25 static warfare.

There would be no great armies of the type that fought in France.

"It would be a war of rapid movement by comparatively small forces," one observer said. In that decision took a leaf from the war in northern Africa where the British won a year ago next Wednesday.

Yugoslavia's strength of the Norway campaign and with expectation that its contribution to the campaign would be a great degree, the general staff decided to decentralize the army instead of keeping it intact.

Much of the initiative would be left to officers in charge of small unit commanders—and they would be trained to lead their forces in the event they were cut off from headquarters.

30 MEN START MINING APRIL 17

Notices will be sent out today (Friday) to 340 men of the 21-year class, known as Registration "C", instructing them to report for Medical Examination starting April 17.

Of the second group of the four-mamnius class, 145 will train at Cornwall, 145 at Peterborough, 50 men from Kingston will train at the Newmarket training school and 30 men at Ottawa.

March 18 to report for medical examination.

For the longer training period, Class A men between age up to B-1 and B-2 will be accepted. Previously men in category "B" were given longer training.

The third class of the four-mamnius class, 145 will likely be called up for training within the next four weeks.

FOREIGN POLICY

All-Night Blackouts Staged

All-night blackouts were staged in various communities in the strategic Vardar Valley, probable route of any German thrust toward Greece.

British circles were silent on their probable course of action in the event the Germans invaded Yugoslavia, but a British spokesman said yesterday Germany was aware Britain had concentrated "a considerable number" of troops in Greece near the Yugoslav border.

Forty-two members of the German legation staff left Belgrade just before midnight on orders from Berlin, leaving behind only the Charge D'Affaires, a military attache and two assistants.

Italians Reported Ready to Move

Francesco Giorgio Mameli, the Italian Minister, said two more visits yesterday to Yugoslav Foreign Minister Monsignor Nincic, but there was no indication that these talks or previous conversations had held with government leaders had had any effect in shaping Yugoslav policy.

The newspaper Vreme printed dispatches from Athens quoting the chief interest in preserving peace with Yugoslavia, but it is said that there still a large percentage of her military and civil supplies—including food—from Germany—flow through this country.

Yugoslav defense was strengthened in the face of the mounting tension by the appointment of Vladimir Macek, Croat party leader, to accept the post of Vice Premier in the cabinet.

The communique announcing that Generals Bogoljub and Ljubljana would be proclaimed open cities said that "the government of Yugoslavia would be informed of the decision in the event of war by the royal government for peace fail and a state of war occurs."

Johns-Manville Co. To Produce Shingles In Quebec Plant

To meet steadily increasing demands for Cedargrain Asbestos siding shingles on the part of builders and home owners across the Canadian Johns-Manville Company Limited announced that manufacturing facilities are being established at the Asbestos, Quebec, factory.

Already, plant extensions and the installation of special machinery and equipment are nearing completion, and it is announced that the first deliveries of these fireproof shingles manufactured at Asbestos will be made by June 1. Company officials also intimated that when demands justify still further extensions will be made, construction in other parts of Canada.

Italians Withhold View On U.S. Request To Withdraw Lais

Rome, April 4 (AP)—Authoritative Italian attitude remained secret on the United States Government's request that Admiral Alberto Lais, Italian naval attache in Washington, be recalled to Rome immediately.

BRITISH EXPECT

British Claim Battlefield

Of their setback in Libya, the British said the withdrawal from Benghazi was "in pursuance of the policy of making the war on one battlefield . . . Bengazi is inde-fensible from a military point of view and it has not been used by us as a base."

The East African campaign, however, was summed up by one official in the words: "Britres is in the bag and Ethiopia is going that British way."

British general headquarters said the pursuit in East Africa was so rapid that there had been little news from the forward units except that progress had not slackened.

Whether the Italians would draw up for a stand at Adarwa, natural Ethiopian fortress 50 miles south of Salem Asmara, or would press on toward Addis Ababa to join the Duke of Aosta's army was a matter for speculation.

Addis Ababa, British officials said, is threatened by converging spearheads of the main South African force on the Jimma-Lekemte road and imperial forces striking northward from Kenya and the general rising of native patriots.

London, April 4 (CP)—London comment on Britain's withdrawal from Bengasi, in Libya, as an "unpleasant necessity" would press on the port's chief importance to the Axis supply line to Tripoli.

The articles said the Berlin radio already is broadcasting reports that Field Marshal Archibald Wavell, commander of the British middle east forces is in Bengasi.

Military circles called the withdrawal "a strategic necessity" and said there was nothing "tragic" about it.

The distance of the withdrawal was not important in the war's present stage, they declared, and the important thing was whether the axis attack could be stopped.

The important thing in the desert, these experts said, is "who happens to arrive." They pointed out that the British forces had arrived up most of the Italian army in Libya and nearly all its equipment Libya, and nearly all its equipment Libya, and nearly all its equipment Libya, and nearly all its important objective than the occupation of territory.

Get There By Ship

Military observers further said he "imagined" the Germans in Libya "got there by ship, but military Libya got there by ship, but military Libya got there by ship, but military Libya

Farmers' Problems Loom As Major Subject Of Debate

Wheat Acreage Reduction Program Will Get a Further Airing in House

MONEY BILLS PASSED

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)—With all urgent money bills cleared from the order paper, farmers' problems loom as the major subject of discussion in the House of Commons from now until the Easter adjournment.

The Government's controversial wheat acreage reduction program will get a further airing through discussion of the estimate of $35,000,000 for carrying it out, and general agricultural conditions across Canada will come in for comment during debate on the vote of confidence motion proposed by Mark Senn (Con. Haldimand).

Last night the House voted $215,-965,000 in cash to accounts in the fiscal year which ended March 31. War expenses claimed $135,000,000 in a supplementary War Appropriation Bill, and ordinary governmental services $78,544,000 in ordinary supplementary estimates.

These sums, added to the $1,000,000,000 War Appropriation Bill for the fiscal year 1940-41 and main non-war estimates passed last session, brought the total voted for the year to more than $1,300,000,000.

The War Appropriation Bill for the new fiscal year which started April 1 calls for an expenditure of that amount for war purposes alone in 1941-42.

No Budget Till After Easter

Finance Minister Ilsley told the House it would be impossible to bring down the budget for the new year before the Easter recess which starts next Wednesday. He announced, however, that he would make a statement on proposed amendments to the excess profits tax to put an end to uncertainty for many taxpayers as to where they stood on their operations.

That act now imposes a tax of 75 per cent on all profits in excess of a pre-war normal and it is understood the amendments have to do with the determination of what the pre-war profits shall be for different types of business.

The general run of taxpayers will have to wait for the budget to learn what additional sums they will be required to contribute to meet Canada's wartime financial obligations.

A sharp protest was registered by opposition leader Hanson against the introduction of statute law by Order-in-Council; and John Blackmore, new democracy leader, voted his suspicions that production of beet sugar in Canada was being unduly curtailed.

The Senate heard further representations of government leader Dandurand's recent statement to the effect that, before Dunkirk, British industrialists were not anxious to see Canadian industry get into war production. Conservative leader Haydon lowered for production of communications passing between Canadian and British governments on the subject.

Upper House Passes Motion

The Upper House passed the motion after Senator Dandurand said the documents could not be produced without the consent of the Commissioner and Sergeant Meighen insisted that the British Government be asked for its consent.

Mr. Hanson's complaint centred mainly on an order-in-council passed last November, suspending the operation of a clause in the Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act designed to secure Treasury control over expenditures. He also called other orders-in-council affecting Statute Law which, he said, should have been brought before Parliament.

"An important section of the Statutes of this country, intended to protect the Public Treasury, has been flouted at a time when the people's representatives were in session and could correct the position if it absolutely needed to be corrected," said Mr. Hanson.

He agreed Statutes might be found too rigid for wartime emergencies but complained the Government was making too great use of the powers given it by the War Measures Act.

"The War Measures Act has set aside the constitution of this country under this Government," he said, "and I do submit, in all fairness that it ought not to be used for all the purposes for which it has been used."

Sugar Question Argued

Mr. Ilsley replied that the order-in-council affecting the consolidated revenue and audit act was necessary to avoid "administrative chaos". He said there was no question of the governments power to act by order-in-council and was satisfied of the wisdom of action taken.

Mr. Blackmore's speech on sugar was prompted by instruction issued by the sugar factory in his constituency of Lethbridge reduce sugar beet acreage in that area by 1,300 acres because tha factory had a stock of unsold sugar.

Canada, he contended, should increase its beet sugar product in order to make itself independent of imports—not curtail production.

Beet sugar was the equal of cane sugar in all respects. He questioned the necessity of recent increas in the price of sugar.

"It would certainly appear that the Canadian government is selling Canada into bondage in the matter of Canada's sugar supply," said Mr. Blackmore.

"Secondly, someone is Prving Canada's birthright for wge that a mess of pottage and betrying her future for dross and take it to be famous 30 pieces of silver.

"Third, any such amount brought from abroad any necessity of life is, in respect of that necessity," potential slave of exterol circumstances.

"Fourth, the interes that control our sugar supply, are our best sugar industry is dorped, can raise the price to ar level. Their unprincipled cupidity dictates and forces Canadians to ay that figure as they did not in last war.

Pesllet Clashes With Ralston

"Fifth, the sugarskulion looms through the clouds as one of the blackest and most imminent threats to Canada economic freedom."

J. P. Pouliot, Lib. Temiscouata) clashed with Prence Minister Ralston for the second time this session when he asked what steps were being taken to provide for the defence of his constituency.

Col. Ralston said defence plans were a military secret but adequate arrangements were being made to meet air attack on Temiscouata county and any other part of Canada.

To this Mr. Pouliot retorted that defence were only secret when they exist. He intimated that he had in mind a possible successor to Col. Ralston if one were necessary. He did not name the man, but said he had a good military record and was the best organizer in the country.

Answering a question from Douglas Ross (Con., Toronto-St. Paul's) Munitions Minister Howe said the government's airplane production policy was to keep every factory busy on those lines it was producing now, or on other types to come into production soon. Airplane manufacturers there were "on the spot."

"There is only one uncertainty," he said, "in relation to the development of a new type of engine in the United States, and we expect to have that determined shortly."

FOUNDATION LAID TO ENSURE PEACE SAYS SIKORSKI

Accord Between Free Forces of Czechoslovakia and Poland Beginning of New Era

TO MEET GOV'T.

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)—A slim Polish statesman-general, who writes books between wars and commands Polish armies when he's not, Thursday that the foundation for a "line of peace" to ensure the peace of the future have been laid in Canada.

Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Prime Minister of the free Polish Government and Commander-in-Chief of Polish armed forces fighting with Great Britain, said the accord between free forces of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia signed on Tuesday, signing of a new age of unity among neighbor countries to stand fast in the face of aggressors.

Flying in this welcome given him by Canadians, the General said his heart had been warmed by greetings given him at Montreal by the Czecho-Slovak Consul-General Dr. Vladimir F. Pavlasek, who had assured him the accord between their nations meant peace for days to come.

To Meet Government

Today he meets with representatives of the Canadian Government, and it is believed he will discuss with them the organization of Polish forces to assist the fight being waged by their kinsmen in the United Kingdom and the Near East.

He warned Canada and the United States against the weapon of propaganda being used by the Axis, and praised the work of Prime Minister Mackenzie King for his work, along with that of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, in bringing the democracies closer together.

He said he had been much who welcomed him that they must be loyal to Canada, assist the fight for freedom, and be on guard against Fifth Column activities.

Tribute For Britain

"I have just come from London and I want to bear witness to the truth and my profound admiration for the stand of the British nation," Gen. Sikorski said.

"Before the war Poland had a legal alliance with England; it has become during the months of common effort—a real lasting alliance.

"My first contact with Canada had been through meeting Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton (Commander of the Canadian Corps Overseas), whom I found a great soldier. I appreciate the qualities of this leader and the soldiers in his Corps.

"A real fraternity in arms had developed between the Canadian and Polish fliers who work together in the United Kingdom." This fraternity will last not only during the war but afterwards to establish a lasting peace and prevent the re-occurrence."

The catastrophe which fell on Poland could not be compared with any other war in history. The invaders sought complete annihilation of Poland and this, Gen. Sikorski said, was true of both invaders, the Germans and the Russians.

Rome Communique

Rome, April 4 (AP)—The Italian High Command reported further "successes" by Italian and German motorized columns in North Africa, today without mentioning the abandonment of Bengasi by the British forces.

British aircraft machine-gunned marching Italian columns, causing light losses, the daily war bulletin said, and bombed Tripoli.

In East Africa, the communique said, "resistance is continuing" especially in Eritrea and in the Harar region of Ehiopia, east of Addis Ababa.

Whereabouts Of Thyssen "Mystery Man" Of Europe Cause Of Speculation

The world speculates over the whereabouts of Fritz Thyssen, financial backer of Hitler in his rise to power in Germany and some say Thyssen is in a German Concentration Camp. . . . German authorities say he is in South America. It's a strange story. Don Whitehead tells it here:

By DON WHITEHEAD
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 4 (AP)—It was in 1927 . . . Fritz Thyssen, fabulously wealthy Rhineland industrialist, sat in the Herrin Klub in Berlin with his millionaire friends, sipping the fine wine and eating the good food served there.

As usual, they were discussing the economic turmoil and political unrest in Germany, where a dozen political parties were scrambling for power.

But their talk suddenly ceased.

The door opened and into the room walked an undistinguished figure in a battered felt hat and stained raincoat. A lock of black hair drooped over one eye.

When he removed his hat.

The visitors' book showed that the visitor had been introduced by the aristocratic Prana Von Papen. He sat down at the table with Thyssen.

That was, perhaps, the first meeting between tall, heavy-lidded Fritz Thyssen and Adolf Hitler—two men who were to have a role in changing the course of Germany . . . of Europe . . . of the world.

But it wasn't the last. They met again and again, and soon Frits ting genius.

Thyssen was convinced that here was the strong man to lead Germany back to a position of power.

Hitler Wins Backers

And so two years after the first meeting a group of wealthy industrialists gathered with Thyssen in an hotel room in Duesseldorf. Again the visitor was Hitler and before he left the room he had convinced his audience that he was the man who should be Germany's leader.

It was an important day in Hitler's career—for after that meeting there was always money to finance the cause of National Socialism. Thyssen himself . . . 2,000,000 marks (nominally $1,300,000) for the party.

Hitler swept into power.

Now another chapter is being written in the story of Fritz Thyssen. He has become the "mystery man" of Europe.

Some say he is in a Nazi concentration camp at Dachau, a prisoner. But German authorities declare Thyssen is in South America.

The story is that he broke with Hitler over the course of the Nazi regime, that he was opposed to the persecution of the Jews, to war with Britain, and to a pact of friendship with Soviet Russia.

But if he was seized by the Gestapo, who would be the first to be notified to slip out of Germany to France—unless it was by deliberate design.

The 67-year-old Industrialist gambled for big stakes in Germany and there are big stakes in South America for a man with his organ-

Such a comparison for land sakes, pop said. If you could only force yourself to be a little broad minded you'd have to admit that this effect on Mrs. C. Allen Allen is positively beautiful, she said, and pop said, You've got me there. If I ever saw it enlarged a million times up in the sky I'd probably be one of the first to admit that it was a lovely cloud formation, he said.

That's not much of a concession, I must say, ma said. I think you're just being delibritly contrary to bolster up your own weak side of the argument. I suppose you'll deny that this effect on Mrs. Andover Smith is attractive? she said, and pop said, I'll deny nothing of the kind. What's more attractive than a plate of doughnuts piled in carefree profusion? he said.

O, what's a use of trying to talk to a man? ma said.

Meaning especially pop.

YUGOSLAVS FACE ZERO HOUR WITH ARMY READY

BOMBS STRADDLE NAZI BATTLESHIPS AT BREST

Hungary-Yugoslav Frontier Likely Explosive Point

Royal Decree Calls Up 1,500,000 Yugoslavs and All Frontiers Permanently Closed —Nazi Troops Pour Through Hungary To Border

Belgrade, April 5 (AP)—Yugoslavia's frontiers with Germany and Italy and her axis-dominated neighbors were reported permanently closed today by well-informed circles here, standing ready for war, gravely asserted the "zero hour" had arrived in the crisis with the Germans.

Wilhelmstrasse spokesmen in Berlin said today that German-Yugoslav diplomatic relations, for all practical purposes, have ceased to exist.

Foreign legations in Belgrade said that, in addition to Germany and Italian frontiers, the Hungarian borders with Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria had been sealed. (Albania, Fascist territory where Italians and Greeks are fighting, was not mentioned specifically.)

The most likely explosion point apparently was the Hungarian-Yugoslav frontier, where Hitler has massed huge frontier forces.

Encircled by Axis

With Yugoslavia virtually encircled by the axis and axis satellites, only her border with friendly Greece on the south and the Adriatic coast on the west remained open.

Telephone communications with Belgrade and Rumania were severed, and it was difficult to telephone to Germany and Italy. Only diplomatic calls were accepted for Hungary.

A neutral diplomat said that through his contact with the government he could state "the diplomatic staff has evacuated." Now, he added, it is just a question of how many days or hours before the "new stage" begins.

Established Press Bureau

The United States legation remained open day and night. The American minister, Arthur Bliss Lane, said he was in constant contact with the government.

Lane had it separate interviews with the Premier, Foreign Minister and other cabinet members yesterday.

Mr. Lane said the nature of help Yugoslavia sought from the United States "is a question of information."

Premier Dusan Simovic's cabinet held an extraordinary six hour meeting in the early morning hours without issuing its long-expected statement of foreign policy, but a semi-official source said "the critical foreign crisis" necessitated a "more categorical statement" and that it might be forthcoming today.

Morning newspapers, meanwhile, published a Royal decree calling 1,500,000 Yugoslavs to arms and thousands of fighting men rushed to the frontiers. Reinforcements and heavy trucksters reaching here from Budapest said Nazi troops were pouring through Hungary toward the border facing Yugoslavia.

Gayda Accuses Britain Of Forming New Front To Axis

Rome, April 5 (AP)—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, indicated today that the Axis will not attack Yugoslavia for a few days in the hope of winning Belgrade's submission without fighting.

Gayda's statement appeared a few hours after it was reported in diplomatic circles here that the Italian-Yugoslav frontier had been closed.

Accusing Britain of seeking to form a new front against the Axis in Yugoslavia, Gayda wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that "the next few days will set if another unity of Europe not at all interested" in the conflict will be dragged into war."

The newspaper Il Messaggero urged that Yugoslavia "clarify" her position without delay.

STRIKE CLOUDS GROW DARKER

Possibility 261,000 Employees in Steel Industry Will Go Out Tuesday

Pittsburgh, April 5 (AP)— Strike clouds were evident today as 100 Congress of Industrial Organizations leaders from mills of the United States Steel Corporation gathered to discuss progress of wage negotiations with "big steel" which informed sources said were now "absolutely deadlocked."

The corporation, with 261,000 employees, is the world's largest producer of steel and an important factor in the industry.

It was the third time within a month that Philip Murray, C. I. O. President and chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, had called in the local union heads.

Murray was grim as he refused to affirm or deny reports from Washington about the breakdown of negotiations which began Thursday, March 20 after he had rejected the corporation's offer of a 2 1-2-cent an hour increase and a 10-cent bonus, and re-opened the union's contract demands coupled with the corporation.

The Washington reports also said union leaders were planning to call a strike at midnight Tuesday unless an agreement is reached.

The contract expires then unless a further extension is agreed upon or a new pact negotiated.

CROWN ATTORNEY DIES

Hamilton, April 5 (CP).—George Lynch-Staunton, 68, prominent lawyer, died in hospital here today after a brief illness. He was a former chairman of the Hamilton Board of Education.

Second Great War May Produce More Community Enterprises

London, April 3 (CP).—This Sec-ond Great War which is breeding a nomadic race of industrial wanderers, communal laundries and communal storage places for shelter are two.

Civil authorities first were concerned when they found many of the shelterers, many of them homeless, were directly to work without being able to wash, even their faces or hands because of inadequate facilities.

R. V. Coombes of the Health and Citizenship council, said some public authorities are installing hot and cold water in public shelters, and others are coping with the problem

BRITISH PRESS ATTACK AGAINST EAST AFRICA

Wish to Clean Up Campaign With Quick Blow to Release Troops for Other War Theatres

CONFIDENCE IN POLICY

Despite Withdrawal From Bengasi British Say Action Part of Strategy

Cairo, Egypt, April 5 (AP).—The ring of British forces closing in on the faltering Italians in East Africa battened out with new fury today in a drive to clean up the campaign with a quick knockout that would release troops for fight, if needed, in Libya or the Balkans.

Attacking all intensified in three thrusts in Eritrea and Ethiopia.

Keren, Eritrea's chief seaport and last island of resistance in that colony, still held out while Britain's Red Sea forces outside the harbor and a land force approached over a highway blasted out of the hills by the Italian defenders.

British authorities said the retreating Eritrean army was fighting a rearguard action in order to get northwestern Ethiopia after losing 1,000 prisoners.

The Duke of Aosta, with an estimated 60,000 men, was on the last leg of a 250-mile retreat from Dessie to Addis Ababa without having made a stand.

British forces did not believe their Libyan army would need help to stem the advance of the combined Italian-German motorized column driving eastward. The British vanguard withdrew from Bengasi.

The war office said that British strategy is in "very safe hands" and that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, the commander of the Middle East forces, is merely biding his time until the Axis columns stretch their communication lines to a point where he can "give battle with assurance of success".

Says Unemployed

London (CP Cable)—The morning press, commenting editorially on the British retreat in Libya, accepted it philosophically but declared it should not be exploited.

The News Chronicle said that "the fact that we have robbed our defences in the desert in order to concentrate all our means in other territories is positive proof of our faith and faith of the governments of Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia."

The Daily Herald termed the withdrawal a matter for regret but not for "rejoicing" and said that "it is only possible to take troops from the Libyan theatre of war to reinforce the defence of action not forgetting that in Africa the necessities of Bengasi call for reappointment."

The morning Telegraph said that "Nazi armored units are roaring into Cyrenaica too fast for anything for the Duke and they will not divert Gen. Wavell's forces from a point at which they can strike hardest."

U.S. AWAITS REPLY FROM GERMANY ON ARREST OF CLERK

U. S. Embassy Employee Detained for Questioning Without Notification

CONSIDERED BREACH

Washington, April 5 (AP) — The United States today awaited explanation from the German government of the arrest of an American clerk in the Embassy at Berlin—the latest in a growing list of trouble-provoking incidents accompanying a steady deterioration in German-American relations.

State Secretary Cordell Hull ordered representations made to the German Foreign Office after disclosure that Stewart Herman, an embassy employee, had been detained "apparently without prior notification or explanation to the Embassy."

Although Herman was released after several hours questioning officials here were understood to consider his arrest a breach of diplomatic courtesy existing between officially friendly nations, and important as an index to the German government's attitude toward the United States.

When Herman and six other Americans still alive entered — were arrested German police admitted their action "might have some connection" with reprisals for the seizure of two German merchant ships in United States ports after discovery of a secret German plot.

Nazis Embittered

There is no doubt in informed quarters that Germany's antagonism stems primarily from United States aid to Britain and encouragement of other threatened nations to resist Nazi aggression.

Detention of Nazi crews on mysterious and sabotage charges, and Hull's flat rejection of German protest—together with the punitive effect of numerous preceding incidents—have further embittered Nazi feelings.

However, diplomatic circles here express doubt that Germany plans any very drastic action in the immediate future.

COMPANY CLOSES 41 FORD PLANTS IN UNITED STATES

Plants Purchase From Suppliers $11,003,000 Weekly Since January 1

118,000 OUT OF WORK

Detroit, April 5 (AP).—Production in the gigantic industrial network of Ford Motor Company was today halted today by a Congress of Industrial Organizations strike as completely as were the automotive operations of General Motors and Chrysler Corporations during the first sit-downs of the autumn.

The strike of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) at Ford's Dearborn River Rouge plant, largest industrial unit in the world and the producing cog of the Ford empire, forced the company Friday to order closing of its assembly, parts and other branch producers in 41 other communities throughout the United States.

Suppliers from whom the company said it has purchased $11,003,000 worth of material weekly since Jan. 1 were notified to stop further shipments.

Ford Company spokesmen said 118,000 of its production workers have been made idle by the strike. Additional thousands of non-production employees and workers in plants supplying Ford production lines were estimated to bring the total affected by the strike to 200,000.

Situation More Hopeful

Federal Conciliator James Dewey, present in his offices on call in the dispute, said the situation last night was "more hopeful" and arranged to renew separate parleys with company and union representatives today.

Accompanied by Oscar Olander, State Police Commissioner whose uniformed men have patrolled the Rouge plant gates since violence on April 1 when company guards drove last night to the plant in a futile attempt to persuade some 1,500 production workers inside the factory to leave.

Before the conciliator went to the plant, he said the men were "afraid to come out for fear of being arrested on picketing. A great many" were "armed with weapons they made themselves." Dewey said the union "absolutely guaranteed" that any leaving would be unmolested.

BRITISH PINCERS CLOSE TIGHTER AROUND MASSAUA

Italy's Red Sea Port in Eritrea in Danger of Seizure at Anytime

CLOSE TO ADIGRAT

Italians Streaming South of Asmara . . . to Addis Ababa Capital of Ethiopia

Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, April 5 (CP)—The Imperial British army's pincers closed tight today around Massaua, Italy's Red Sea port in Eritrea, while other columns advanced on Ethiopia's frontier from the northeast and closed in on Adigrat.

Adigrat is 40 miles east of Aduwa, scene of the Ethiopian war cry of the Italians in 1896 and the place where the Italians won their first victory in the invasion in 1935. It is about 80 miles south of Asmara, captured capital of Eritrea.

(A Reuters news agency dispatch from London said Adigrat had been occupied.)

Italians were streaming south by the main roads south of Asmara toward Addis Ababa, but occasionally they were halted to attack the pursuing forces.

Troops Reading Southward

A Free French pilot who flew over the whole area yesterday said he counted 400 trucks tearing south on the road seven miles wide.

"It gave the impression they were just running for it," he said, and appeared to be making no preparations for a large-scale stand.

The total number of prisoners counted after the fall of Asmara meanwhile reached 20,000 Italians and 600 native troops.

Captured material included 100 field guns, ammunition, several locomotives and a large amount of railway rolling stock.

Italians are reported to have withdrawn two of their outposts north of Debra Markos, 120 miles northwest of Addis Ababa in order to abandon the town. They are being attacked by British-led Ethiopians.

A Free French pilot who flew over the front three times in the past week said he had sighted an Italian plane only once and it did not offer to meet him.

British Occupy Aduwa

Cairo, April 5 (AP)—Reuter's Reuters News Agency reported today that British forces had occupied Aduwa, Ethiopia.

Aduwa is an important market town with strong Italian influences 90 miles south of Asmara, Eritrea, and which is linked by a broad military highway built by the Italians with Asmara, principal Eritrean city.

Canadian Corps In England Wants To Hear Starting Whistle of Big Game

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, April 5— (CP)—Canadian troops are discouraging with cold rains, leaden skies or mist enveloping the Canadian countryside. Winter was making its bitter last stand when spring normally would be showing signs of its arrival and knowing most of the plays backwards, they want to hear the starting whistle for the big game.

Meanwhile they keep training just as hard as during the first days they were in the British Isles, probably harder, for manoeuvres become larger and more complete each month.

Corps headquarters is the centre of activity and a maze of staff officers, working long hours on complicated problems of administration and operations. At division, brigade and company headquarters it is the same, but at corps the whole thing is co-ordinated.

The corps signals office where sunpous across a desk crowded with new military equipment. Lieut.-Col. G. L. McNaughton makes his decisions.

Canadians keep wisecracking about the weather, which keeps them on defence duty.

They all recognize that their anti-invasion role is supremely important. But they are fretting through the signals and knowing most of the plays backwards, they want to hear the starting whistle for the big game.

Raid Pressed Home With Resolution Says Communique

Battlewagons Scharnhorst And Gneisenau Clearly Identified In Moonlight—Oil Stores At Rotterdam Raided—Attack On Bristol By Nazis Heavy But Not One Of Biggest

London, April 5 (AP)—The Air Ministry announced today that attacks of heavy bombs straddled the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau in a British attack on Brest last night.

A communique said oil stores at Rotterdam and industrial targets in the Ruhr also were bombed.

The attack on Brest, 49th of the war, was the third since Sunday the ministry first reported the presence of the big German battleships in the Nazi-occupied French port.

"The ships could be clearly identified in the moonlight and the attack was pressed home with great resolution," the Air Ministry communique said. "Some of our aircraft bombed from very low levels and good results are reported.

"Blasts of heavy bombs were seen to straddle the ships.

"Near one of them a large fire broke out and other fires were started among stores of oil and warehouses."

Naval Auxiliary Sunk.

In daylight attacks yesterday, the ministry added, a naval auxiliary was left sinking off the French coast after a British bombing attack and minesweepers were machine-gunned.

Bristol was the target of a force attacked by Nazi warplanes described by local authorities as "heavy but not of our biggest."

BLAZE STARTS IN SAWDUST PILE

Taking no responsibility as the result of sparks from a bonfire which had been started the day before to burn rubbish, a sawdust pile at Mott's old lumber mill on Station Street became ablaze early on Saturday morning and necessitated a short run by the fire department before the blaze was extinguished. Fortunately the fire was discovered by a chance passerby before it had gained much headway and firemen had no difficulty in putting it out. Had the blaze not been discovered when it was, however, it may have developed into serious conflagration as wreckers have been incinerating in rasing the property and lumber and other refuse is lying about.

Payments, On First Tax Instalment Due May 3rd, Are Now Coming In

Due to the fact that estimates ance to the city inasmuch as the were struck some three weeks earlier this year than last, payments on the first instalment of 1941 city taxes, due May 3rd are already coming in, Alderman H. J. Clarke, Chairman of the Finance and Tax Council stated today. Over eleven hundred dollars have found their way to the city treasury already, indicative of the willingness of the taxpayers to co-operate with officials.

It was suggested by Alderman Clarke, that early payment of the first instalment is of vital importance to the taxpayers remitting taxes in full are eligible for a discount which is considerably higher than bank interest.

He urged the taxpayers to remit their first instalments if they desire to save, taxes in full, as early as possible. This, he said, will result in benefits to all concerned.

R. C. A. F. Recruiting Officer Will Be In City Next Thurs.

Continuing the practice of officers of the R.C.A.F. visiting various districts throughout the Dominion at intervals for the purpose of recruiting, Flying Officer J.W. Muckell will visit Bellerville on Thursday, April 10th, and at that time will receive applications of potential recruits for entry into the Airforce.

At the present time there is an urgent need for recruits to undergo a course of training as radio mechanics, while applications from qualified wireless operators are also desired. Applications from candidates who wish to enter the airforce for flying duties will also be accepted.

Under the scheme of training radio mechanics will be enlisted in the Airforce and will undergo a course of intensive training over a period of thirteen weeks. It is anticipated that men so enlisted will be sufficiently qualified to proceed overseas, following graduation.

Applicants enlisted as radio mechanics will be given the rank of ACI, Aircraftsman Group, with pay at $1.30 per day and dependents' allowance. Upon successful completion of the course, graduates will be re-classified as LAC and re-muneration to "B" group rates of $2.00 per day, plus dependents' allowance.

The qualifications necessary for enlistment as radio mechanics are as follows: Age limit, 18 to 45. Preferred age, 30 to 37. Medical category and will be category A(3), while all applicants must have Junior Matriculation or its equivalent.

War Services Drive Reaches $10,000 Point

War Service Charity organizations throughout the town received a welcome surprise Friday with the thermometer settling down at the end of the day's work around the ten thousand dollar mark.

Campaign officials stated that the drive is proceeding along lines at first anticipated and if present tempo of contributions is maintained, Bellerville should have no trouble in attaining the allotted quota of $15,000.

Canvassers are still hard at work, and officials again appeal to the general public to favour them courteously and give whatever they can.

The last few thousand dollars in any campaign constitutes the hardest part of the load, officials said, and unless some all-out effort is required in order to attain the allotted quota.

It should point out that the general public should make no mistake in realizing the importance of the current campaign. The movement is one of the most important in all of the Dominion's war effort. It is by far, the most important work it is possible for the civilian to do.

The Battle of the Atlantic is in full swing and the Battle of the Balkans is being fought out each day minute. We have gone a long way and deserve many congratulations but much more are reuired.

In the words of Prime Minister Church, "we can finish the job but the tools are required. One of the main implements in winning this war is the maintenance of the morale of the fighting forces. This we at home can do by giving until it hurts, to provide the comforts that are so necessary for the fighting services.

So, in the words of the chairmen of the various committees "let's all get together and push Bellerville over the top."

Appreciative Transient Remits Price Of Meal

"This is to repay you for the price of the meal you advanced me last week and I wish to thank you sincerely as I was actually hungry at the time but temporarily without funds," was the contents of an appreciative letter received at the police station today, enclosed in which were 25 cents.

Last week Chief Kidd gave a stranger 25 cents for a meal, the man being fairly well dressed but having had to seek lodgings as a transient. The chief forgot the incident until today when he received the letter of appreciation and the return of the price of the meal.

"Yes sir, there are some appreciative people in this old world after all," commented the chief, satisfied he was still a good judge of human nature. The name of the man was not given for quite obvious reasons.

Famous Empire Stories

By Lilian Leveridge

FIJI—The Cannibal Islands.

Far, far away in the southern Pacific Ocean there is a group of very beautiful volcanic islands surrounded by coral reefs, where dwell a strange, dark-skinned people with a strange, dark history. As we read the story of these islands and their people an impression of striking contrasts may be left in our minds. There is the dreamy, tropical beauty of the scenery—mountains and blossoming valleys, woods, rivers, and the blue encircling seas; the perfume of flowers, of which the natives are passionately fond, of fruit and of the precious sandalwood of earlier days; the exquisite music of native voices singing in harmony—all contrasting strangely with the ugliness, the inharmony and the horrors of cannibalism.

The darker side of the picture belongs chiefly to a bygone day, for the Fiji Islands now form a Crown Colony of Britain, and happily the savage practices are no more. But for all that, those terrible days lie still within the memory of many a people now living.

It was in 1643, just one year after the founding of our city of Montreal, that the islands were first sighted by white men. In that year Tasman, after whom the island of Tasmania was named, with some of his companions on a voyage just glimpsed a few of the many islands merging in a mist. It was not known until long afterward what these islands were, and he called them "Prince Wyllems Islands" in honour of Prince William of Orange. One hundred and thirty-one years passed before they were again seen—this time by Captain Cook.

During the first week of the year 1800 an American ship, the Argo, on a trading trip from China to Port Jackson in New South Wales, was driven on a reef off one of the Fijian Islands. The black, naked cannibal inhabitants were much amazed at sight of their fair-skinned visitors as the Indians of American had been at the visits of Columbus, Cartier and others a few hundred years before. They treated the wrecked sailors kindly, and allowed them to live there in safety for some time.

One of these castaways, whose name was Oliver Slater, remained in the islands for nearly two years, and a very interesting time he had. He was an observant man and learned much that was to prove of great value to himself and others. Among other things he noticed that the sandalwood tree grew abundantly on one of the islands. After a while he was picked up by a passing vessel which took him to Manila. Here he talked much about his adventures in Fiji. One of the traders there became deeply interested in his story, especially about the sandalwood, a product which found a ready sale in China and was greatly in demand. The result was that the trader agreed to take him in his ship, the Fair American, to Port Jackson, and from there to "Sandalwood Island", as he called Vanua Levu, one of the largest islands of the group.

They went to Port Jackson, but there Slater fell in with a man named James Aitkin who had heard of the sandalwood of Fiji and was fitting out a ship for an expedition in search of it. Slater agreed with Captain Aitkin in the Marcia; the Fair American sailed for Manila, both got a cargo of sandalwood. After that several other ships came to Fiji for the precious wood was not inexhaustible, and it still does not scarcely any left. The Fijians were quite willing to themselves again for several years.

Sandalwood is a very fine-grained and fragrant, the fragrance being due to an oil which is present in the heartwood. There are several species known commonly as red, white and yellow. The wood is used for making boxes, fans and other articles. Anything kept in a sandalwood box is safe from insects for they greatly dislike the odour. The oil, or essence, is used in perfumes and and some medicines, especially in China, where the Buddhist priest incenses the Buddhists use it in their religious ceremonies. White sandalwood trees are very scarce and are now cultivated in India. For many years the Fijians carried on the most adventurous and dangerous of trades, and the people engaged in it have lost their lives thereby.

Until the sandalwood traders found the Fijians fairly easy to get along with, they kept on not as a rule fond of work, and when the traders established a trade to use force with them to hasten the collecting of a cargo there was sure to be trouble. The Fijians when provoked for any cause did not hesitate to use their clubs or the firearms which they had obtained from Europeans.

When a man was killed, whether white or black, he was almost invariably roasted and eaten. That is the horrible side of their story—they were the most notorious cannibals. Strange as it may seem, the advent of white people increased cannibalism to an enormous extent. In their natural state the various small chiefs and clans were continually at war with one another, but with their new weapons the numbers killed were never very large. These were eaten as a sort of religious rite by the victors. But with firearms the slaughter became much greater. The victors continued to eat the fallen, and the taste for human flesh as food grew to a positive craving, a passion. They preyed upon each other, and often also upon the white invaders, for the sake of it.

In 1835 missionaries began to come to the islands and by degrees converted the cannibals from their savage ways. The greatest number of the most successful of the missionaries were Wesleyans. For the most part they were unmolested by the Fijians; very rarely a missionary fell a victim to the cannibals; for they came unarmed, unprotected, and showed no fear, and therefore were respected and listened to.

By the aid of the white men's guns one of the island chiefs, Thakombau by name, grew to be more powerful than all the others. He was called the "King of Fiji", though his power really extended over only a small part of the group.

For a long time Thakombau resisted the teaching and appeals of the missionaries, but at last one Sunday in April, 1854, he with 300 of his chiefs and followers attended service and formally accepted Christianity. By 1870 the greater part of the islands had become Christian. Of course this meant that cannibalism, which the missionaries so strongly condemned, was done away with.

But Thakombau was beset with many difficulties. He had ordered two gunboats, one from Sydney and one from America, and when they arrived he could with difficulty raise the price of only one of them, that from Sydney. The Americans had other claims against him and the whole amounting to $9,000, and were pressing for payment. He was at the same time threatened by the Tongans, who had already conquered a number of the smaller islands.

In this double dilemma he consulted with the Rev. Thos. Pignal, Mr. Pritchard, who was interested in the idea of British emigration to Fiji. Mr. Pritchard's advice Thakombau offered the sovereignty of the islands to Queen Victoria, and asked the British Government in return for 200,000 acres of land to satisfy the American claims.

Britain did not accept this offer but later on a Commission of enquiry was sent out to Fiji, and as a result of its influence the islands were ceded to Britain unconditionally in 1874. Thakombau received a generous pension, and until his death in 1882 remained loyal to Britain.

Sir Arthur Gordon was the first Governor. His task was a difficult one, but he wisely and successfully endeavoured to combine British law with Fijian custom as much as possible. The islands have grown in importance and prosperity. The main industries are the growing of sugar, coconuts and fruits, especially bananas.

The Fijians have many admirable qualities of character, and are true and loyal citizens of the British Empire. When the Great War broke out in 1914 they were anxious to do their part. They freely gave money and labour for self-defence, and also sent over a Fiji Labour Corps of volunteers who won an honorable reputation in active service.

The Governor of Fiji also holds the office of High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, and controls several islands and groups of islands in the Pacific Ocean.

BRITISH SCIENCE IN THE WAR

British engineering and science are playing a great part in the present conflict. In the desert campaign the British navy looked after the fresh water supply which was necessary for the advance; the British army was to make in a short time across the north of Africa.

The torpedo plane was used by the British on several occasions, in the Battle of Taranto and the Battle of Cape Matapan. In the first the torpedoes were stationary and in the recent battle the targets were in motion but the torpedo plane demonstrated that it was effective against either style of fighting. In both these battles the torpedo plane was the most effective work not only in attack but in delaying fleeing ships until they are within range of heavy war vessels.

The other day the British used a new high explosive at Emden where houses were reported to have been "to take to the air" and where debris was blown almost as high as the planes. Nothing is disclosed as to the explosive used.

British scientific development has been advanced and marvellously effective. In the brilliance of engineers and the thoroughness of workmanship Britain is in the front.

BELGRADE STUDENTS, ITALIAN STUDENTS

Belgrade high school students pelted the picture of Hitler in their classroom one day last week with chalk. Then came the coup which overthrew the regime which had signed the pact with the Axis and a new government was set up which has declared that the agreement does not express the will of the Yugoslav people and cannot be carried out.

The students knew the attitude of the people which was against signing with the Axis.

On Wednesday of this week students of Rome tried to stage demonstrations against United States' "war mongering."

The young students in Rome showed that they were only slaves to Mussolini and his savage doctrines. Their demonstration meant only what the world has seen, dictatorship and tyranny crushing individual thought and expression of opinion. While the Italian students were no doubt university students and older than their high school boys of Belgrade the young Romans did not show one iota of independent thought, one idea of freedom, their only idea being to follow a broken-down tyrant.

The young Belgrade boys are free, they breathe liberty, they are the voice of victory. The student class are supposed to show enlightenment. The Belgrade boys are enlightened, the young Romans are living in the darkness of Mussolini's tyranny.

MAPLE SYRUP SEASON

The market at this season offers two products, maple syrup and maple sugar, which have a distinct springtime appeal, as they are the product of the seasonal industry founded on the flow of sap in the maples in late March and early April.

The first sight of sap and the products of syrup and sugar is proof of the arrival of spring and of the warmer days to be. There are, of course, other seasons which have their appeal too, the berry season, the early vegetable season and the season of fruits when harvest grows near or is in full swing, with apples, peaches and other delights. There is another season not so much associated with the market, that of flowers.

Maple syrup and sugar are themselves the primary great reward for their excellent food value, for their excellent taste and for their stimulation of appetite. They are also a source of wealth. Hereabouts there are thousands of maple trees tapped which add materially to the income of the agriculturist. A great amount of maple sugar and syrup is sold.

The men who own the maple bush, who tap the trees and collect the sap and boil it to reduce it to the consistency of syrup or sugar, deserve and receive the gratitude of all those who enjoy these products which they serve at once on the table or who buy them for future use in seasons when the sap has long since ceased to flow as in springtime but has served its purpose in nature's economy.

(News Item:—"Black cat routs big bull dog in Front Street sidewalk battle."

Minnie, the green-eyed Front Street feline champion she is, sunning herself outside her favorite butcher shop. Tom, the Pinnacle Street Terror, who has seven airedales, two terriers, three angoras, a policeman and three firemen to his credit, waggles a paw above a battle-scarred eyebrow and addresses his backyard spouse

"Listen Min, yuh gotta cut out takin' on these mutts, or the first thing yuh know you will be playing in a symphony orchestra."

"Go tell that to that sourpuss you've got on Dundas Street," retorted Min arching her back and waving a bushy black tail in practice for the next fight. "You couldn't make a second class violin."

"It ain't that, Min," pleaded Tom. "Kin I help it if I've got kittenality?"

"Kittenality, my eye," retorted his ebony-colored spouse." It ain't that, it's that catnip you've been chiselling and besides you're gettin' spring fever. If I catch you on the back fence again when there is guys an' snipe are duetting, I'll scatter eight of your lives to the four winds and fix the other so that a mouse would make mincemeat outta you."

"But," she added, her back arching with pride, "yuh shoulda seen my last scrap with that wet-hound's bull dog. The purp is gettin' a little gray about the gills, and is he a scrapper. But I pulled a Stuka on him before he could get his tail appendage set and climbed aboard his fuselage about two points east of his sudder.

"He let me have a nifty right to the jaw, but I softened him up with three smart spits and a right paw-cross to the puss. That turned him around and he thought the scrap was ended."

"He turned his back, tail stuck up like Mussolini's flag of surrender, then I went into action. Just a Front Street cat, was I, sticking up for my own rights, but not permitting any dogs to put the dog on me. I sprung the tail and mounted that purp like nobody's business. Luck was with me because he went into a series of callisthenics that would make a merry-go-round operator go green with envy."

"It just goes to show yuh that we women have our rights. Us cats like humans have to fight for what we get, but if the emergency arises then we animals will play the game just as the male of the species. We are just as considerate of kindness as are the human folks. Just because we have a few differences and a few fights which, after all, fluctuates the prestige of the dog and the cat, it doesn't mean to say that we are not deserving of our master's consideration."

"Nice goin', Min," says Tom. "But even if you are black, yuh ain't no Jo Louis. In our class we boast of nine lives, I have lost four and you have lost three. I think we can give a lesson to these human friends of ours, if they treat us rightly, then we shall do the same thing by them."

"Yeah," comes back Min a bit impressed but otherwise unperturbed, "we cats have long been the downtrodden species of the domestic world. Dogs have worried us to death and I thought it was high time us felines demonstrated to the hounds that they did not reign over the domestic universe."

"Tell the humans, Tom, when you go achiselling in and around the butcher shops that we have feelings just like them and tell them to treat us with a wee bit of tolerance and if we have our backward differences it is nobody's business unless it is too loud. After all, we like to live and I guess we shall continue to do so as long as humans have tolerance and we have mercy."

Soap Priceless In Occupied France

FANNY VENTADOUR.

At present, we (in occupied France) are not seriously threatened with famine; therefore I would venture to say that soap means more to the wife of the average housekeeper than almost any other commodity, especially in regions where the hardness of the water about equals that of Great Salt lake. The soap ration has been reduced to 100 grams (a bit more than a fifth of a pound) per person per month.

Try keeping the requisite amount of godliness and washing the dishes on thisquantity and see if you don't sit up nights thinking up ways to economize the precious article. You stand over the children to see that they rub the soap on an almost dry washcloth and never let the cake get near the water. Then when it is not in use you must see to it that they stand the soap on end (it now comes in narrow oblong hunks so you can easily till it up like a building block) in order that it may dry thoroughly between seasons.

Of course, all sorts of water-softening chemicals are useful if you can get them, but one used to a variety of washing powders in the United States finds them all disappeared from the market. Putting on a Stygian-looking face as possible you might go to the druggist's and confide in him regarding your digestion—I think it's the bread we get nowadays; he can't be sure, but you might try me"—and if you don't go too often he will let you have a tiny package of soda which you will use to soften the water, as parsimoniously as you manipulate the soap.

There is also a substitute of soda that is excellent for whitening clothes if you are careful in using it; it often takes the dirt right out with the spots. This you can get by pretending you are suffering from spongy gums. For, the druggist is resorts to well-known camping tricks with wood ashes.

Priorities Offer Tough Problem In War Relief

By CHARLES STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Ottawa, April 5.—Canada's mandatory clarity to victims of conditions, State Secretary Hull was asked by Parliamentarian, as to whether the 100 per cent. effective. Besides the Red Cross, it seems that a number of private relief agencies run into the hundreds. Acting each on its own, Secretary Hull's idea is that they tend to fall over one another, cluttering up the job at which they all aim.

That's why, upon Cordell's recommendation, Premier Mackenzie recently named his three-man national committee to coordinate direction to the miscellaneous organizations and to direct the distribution for the benefit of our soldiers' training centres here at home, in the United Kingdom and in the strict sense, but P. D. R and Secretary Hull have been finding nothing to, to make the gifts count up to a maximum.

You don't get far into a discussion of anything connected with overseas situation and U S defence preparations without running into the question of priorities.

Who Comes First?

Who's to be served first, if supply sources or transportation falter or are cut off?

It's quite a problem in connection with shipments abroad, because every-stricken peoples across the world look to Britain for succour, stuff faster than we can produce it, and if we can produce it sufficiently, there is the problem of providing ocean enough boats to deliver it first.

It may appear that this should not be done at the expense of deliveries of presents to our domestic soldiers' encampments.

Yet it may be, too, even as to them.

We've got at least one domestic priority already. Aluminum's preference for military uses should favor. Our fliers get the first crack at it, and pots-and-pans manufacturers can have only what little of it's left over, if any, to supply our housewives with kitchen-ware.

Of course, I don't think that priority will be so interpreted as to deny cooking utensils to our selectees' camps, but it will be so interpreted in a fashion to limit 'em on a reasonable basis to what our selectees would like to send to them. A few pots in the line would be indispensable illustration.

But suppose that the priority-fliers were to say, "Here's a charity quilt that's been made by the ladies of cigarets to our selectees. Each cigaret-making absorbs part of our tobacco capacity, part of which we need for defensive purposes. Therefore, we shall have to ask you to withdraw your contributors' cigaret offerings to our selectees' concentrations

"I'm sorry, but it couldn't happen.

Nevertheless, that's the theory of priorities.

Of course, the new Davies-Taft-Keppel committee isn't as dictatorial as the Knudsen-Hillman-Stettinius Office of Production Management's principle. Knudsen as OPM division's decision is a mandate The Roosevelt-Hopkins office it is only advisory

I honestly can't imagine an OPM mandate barring cigaret shipments abroad, as the people in the war areta aren't a military necessity to the democracies, at war against the Axis powers. But I can easily square inch inside such boats as are available for the use of troops with shooting-irons, explosives, and the like. Perhaps the purpose of the Davies-Taft-Keppel committee is to avoid such silly conflicts—not to send clgs to our selectees. But I can imagine the Knudsen group gaining gifts for anything but absolute necessities to Britain, Greece and China. Their mission also is to dope out schemes of getting help into the Axis-conquered countries without indirectly aiding the Axis aggressors.

It would be a fine role if we sent cigarets into occupied France, and Germans smoked 'em.

Knuckles and the neighbor settled the case out of court. Knuckles paid $5 for the hog's keep and the neighbor gave him his hog back.

Ottawa, April 5.—Canada's war production is going all over the empire to help strengthen the armed forces of democracy. Benefiting the lion's share, but not by any means all,

It has been known for some time that motorized equipment made in Canada played a big part in the British offensive in Libya. Today it was learned at the Munitions and Supply Department that other Canadian motor transport is being used by the South Africans as they push northward into Italian territory from Kenya colony. More has gone to New Zealand and Australia.

Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons this week that Canadian gas masks are on order for South Africa. Six didn't add—although a Munitions Department spokesman says he thought so—that shipments of masks and web equipment for the troops already have gone to the Antipodes, India, Singapore and other places.

The spokesman said various other types of war equipment and supplies have been dispatched, but that their destinations can only be disclosed for reasons of military secrecy.

And a little commentary on international relations: "Canadian-American style" from Conservative Norman Lockhart who represents Lincoln in the House here: "Each is one hut with 43 men, including Uncle Sam's cousins, the Yanks and Americans—they jocularly refer to the three Canadians as Limeys."

Government Leader Dandurand broke into the Senate for a 20-minute speech Prime Minister Mackenzie King made in the House.....A couple of days later he chided Conservative Leader Meighen for not speaking which "sound" like tone of the Opposition leader in the Senate.....Said Senator Meighen: "The leader of the Government in the House not only makes speeches which 'sound' but those of Government leader in the other House—he makes the speeches."

ARMY DAY

Observance of Army Day in the United States was started in 1928 by Military Order of the World War.

The original purpose of Army Day was to counteract the effect of the Communist demonstrations held by radical groups on May Day.

Army Day was first observed May 1, 1919.

The next year, however, the date of Army Day was changed to April 6, the anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the World War, and it has been generally observed on that date every since.

In 1937 Army Day received official recognition when Congress passed the following concurrent resolution:

"That April 6 of each year be recognized by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America as Army Day, and that the Secretary of War of the United States be requested, as Commander in Chief, to order military units throughout the United States to assist civic bodies in appropriate celebration to such extent as he may deem advisable; the basis for a proclamation to be declaring April 6 as Army Day, and to direct appropriate officers of the Governors of the various States to issue Army Day proclamations;

"Provided, that in the event April 6 falls on Sunday, the following Monday shall be recognized as Army Day."

This year April 6 falls on Sunday and therefore under the terms of the Congressional resolution April 7 is the official Army Day.

For convenience, however, the Military Order of the World War has left it to the option of its local chapters and the communities where they are located whether it is sponsored by it should be held Saturday, April 5.

New York City, Philadelphia, Washington and many other cities will observe the Army Day Saturday.

The Military Order of the World War was organized in 1920.

"Army" and "armada" are both derived from Latin words, "arma," meaning to arm.

"Army" is an organized force of armed men for use on land; an armada is an organized force of armed ships or airplanes.

There is no company J in the American army. Col. Charles K. Gardner, who in 1918 originated the system of using letters to designate companies omitted the letter J because at that time the letters I and J were still often written the same.

GRANDPARENT CONFESSION

Can it be that he is better than
The baby that we knew?
The little chap that hurried down the years to be his son?
Did his father lack the magic and the wisdom that we show?
And the smartness and the wisdom with his baby toys he displays?
What is it he sets us saying as we sit at home alone,
We think the children's children so much better than our own?

Can that lovely little Ellen truly
Be as sweet as was
That our Janet, a baby and not half the care and fuss?
Her grandchild I used to tell me
How it seems so long ago—
Such a happy little spirit they had never hoped to know.
She was prettier and wiser and was better every way
Than her mother as a baby. Yes, that's what I used to say!
Is it possible I wonder that's what grandfolks always think

RADIO LICENCES NOW RENEWABLE

Dep't. Has Power to Prosecute Individuals Who Are Reluctant in Taking Out New Forms

Ottawa, April 5 (CP)—Canadian radio owners were reminded last night by the Transport Department that about 1,500,000 radio licences became subject to renewal with opening of the new fiscal year April 1 and that the department "has power to prosecute individuals who are delinquent in taking out their radio licences".

Notices already have been sent out to every radio licence holder advising them of the necessity for renewal and every authorized issuer of licences has received a supply of new forms, the Department statement said.

At the beginning of the fiscal year just ended regulations were approved providing that only one licence is required to cover operation of one or more cars owned by the licensee operating by himself or his family or servants at the address shown on the licence, it said. Sets operated by boarders, roomers or sub-tenants must be covered by separate licences.

No changes have been made in requirements for licencing of sets installed in automobiles, a separate licence being required.

Seasickness Worse Than Torpedoing Says London School Boy Coming To Belleville

New York, April 5 —(CP)—Given a choice of being seasick or being torpedoed by a submarine, most people would take seasickness and settle down to their misery.

Not so 13-year-old John Hassell, London schoolboy. John things happened to him and he'll take a torpedoing every time, he said on his arrival from Aruba, Netherlands West Indies, on his way to attend school at Belleville, Ontario.

The boy took passage on the Holland-American Liner Volendam for Aruba to join his parents. The liner was torpedoed and the boy was adrift for several hours in a lifeboat before being picked up by a British destroyer.

"Being seasick on the Volendam and in the lifeboat bothered me more than the torpedoing", the boy said.

The Grace Liner Santa Rosa on which the boy arrived carried 252 passengers, including ten United States pilots who have been ferrying bombers to Bermuda.

Dairymen Advocate Minimum Butter Price Be Set At 31 Cents "Or More"

Ottawa, April 5—(CP)—Minimum price for butter of 31 cents a pound "or more" will be advocated in submission to the dairy products board here it was understood as dairy industry representatives put finishing touches to a brief drafted at a two-day meeting.

Dairymen said the 31-cent price or higher represented their minimum as they believed a 32-cent level would be more in keeping with the requirements of their industry. They pointed to a return of 19 cents a pound for cheese at Montreal and said that this should meant a price of 28 cents a pound for butter, although they agreed that in light of the cheese requirements of the British market there should be some difference in price so that milk would not be switched too heavily into butter production.

"On that basis many of us believe that the minimum price for butter should be 35 cents a pound, wholesale basis Montreal, said one source. This would mean the minimum at the same level as the maximum price now permitted.

Carrying Place Plans Old Boys' Re-union

Historic Carrying Place, in the olden days one of the most important ant spots between Kingston and Muddy York, is going to have an old boys' re-union this coming summer it has been decided by a committee of that community's present- day residents. According to present plans the event will take place on the grounds of the Carrying Place school on Dominion Day, July 1st.

Tentative plans call for the program to include a public service to be conducted by Rev. Strother, followed by a dinner at which it is planned if (at all possible) to have W. A. Fraser, M.P., give an address. During the afternoon there will be an old time school session in which all the former boys and girls of Carrying Place district will take part, while a sports day and other features would round out a perfect day.'

A new portable radio set can be operated by alternating or direct house current or its own self contained battery.

145 B.C.I. Students Volunteer To Assist In Canada's War Effort

Approximately 145 students of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School have expressed their willingness to assist in Canada's war effort by working in industry or aiding in agriculture during the coming spring and summer months, stated Principal MacLaurin when interviewed regarding the response of pupils to the proposed plan of the Department of Education to release students from school to assist in this work.

The majority of students volunteering for such work were from the rural districts it was stated, but good response from city pupils was also received. The number included both boys and girls, and the students, when qualified for the work they intend to enter, will be released from classes following the writing of Easter exams. Boys will go into industry where needed, assist in agriculture or go into service on lake freighters, while girls will assist in picking fruit or other seasonal occupations. If labor conditions warrant such measures when the fruit picking season arrives, government supervised camps will be established in the fruit growing centres to provide living accommodations for the girls.

That collegiates throughout the province will be called upon to supply the workers needed to operate the lake freighters this coming summer is indicated by the fact that four lads from the Belleville Collegiate have already secured berths, while 10 boys from the local school have volunteered for this work.

In preparation for the possibility that the scarcity of farm labor this coming summer might necessitate the assistance of students to assist in harvesting operations, the curriculum for all schools this semester has included ingructions on agricultural subjects and undoubtedly this training will be of great assistance to boys going to farms for the summer. Regardless of what line of work students leaving school are going into, it is necessary for them to qualify, attesting to their ability to do the work, before they are permitted to leave school.

Young British Parachutists Sang, 'We've Got A Surprise For Duce' As They Leaped Into Air Over Italy

London, April 5—(CP)—(Advance) —Young British parachutists landing in Italy on the night of Feb. 10, sang "O, We've a surprise for the Duce, the Duce" as they stepped off into space, one of the fliers who ferried them said in a broadcast last night.

The speaker was an anonymous Royal Air Force officer.

The Italians have claimed all the parachute raiders were rounded up, but British authorities merely said some of them did not return to base.

The broadcaster declared R.A.F. pilots and crews carried the parachute force with accuracy in a long night of flights over the sea and hostile territory and for long periods in bad weather.

Although their objectives were "pinpoints", the ferrying ran according to schedule, he said.

"The night of the show itself was one of the most beautiful you can imagine.

"I had flown over that bit of coast on my way to Africa years ago and could recognize it in the moonlight. . . . Just like a landscape model we had used in planning the job and training the crews.

"It was easy afterward to see the parachutes on the ground and figures of the troops moving together and giving us a last flash from their torches as we passed overhead."

(British authorities said the attack was made for the purpose of demolishing certain objectives connected with ports in Southern Italy. In Rome, observers speculated the Apulian Aqueduct or hydro electric plants may have been objectives. Subsequently, the Italians announced freight traffic in the area had been suspended.)

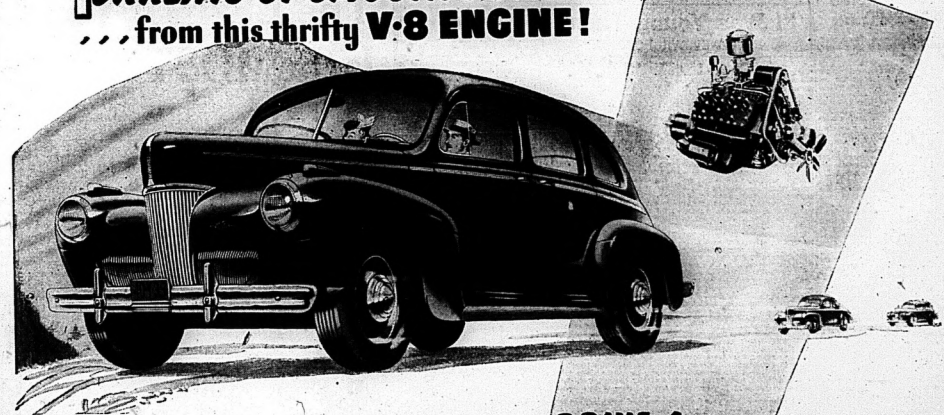
TORRENTS OF SMOOTH POWER . . . from this thrifty V-8 ENGINE!



GET DOWN TO FUNDAMENTALS when you buy a car. Engine performance is vital. The Ford is powered with the famous Ford V-8 Engine. Eight cylinders give a smoother, steadier flow of power than fewer cylinders can possibly give. The Ford V-8 has proven its economy in one official contest after another. Because of its extreme simplicity and the scientific selection of materials, it has set new records of reliability and freedom from repairs in actual service in thousands upon thousands of cars. More than 60,000 of these units are already in the service of the armies of the Empire.

Look at the size of the '41 Ford—its longer wheelbase, its massive wide body in which running boards have almost disappeared. There's more seat-room . . . head-room . . . leg-room. Doors are wider with greater expanse of glass. And in addition, this year sees a sensational advance in Ford riding qualities . . . a longer springbase, new "slow-motion springs", bigger, gentler shock absorbers and a newly designed stabilizer combine to give riding smoothness hitherto unknown in cars at this price.

Ask a Ford dealer to show you the hidden qualities in the new Ford Cars.

$35 a month with reasonable down payment buys any Ford V-8.

Ruth Draper On Second Concert Tour To Aid Red Cross

America's foremost actress, Ruth Draper, who made a four week's tour of Canada last season in the interests of the Canadian Red Cross Society, is coming back for a similar visit, and again the net receipts of her performance will be turned over to that same worthy organization. The tour opens at Halifax on April 21st, and includes the principal cities in the Maritime Provinces and Ontario. Miss Draper's local appearance has been announced for Tuesday eve, April 29 at the Capitol Theatre.

Miss Draper has a repertoire of some thirty-five comedies and dramas from which to select her varied programs, but there is one sketch which usually closes her performances, and that is her never-to-be-forgotten "In A Church In Italy", in which she impersonates six characters ranging in ages from seventeen to seventy, and then to provide good measure she evokes another fifteen or twenty people for her six characters, to converse with. Magic, perhaps. Sheer genius, more apt. Be that as it may, her imaginary characters are far more real than many we have seen actually trod the stage.

Fashion Flashes

GHEET THE SPRING in a new evening frock. Made for gala doings is a beauty of a dress in white slipper satin, the wide skirt appliqued with tiny birds in pastel and crystal beads.

NEVER BIGGER than this season is the size of the soft, pretty hat, say reports from all over the country. Bands of pale pink rough straw braid make a pretty model massed in front with pink and mauve silk roses and veiled in pale lilac.

THERE'S NOVELTY in the coat world, although the good old classics are still going strong. Designed for Star, another version of the all some black woolen coat on princess lines, buttoning from high closed throatline to hem. At the hem is a petticoat flounce in red and white polka taffeta and a taffeta tailored bow at the neckline.

UNPACKING will find lace conspicuous in a trunk or bag with nary a wrinkle. Grand for cruise or southern wear is an evening frock of black lace in a leaf design posed over pink satin sheath. The lace is cut away at the top of the sleeves and at the heart-shaped neckline to give the effect of long black lace gloves and a deep open decolette.

WE WON'T LET GO the dirndl because it is so gay, so youthful and pretty. A delightful dinner dress has a white organdie blouse worn with a dirndl skirt of white silk printed with enormous yellow and red tulips. Matching sash.

BUSY AFTERNOONS demand suitable frocks. Dressy yet simple is an afternoon frock of navy sheer crepe with inserted bands of delicate Chantilly lace dyed to match. The bands of lace suggest a pointed yoke, ending in coil motifs on the shoulders. Appliqued bows of lace at the neckline and hip.

'Ideal Man' Described By Woman Who Sells Shopgirls Romances

He Would Ask No Questions, Explains Daisy Bacon, Be Broad-Minded and Not Impressed by Who People Are — Has No Steady Beau of Her Own

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York, April 3—(CP)— I've just had breakfast with Daisy Bacon, who sells romance to shopgirls and lonely wives as editor of a lovelorn magazine.

We had orange juice, toast, coffee—and talk. I'd asked if she came to realize that this editorial job must give her a distorted conception of the magazine—this woman who has brought countless thousands of lonely hearts—bag no steady beau she calls her own.

But she knows what her ideal man is. "One who asks no questions." she told me. "Who isn't narrow and who isn't impressed by people who are." Not a word about broad shoulders, dark eyes or a rich baritone voice.

There were sparks in her blue-grey eyes when she spoke of the letter writers who inquire: "Do you mean to tell me that you're not living one of your own beautiful romances?"

Daisy Bacon—a tall, good-looking darkish blond—seems to find most of her romance in the pages of the magazine she edits. Thirteen years ago she came into its ranks to handle the lovelorn column. Six months later she became editor.

In a big old-fashioned office, the walls of which are dotted with magazine cover paintings of beautiful blonds in the arms of handsome men she works behind a roll-topped desk, across whose top march a lot of china cats. (Daisy likes cats—both live ones and toys.) Writers one other fine home, at the edge of the town.

He also did not associate with other town folk, and town folk knew nothing about him, except that he was a writer. He had come here from England, and kept to himself.

Correspondence often met him taking long solitary walks. He always observed them with a very keen eye, and as it afterwards turned out, knew all about them, even to their small peculiarities, although they never knew him.

The showdown came when a library was to be opened in the village. People from the leading families, were chosen to form a board to select the books for the library. This man, who lived in seclusion, was not chosen as a member of this board, although by his education and family background, made him eminently qualified for such a position. And a retaliation wrote a story, that was published in a national magazine describing the situation. In his story the characters of the library board appeared, so thinly disguised as to be recognized, with even their fictitious names resembling the names of the board members. In the story, the writer said one member was chosen "not for her literary ability, but to appease the farming interest". Another member of the board was a young matron, whom gossip said had an admirer, who read very passionate poetry to her. In the story she appeared, quoting to a friend some of this poetry, about poppy red lips, lily white skin, etc. It may be remarked that the was immoral for a young married woman to listen to such poetry. The young matron in the story replied: "That isn't immoral—it is 'Swinburne'."

As can be imagined, the story struck the town like a bomb shell. Those caricatured, bought every copy of the magazine they could lay their hands on. The local supply was sold out, but not as the word spread, people went to nearby towns to buy copies of the magazine. Bits of the town read extracts from it aloud to others, and there was a good deal of excitement for a time

I never read the story, but I worked in an office years ago, where a very old cabinet maker also worked. On rainy days, when business was dull he would often read to us from a magazine he found the story, and he could do it so well, we appreciated its satire to the fullest.

"I Was Young Then"

By GENEVIEVE FOURNIA

The feeling abroad today is that Uncle is as good as his master. We respect ability—achievement — even, in the case of Hollywood, personal appearance. A pretension to age, the old standards were "family" and "background". Parents that had acquired spacious homes, had stable cliffs, fjords or limpire dishes, sterling silver brought to Canada by Loyalist ancestors, had "family pride" and didn't associate with everyone.

Money made money quickly in those days, and spent it in a prodigal fashion. Wives were received by the best families. They owned property making money, and spending money, in that vulgar way, would be a case of "first families" dive back to plirt sleeves in three generations.

I remember when I was very young, a family of such great wealth that they didn't associate with any other family in the whole district. Their home was the most beautiful in this part of the province, and was furnished with hand carved pieces, brought over from England by their ancestor, from the family home in the Old Country. The girls of this family were sent to private schools, to be educated. Their shoes and clothes were made to measure in the city, so that they did not even visit the local stores. They attended church, but never went farther there, than to bow to acquaintances. The only person in the town to be received in their home, was a man who lived a very secluded life, in an-

The Stars Say

For Saturday, April 5

By GENEVIEVE KENNEDY

HIGHLY stimulated forces and faculties should combine to make this a day of exciting action, as well as sound achievement. Business, publicity, correspondence, all pertaining to writings, publishing, travel and promotional enterprises are highly accentuated and should prove surprisingly fluent. Chasm, novelty, interest in strange adventure and romantic experience seem to add zest to an intriguing state of affairs, but there's alert to friction with superiors.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of surprising achievement with great progress and success in connection with business, writings, publication, travel, communication as well as in all intellectually creative avenues of expression. There may be novelty and change, with outstanding adventure which may attract public attention.

A child born on this day should be singularly versatile and brilliant, with mental qualities of advanced vision and possibly originality and audacity assuring it public acclaim.

For Monday, April 7

SUNDAY'S horoscope should hold testimony of some very exciting circumstances, possibly in relation to public, group or community enterprise, in which there may be definite friction, violence or some other unhappy occurrence. With proper restraint, tactful self-control and other measures for construction and harmonious co-operation there might result satisfactory and practical gains. Be cautious with the tongue and pen.

Those whose birthday it is may have an exciting year with much stirring of an eventful and profitable nature providing there is not an attempt to force issues by recklessness, caustic, intemperate and discordant measures. Personal relations, companions and due deliberation of action would prove of helpful assistance in matters concerning the public welfare.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of contrasting experiences and adverse conditions, but these may be tempered by a generally pleasant and profitable events of a business, financial or other practical character. Also there may be bonus, gain and happy contacts with superiors and elders at time ripe for reaping through more productive and harmonious conditions.

Those whose birthday it is may be expected to experience a year of conflicting and fluctuating influences, with some definite gains stability and as well, honors, favors, solid support of those in influential places. These should be due to merit, sound ambitions, high principles as well as through social prestige and an urge for public benefit and advancement. There should be much personal and domestic felicity and activity of a pleasant social nature.

A child born on this day should be stable, ambitious, talented and resourceful, and although it may have many ups and downs it will be happy and successful in life.

Germ Invasion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

A reader writes me in agonizing phraseology about boils that he has had. They usually start with a hair back of the neck. There must be many people who will sympathize with this case.

The circumstance is quite peculiar. Theoretically we may suppose that an infection would produce a boil wherever that part where it was healed up at one time in one spot, it would not be likely to occur. However, skin infections are subject to rules of their own. For instance, erysipelas, which is an infection of the skin, is more likely to come as a recurrence than if it hadn't happened at all. A person caught in the stream. The boil is a sore who has erysipelas—will have an attack, completely recover, and then within a week or ten days have another one and go through the experience all over again.

Perhaps the infections in the skin which we call either boils or carbuncles, obey the same immunologic rules. Certain it is that especially in the armpit, boils will come in troops and keep pestering the poor victim indefinitely.

The best advice that I can give at the present time is to use some sort of germ killer known as staphylococcus toxoid. This must be given by a doctor because it needs a little hypodermically at intervals of about every four days. In such cases also the new chemical substances which have been so valuable in the treatment of pneumonia and other sorts of infections—sulfanilamide and sulfathiazole, etc., should be used.

Hot Fomentation

The most comforting treatment for these recurrent boils is some form of hot fomentation. Treatment by suction cups is also very grateful. Curiously enough, surgical incision is not as likely to be as successful as in other forms of abcess.

The modern doctor is in a much better position to take care of all kinds of infections than he was 10 or even 5 years ago. The value of the chemical substances which I just mentioned, in the treatment of invasion by certain germs, is undoubtedly very powerful. It was the dream of Doctor Ehrlich, who had been so interestingly celebrated by Dr. Paul de Kruif in his book called "The Magic Bullet" in MICROBE HUNTERS, that some chemicals would destroy the invading germs and leave the human tissues unaffected. That is why he called it "the Magic Bullet." He thought he could shoot it into the body and that it would kill the enemy germs, not destroying the others.

About twenty years ago one of these magic bullets was invented. It was mercurochrome. It works very well on the surface of the body but it did not do all that was expected of it when injected into the bloodstream. This is simple, short and effective. Nothing else takes its place.

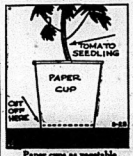
PAPER CUPS AS VEGETABLE PROTECTORS

Paper cups should be secured and used for starting seeds of plants, such as melons, which move badly from ordinary flats, or for seeds which are too scarce or valuable to risk in the open ground.



Paper cups as vegetable protectors

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, another way in which these paper cups are valuable is to protect such plants as tomatoes against cutworms, which have a special fondness for such young plants. The cups should be set into the ground so that an inch at least will be above ground.

When the paper cups are used, the bottom, of course, is cut off and the plants can be set into the ground without disturbing the ball of earth about the roots.

Bach Passion Music To Be Sung At St. Andrew's Ch.

In the Sunday evening service at St. Andrew's Church, the choir will sing a selection from the Passion of Our Lord according to the Gospel of St. Luke. During this service the choir will be assisted by Miss Jessie B. Tuite, Dean of Women at Albert College, and Mrs. F. E. Houston, soprano. Miss Tuite will read the part of the Evangelist originally set as a lengthy tenor recitative and Mrs. Houston will sing the two beautiful arias or songs by which this work is known to many.

From pre-Reformation times it was a Good Friday custom at Leipzig to rehearse the passion story in the narrative of one of the evangelists, and during Bach's Cantorship at St. Thomas this master of church music also composed at least five settings of the Good Friday story.

This work, to be sung "according to St. Luke" is generally attributed to Bach himself, although it is much more simple and shorter than the other settings.

The simple, but deeply religious chorals come in at intervals as further meditations on dramatic incidents of the story. Choruses are interposed where the drama of the story allows such. In this case these are exceedingly short and represent the words of the mobs at the trial scenes.

Bach's comprehension of the relation of music to religion is unique. His music has the capacity at once for personal and corporate expressions. His setting of the Passion to be sung at the Sunday evening service at St. Andrew's has all the majesty and beauty one expects to find in the work of the greatest of church musicians of all time.

Evangelist To Hold Passion Week Preaching Mission

Evangelist Tom Miller will be the guest preacher at a special Passion Week Preaching Mission to be held in Evangel Temple. Mr. Miller has had a wide experience as an evangelist in all parts of Canada and the southern and western States, and comes to Belleville from Montreal where he has just concluded a successful ministry.

Evangelist Miller will preach at both of the Sunday services and each week night, from Monday to Thursday in Evangel Temple. The Passion Week Preaching Mission will conclude with three services on Good Friday in Holloway United Church, which has been loaned to the Evangel Temple for the occasion. It is expected that several hundred people from fourteen out of town churches will attend the Good Friday meetings. Belleville people, of all churches, are cordially welcomed to all of these services.

Lou Nova Gains Chance to Meet Brown Bomber by K.O. of Baer In Eighth Round At New York

Nova Takes Gruelling Punishment From Maxie Before Applying Pressure

BAER TIRES QUICKLY

Only a Fluke Could Have Won Fight for Former Heavyweight Champion

By LEON EDEL

Canadian Press Staff Writer.

New York, April 5 (CP)—Lou Nova, a gritty young man with a jaw of iron and the tenacity of a terrier, won his chance last night to meet Joe Louis for the world championship in September. In a drama-filled bout he took gruelling punishment from the ring's hitchiest pugilist, Max Baer, and then stopped him in the eighth.

Maxie has met himself out punching Nova. In a sense he kayoed himself. When he was finally sweating and puffing and waving his long arms wildly Nova stepped in for the kill. It was as simple as that.

The former world champion showed his years, by the fifth round he was winded; by the seventh he was plain tired. The last couple of rounds ended in Baer's corner with Baer just waiting for the bell to give him a breather and virtually groping for his gest.

In his dressing-room, when it was all over, he admitted ruefully the years were catching up with him. He was pressing the ice-pack against his closed left eye and the "moose" under his right was turning livid.

"I guess I just ain't as young as I was seven years ago," he said. And he wasn't grinning.

Fought Straight Hard Fight

Nova fought a straight, hard fight. He wasn't having any of Baer's comedy. He just wasn't amused. Like a determined little dog that gets his teeth into something and holds on for dear life, Nova held on, stubbornly, doggedly and just as unimaginatively, until the crucial moment.

But if was Baer who gave the fight its drama, even if his clowning exasperated the fans that filled Madison Square Garden to the rafters. After starting off with his usual song and dance routine, the invariable nagging and floor work, so that the first round looked more like a session of the Russian ballet than a big league boxing match, he suddenly got down to work.

Baer Has Edge in Fourth

There was an electric moment in the exciting fourth round when Baer came to life and began to let form have its way. A right off the jaw and a left to the head, that brought Nova sagging against the ropes, and then a few second later a staggering right to the head.

But at the end of this round the "mouse" was forming under Maxie's left eye and his effort to get a forward had pretty well worn him out. From then on it was a toss up as to when Nova would end it. Nova was content to play with precision, timing, and all the stamina of a fighter in his prime. Only a fluke could have won for Max Baer.

Baer had the edge on Nova in weight, 230 3-4 to Lou's 202 3-4.

Beatrof twice in a row on Cleveland ice, Bears, however, may surprise, although the Barons are determined to take the crown with their third victory.

JUG McSPADEN HOT AT AUGUSTA

Scores 67 in Second Round to Place Fourth in Golf Tourney

Augusta, Ga., April 5 (AP)—Jubilant Jug McSpaden wallzed about the lawn of the Augusta National Golf Club thumbs locked with glee:

Nobody disputed him. A stinging 67 by the Winchester, Mass., golf professional was the hottest thing in yesterday's second round of the 1941 Masters' tournament, and zoomed him into a tie for fourth, six strokes behind field-pacing Craig Wood, who stood 137 at the end of 36 holes.

The imperturbable Wood, pulling himself out of occasional tight spots with superb putting and chip shots, stayed out in front at the half-way mark, but his 71 for the second round left him only three shots ahead of P.G.A. champion Byron Nelson of Toledo, who posted a rain-soaked 69 to his earlier 71 for 140. Ralph Guldahl, the U.S. open champion Lawson Little, putting like a pendulum, who stood 71-70—141.

Billy Conn Gives Barlund A Lacing In Eight Rounds

Chicago, April 5 (AP)—Eight heavyweight new faces will be before Irish Billy Conn, Pittsburgh's fancy boxer, but none of them belong in the same league with Slugger Ellis Lewis.

Under the present setup, however, Conn is scheduled to meet the heavyweight champion in June, either in Chicago or New York.

Conn's eighth start last night was weak-hitting, plodding Gunnar Barlund, Finnish slugger who scaled 194 1-3 to outweigh Conn by 16 1-2 pounds. Barlund was battered from a cut in his right eyelid when the fight was stopped at the start of the eighth round.

A crowd of 14,418 spectators saw the 23-year-old Pittsburgh kid give Barlund a thorough beating although there were no knockdowns.

Winnipeg Rangers Take Saskatoon 6-4

Winnipeg, April 5 —(CP)— Winnipeg Rangers, labbed by their coach, Lorne Northcott, as being "just about even" with the best western champion Kenora Thistles, gained forward to improvement after sweeping past Saskatoon Quakers in five minutes of power-play hockey to win 6 to 4 in the opener of the 1941 Western Hockey League final series.

Northcott, former professional star with Montreal Maroons of the National League, was no more optimistic about Monday's second game than Coach Russ Blinco of Kenora who had brought Quakers here only because he'd come home from Saskatoon. "When my team gets more accustomed to the ice they might get better," he said. Both coaches predicted a close-hard-fought series following the initial, clean speedy show.

Larger than the usual device, a larger rubber ball and a new lawn mowers has been invented that is mounted on wheels and equipped with a handle to enable it to be wheeled away when filled.

Maupesse, Jockey R. Poteete in the saddle, is shown finishing ahead of Pacification, Jockey H. Mora up, to win the first race, for two-year-old maiden fillies, at the opening of the eastern racing season on the Bowie, Md., track. Sis The winner paid $8.60.

Baker was third. The time for the one-half mile was 48 1-5 seconds.

MONTREAL JRS. MEETS OSHAWA FOR EAST FINAL

One of the Best Teams Ever Sent Out of Quebec Ready for Series

GENERALS STRONG

Toronto, April 6 (CP)—Montreal's Junior Royals will be gunning for a chance to be the first Quebec team to enter the Memorial Cup finals tonight when they meet Oshawa Generals in the first game of a best-of-five series for Eastern Canada honors.

To Generals, however, the second final with the Cup at stake, back of the Royals, one of the strongest bids for Memorial Cup honors in many years, present a heavy and powerful aggregation that is expected to play the same brand of fast and wide-open hockey which saw them hurdle Crescent Juniors and Ottawa Canadiens in turning their own Junior amateur hockey association title.

Coach Lorne Wylie whose crew scored more than 30 goals along the playoff route, is happy over the fact that after a hard-fought struggle against Toronto Marlboros this week Generals' second Memorial game had been played in a best-of-seven series.

First three games of the series will be played in Oshawa, home venue for any other contests necessary to be set later.

COWLEY MAY PLAY AGAINST DETROIT

First Game for Stanley Cup Will be Played in Boston on Tuesday

Boston, April 5 —(CP)— Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings open their Stanley Cup final series here tomorrow night, both hoping to have in uniform Bill Cowley, the Bruins' veteran leading point-getter.

Cowley rode a stationary bicycle yesterday for a short time, seeking to get the kinks out of the knee he injured in the first game of the semi-final round against Toronto Maple Leafs, and may be called here just night in a Boston triumph.

It was Mel Hill who shoved Boston into the final round with a third-period goal that gave the National League champions a 2-1 victory and the round in the seventh and deciding game of the series with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The final series will see games here Sunday, and Tuesday, two games in Detroit Thursday and Saturday or Sunday and the fifth, sixth and seventh games—if they are necessary to decide the series—played like this: Boston April 15, Detroit April 17, Boston April 20.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association is slated to be held in St. Catharines on Good Friday, when the subject we might draw to the attention of readers is the remark by Harry Rollins that the O.A.S.A. is the only governing body left in Canada to include the word "amateur" in their title, because, as Harry, knows, baseball at a having long since dropped the amateur tag years ago. When she nodded in the affirmative, he continued: "And didn't you live out on Willow street years ago?" And when she answered in the affirmative, he asked: "Aren't you the woman that dropped a baby out of a 35-storey window one day?"

Naturally, she nodded, and asked: "Why?"

Grinning, the screwball replied: "Just curious."

Back in 1907-08 and '09 the Stratford Midgets turned the hat trick by winning the Junior O.H.A. title three years in succession. Several clubs have won the Junior honors twice in succession, the old Kingston Frontenacs in 1916-11, Orillia in 1913-14, Toronto Marlboros and even Peterborough way back in 1934-35. Again in 1901 the Peter triumphed again, but in Belleville we can still remember a win a junior O.H.A. championship. The senior "B" hockey finals have developed into a fine battle for fish. The Victoria Park "Wreckers" nearly wrecked the Kingston Combines' hockey night last night by winning 5 to 4 to force a seventh and final game in the Georgian Bay district title. T'' Limestone City certetiet blew their chances of sewing up a senior hockey title, the first one they could have nailed to the Princess Street mantelpiece since 1899, when Queens University won a senior puck title in Canada. Eastern Ontario puck fans were quite satisfied the Combines would come through last night, especially after their impressive 9 to 4 win the night day. However, Wally Elmer's squad took a slight bit to kick in with some ineffective defence and forwards, but there a title. The pay-off came after the game when it was announced the Kingston line-up was Queens students, who are engaged in their final examinations and after all a college degree is much the important thing to individual than a puck-chasing title. It doesn't take a college professor with degrees to figure that one out.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was going to take me downtown this afternoon and she started to put on a white dress and a new kind of wanting me to look dressed up, and I says to her, I says, I mean, I says, I mean look, why do I have to wear these slimey things?

Dead pan, she says to look like a little gentleman? ma said, and I said, well, I mean, I says, why do I have to?

Sounding like the end of the argument, and I kept on watching her primping around in front of the mirrig. Suppose you got a fierce big shortch mark on this dress, ma, I says, would you make me wear them, then, would you?

Naturally not, but you're never seen me shortch anything yet, have you? me said, and I said, well I do recualem, ma, do you mean you know something that I don't? you can stand on one spot without making a step and still get into trubble, I'm faiter myself that I do, yes.

Well O, ma, I dare you to prove it, dare you to do a lot of this iron and not pick it up again till the exact second that I tell you to, and to make a shortch mark, do you think you could do it, ma? I said, and ma said, I'm quite sure of it.

Well then, I says, I'll bet anything, I'll bet, and prove it, I said, and she said, I will.

Sounding like good news, and I kept on watching her, saying, Well I bet you a dime you don't, and ma says, I bet you a million dollars, and I says, I bet you a million billion dollars, it's a deal! ma said, and I said, Aw right, then, I says, I'll bet something else.

And I were the while pants and nobody even seemed to notice whether I was there or not.

Proving other people are blind to me, no busy worrying about them-selfs.

About one half of a new railroad in Iran from Tehran to Tabris has been opened for use.

BRITISH SWEEP ITALIANS FROM ETHIOPIA

This Central Press Canadian map shows how the British, now astride the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway at Diredawa, have cut Italian rail communication with the Red Sea and the outside world. Arrows show positions of advancing British troops driving toward Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, which military observers now believe the Italians will surrender.

ANOTHER LINK IN GO OD NEIGHBOR POLICY

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, representing the U.S., and Don Francisco Najera, SEATED, Mexican ambassador to Washington sign the mutual defence pact whereby the U.S. gets the right to immediately use Mexican air bases should the occasion arise, and Mexico gets the same privilege in the United States. This is said to be the first step in a more comprehensive and all-embracing mutual defence pact between the United States and her neighbor to the south.

Butter Declines During Past Week

Toronto — Generally quiet dealings ruled on this week's session of the Toronto open produce exchange, but, however, showed the only price weakness and eggs were steadier.

Cautious trading was the keynote on the butter market, buyers working on a hand-to-mouth basis in an effort to keep their stocks down, in view of the nearness of the heavy production season.

Sellers, anxious to move fresh supplies, reduced prices 1-2 cent to 2-4 cent a pound during the week. The first-grade Ontario product closed yesterday on a nominal basis of 34 cents a pound, with trading at a standstill.

Operations at breaking plants kept the egg market clear of any surplus in current receipts. Storing activities were kept down to a minimum. Toward week-end fairly good local demand and light offerings tended to lift prices. Government inspected shipments moved at 1-2 cent to 1 cent premium.

Hogs Marketed in Belleville District

One of the most difficult problems in marketing Canadian bacon is that of estimating the amount of bacon that will be available for marketing from time to time. In order to aid the farmers a chance to participate in estimating the number of hogs that would be marketed out of Hastings County during the months of October, November and December of 1940, forms were sent out and many farmers obliged by filling in and returning them to this office.

The total marketings for the County of Hastings for the period were 12,485 hogs and the farmers were asked to estimate the number of cars carrying 80 hogs each would be required. The number of cars would have been 275.

The following are the estimates of hogs from the Hastings County farmers:

Ninety Per Cent Of Canadians Support Wheat Acreage Policy Hon. J. L. Gardiner Tells House

Minister Replies to Criticism Offered by Ontario and Western Members

SENATE ADJOURNS

TAKE ONE NINETY PER CEN CH
By FRANK PATTERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 5 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner has expressed relief at least 90 per cent of the Canadian people support the government's policy of assisting western farmers to surmount the difficulties occasioned by curtailment of wheat markets as a result of the war.

He made the statement in the House of Commons yesterday as the session settled down to spend the remaining time before the Easter recess begins next Thursday in debating the administration's proposal to spend $35,000,000 on payments to western farmers who take land out of wheat production.

The minister spoke in reply to criticism of the acreage reduction policy from Ontario and western members. Earlier a proposal to start the Easter adjournment last night had been dropped because of desire of Ontario members to discuss the agriculture to discuss the plan before seeding starts.

The Senate

The senate adjourned until May 13 after Hon. Charles Fauteux, deputy governor-general, gave Royal assent to nine bills which had been passed both Houses. They included money bills authorizing expenditures totalling $1,150,000,000 for the present and recently-ended fiscal years, the largest in any year except the 1918 assessment to at one time.

The Minister of Western Canada know that this policy is not putting money in their pockets whether the money comes from the Treasury of Canada or from any other source."

Mr. Gardiner said in his address:

"They know that this policy is taking money out of their pockets and making it possible for this dominion to finance the war to the extent that it is being financed. More than would be the case if the government were to follow a policy of the west what they are doing for the rest of the other people of Canada. Not Begging.

"We are not begging for the west. We are not asking for anything from any part of this country to put money into the pockets of the western wheat growers."

The western grower was denied the right to sell his wheat to Japan, Russia, Spain and many other countries, he said, because Britain was carrying on the blockade which, if it

Many of the ministers leaving the government conference were being remained at their offices beside telephones, preparing to expect important news soon.

Budapest reports said the frontier had been closed since Wednesday—the day the German Panzer's mobilization order—and that Yugoslavia had given forbade residents of the area to pass the boundary line.

were not carried on, would result in the destruction of the empire and of democracy," the minister added.

"That being so we feel that what we are asking this House for money is the most effective way of helping Western Canada.

Trying to Help Farmers

"We are asking the people of this country, and we believe we have the support of at least 90 per cent of them, to help the farmers over one of the most difficult years they have ever experienced and in helping them, to lessen the need for the government to pay storage on large quantities of wheat."

The Minister was replying directly to Hon. W. Earl Rowe (Conservative-Simcoe), sharpest critic of the acreage bonus plan thus far during the day. Mr. Rowe condemned the program as "fantastic" and "fantastic."

He said he was not opposed to bonuses for agriculture if they were paid for "more-than-quality production but he was opposed to bonuses for "doing nothing."

"We are bonusing our farmers to stop growing wheat simply because it is difficult to get it to the open seas," Mr. Rowe said. "Well, Britain will ever get wheat. We assured would like to eat wheat and Britain is selling wheat to foreign countries at this very time...

Prepare for Emergency

"I ask, is it not a good time for us to prepare for a full breadbasket, even if we do not use it? Even $100,000,000 instead of $35,000,000. If it were necessary, so as to keep these farmers going, so that ever great emergency to give them a reasonable price for their wheat."

Mr. Rowe charged the government with lack of vision and purpose if elected the acreage would disappear in time. Canada was debating this bill in a time of international nation in which the products of the farm were the wealth of the country.

Outline of the program were Harry Leader (Lib. Portage-Lisgar), L. A. Ross (Con. Souris) and Robert Fair (N.D. Battle River).

On behalf of the new democracy group, Mr. Fair submitted recommendations for the legislation, including:-

Payment of an initial price of $1 per bushel for the first 2000 bushels produced by any farmer, closing of the Winnipeg grain exchange, continued payment of storage on wheat held on farms, and an advance to farmers on wheat forming part of the deliverable quot.t held on the farm.

RAID PRESSED

A number of persons were reported killed and wounded in the residential districts and Berlin radio declared the damage was nowhere extensive.

London had one brief alert which lifted before 10 p.m. (5 p.m. E.S.T.), but Berlin reported that the British became bombless bombless night.

Meanwhile, the Royal Air Force bombers crossed the channel in force to attack enemy shipping and harbors in northern France, for the second successive night. This raid was concentrated on the area of the man battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, which have been in dock at Brest, France, for the past three months.

Hundreds of volunteers, fighting doggedly amid the crump of heavy explosives to douse fire bombs raked the docks in the Brest area and the effectiveness of the raid.

Berlin radio couldn't find their targets due to the prompt work of the fire fighters. The broadcast said: "They extinguished the incendiaries before they dropped. Even a whole load of fire bombs were showered down in fruitless attempts to get the docks afire.

The fire fighters stopped their work immediately when they heard the searchlights spotted one bomber and concentrated a shower of light down in flames. Another plane was reported shot down by a night fighter and one of the crew members.

One Nazi raider rated the town's anti-aircraft machine-gun fire, but no one was hit.

Only Two Sinkings Reported In Week Ending April 4

The British Admiralty's summary for the week ended March 24 showed that 21 vessels, totalling 104,000 neutral shipping sunk by enemy action in the period, were 6,000 tons below the weekly average of the first 12 weeks of the war and 50,000 tons below the average for the first three weeks of March.

ATTACK IN MOONLIGHT

Bristol, England, April 5 (CP)—German warplanes dumped a heavy load of high explosive and fire bombs on this West England port overnight in their second attack of the week, but the only casualties reported were one dead and 17 seriously injured.

Syrup And Egg Prices Decline

Offerings of maple syrup on the produce market today forced prices down another five cents per quart to a new low of 75c per quart in quantities at $3 per gallon. This is a decline of 10c per quart or 30c per gallon from the high mark of the season's initial offering last week.

Other lines of produce held at approximately last week's levels however with eggs reflecting a slight decline from some vendors asking 23c per dozen for top grade. The general price asked for grade A eggs was 22c per dozen, with other grades 22c and 20c. Butter still maintained the two pounds for 79c level, although vendors were skeptical of prices remaining at this figure. Chicken offerings were small with prices remaining at 26c per pound.

Apples were fairly plentiful with No. 1 Delicious selling at $2 per hamper. Choice MacIntosh and Spys sold at 25c per basket, with cookers sold at the usual $1. per basket.

Fresh lettuce, fresh radishes and new potatoes were offered by market gardeners with lettuce going at 10c per bunch, radishes and potatoes at the same figure. Parsnips were 5c per pound, turnips 5c per peck and carrots, turnips and beets 30c per peck. Potatoes were 75c per bag.

Pork by the quarter sold at 13c per pound, 15c by the cut for hinds. Pickled pork was offered at the same price as that of the 25c cut smoked ham at 30c to 32c per pound. Cut pork, fresh ham and fish were 30c per pound and mutton sold at 25c per pound.

Young porkers were offered at 8c each and up. Stove wood, mixed maple and ash, sold at $8 per cord.

Dairy Groups Disagree On Minimum Butter Price

One Group Suggests 31 Cents Based on Toronto, Montreal Markets, the Other Proposes 34 Cents

SAY CHEESE TOO LOW

Ottawa, April 5 (CP)—The Dairy Products Board, empowered by the government to set a minimum price for butter during the high production season, has known the views of two major groups of Canadian producers on what that price should be.

One group, headed by The National Dairy Council of Canada, suggests a price of 31 cents a pound on the basis of Toronto and Montreal markets. The other, The Canadian Dairy Farmers' Federation, propose that the price be 34 cents.

Aside from the variance in price, the separate submissions made yesterday by the two groups after a week's study, are low and should severely identical, even to the wording of various paragraphs.

Both ask for an increase in the price of cheese.

The production should be such in 1941 that Canada can supply Britain's requirements, first-and still maintain sufficient reserve for "emergency market," they said.

They state that we may have every assurance of accomplishing this and believe that the present price of cheese is also low and should be raised to 19 cents a pound, basis Montreal, for first-grade quality of one and two cents per pound.

Under last year's cheese agreement the British price was 18 cents a pound at Montreal. Under the new agreement which went into effect last Tuesday Britain agrees to take 112,000,000 pounds—a rise of 12,000,000 pounds, or 2 cents. To the 14.4 cents, 5 cent is added for the Canadian treasury.

Withheld Decision

Officials of the Dairy Products Board said it was too early to say who could give a decision at once on these two representations.

Associated with the National Dairy Council in its submission are Fernand Pamphyn, president of the association, New Brunswick Dairymen's Association, Quebec Cheese Improvement Association, New Ontario Dairymen's Association, Montreal Milk Shippers' Association, Dairy Farmers' Federation of Ontario' Association of Quebec and Provincial Committee. The Canadian Dairy Farmers' Federation made its submission alone.

Both submissions contended the agreement was below parity, proposed to provide "an alternative market for the producer," and suggested should the trade during the flush production season be discouraged to purchase all the butter offered on the market."

Three Recommendations

The national dairy council group in its submission, made three recommendations contained in the dairy federation brief.

1. "Along with a fixed minimum price for butter, the government should make it obligatory that all butter factories that are equipped to manufacture Special Grade butter should make cheese only."

2. "Subsidies should be given by the dairy products board to the producers of Special Grade butter in series from accepting cream during the season in which the cheese factory manufactures cheese, to assist their milk to cheese factories in the districts in which such factory facilities are available."

3. "The minimum purchasing price must be imposed by the government and be a sufficient spread should be permitted to warrant the cream producer in carrying the butter until the season of low prices in June and realizing a profit on the money invested."

The minimum price per butter at present is pegged at a maximum of 35 cents a pound in Montreal, by the wartime prices and trade board.)

Farm Labor Scarce

Both submissions said farm labor of any suitable type is scarce at such a price in competition with wages offered in industry under war-time contracts," and that prices of farm products should be at least increased without adequate increase in the price of things he had to buy.

In addition, The Dairy Farmers' Federation said:

"Industry, engaged in the production of war materials, is guaranteed its cost of production plus a reasonable profit, and therefore has an assured basis, whereas producers to produce foodstuffs at prices which may not cover production costs.

"The trend in agricultural prices in recent years has consumed the entire margin of profit, and unduly heavy mortgages on his property and ruined his credit, so that he must receive the cost of production if he is to continue as a producer."

Cairo Unworried By Withdrawal From Bengasi

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Some chagrin is expressed in London over the British evacuation of Bengasi under pressure of advancing German-Italian mechanized forces, but the defensive strategy involved is obvious. Weather and the desert terrain are British allies counted upon to stall the Axis counter-drive in North Africa just as they helped bog down Marshal Graziani's earlier and far more formidable attempt to invade Egypt.

Graziani was credited in marching three 300,000 men when he started his ill-fated march to seize the Nile Dam. Most of that army wound up as British war prisoners in Libyan casualties.

Rumors from Cairo place the present British force at the port of Italo-German force in Libya at two mechanized divisions, perhaps 20,000 men. If that is anywhere near accurate, it requires little skill in first-and still maintain sufficient reserve for "emergency market," they said.

They state that we may have every assurance of accomplishing this and believe that the present price of cheese is also low and should be raised to 19 cents a pound, basis Montreal, for first-grade quality of one and two cents per pound.

Athens had its second air raid alarm today since Sunday morning and thousands stood in the streets to watch a German plane race over amid bursts of anti-aircraft fire. No bombs fell.

GERMANS LOSE ELEVEN PLANES

A government spokesman said bodies of Nazi dead were piled high before Greek positions after the German Palm Sunday invasion from Bulgaria.

Savage air battles over the fighting ground troops today cost the Germans at least 11 planes, it was stated officially. Several others were damaged.

The newspaper Kathimerini said an irregular band of Bulgarians joined in the battle this morning against Greek forces in the mountains, but was captured.

King George, the Prince and Crown Princess and Premier Alexandros Korizis visited Ptlaeus to look at the damage caused by a German air raid Sunday. The King drove his own car through the district to the seaport.

"Our fortifications, in spite of violent artillery shelling and dive-bombing of the enemy air force, have resisted, with the exception of one which fell after a particularly strong attack," the high command communique announced. Some ground, it added, was evacuated by Greek forces "for reasons of operations."

Ten "enemy" tanks and eleven "enemy" aircraft were destroyed and "some" prisoners taken.

The high command said the Greek positions were defended only by "very small Greek forces" and a spokesman declared:

"We are fighting against forces ten times superior in weapons of mechanical implements a hundred times greater; but our soldiers are holding fast, even though German airplanes rage over their heads.

Drive Italians Out Of Albania Primary Move

British Army in Greece Fulfills Promise of Full Aid to Allies by British

AIR POWER STRONG

London, April 7 (CP)—The primary objective of Britain's expeditionary force in embattled Greece will be to drive the Italians out of Albania, after which it will seek to hold Greece, Albania and part of Yugoslavia defensively until the time is ripe for a "final entry into Europe," informed observers said.

When this time comes, they said, Britain's "anti-invasion" army at home will be ready to spring across the English Channel to open up a second front against the Germans.

The presence in Greece of an Imperial British army of undisclosed strength was disclosed officially by Britain for the first time yesterday. At the same time it was announced Britain's air power there had been reinforced.

STEEL EMPLOYEES GIVEN INCREASE

New Wage Scale of Ten Cents an Hour announced to be Effective April 1

Pittsburgh, April 7 —(AP)— Ernest T. Weir, President of the National Steel Corporation, announced today the company had granted employees a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, effective April 1.

Weir said detailed arrangements for the increase "are being worked out" in all subsidiaries of the company. A spokesman estimated that about 21,000 hourly-rate employees will be affected.

National Steel is the largest steel producer in the United States, operates 10 subsidiaries, the largest being the Weirton Steel Company with plants in Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., and the Great Lakes Steel Corporation, with a mill in Detroit.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations Union also has had any wage contract with National Steel, but no unaffiliated organization, the Weirton Steel Employees Representation Plan has been negotiations for wage increases.

Greek Statement Denies Nazi Charges, Greece Did Not Violate Neutrality

Athens, April 7 (AP).—An authorized Greek statement denied today the charges in a German note which said Greece brought war on herself by violating neutrality and permitting British forces to land on European soil.

The Greek statement said:

"The matter of unproved aggression on the part of Germany against Greece is nowise justified. The allegations advanced in the [German] note constitute pure pretexts of having no foundation.

"Since the beginning of the war to the Italian attack on Oct. 28, 1940, Greece, despite many provocations, scrupulously observed an attitude of strict neutrality. Universal public opinion and the entire press and no artifice can shake this conviction.

"The German government never published or communicated with the Greek government anything putting in doubt neutrality in Greece. On the contrary, the Reich government a month before the Italian attack did not fail to recognize in the solemnest manner the policy of strict neutrality observed by Greece."

GREEKS HOLD FAST

Yugoslavia and Greece Put Up Stiff Resistance to German Assaults

Berne, Switzerland, April 7 (AP) — Axis-invaded Yugoslavia and Greece, fawned by Italy and Germany and British help—and their own courage—battled Hitler's Panzer divisions along their borders today and carried the expanded war to Italy on the Albanian front.

The Greeks declared they were holding all along the new Struma Valley line except at one point where they lost a fort yesterday, and the Yugoslav army reported still to be falling back from the north on prepared and strengthened positions.

Germany claimed her army already has penetrated 18 to 25 miles into Yugoslavia and claimed great damage has been done transport and communications by air force, but acknowledged the going was hard across northern and eastern Yugoslavia and down Greece's Struma Valley.

Report Drive Opened On Albania.

The Greeks and Yugoslavs appeared to be exacting every advantage from the terrain, but there was scant detail in actual engagements.

The Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, radio announced that Yugoslav artillery had opened fire along the Albanese front in opening a drive against Fascist forces a'ready hard-pressed by Greeks in that Adriatic nation.

An air warfare spread over southeastern Europe, as air raid alarms sounded today in Budapest, capital of Hungary.

A British broadcast quoted the Budapest radio to the effect that Hungarian airdromes at Pecs and Szeged, near Yugoslavia's northern border, had been attacked by German and Yugoslav planes.

The Sofia Telegraph Agency said that a state of alarm had been declared in Hungary and that blackouts and other air raid precautions would be enforced.

The Bulgarian agency, the Swiss account said, declared: "No Bulgarian troops are participating in the German-Yugoslav fight. Bulgaria expects to be respected by the Belgrade government, but United Yugoslavia has decided upon towns and the peaceful Bulgarian population, not German objectives."

Say Bulgarian Irregulars Captured.

Belgrade has been declared an open undefended city by Premier Dusan Simovitch, the Berlin radio said.

Communications with the Balkans, interrupted with the outbreak of war in southeastern Europe, remained broken but wires were reported from Berne to Rome and Berlin shortly after dawn today.

NO BRITISH LOST

London, April 7 (CP)—A combined British air force headquarters in Greece announced today that the Royal Air Force has been in action against the Germans and in shooting down five Messerschmitt 109s over the Rupel pass area on the Greek-Bulgarian frontier.

The communique, received here by Reuters News Agency, said the Nazi planes were shot down by a small formation of British fighters.

Several other Messerschmitt 109s were reported seriously damaged by the "successful raid" on military objectives at Beratt, Albania, it added, and an air transport reconnaissance plane was shot down flames in the Athens area.

SUPPLIES RUSHED FOR GREEKS AND YUGOSLAVIANS

Shipments of Aid From U.S. May Begin Today or by Tuesday

Washington, April 7 (AP). — The United States rushed shipments of war supplies to Yugoslavia and Greece today after State Secretary Cordell Hull had denounced Germany's Balkan invasion as "unwarranted" and promised that material assistance would be rushed to the fife defenders "as speedily as possible."

Indications were that these munitions would be started across the Atlantic within a few days. Private vessels now in American ports, either under charter or for sale, are the latest. The administration is understood to have decided to give no special deal against the hour when Germany would launch her Balkan attack.

Ships Available.

Included in the shipment may be the 35 merchantmen in the last few days. President Roosevelt said last week would be used to carry any kind of munitions, guns, mortars, ammunition, bombs and other supplies from the stores of the United States army.

In addition to these implements of war more than $1,000,000 worth of medical supplies were ordered sent to Yugoslavia. Chairman Norman Davis of the Red Cross in Washington "without delay" ten field hospitals, tons of medicines and blankets and initial shipment of 2,000,000 surgical dressings.

Little Difficulty in Transportation.

The problem of transporting the materials to the Balkans may be believed here not to be very great. Eight Yugoslav ships were reported in American ports in the last few days.

Many days of dangerous travel are ahead for these vessels if they elect to carry their vital cargoes over the Atlantic lanes between North America and the Balkans through the Straits of Gibraltar and across the Mediterranean or over the 12,000 mile course around South America and through the Red Sea.

Road to Massaua is Cleared by Free French Troops

Cairo, Egypt, April 7 (AP) —The British command announced today its forces are continuing to withdraw east of Bengal in North Africa, but in East Africa had captured Debra Markos, 120 miles northwest of Addis Ababa, following the fall of the Ethiopian capital without a fight.

More than 10,000 prisoners have been captured in East Africa since March 25, and the Imperial forces are driving closer to the Red Sea port of Massaua in that colony, and toward Dessie and Gondar in Ethiopia, the command said.

In the Libyan situation, general headquarters, said: "In the face of continued pressure by the main German and Italian forces, the withdrawal of our advanced troops to selected areas of concentration is proceeding."

Swift Clean-up Near Addis Ababa

A swift cleanup north, south and west of Addis Ababa was completed following the Saturday night capture of the Ethiopian capital, which was surrendered to Fascist revolutionaries.

Ethiopian patriots led by Emperor Haile Selassie played the chief role in taking Debra Markos after a long siege and "have already inflicted over 170 casualties on the enemy whose withdrawal southward is being closely followed up," the communique said.

Italy's Eastern Empire Crumbling.

As a result of the fall of Addis Ababa Mussolini's eastern empire appeared to be falling rapidly into the African dust.

British headquarters announced that Addis Ababa surrendered with only one condition—that British troops guarantee safety of the native civilian population. The Duke of Aosta, Italian viceroy of Ethiopia, is reported making a rendezvous in British-held territory April 2 and the British command gave him the guarantee.

British officers said they believed that perhaps 70,000 Italian troops from the capital have scattered into the desert and mountains to attempt guerilla warfare or to join the main native forces in Addis Ababa and Aduwa, to the north.

Enforced Savings Virtually Adopted By Post War Credit

Britain To Leave Nothing Undone To Achieve Victory—Aim Is To Reduce Consumption, Avoid Inflation

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 7 (CP). — Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today boosted Britain's basic income tax rate to an unprecedented 10 shillings in the pound and lopped tax exemptions, but left taxes on beer, tobacco and spirits untouched as he budgeted for a record £4,587,000,000 ($18,731,100,000).

He called this figure "domestic expenditure" because it did not take into account material to come from the United States under the lease-lend bill—supplies which before the end of the fiscal year "will be far beyond the figure of £5,000,000,000 which I have been contributing to the United States under existing orders.

Big Estimated Revenue.

Sir Kingsley said that total estimated revenue on the present basis of taxation was £1,636,000,000, leaving a "potentially dangerous gap" between revenue and expenditure of about £500,000,000.

To close this he counted on personal savings loans to increase between £300,000,000 and £500,000,000. The balance, he said, must come from new taxation.

"I have come to the conclusion that I must look to direct taxation for covering all sections of the community to raise the necessary revenue," the chancellor declared amid applause.

Indirect Taxes Not Surprise

Sir Kingsley, who spoke two hours and five minutes, sprang a real surprise in the proposal to increase direct taxes. The Evening Standard had been so certain that tobacco and beer would be affected that it published a story last week which it now said had been agreed not to increase prices till Wednesday.

Detroit, April 7 (AP)—A joint conference between representatives of the strike-crippled Ford Motor Company and leaders of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), negotiating directly on the "points at issue," was the goal reported today by Walter P. Dewey set for himself today.

"We have been conferring with the union practically all day getting ready to meet in a conference-dum tomorrow that will cover the points of dispute upon which the union wants some understanding," Dewey reported today. "I likely will think by tomorrow afternoon we will be ready to agree on some of the points of issue. Then will get bottle-sides in a joint conference tomorrow night."

TEEN-AGED BOYS WARNED BY POLICE

Hurling stones at dumb animals with sling shots aroused the indignation of residents of the North Front Street area on Sunday and subsequently resulted in two teen-aged boys being taken in the police station by P.C. Evans.

The irritated residents informed the authorities that the lads were deliberately shooting stones at cats and dogs with a strong rubber-banded catapult, which inflicted injuries to the dumb animals. Constable Evans relieved the two youthful bowmen of the sling-shot and a hunting knife. After a warning the boys were permitted to return home and instructed to report to Chief Kidd after school hours on Monday. The names of the boys were withheld owing to the fact they were juveniles.

REPAIRING DOCKS

Preparatory to the time when navigation is again re-opened in the Bay of Quinte for the coal carriers again making their regular calls at the local harbor, workmen today were repairing the dock at which the Schuster Company unload its coal. Heavy timber which has served their purpose down through the years and is now showing signs of decay, were being taken out to be replaced by new timbers.

Local fishermen are also showing activity and preparing their fishing boats and other gear for the season which is expected to open soon. Two fishermen who annually ply their trade in the Bay of Quinte and in Lake Ontario were seen this morning getting their boats in order and the nets and lines for getting them into the water when the ice leaves the bay.

FIVE GRASS FIRES OVER THE WEEKEND

An epidemic of grass fires occurring in various parts of the city kept the local fire brigade busy over the week end with no less than five alarms arising out of blazes being answered either on Saturday or Sunday. The only other activity was a call to the site formerly occupied by the Sidney Lumber Company on Station Street where sawdust from the old planing mill had caught alight for the second time within two days. No damage as a result of any of the blazes was reported.

Captain G. S. White Honored By Fellow Officers Of Regiment

Captain G. S. White, M.P. of Marmora and Adjutant of the Second Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (R.P.A.M.), was honored by his fellow officers and other military men from Military District No. 3, Kingston, at a testimonial banquet held at the Belleville Club on Saturday night. Upwards to fifty officers from the District Headquarters and the Prince Edward Regiment were present to express their regret upon the retirement of Captain White, who only last week tendered his resignation to Lt.-Col. H. R. Denyes, commander of the 2nd Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Lt.-Col. Donnan, who acted as chairman during the banquet, assured the assembly it was unfortunate that Captain White had been forced to retire from his post, but revealed the fact that a recent medical examination had placed Captain White in the C-3 category, resulting in his having to vacate his post as Adjutant of the Regiment.

Many military notables from the regiment, as well as Military District Headquarters at Kingston were present including Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong, D.S.O., Brigade Commander of Military District No. 3 at Kingston; Col. D. Carmichael, Lt.-Col. M. Isbester, Lt.-Col. L. F. Grant, Lt.-Col. R. D. Cousens, D.M.O.; Major Gordon Walmsley, Deputy Judge Advocate General; Major T. Hughes, Officer Commanding District Depot, all of Kingston; Lt.-Col. Donnan, Lt.-Col. A. B. Gibbs, O.C. of the Argyll Light Infantry and other Belleville officers. The conventional military toasts were featured during the banquet, following which a social evening was enjoyed at the club.

Wife Of Architect Of London's Beaver Club Guest In City

London's Beaver Club, which has become famous in Canadian circles through the work that is being done there for Canadian troops by the Y.M.C.A. of the Dominion has an interesting and unique connection. Major Harvey A. Dawson, whose wife is the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. M. Martin, 317 Bridge Street, East, was architect for the building. Recent bombings resulted in the Club being badly damaged when a high explosive bomb scored a direct hit.

The building was originally to old English houses, London Council properties, recently demolished, according to Major Dawson's plans; proved an ideal structure for the purposes. It was opened on February 10th, of last year and since then has rendered great service to men overseas.

The heavy bomb damage made it necessary to suspend operations for four days when reconditioned rooms were again ready to provide some facilities for soldiers.

Little Damage Done In Nazi Air Raids Over England, Scotland

London, April 7 (CP). — A few German aircraft dropped bombs on the northeast coast of Scotland and on the northwest coast of England last night but little damage was done at either place, British authorities said today.

"No casualties were caused in Scotland," a communique said, "but a small number of people were injured in northwest England."

With the exception of a stretch of open water stretching a short distance eastward from the bay bridge there had not been a break in the ice of the bay for distant future occurred over the week-end

Famous Empire Stories

By Lilian Leveridge

The Story of Pitcairn Island

Far, far away in the South Pacific Ocean is a beautiful little island called Pitcairn. The romantic story of this tiny speck of land in the silver sea" and its happy people, 90 miles from their nearest neighbor, is one which should be told before a glowing camp. fire. But in the few minutes we have, and lacking the camp fire, we will do the best we can.

In July, 1787, Captain Philip Carteret was on a voyage round the world when a young man on board, son of Major Pitcairn, first sighted this island. The ship sailed close, but no one went ashore as landing is very difficult. The island, which was only two and a half miles long and one mile wide, appeared to the voyagers "like a great rock rising out of the sea". It was uninhabited and covered with trees, and it seemed a picture of wild, lonely beauty.

The ship sailed away, and for more than twenty years Pitcairn's island remained in unbroken solitude. Then, in 1808, a ship came bearing a strange, unhappy crew of white and black people, now in sight over the horizon. In order to understand who these people were and why they came we must go back to other scenes and other days.

The famous sailor, Captain Cook, with Sir Joseph Banks, once visited Otahiete (or Tahiti, as it is now called), a beautiful and very fertile island in the Society group. In Otahiete bread-fruit grows in abundance, and forms a large part of the food of the natives. These two men believed that it might be cultivated in the West Indies, and some merchants and planters passed on the idea to King George III.

The King acted upon the suggestion. The Bounty, an armed ship, was placed in command of Lieutenant Bligh, who had orders to secure a large supply of bread-fruit plants and convey them to the West Indies.

The expedition, consisting of forty-six persons, had a good many adventures and difficulties, but once arrived, their troubles seemed to be ended, at least for a time. The natives were very kind, the climate and the country delightful, the work pleasant and easy. Everyone felt sorry to leave when, early in April, with more than 1,000 bread-fruit plants and a number of other plants and fruits they sailed away from Otahiete.

For a few weeks all went well; then a terrible mutiny broke out, for the men had determined to go back and enjoy themselves a while longer at Otahiete. Early in the morning of Wednesday, Bligh was roughly awakened and was startled to find himself surrounded by some of the men, armed with pistols and cutlasses.

He called loudly for help.

"Hold your tongue, sir, or you are dead this instant", one of them cried with an oath.

Not one blowing him time to dress, they tied his hands behind his back and marched him on deck where they kept him under guard till they had completed their arrangements. Then they put him, with eighteen other men, into a boat. They threw in also some food and water, a compass, canvas, and a few other things. Then the mutineers sailed away in the Bounty.

Much as we would like to, we cannot follow Bligh and his companions in their perilous way, but only say that after many adventures and sufferings they at last, in June, reached a Dutch settlement on the island of Timor, no less than 3,618 miles from where they took ship and at last reached their home or other destinations. The mutineers returned to Otahiete, where most of them remained. But their leader, Fletcher Christian, with John Adams and seven other men formed a plan. This was to Englishman took an Otahiete wife, and with six native men, three of whom had wives, and one little girl of ten months, they put to sea again.

Arriving at length at this lovely island, they found it, as they had plenty of bread-fruit and other pleasant fruits and vegetables, they decided to stay. By and by they broke up the ship and used the materials to build homes for themselves.

Honest-ow, that is hardly the word. These wicked people could never be happy. "Hateful and hating one another", they gave way to every evil passion. There was a great fight at last, when all the black men and six of the whites were killed. Two committed suicide, one died of asthma, and

96 New Members Join Public Library During March

At the regular monthly meeting of Corby Public Library Board held Friday evening the following report was submitted by the Chief Librarian, Miss Kathryn Gallagher:

Report for Month of March

The month of March has been a most satisfying one in circulation and use of books at the Library. The total circulation for the month was 10,758, of which 7494 books were adult, 2813 children's and 451 reference books consulted. This is an increase of 1,113 over last month.

Membership consisted of 96 new members, 64 being adult and 32 boys and girls. There were thirteen withdrawals.

New Desk

The installing of our new desk in the Boys' and Girls' Room yesterday was an event long anticipated and after two days' use Miss Delaney finds a marked improvement in the method of dealing with the crowds of children after school. In the rush two were able to check behind the desk and relieve the congestion and long periods of waiting in line. Also the incoming books were kept out of reach of inquisitive fingers until they were properly slipped and ready for circulation and in this way many mistakes were avoided. The general appearance of desk adds much to the room and has been the cause of many compliments.

During the month I was asked to speak at the monthly meeting of the Teachers' Association and on Friday, March 28, I spoke to this group at Queen Alexandra School on way in which the school and Library may co-operate. For the meeting Miss Delaney prepared lists of books recently added to the Boys' and Girls' Library, which related to the course of study. These were distributed to the teachers present and I spoke briefly of the books listed and also displayed them at the meeting. It was decided in view of the enthusiasm shown and the splendid response from the teachers, for overnight ten teachers requested the books be sectioned, to repeat the intervals and send them to the schools. In this way the teachers as well as the pupils are kept in touch with new books relating to the school studies.

A donation of a large Standard Dictionary by Mr. Sidney Griggs was received this month for which the Library is grateful.

Ninety discarded books and fifty magazines were donated to the I.O.D.E. St. John's Chapter for the War Services Committee which were very much appreciated.

Respectfully submitted,

KATHRYN GALLAGHER,
Librarian.

Kingston, Ont., April 7—(CP)—Bricklayers who have been on strike here for increased wages will resume work today on an addition to the Aluminum Company of Canada plant, it was announced last night. About forty men will return to work on the company's job on the understanding that the perfect conditions was war work.

Approximately the same number of men working on other jobs are still on strike. A meeting of the Contractors' Association will be held here tonight to consider proposal of a $1.06 an hour rate suggested by the Bricklayers' Union. The men were being paid $1 an hour before the strike and asked an increase of 10 cents an hour. They agreed to a compromise of $1.05 an hour and a decision on the proposal is expected today.

HITLER OPENS BALKAN FRONT

Germany's extension of the war into the Balkans came as no surprise on Sunday morning when German troops were thrown against Yugoslavia and Greece. A long series of events beginning with the Axis pact is recalled. The recent attempt of Germany to coerce Yugoslavia by pact with the Axis was all too apparent as the continuation of the plan of the aggressor Nazis to create the second front because it was practically the only field in which the Germans could move. The war against Britain has apparently been deemed too serious a project to risk an assault on the British Isles.

In the Balkans the Axis has been meeting great opposition. First came the decision of the Greeks to throw down the gauntlet and chase the Italian invader out of their country and they did so with no loss of time with the result that have been driving back the Italians in Albania, the British air force and fleet co-operating with the Greeks.

Then came the heroic stand of Yugoslavia which has upset the Hitler plan. The Hun came offering a pact which the Yugoslavs saw was only the long-since familiar mailed fist using threat of violence as a weapon. The German government signed, but young King Peter, like a true Serbian, took the throne in his own hands and set up a new government which defied the Germans. The Germans put the axis creed to the acid test sphere of lies and charges and to do by force what Germany had attempted by guile and by treaty.

To the credit of the Yugoslavs, they boldly faced the unspeakable Hun and did not yield one point. Sons of the men who helped to crush the Hun in the last war, they knew what the future meant whether under the Axis pact or by German aggression against them. The Huns needed Yugoslavia for the continuance of their plan. The Yugoslavs would not sell their country to the Nazis for the cheap price of escaping conflict, knowing full well that if they resisted they would still be free while if they accepted the Axis pact they would be in chains and not able to render help to the democratic cause and Greece. The Yugoslavs have written a heroic page than which there is none brighter in their long and noble history.

Yugoslavia and Greece have done glorious deeds in humanity and their courage is the admiration of the world.

Supporting them on this Balkan front is a large British force, British equipment, British airmen and the British fleet controlling the Mediterranean.

Steadily the war begins to take its more complete form. The Balkan aggression was always in the mind of Hitler, but it appears as if it has been his plan on a large his conquests only step by step. But British resolution in defence of her island fortress, the havoc caused by her navy and her army to the Italians, the heroic support of the Greeks and now the gallant stand of Yugoslavia, have baulked Hitler's plan in the Balkans. So he has done what he has always wanted not to do, open a second front where the position of Russia is not so clear for Germany as the manner in which Hitler has been behaving in the Balkans and with the Slavic nations has evidently causing Russia concern. The other day a Russian non-aggression pact was signed with Yugoslavia which may have results and implications not yet known.

While the extension of the war to the Balkans will result in a country of mountains and valleys where mechanized war will not have the advantage it might have in other terrain, the struggle here, it is expected will be a momentous one, for it is the only ground on which the armies of the enemy and the Allies so far meet. The war against Britain in the west has been an air war but the Balkans will bring the armies into collision.

The Balkans, known as the powder-keg of Europe, are on the route linking the older world of the east with the west. Along this route have been innumerable wars and Hitler is the latest dictator to plunge in, for he has otherwise been cut off from doing anything and a dictator cannot be idle. Hitler, like all others of his kind all through history, must keep moving to his doom.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY Geoffrey

"....Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep though poppies grow
In Flander's Fields."
—Lieut.-Col John McCrae.

Memories of the gallant buddies who died on the blood-drenched slopes of Vimy, in the famous battle that wrote a blazing page in Canada's history, were revived by the war veterans of the city and district yesterday when they attended the annual Vimy Day parade to St. Andrew' Presbyterian Church.

The gay colors of the berets of the famous fighting divisions of twenty-three years ago, interspersed with the blue and white of the navy, made a brave showing in the brilliance of April sunshine. The troops swung gayly along city thoroughfares to the martial strains of the Belleville Municipal Band and "Wee Jamie" Clarke's inspiring pibrochs on the pipes.

To the greater majority of the younger element which lined city streets as the boys of the old brigades swung by, it was another parade with all the glitter and glamor of marching men and military bands. But to the grey-haired veterans, slowing up a bit perhaps, but whose heads were held high and chests thrown out in the same manner in which they laughed in the face of death in the days of Vimy, that never-to-be forgotten April 9, 1917, it was something more than a church parade.

For they belong to an organization the membership of which can never increase. True, the present war will be productive of a new veteran, but to those men, some crippled, others getting old, there can never be another "21st," "2nd," "4th.," and the other gallant regiments that carried the Maple Leaf to victory in many a hard fought engagement. In that first war the soldiers made their own laws. They formed their own friendships and the result was a welding and blending of the troops into that indefinable something that groups in civilian life can never attain.

They lived with death. They fought and bled with the shadow of the Grim Reaper hovering about them. They laughed, lived and died the same as any normal human being, but they dwelt in an aura of camaraderie borne of danger, courage and fortitude. And they emerged from the blazing crucible of war temperedwith the spirit that has carried them down through the intervening years, that is once again being exemplified in their gallant sons at the front.

These veterans have not forgotten. They have no more relinquished the memories of those gallant lads, who spun dizzily in the air when a bullet found its mark and died with a smile, than they have forgotten to "form fours." Yesterday some of them marched with unseeing eyes. Heads erect, "eyes front" they swung along city streets, gazing ahead of them into space through the hazy mist of twenty-four years that have separated them from that day on the heights of Vimy.

Today they are helping to carry the torch flung to them by gallant comrades, who now lie in the poppy-strewn fields of France and which are now being desecrated by the heel of the Nazi invader. Many of them have once more answered the call of King and Country. Numbers of them are in the army, the air force and the navy, while others are again doing their bit in various ways. They have not forgotten. They are among the tools which are being given Churchill and they will not fail him. And all they ask is that this time the job is done properly; in a manner that will evoke nods of approval from the ghostly battalions, that will once again parade the heights of memorable Vimy Ridge with the gay colors of the Maple Leaf of Canada on April 9th.

They are ready and willing to give their all, if need be, to prevent the terrible menace of war sweeping over the earth twenty-five years hence. This time the job must be thorough and complete and done in such a manner that men will be able to dwell indefinitely in peace.

RAINY DAYS

Time to do the little things,
Letters promised long ago,
Dust the pictures and the rings,
Take an hour or so to sew
And instead of going out
Have the furniture about.

Put the skates and sled away,
Surely winter's over now,
Under seeds in April lay,
All the budget will allow.
Hang the overcoats on hooks,
Straighten drawers and dust the books.

Glaze and silverware to shine,
Then a dress or two to press,
Were the weather always fine
There'd be little confidence
With a whole day to ourselves
Let's explore the closet shelves.

So, when all is understood
It is well for one and all,
Well and also very good
That a chilling rain should fall.
Leave the little duties play
For the dismal rainy day.

The British Just Refuse To Be Scared!

By ROBERT M. YODER

In the Chicago Daily News You say you're grossly fat and up on 3,000-mile war-expecting, and that you made a fast buck Italy could have taken Egypt, but didn't; but if you can stand one more long-distance prediction, here it is, and not, mind you, second either. I think the Nazis are going to lose the war because the British are going to strike them on the head.

You can wear down a brave enemy, you can outlast and overpower a strong one, but it's hard to see how any assailant can stand up against a foe that simply won't be impressed.

When the Germans turned loose a whole new style of warfare, and seized France in the fastest conquest in history, the British should have been scared stiff. Dunkirk was a battlefield defeat from the whole British nation. But you find no evidence of the latter. A brilliant British retreat. What they call it isn't important; it's apparently necessary as one of the steps toward victory. And that, to the bosses of the Nazi war machine, is the solution to courage.

Then came the period of night bombing. In many horrible respects, that's the toughest kind of war. Hell itself couldn't improve. You huddle under flimsy roofings while the enemy you can't see or reach pots you with thermite and land-mines. But the British, a brilliant, devout Christian, a scientist, a man with the long view, he cared for many less one of the finest flowers of civilization in Europe, as a little man with a mission—the mission to serve the unity of western civilization.

Count Teleki's struggle since the war began has been a one-man fight against inexorable fate. When the Nazis annexed Austria, Hungary was laid wide open to Germany and was "bought off," according to the Hitler formula, with the return of part of Czechoslovakia. The people were dismayed with the spirit of it was not, in his mind, the way history was being made. Two years ago, he knew that Hungary would be "bought off" again—with the return of Transylvania to Hungary. Could Hungary refuse such a gift? Politically, it was impossible. Count Teleki himself was a Transylvanian, by land, by birth. Even in the peace treaties, is the most authentic part of Hungary's history—the repository of the Magyar spirit," he said. "It is my own country."

Count Teleki's fight was almost rather wait another generation than get back its own Germans. Hungary's historic injustices are always rightly in the minds of the people. "Justice must be."

Another pause. We were speaking off the record. "If Hungary is used as a base for the transport of troops it will mean occupation. It will be Hungary's historic catastrophe."

* * *

If I think of words to describe the Hungarian spirit, the words that come are "pride" and "honor." Politically speaking, Hungary is a backward country. The remnants of feudalism are deep there. One can find much to blame in the Hungarian social system. But Hungarian is a friend, and he knows the difference. I used to tell Count Teleki was a gentleman. The Nazis have no code. They have had to move from history the concept of "gentleman." If they do, they will borrow from history the concept of honor.

Yes, Hungary was socially backward, politically corrupt, poverty-ridden and worse mutilated by the treaties than any other nation, had progressed in the last twenty years

It is just a year since I sat opposite Count Teleki in his office in Budapest and asked him the question: "What will you do if the German insist on using Hungary as a base for operations against another state?"

After a pause he answered, "I will tell you the truth. I do not know. I shall have to make up my mind when the time comes, and in view of all the facts."

Count Teleki made up his mind last Thursday. He blew his brains out.

The loss is more than a loss for Hungary. It is a loss for all of Europe. For Count Teleki, like all great European statesmen, was a great patriot and a great European. He was a brilliant and devout Christian, a scientist, a man with the long view, he cared for many less one of the finest flowers of civilization in Europe, as a little man with a mission—the mission to serve the unity of western civilization.

Other Editors Say—

TO GET TOURISTS

—The Kentucky Tourist League Club has made a particularly noteworthy application of the idea of attracting American tourists. They have sent out personally addressed letters to "Dear President Jim . . . or Bill ..... or Harry" of over three thousand Rotary clubs throughout the U.S.A. and invited them and their fellow Rotarians to visit Canada now. They explained why and how this visit would help win the war.

They carefully pointed out that the cost of travelling to Canada precludes all entering or leaving Canada very considerably. They dedicated Canada's purchasing problem and the need for funds. They made it no question that this letter will in time, return a large volume of foreign exchange and incidentally some will come to the city that sent it out.

Other business men when they write to the United States, no matter what they write about, can make a policy of including in every letter a paragraph suggesting a visit to Canada this year. The cumulative effect of this "word of mouth" advertising would be enormous. And to top it off, there is no mass production basis, don't forget to urge the use of personal letters with which you have any influence.

It is just a year since I sat opposite Count Teleki in his office in Budapest and asked him the question: "What will you do if the German insist on using Hungary as a base for operations against another state?"

It is just a year since I sat opposite Count Teleki in his office in Budapest and asked him the question: "What will you do if the German insist on using Hungary as a base for operations against another state?"

After a pause he answered, "I will tell you the truth. I do not know. I shall have to make up my mind when the time comes, and in view of all the facts."

Count Teleki made up his mind last Thursday. He blew his brains out.

The loss is more than a loss for Hungary. It is a loss for all of Europe. For Count Teleki, like all great European statesmen, was a great patriot and a great European. Because he loved his own country with the deepest devotion, he loved Europe, and saw his own country as a bridge. He was a brilliant and devout Christian, a scientist, a man with the long view, he cared for many less one of the finest flowers of civilization in Europe, as a little man with a mission—the mission to serve the unity of western civilization.

Count Teleki's struggle since the war began has been a one-man fight against inexorable fate. When the Nazis annexed Austria, Hungary was laid wide open to Germany and was "bought off," according to the Hitler formula, with the return of part of Czechoslovakia. SING APORE

Hindu town there dating back to the fourth century, A.D.

Sir Stamford Raffles, his widow was compelled to pay the expenses of the expedition that resulted in the founding of Singapore.

Raffles, one of England's great empire builders, was born not a merchantman at sea off Jamaica.

He was the first president of the Zoological Society and founder of a scientist, collector and author of note.

The priceless collection of birds, plants and papers made by Raffles were lost in 1824 when the ship on which he was returning to England was destroyed by fire.

From an obscure native village in 1819 Singapore has risen to be a great commercial city of more than 500,000 souls today.

It is the administrative seat of the Straits Settlements consisting of Penang, Province Wellesley and the Dindings and Malacca.

The Straits Settlements combined with the Federated and Unfederated Malay States comprise British Malaya.

Singapore is normally a free port, duties being levied only on opium, tobacco and alcoholic beverages.

KITTEN OF TOBRUK

—British efforts to free Tobruk harbor of mines were delayed for a few minutes while a kitten was rescued from the flames, it was said in San Giorgio. The kitten had experienced for 48 hours the fierce fire which exploded the vessel's munitions.

The seamen who boarded the cruiser from a rowing boat found the kitten crying. They summoned a minesweeper, which took the cat and gave it to the sailors' canteen stewards to look after.

Rescued from the fire.

TO GET TOURISTS

—The Kentucky Tourist League Club has made a particularly noteworthy application of the idea of attracting American tourists. They have sent out personally addressed letters to "Dear President Jim . . . or Bill ..... or Harry" of over three thousand Rotary clubs throughout the U.S.A. and invited them and their fellow Rotarians to visit Canada now. They explained why and how this visit would help win the war.

They carefully pointed out that the cost of travelling to Canada precludes all entering or leaving Canada very considerably. They dedicated Canada's purchasing problem and the need for funds. There is no question that this letter will in time, return a large volume of foreign exchange and incidentally some will come to the city that sent it out.

Other business men when they write to the United States, no matter what they write about, can make a policy of including in every letter a paragraph suggesting a visit to Canada this year. The cumulative effect of this "word of mouth" advertising would be enormous. And to top it off, there is no mass production basis, don't forget to urge the use of personal letters with which you have any influence.

It is just a year since I sat opposite Count Teleki in his office in Budapest and asked him the question: "What will you do if the German insist on using Hungary as a base for operations against another state?"

ITALIANS CLAIM THEODO ARSENAL HEAVILY BOMBED

Announced Italian Blows Were to "Avenge Yugoslavia's Desertion of the Axis"

STATEMENT GIVEN

Rome, April 7 (AP). Stefani, Italian news and propaganda agency claimed today that Italian forces in Albania had balked an attempt by the Greek army to make contact with Yugoslav forces in two days of fighting, "virtually wiping out an entire Greek division of three regimenta."

The Greek High Command reported only patrol and artillery activity in Albania.

The alleged Greek attack in the zone of the Fascist 9th Army in Albania has been hailed by Italian infantry, the agency said.

It was here, the agency asserted, that the Yugoslav army had hoped to make contact with the Greeks.

The agency claimed several Greek deserted from the Yugoslav army and entered Italian lines.

The high command claimed the naval bases of Split (Spalato) and Cattaro, an arsenal at Theodo near Cattaro, and an air base at Mostar were bombed yesterday in the opening of Italian hostilities against Yugoslavia.

The announcements claimed two

ships were sunk at Spalato and one at Cattaro harbor. Two destroyers were reported hit, one in Cattaro harbor, the other at Theodo.

Meanwhile, the war bulletin said, an "enemy air force" bombed Scutari in Albania.

It was announced that the Italian blows were to "avenge Yugoslavia's desertion of the Axis."

Specific information on the military operations was lacking but there was nothing to indicate Italian land forces had gone into action.

A communique said only that Italy "had decided to act with her military and naval air forces."

Communications, which were suspended when yesterday's air reconnaissance measure were restored at 9 a.m. today (1 a.m. EDT) after a lapse of 24 hours.

Military circles in Rome expressed the belief that Italy's co-operation with Germany on land in the Balkans would consist mainly of attempting to hold or make gains on the Albanian front.

Make Situation Difficult

Yugoslav circles, on the other hand, declared their country's strategy undoubtedly would be to make the position of Italy's forces in Albania as difficult as possible, and to fight a defensive action against German thrusts from Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary and old Austria.

These Yugoslavs said their army probably would make a last ditch stand in the Serbian mountains to the south if German mechanized forces proved too strong in the plains of Croatia north of the Save and Belgrade.

The staff of the Yugoslav legation was expected to leave in the next few days. Most of the Italian diplomatic personnel in Yugoslavia was evacuated before hostilities began.

The Yugoslav minister to the Holy See probably will take refuge in Vatican City as have the envoys of France, Britain, Poland and Belgium.

Signature of the Russian-Yugoslav friendship treaty aroused interest in Rome political circles but sources refrained from comment.

Dr. P. T. Bowlby Will Retire As Tweed Postmaster

Almost 30 Years' Service Will be Completed on May 15th.

Tweed — Dr. P. T. Bowlby has retired from the Postmastership of Tweed Post Office after having filled the position in a most efficient manner for almost three decades. His retirement will take place on May 15th. Dr. Bowlby was appointed Postmaster in 1912, succeeding James Marpley. The Post Office has been housed in a number of places in Tweed since its establishment, occupying in succession the building at present used by the Whitney Cafe, then to the premises now occupied by Ernest Cronkwright, barber.

When Dr. Bowlby became Postmaster, his box office was in the premises now used by the Star Cafe. The present office has been used since the year 1917.

Dr. Bowlby has held almost every office and honour which his townsmen could confer upon him. He was a member of the village council and for eight years filled the Township most creditably. He was President of the Board of Trade, of Tweed Agricultural Society and for a number of years was a Justice of the Peace.

His many friends regret to witness his retirement, and no announcement has been made of his successor.

Syrup has made its appearance on the local market with producers reporting a fine run of sap. One local farmer stated that the sap was higher in sugar content than usual. He produced more than five gallons of excellent syrup from only three forty-gallon cans of sap, in the proportion of one gallon of syrup to about twenty-three gallons of sap. The usual proportion is at least one-thirty-six.

The Easter meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held in the Church parlours on Thursday afternoon with members of the Women's organizations in attendance. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. T. E. Moffat, who had arranged a splendid program which was greatly enjoyed.

Those taking part were: Mrs. P. C. Barnett, and Mr. [illegible] who presented the Easter story in dialogue form, interspersing with Easter songs by Mrs. W. A. Beatty, Mrs. H. Grier and Mrs. S. H. Connor, all of whom were dressed in choir gowns. The songs used included "The Midnight and the Olive's Brow", "You Hear the Lambs A'crying" and "Low in the Grave He Lay." Easter hymns were also included in this impressive worship service.

A splendid address was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Farnsworth of Belleville on an appropriate theme.

Mr. I. D. Corcoran has received notice to report to Trenton R. C. A. F. station on April 12th for training as Pilot Officer, joining the already impressive ranks of Tweed young men who have entered the R. C. A. F.

Since coming to Tweed thirteen years ago to establish a law practice, I. D. Corcoran has been active in many branches of community interests. He has been chairman of the Separate and High School Boards, President of the Community Club and Tennis Club and an ardent bowler. His friends wish him the greatest success in his new field.

Soviet Russia Signs Friendship Pact With Yugoslavs

Moscow, April 7 (AP)—The Soviet press published prominently but without comment today its first account of the German expansion of Yugoslavia, with whom Russia signed a friendship and Non-Aggression Pact on Saturday, the day Greece

Pravda, Communist Party organ, devoted four columns at the top of its foreign news page to Tass News Agency dispatches from Berlin, Rome and Athens on the date of hostilities.

The Soviet-Yugoslav accord was cited in Moscow newspapers yesterday as "in the interests of all people who aim to avoid extension of the war."

The pact, signed Saturday by Premier Vyacheslaf Molotoff and the Yugoslav minister, Milan Gavrilovic, in the presence of Joseph Stalin, provides for mutual respect for territorial integrity and in the case of an attack on either by a third power the latter promises continued friendly relations with the victim.

Tass said the pact firmly adhered to the "Stalinist principle of peace and quoted Pravda as explaining that principle in these words:—

"To stand for peace and the strengthening of business relations with all countries. That is our position, and we shall adhere to it as long as these countries maintain like relations with the Soviet Union and as long as they make no attempt to trespass on the interests of our country."

The pact followed by less than two weeks a Russian-Turkish declaration of "perfect neutrality" understanding which was reported to prepare for Russian "material help" should Turkey be attacked.

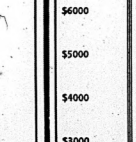
Differing from many other shrubs, black raspberries require pruning twice a year. The canes should have their first pruning after they have finished fruiting. At this time the old fruiting canes are cut out. These should be burned to check any disease or insects from spreading to the new shoots. Pruning out these old canes also favors the development of the young canes. Puny shoots should be cut out, for they bear little or no fruit, yet sap strength from the plant.



Prune black raspberries twice a year

June is the time for a second pruning. When the plants have grown to a height of 24 to 30 inches the tip of each shoot should be pinched back to about 20 to 22 inches. This makes the canes stocky and forces growth of numerous shoots which will bear next year's fruit.

New plants of black raspberries are formed by the rooting of the tips of the shoots toward the end of the growing season. If no new plants are wanted, clip off the ends of any stems before they touch the ground.

Although the United States exported 30,514,902 artificial teeth last year the number was 24.5 per cent less than the 1939 exports.

THE WAR TODAY

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Progress of the new Balkan war is obscured for the moment by broken communications, but the task of the Allies seems clear enough if they are to reap important victories from this phase.

First, it would appear, Britain must clean up the East African and Libyan situations so as to release more men for the fights in Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia.

Greece and Yugoslavia, it appears, might do well to fight a defensive war against Germany and her Balkan satellites, while they clean the Italians out of Albania.

Then Britain, Greece and Yugoslavia would be free to turn their full attention northward, seeking to make an invasion of the Axis territory through its back door.

This seems roughly to be the strategy advocated by military experts in London, although some of them add that the assault through the Balkans should be accompanied by a fierce blow in the north to be struck by Britain's counter-invasion forces who have been training for months and months for such a chance for real action.

There now advocate simultaneous assaults in the north and south apparently count on a wide dispersal of Nazi forces to give the Allies an advantage. German troops certainly must be spread pretty thin by this time, but there remains the question of what use the German masters may make of Bulgarian, Hungarian and Rumanian forces which, it would seem, are theirs to command.

The Greeks and Yugoslavs have a tough assignment confronting them. They must fight defensive warfare and probably must yield until they can establish strong positions in the mountains of their northern borders.

Whether they can expect help in time from any country other than Britain is problematical. There are many indications that Turkey intends to sit on the fence for the present and Russia has given no hint that her friendship for Yugoslavia, expressed in Saturday's treaty of amity, is likely to go further than words.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop to help his appetite, and he said, By gollies here comes one of the Roper boys, now if I only knew who one it was. Bill or Phil, I could get back like a dollers he owes me, that is if it happens to be Phil, because it was Phil that borrowed it.

Well Ot, pop, why dont you ask him? I said. Why dont you just say Hello Bill, or Hello Phil, and see by what he says? I said, and pop said, I know what Bill says, Hello Pop, hello, he'll just say Hello. The Roper boys look as alike as 2 twins, as indeed they are, and it's a game with them ever to let you know which one you're talking to. I think I'll try appealing to his conscience, a conscience is what I call it, and a conscience, hello there, Roper, he said.

Meaning the twin, being a long thin twin with a little mustash, and he stopped and shook hands with pop, and pop said, How are you? I must say you're looking like yourself, let it stay, Roy's your brother, what's his name? he said, and the twin said, O, my brother, he's quite well, thanks. You'd seem quite fit yourself, he said.

That's due to these old fat jaws clothes that I've taken such good care of, pop said. As a matter of fact I'm badly in need of 3 or 4 kinds of medecine right now, but hanged if I know where I'm going to get the 5 dollers to pay for it, he said, and the twin said, Well, I say, that's bad, cant I lend you five?

Thanks, but borrowing is against my principals and principals come before health with me, pop said. Of course if you had ever borrowed from me, I would be a different story, he said, and the twin said, I see your point My brother and I both borrow on occasional five, as a matter of fact. Well, take care of yourself, and left of you, he said.

And he kept on going still owing pop 5 dollers, if he was Phil and still not if he was Bill.

How Would You Answer the Double-Edged Teen Age Question?

"Are you capable of honest self-criticism?"

This is one of the questions in the Cecil B. Demille questionnaire for aspirants for the screen. And it's the most important question in the list. I think, for whether you're taking a screen test or a "your life" test, your completely honest answer to that question is the key to your character. If you can truthfully give yourself a high in this question, you'll undoubtedly have the clearest vision to answer truthfully the other questions on the list.

Here's another thought-compelling question on the list:

"Are you popular?"

To answer this question you must certainly call on your capacity for "honest self-criticism", It's a question that would give most of us pause, but perhaps the most slight reward us in making us check on why we hesitate to give ourselves a high in this personcrating question.

And how would you answer this question:

"Can you keep a secret? How difficult it is for you to treasure and guard a confidence?

You need to keep a searchlight constantly focused on this question of personal integrity.

I was delighted to find this question in Demille's list:

"Do you dislike other women?"

We all know many girls and women who dislike other girls and like women. They usually add especially if there is a man, or men in the group to which they are speaking that they can always get along better with men". Well, any way you [illegible] this point of view, it's a mistaken one, and shows the need of a serious change in one's point of view.

The fact that this very human question is included in the questions to be answered means, of course, that if you don't like other women you won't have the ability to portray another woman on the screen. In your life it means a lot more than that!

Two of the questions in the test have to do with "appearance". One is: "Are you curious about your personal appearance?" And intriguing to any women is the question about clothes: "Do you follow your own taste in clothes, even when it conflicts with current fashion?" Even if you could rightfully answer "Yes" to this question and thus indicate your individuality, you would still have to be pretty certain that "your own taste in clothes" is a good taste.

The last two of the ten questions point up qualities always necessary in acting, but supplementary. I wonder if there is a "catch" in them? I think that these questions are worded in the negative. One is: "Can your work are you inclined to leave well enough alone?" If you are, you're going to find the going hard if you want to take up the ladder of success. The other is: "Are you easily discouraged?" If you are, you lack the stamina and guts needed to keep at trying to get and to hold to what you want.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Can Love Be Measured in Terms of Time?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

How long does it take to measure true love? Does love at first sight need to be cited or surrounded by all types of prudent safeguards? Or do we don't worry and argue—we simply listen to our hearts? Maybe the time we don't ask a rose to prove that it's a rose. Do you still remain true to love is the time and marriage another. Marriage would be serious to a newly married man the whole of two lives. It also involves children, parents, friends, a whole human network. Yes, marriage is a condition in which love, however substantially happy, however confident or their own hearts, must be tested by time.

The other day I had a letter from a young girl, the two names are Jerry and Jane. They want to be married, but neither are sure, any, for delaying their immediate marriage.

"We have known each other", they confide, "three weeks. We met at a party. It was love at our first glance, it seemed as if we each knew, but we just seemed to move forward each other, excluding everyone around us. Inside of an hour we were promised lovers, and the whole problem of life was solved for both of us.

"Up to the time of our meeting neither of us had thought much about marriage. Now it is the one big obstacle of lightning.

"Jerry says that we don't have to wait because of money reasons. We both have jobs and can manage to live in a small apartment, and have a little left. We adore each other and we know that I think it necessary to spend any more days apart from each other. We have two to. But our families say that we should wait till we are sure. What do you say?

I believe that Jerry and Jane are not mistaken in their love. But I think theirs will be a more successful marriage if they first learn to know each other better, study each other's tastes and tempers.

As a limit for this deliciously happy period of courtship, friendship and discovery, I suggest four months. Nothing will be lost, something surely will be gained, and the parents will be pacified.

But though I am certain this advice is wise, and thought I earnestly by Jerry and Jane to follow it, yet if these young lovers do surrender to their hasty desires and elope next week, I must whisper that they will not thereby forfeit my blessing!

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Regularity and Consistency Basis Factors in Training Child

A child may be born with some bad physical characteristics, but no child is ever born with bad habits. That's something parents often forget. Conduct is largely a matter of habit, and habits are acquired. It's up to the parent whether the child acquires good habits or bad habits.

Recently I have been getting letters from mothers to this effect: "Dear Dr. Dafoe: I tried to set up a daily routine for my child such as you suggested, but I couldn't get him to follow it.

In most of these cases, it appears the parents have started the serious business of training the child years too late. Training of the child in accordance with a daily routine should start in infancy. Then their lucky tiket, drawn by a winsome little lassie, was sold to a lady who belonged to Mr. Robt. Elliott. Mr. Elliott generously donated the quilt to the president of the Institute to be sold to raise more money on it.

Care Secret Of Good Teeth

By HELEN FOLLETT

TAKE good care of your teeth and avoid sickness, pain and dentist's bills. Dentists claim that it is shameful the way that most Americans neglect their teeth. The wise mother will insist upon daily care of decays as soon as little child is able to wield a brush. Here's why:

The decay of teeth may be due to dietary deficiencies, especially lack of calcium, but certain is it that little caries will appear if teeth are kept free of acid deposits. Injuries are due to influences that affect the gums, causing parasitic, infectious decays quickly, fermentations set up, and pyorrhea. Any time of the year you are sitting on the back of your neck in the sun, you should have a chilly running up and down your spine.

Use Small Brush

A small brush does a more thorough job than a gauze, for it forces away from the gums, do a sort of massaging to the tissues. Those should be a short crosswise movement where the teeth enter the gums. The sides of the teeth, as well as the chewing surfaces, should be polished.

Sugar has a bad effect because they use up the alkaline secretions that are necessary to neutralize acids in the mouth. They do no harm if the teeth are scoured immediately after eating, but a lingering the mouth with a salt solution or mouthwash prevents that "make mischief.

Many women bear with facial neuralgia because they fear that the exercise needle will inspire a growth of new ones. Only a physician, Dr. Stuart takes by electrolysis operators prove that it does not.

The needle is inserted beside the hair in the depression and not in the papilla from which the shaft emerges. Instead of stimulating growth, the papilla which creates the new hair is destroyed. Properly performed there are results. There is only the slightest discomfort during the operation. Dr. Stuart's book is coarse and pores large there is practically no sensation at all.

Regularity Important

Consider that even when you are dealing with an adult child fully capable of grasping things, training is a big factor. Likewise, the small child is like dealing with a young, frisky, carefree puppy. You must make the training stick then, and you will rule all your good work if you lose your patience and temper and give the trainee a licking.

If your child fails to live up to the routine you have set for him, it may be always a speedy recovery several times until a habit is well-established, for children are often natural backsliders.

BRITISH TAKE

From north Africa, on the other hand, came reports that a great battle appeared was shaping up east of Bengasi in Libya, as British forced closed Italian columns and thousand troops east of the Libyan port evacuated by British troops last week. The British command said "the concentration of our troops is proceeding smoothly."

In east African operations British authorities announced these developments:

The road to Massaua, the Red Sea port in Eritrea, from Kilen which has been cleared and free French patrols are within eight miles of the city.

Empire troops continued a march south from Eritrea toward Desaye and Gondar, in Ethiopia.

The capital's population in 1938 was about 100,000 of whom more than 17,000 were Italians.

By the outbreak of the present East African war, Italian pioneers had built about 100 new stores, new stone dwellings with thatched roofs, several modern public buildings, apartments, restaurants, hotels, schools, hospitals and motion picture houses.

The Addis Abeba attacked by British troops was in sharp contrast to the one taken by the Italians. In 1935 the city boasted Selassie's palace, a few well-built foreign legation buildings, some hotels and public buildings, tin-roofed huts and unpaved streets.

For the British it was their second expedition into Ethiopia. A British army of 28,000 was sent from Zula on the Red Sea in 1868 to free a British consul and his staff imprisoned by King Theodore. The army reached Magdala, 150 miles northeast of Addis Abeba, freed the prisoners and burned the town.

D'Aosta Thanks British

The force which entered Addis Abeba was largely of South African troops, part of the column which fought its way through Italian Somaliland, crossed the Ogaden desert, seized Diredawa on the Addis Abebe-Jibuti railway and by reaching the capital completed a 1,100-mile march in seven weeks.

Ethiopian patriots were reported in unconfirmed dispatches to have entered Debra Marcos, 130 miles northwest of Addis Abeba, with Haile Selassie as their leader.

The whereabouts of Duke D'Aosta Italian Viceroy of Ethiopia, was not known.

The British Broadcasting Corporation said last night the Duke had sent a note of thanks to the British for steps to protect women and children in Addis Abeba.)

British authorities said he may be with any of a number of isolated Italian garrisons holding out in the country. The strongest of these was said to be at Gondar, north of Lake Tana, to which Gen. Martini led his forces from Sudan frontier three months ago.

Large scale British military penetration of Ethiopia began soon after Haile Selassie unfurled his flag Jan. 18 in the wild hills of Gojjan. It took the Italians 216 days, from Oct. 8, 1935 to May 5th 1936, to reach Addis Abeba in the Italian-Ethiopian war.

BODIES OF NAZIS

On Bulgarian Soil

(One report, from Winston Burdett Columbia Broadcasting System Correspondent in Ankara, Turkey, said last night the Greeks counter-attacked, "threw the German troops back and at one point are on Bulgarian soil.

(The Greek high command, in a communique broadcast by the Athens radio and heard in New York by the National Broadcasting Company said the Germans had "made some progress" after a "violent" all-day struggle but that the Greeks were holding.

"Our fortifications, in spite of violent artillery shelling and dive-bombing of the enemy air force, have registered," the communique said, "with the exception of one which fell after a particularly strong attack."

(Ten "enemy" tanks were said to have been destroyed along with five to six "enemy" airplanes and "a number" of prisoners were reported taken.

(Dispatches from Berne, Switzerland said the Bulgarian army of 300,000 was understood to have joined the German, in the assault on Greece and later reports from Berne yesterday said the Germans acknowledged "tough resistance" in the Struma Valley in their drive into Greece.)

The German blow, evidently aimed at the vital Greek port of Salonika, fell at 5:15 a.m. Sunday (11:15 p.m. E.S.T. Saturday) as German troops which occupied Bulgaria ages ago streamed across the border and down the Struma.

Spurred on by King

Spurred on by the exhortations of their King and war commander, the Greek people, now standing against the might of both Germany and Italy, defiantly cried: "They shall not pass."

First indication of the German attack came to Athenians on a quiet Sunday morning through handwritten posters pasted on the buildings.

Scenes of enthusiasm which followed recalled those which occurred at the beginning of the Greco-Italian conflict last October 28.

The German minister to Athens notified Premier Alexandros Korizis at 5.30 a.m. Yesterday morning that German troops would attack Greece because of the presence of British troops on Greek soil.

The premier replied Greece would resist.

(British authorities announced for the first time yesterday that an imperial force of "undisclosed size was in Greece.)

The German minister's action, a spokesman said, "was an exquisite delicacy, especially as we were being attacked at that moment."

Thrace and Macedonia

Frontier posts in Thrace and Eastern Macedonia caught the first blow of the attack.

A little later Salonika and Athens had been bombed, but there were no reports of bombings in the capital. Premier Korizis and Foreign Minister Rendis refused to take shelter. The intensity of the attack on Salonika was not disclosed.

The Greeks, who long had considered conflict with Germany inevitable, were told by King George II that the struggle would be a hard, relentless one but "we shall not give way before anything . . . victory is waiting for us at the end of the road," the King said.

"By our side stand mighty Allies, the British Empire with its indomitable will and the United States with its inexhaustible resources.

Fighting Hand in Hand

"We are fighting hand in hand with our allies the Yugoslavs, who themselves are shedding their blood for the salvation of the whole Balkans and mankind."

Gen. Alexandros Papagos, the Greek commander-in-chief, issued an order of the day to his men calling on the fighters on the German front "to show that you are worthy of your fellow fighters on the Italian front."

Crowds paraded in the capital and one of their favorite slogans was the single word "No"—meaning refusal to be intimidated. Throngs cheered at the British and United States legations and jeered the German legation, guarded by police. Martial music blared from loudspeakers and British soldiers were carried about on Greek shoulders.

Newspaper Comment

The newspaper Hestia commented:

"Sixty million Italians who were unable to defeat the Greeks called on 80,000,000 Germans to help them. This 60,000,000 against 8,000,000. This makes the Italian attack on France look like a noble deed."

Salonika, apparent objective of the German drive, is less than 50 miles airline from the nearest point on the Bulgarian border and a Nazi attack toward it through Thrace would go directly through an important tobacco region where United States interests have invested millions of dollars.

The taking of the port by the Germans would deprive Greece and her allies of an important harbor for landing men and supplies from overseas; it would cut Greece off from Turkey, a potential ally; it would give Germany a bridgehead for a possible later thrust to the east toward Turkey and the Suez and would shut out one end of the Vardar Valley, historic military avenue in the Balkans.

DETAILS MEAGRE

But as the fighting went into its second day details still were meagre.

Communications Off For 24 Hours

Communications between Italy and the outside world were suspended 24 hours until this morning. Berlin dispatches were blacked out for about the same period. It was not possible to communicate with Belgrade or other Yugoslav centres.

Dispatches and broadcast announcements which did filter through last night and early today gave no hint of a land campaign:

Belgrade, which the Yugoslav government was believed to have left for a safer temporary capital in the Southern Yugoslav Mountains was hard hit from raids morning, afternoon, and night, the German Propaganda Agency claimed.

Nazi Claims

Elsewhere, the Germans claimed, their air force shot down 33 planes yesterday and destroyed 48 others on the ground, with a loss of four German planes. Airdrops, bridges, a troop train and a communication centre northeast of the Croat provincial capital of Zagreb were claimed bombed.

The German Agency said Italian planes co-operated by attacking objectives in Southern Yugoslavia. (Some reports identified the port cities of Split and Mostar as among the Italian targets.)

Havas, French News Agency, said in a dispatch from Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, that Pran Kljlovic, Yugoslavia Public Works Minister, was killed in the Belgrade bombings.

No News For Yugoslavs

The Yugoslav account of the action between Yugoslavs and Germans was not available because of cut communications.

(The Greeks acknowledged losing one border fortification to a strong German drive down the Struma Valley into eastern Macedonia after the port of Salonika apparently is the primary goal of the attack, but said they were "holding fast" elsewhere and taking a heavy toll of the invaders.

(Reports from Turkey said 12 to 15 German divisions were smashing toward Croatian Zagreb from the old Austrian border 65 miles farther north, three divisions were advancing from Rumania toward Belgrade, 50 miles away, three other divisions were driving from Bulgaria toward the Vardar River in southern Yugoslavia, and other large forces from Bulgaria were aiming toward Nis, 65 miles northwest of Sofia.

(The Turks, themselves, were described as taking the news of the German thrust closer to the Dardanelles calmly. They had expected it, they said, and still held to neutrality.)

A radio announcement heard here last night said German-occupied Rumania had ordered general mobilization and Hungary had mobilized her air defence reserves.

Some units of Rumanian troops previously under arms have been stationed across the Prut River from Red Army forces of Soviet Russia which signed a friendship and non-aggression pact with Germany just before the Axis struck at that Balkan kingdom.

AEGEAN SEA A WAR ZONE

Berlin, April 6 (Delayed)—Germany declared the Eastern Mediterranean, including the Aegean, a war zone today and warned merchant shipping against entering these waters.

DRIVE ITALIANS

(Balkan dispatches began reporting the arrival of British forces at Greek ports last month and subsequent reports said as high as 200,000 troops had been landed with mechanized equipment.)

Troops from Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand were sent in to Greece, the Ministry of Information said, to help "soldiers of our brave ally in defence of their native soil."

The bulk of the expeditionary force was believed to have been shifted from Egypt, while other troops were thought to have come directly from England.

The British air force, which has for some time been operating in Greece against the Italians has been strongly reinforced," the official announcement said.

Britons linked the African campaign with that in the Balkans and expressed belief large forces soon would be released from Ethiopia for service in Greece or for a drive aimed at the recapture of Bengasi, Libya.

Military circles declined to say who was in direct command of the British forces in Greece. While the troops were believed to be from General Sir Archibald Wavell's middle east command, it was not known whether Sir Archibald himself was in Greece. General Sir John O. Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff, is on the ground, however.

Grim Struggle Lies Ahead

The British press, although exultantly acclaiming the presence of a British arm in Greece, carried an undercurrent of warning that a grim struggle lay ahead.

Some recalled that the new German invasion came on the anniversary of the United States declaration of war against Germany in 1917. All gave prominence to the promises of speedy American aid for the Yugoslavs and the Greeks.

Foreign observers here viewed the timing of the German attack, following closely on a pro-axis coup in Iraq, as more than coincidence and said the coup might give Germany air bases at Turkey's backdoor in the event of drive toward Suez—a move expected by Britain.

Text of Message.

The Foreign Office News Department issued the text of the message Britain sent to Yugoslavia:

"The savage outrage committed by Germany against Yugoslavia without the slightest provocation and the valiant resistance of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes ranges the British Empire on the side of the southern Slavs.

"We welcome them as a resolute and powerful ally. We renew the comradeship which in the Great War carried us through tribulation to victory. We will conduct the war in common and we will make peace only when right has been vindicated and law and justice are again enthroned."

The Yugoslav legation said today it had no news from Belgrade and explained that its only contact with the Yugoslav capital was via cable over a roundabout route subject to long delay.

Any dispatches which the government had on hand were not released in the Balkans were kept secret. Authoritative quarters also declined whereabouts of the Yugoslav cabinet to give any information to the Axis and Gen. Sir John Dill, chief of the Imperial General Staff.

Some sources said, however, that quick developments might "clear up the whole picture" in the Balkans within the next two days.

One source said the British government still is in communication with the British mission in Yugoslavia.

Kingston, Ont, April 7—(CP)—Largest shipment of grain ever to go through Eastern Canada by rail left the Kingston elevator yesterday when 600 carloads, totalling more than a million bushels, left for the coast. The Kingston elevator has been filled to almost capacity since last fall.

Bruins Defeat Detroit Wings In Listless Pastime In First Game Of Stanley Cup Final 3-2

Team Lacked Timing and Was Devoid of Drive Shown Against Toronto

ALWAYS ON TOP

Detroit Goalie Taken Out of Game in Last Minute of Play

Boston, April 7 (CP)—The persistence of Boston Bruins' march through National Hockey League competition this season has shown them in many and varied roles. They have played better defensive hockey than good defensive hockey, better offensive hockey than good offensive teams. Today they have this new claim to fame: When they are bad, they are not horrid.

In beating Detroit Red Wings 3-2 in the first game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals here last night, Bruins were bad. They had none of the drive they used to eliminate Toronto Maple Leafs in the semi-final. They looked listless on their checks and opportunism on their goalward forays, but bad as they were, they still were slightly better than Red Wings. In the dull, listless game, Bruins managed to stumble the faster.

When things came to life in the final minutes of the game, Bruins managed to find some of their pep to toot. And when Detroit drew to within one goal of the lead Boston made its first two periods look like early minutes of the third, the Boston players managed to find a little extra speed with which to little effect. They were slightly better at keeping pace with their checks. Goalie Detroit Normie Smith—Goalie John Mowers in favor of an extra forward in the last period—Bruins managed to cling to their lead.

Meet Again In Boston

The teams will meet here tomorrow night in the second game of the series, with the third and fourth scheduled for Detroit. Bruins finished first in the regular National Hockey League schedule, Detroit third.

Bruins dominated the first two periods with one goal in each while Detroit ably managed eight shots on Frankie Brimsek in the Boston goal during the first 40 minutes.

In the third Boston scored again before Detroit scored.

Mel Hill, whose brilliance has been confined mainly to scoring late goals in close play-off contests, started the first scoring play with a smart passout from a face-off in the Detroit zone. Roy Conacher flipped the further puck back to Desse Smith, who stood just inside the blueline and waited while the Detroit defence came out to get him. Then he lifted a pass to Eddie Wiseman who beat Mowers with a swift shot from about eight feet out.

In the second drive Schmidt sickhanded inside Detroit defence fence to score Boston's second goal. Woody Dumart's centre-ice pass from deep in Detroit zone started the play gave each an assist.

Pat McReavy, a rookie who has spent much of the season shuttling between the Boston Bruins and the American League, scored Boston's last goal on a play with Schmidt and Crawford about midway in third. Then Detroit staged a revival and pounded in on Brimsek with a rapid succession of shots that climaxed when Carl Liscombe scored from Bill Jennings and Conny Brown passed to Howe for Detroit's final goal in the third last minute of play.

REGINA RANGERS SCORE 1-0 OVER LETHBRIDGE

Centre-Ice Shot Beats Goalie for Only Tally of Contest

A YOUNG TEAM

Regina, April 7 (CP)—Regina Rangers, one of the youngest senior hockey teams in Canada, were confident today they would be able to handicap Lethbridge Maple Leafs on home ice tonight in the second of the western senior best-of-five final after eking out a 1-0 win at Saskatoon Saturday night.

Coach Freddie Metcalfe, who two years ago piloted Lethbridge into the western semi-final only to lose out to Kimberley Dynamiters, has a team that averages less than 21 years of age and including four members who could still play junior.

It was one of the Juniors that sparked Rangers' victory Saturday which may prove the important step toward Regina's second Allan Cup victory in history. Frank Mario, 18-year-old right winger, let drive a high centre-ice shot just as the third period got underway. The puck floated up around the lights and dropped into the goal from goaltender Andy Toswell's shoulder.

Lethbridge enjoyed a slight margin in the second period and only the work of Goalie Henry (Sugar) Jim Henry kept them from scoring. Kenny Stewart and Alex Kaleta were credited with close-in drives but failed to dent the Regina custodians' armour.

Stewart also pulled goalie Andy Young out of the game with 40 seconds to go in the last period but the strategy went for naught. Bush Shaughnessy, Leafs' key play for Leafs with Henry out of position. Regina missed the open net twice during the last few seconds.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal misery, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting the condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic piles condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Concert Sponsored By Firemen Nets $51 For Relief Fund

Sponsored by the Belleville Fire Department, the first of a series of concerts to be staged in this city for the benefit of the British Prisoners of War Fund was held in the McCarthy Theatre on Sunday evening. The proceeds, amounting to approximately $51 will be handed over to assist in the relief gallant work being carried on by our medically extinguishing fires started by Nazi air raids.

In contrast to the usual band numbers which ordinarily comprise such concerts, Sunday's concert last night's program at the Memorial Hall, was a decidedly amateur night with local musicians and vocal artists taking part. Conducting on the program and delighting the large audience numerous selections were Brown's Tophatters, while versatile Georgia Maniates delighted with her singing of songs with a timely recitation. Other artists who contributed to the enjoyment of the evening were Walter Venerella and Charles Thorne with the rendition of a guitar and violin duet; Dorothea LeFaye with piano playing and singing; George Shepherd with three solos; Bruce Irvine with a humorous skit and musical saw and Don Pomeroy with Jimmy Carroll acted as accompanists for the evening.

A quiz program with Tommy Mason as master of ceremonies provided especially delightful and interesting part of the program. A total of 21 prizes were awarded to those answering the quiz questions correctly, but only three were awarded. The other three were auctioned off to the highest bidder with proceeds adding to the amount received from the silver collection. The National Anthem, with Tommy Mason at the piano, concluded the evening's program.

Sugar Bush Rendezvous For Marmora Strollers

Marmora (Special)—The rendezvous for many strollers on Sunday afternoon last, was the sugar bush of Earl C'Connor, about two miles from Marmora village. Many who enjoyed the walk in the outdoors and the sunshine after the long dull highway the walker encounters fallen logs, waterholes and rocks, before reaching the destination. These small items were not considered by Helmer Lawrence of a party of Friday evening in honor of their son's birthday.

SPRING SEEDING TO START SOON

Rapid Drying of Fields Responsible for Early Start on Land

Many farmers of the district will have begun their spring's work on the land before the week is out, was the prediction of local agriculturists over the weekend as it was noted with pleasure the rapid drying of fields. The almost total absence of frost in the ground during the past winter permitted the melted snow to be absorbed in the ground instead of running off in overflowing rivers, and creeks and will compensate for the lack of rain which had been evident since last autumn.

Lack of rain and the fact that there has been considerable frost during the evenings has retarded fall wheat in many localities. With the disappearance of the snow, fall grains appeared to be in good shape but within the past week have taken on a brown appearance and rain is needed badly to encourage its growth and also to start the grass. The lack or rain is also being felt in many farmers' households as in many cases cisterns are going dry.

No definite word as to the opening date of this beason has been received by lighthouseman W. J. Ostrander.

Bombing Practices

Air firing and bombing practices will take place shortly at two ranges established in this vicinity in connection with the Picton Bombing and Gunnery School.

A floating target will be situated in Prince Edward Bay, between Hall and Hallmoon Point and a land target in close proximity of the former. These dangers are given in addition to a main danger area also established here.

RARE-KNEED AVIATORS WHO STRAFE RETREATING ITALIANS

A group of aviators of the British Royal Air Force are pictured in front of their plane, a Wellington heavy bomber, in the desert, somewhere in Libya. Note their unusual attire, although they wear a heavy coat, their knees are bare. The insignia on the plane appears to be the Union Jack. Prime Minister Churchill warned a Santa Claus outfit and holding a gun in his hand. Planes such as this are being utilized in the damage to retreating Italian forces.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 7.—(CP)—Mining and industrial groups weakened moderately in quiet selling on Toronto exchange today and the Western Oils were dull and unchanged. Turnover was fairly small at 78,000 shares on the first three hours.

Gold stocks weakened about 3-4 of a point to 1 dollar in the main and losses of 10 cents or more appeared in Bralorne, Preston, Hard Rock Lamaque and San Antonio. Lake Shore and Dome weakened small fractions. Base metal Nickel were off narrowly and Steep Rock dropped about 4 cents. Other base metal shares held steady.

The weak tone in the industrial group was mainly apparent in the Utility and Steel groups. Banks, Papers and Senior Oils held firm. Gain of 5 points to $1.80 was the only adjustment in the Western Oil group.

WALL STREET

New York, April 7 (AP).— The stock market sounded its tone on the foreign news today but refused to back away to any notable extent. While fractional recessions were the rule near the fourth hour, scattered issues swung against the trend with modest advances and small recoveries evident elsewhere.

Among listings made were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Great Northern, N.Y. Central, Western Union, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of N.J. and International Harvester.

Settlement of the Allis-Chalmers strike helped this stock to advance moderately. Resistant were Radio, Atlantic Coast Line and American Tobacco.

Among Canadian issues Distillers Seagram advanced while Noranda Mines and Canadian Pacific rested unchanged. Canada 4s, in the bond market, lost 1-4 point.

Butter Market Shows Easy Tone

Toronto — Butter continued to show an easy price trend on the Toronto wholesale market today. Good demand held export firm.

The fair volume of fresh receipts were absorbed under local demand and the set price was steady. Quotations have been firm at previous levels with Government inspected shipments moving at ½-cent to 1 cent a dozen premium.

NAZI DESTROYER BELIEVED SUNK

British Planes Torpedo Vessel and Drop Bomb on 2nd Destroyer

London, April 7.—(AP) — A German destroyer believed sunk and an aircraft plane yesterday was believed sunk and another destroyer was damaged by a bomb, an Air Ministry communique said today.

The communique also reported another attack on the Brest naval base, where the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are sheltering, and a sweep over northern France by daylight yesterday.

Blast Furnace Hit

In other raids, the Royal Air Force was credited with scoring hits on the Ruhr coke ovens, iron and steel works at Ijmuiden, Netherlands, railway yards, marshalling ardromes, motor trucks and gun positions over northern France by daylight yesterday.

The shooting down a German fighter plane encountered during the offensive sweep.

The communique said docks at Calais and Boulogne, France, were used airdromes in Low Countries and northern France. Three planes were listed as missing from the operations.

Successful First Flight

A British pilot making his first operational flight was credited with destroying a plane believed to have sent the German destroyer to the bottom off the northern coast of Britain. Flying a Brastort plane the pilot sighted three German warships and sank the vest off Ile De Batz.

The pilot declined to release his torpedo before the escorting Messerschmitts had been driven off, Air ministry news service related. "Big, black smoke was seen to rise, a direct hit amidships on one of the destroyers, throwing up a great spout of water."

British fighter planes shot down two Messerschmitts and a Fiat over Nes and a German Dornier 17 off the Suffolk coast, the Air ministry announced.

German raiders dropped a few bombs along the northeast coast of England last night, but caused little damage and few casualties.

Petain Forbids Action Against Former Allies

Vichy, France, April 7 (AP) Marshal Petain declared in a radio address today that French honor forbade action against France's former allies.

The Marshal's speech called for French unity but did not mention Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of Free French forces still fighting at British side.

(De Gaulle, now in Cairo, has ordered Frenchmen in Syria to join the balance of war in the Mediterranean. In Britain it was learned that he had been indications that the Marshal would broadcast an address.)

"Honor requires us to undertake nothing against our former allies" Petain said. "but the integrity of the country requires that sources of the vital food and energy resources of our empire should be safeguarded. It is against these necessities that dissident propagandists act daily."

Despite announcements by Fernand De Brinon, Vichy's "Ambassador" in Paris and Paul Creyssel, that Petain would attack De Gaulle, he complained that "dissident elements feed Gaul propaganda inspired by France."

He complained also that dissidence "takes a more arrogant tone daily and the whole of my government is attacked, defamed and slandered."

He praised Gen. Maxime Weygand, Delegate General in Africa, for faith to French unity, and Admiral Jean Darlan, Vice President and Foreign Minister as well as naval commander, "who has all my confidence."

2 AIRMEN KILLED AT CARDINAL ONT.

Training Plane Crashes While Engaged in a "Photographic Exercise"

Ottawa, Apr. 7 (CP)—Two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force were killed Saturday when their training plane crashed near Cardinal, Ont., about 40 miles south of Ottawa.

The dead are PO. Roland D. Aitken of Cardinal and Sgt. Howard W. Chase of Vernon, B.C., the R.C.A.F. Headquarters said the crash occurred while the pilot was engaged in a "photographic exercise."

Sgt. Chase's next-of-kin is Mrs. E. R. Brackley of Vernon and P.O. Aitken's is Mr. and Mrs. Aitken of Cardinal.

The plane was operating from nearby Rockcliffe Airport and crashed about two miles south of Cardinal. No details of the cause of the accident were available.

Besides the two pilot passengers Provincial Police at Morrisburg, Ont., said the machine was killed instantly when their machine crashed into a tree.

A wing of the plane caught the branches of a maple tree, one in a row on a farm on the main roadway near the house. Careening slightly out of control the plane ricochetted from three other trees, then smashed into the ground on the farm of Mrs. Alex Morrison whose property borders that of the Aitken family.

The bodies of the airmen were found by Provincial Constable Death was instantaneous.

An R.C.A.F. Board of Inquiry will investigate the accident.

Workmen Injured By Circular Saw

West Huntingdon (Special)—While preparing to cut a sawing machine to saw his own wood, Mr. Howard Cook met with an accident when the wooden pulley on the outfit flew to pieces and one piece of large pieces striking Mr. Cooke on the hand and chest. The injured man was taken to Dr. J. E. Hagerty's office at Stirling, where it was found necessary to take him to the Belleville General Hospital.

Hospital authorities found it necessary to amputate one finger from his left hand. He will have to remain in hospital for a few days.

It was fortunate that the three small children in the yard at the time were standing close by, escaped unhurt. The force of the pulley threw Mr. Cook 20 feet and rendered his watch. Other pieces were thrown over 50 feet.

CROCUSES IN BLOOM IN PRINCE'S LOWN

Robins may have been seen a few weeks ago; a chipmunk may have cavorted across a Prince St.-ward roof; ducks may be seen in the woodchuck may have got his dates mixed and emerged to see his shadow ahead of time; seed catalogues may be in the mail, but there is one concrete evidence that spring is here and that is the crocuses in the little yellow blobs of flowers on the lawn in front of the home of Dr. Geoerge H. Stobie, Campbell Street, and the the earliest of red dents in other parts of the city.

The crocuses, their brilliant yellow faces accentuated by the darkness of surrounding dead grass, which in itself is now being punctuated with occasional shoots of green, are the first flowers to herald the approaches of Spring, and with their gay colors, they certainly make stalky stand out like a good deed in a naughty world.

CAPTURED MEN KEPT IN CUSTODY

Alleged Bank Robbers Arrested After Hiding in Bush Near Scene

Kitchener, Ont., April 5 (CP). The two men who made an desperate attempt to escape from pursuing policemen in a bullet-ridden car from Parkes, 40, of Wingham Centre, and Joseph Weaver, 30, of Toronto as they awaited trial on charges of robbing the Bank of Commerce today they were remanded in custody until next Wednesday.

They were caught late last night by a posse of about 60 men, more than a dozen of them policemen, who surrounded a swamp near St. Clements, Ont., about 10 miles from here, after the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at St. Clements had been held up and robbed of about $12,000, shortly after the young bank manager and two police officers had left the bank with the money. They were captured after a chase of almost 40 miles, which ended when the bandits' car, after being fired on by police, overturned and they were forced to abandon it.

Stirring Tribute Paid To Men Serving In Canadian and Royal Navies At Mariners' Service

Nearly $1,000 Donated to Aid British War Victims' Fund

MANY SPEAKERS

Picton, April 7—Stirring tributes to the men serving in the British and Canadian navies, a beautiful memorial service to deceased sailors and fishermen, on account of the work of Sailors' Institutes in Ontario, and presentation of nearly $1,000 to the British War Victims' Fund, were features of the annual Mariners' Service held at Cherry Valley Church Sunday evening.

Flashing a model lighthouse with a flashing beacon, ship models, a binnacle, flag and other nautical emblems, decorated the church, which was at capacity for the occasion.

Guest speakers were C. H. J. Snider and Ernest Bartlett of the Toronto Evening Telegram, W. T. Brown of the Sailors' Institute, Kingston, and the ministers of the church, Dodds and Rice. Philip Dodds was responsible for all arrangements and was in charge of the presentation of gifts to all the war victims.

A letter but fitting tribute to those, who have given their lives in the service of King and Country, and words of sympathy and fresh courage to deceased fishermen, was paid by Mr. Rice, after silent prayer by Mr. Rice, with a minute of silence being observed and the hymn "Abide With Me" being sung.

Souvenirs Exhibited

An interesting feature was the displaying of a piece of shell, a bullet-riddled ensign from a British merchantman, and a fin of a German bomb. In relating their story he said the German ship had been attacked by a Nazi bomber while crossing the Atlantic, but that the plane had been driven off by the ship's one gun, but not before the flag had been riddled with bullets. The fin was from one of the two bombs which dropped on the deck but did not explode. The captain had presented them to the soldier to aid the War Victims' Fund. The speaker had been a sailor in the Merchant Marine.

Before the address, Rev. Mr. Bartlett, who had been a sailor and more recently visited the Canadian navy on both of Canada's coasts, told of the rapid growth of the navy and the important part it is playing in the present war. When war broke out Canada had but little over six thousand in her navy, and there were less than 2,000 men on active service. Now the figure has exceeded the R.C.N.R. with 66 officers and 196 ratings, and the R.C.V.R. with 115 officers and 1432 ratings, a total of less than 4,000 men of all ranks.

This offered a great contrast to the situation today, there now being nearly 18,000 men on active service. No matter whether they came from along the lakes, from the prairies or from along the seacoasts, all have made fine sailors in the speaker declared. He listed some of the places where Canadian sailors had been active. They were at Narvik, they assisted in the evacuation of Dunkirk and France, they are at present helping defend Britain, they escorted troopships from Australia to the Mediterranean, they are engaged in convoy duty and in patrolling the seas. They have shown their worth by capturing prizes of war and as well have sent men to serve in the British navy. Long hours, many days at sea, discomfort, all were taken as part of the day's work.

Sea-Going Yachts Armed

Though but the navy grown in personnel, but sea-going yachts have been armed and sent out as patrol ships, corvettes have been built, big ships have been transformed into armed cruisers and there was the welcome addition of six destroyers from the United States. Minesweepers have also been built. It was necessary to make all these additions to the navy and Canadians have been able to do it. As if it was not enough to cope with, the Merchant Navy has made demands for men the fighting navy, Gunnery and signallers were required for the armed merchant ships and Canada also supplied these.

That the sailor thinks of the other fellow first was illustrated by stories told by Mr. Bartlett of deeds of heroism of Canadian sailors. Two young Toronto men on the Jervis Bay refused to speak of their work in rescuing helpless and wounded while under fire, but praised the gunners. A signalman on the Empress of Britain had refused to climb on a raft which was already loaded, fearing that it might cost the others their lives. He had swum away in the darkness and was never heard from again. Again it was the thought of others first, a tradition of the sea.

The speaker told of the evacuation of Dunkirk. The pilot of an outboard motor had towed loaded lifeboats to safety, when they had to be abandoned by the destroyer when she was attacked. When praised for his bravery he had remarked: "I just couldn't resist picking up hitch-hikers."

Mr. Bartlett felt that every one of Canada's sailors was willing to do such deeds of valor without thought of recognition, if the opportunity arose. He paid tribute to the men who had been in the reserve and who had done much to make the progress of the Canadian navy a rapid one.

Speaks of Institutes

W. T. Brown of Kingston spoke briefly on the work of the Sailors' Institutes which are maintained at Kingston, Toronto, Port Arthur and Halifax by the Weldand Canal, and in charge at Kingston and gave several interesting stories to show how much the work means. The institutes are in charge of the Upper Canada Tract and Book Society which was founded in 1859, and the first mission was at Weiland in 1867, that at Kingston in 1918 and that at Halifax in 1913. Pastoral visits are paid to ships in port, religious work is carried on among the Bibles, testaments, ditty bags and other comforts are distributed.

F. C. Rice, the minister of the church, spoke on the subject "Upon the Sea, the Life-line: Faith, the anchor." The words "From sea to sea, from Ocean to sea" and "Thou shalt call my land shall own Thee Lord," were written as a tribute to our dead. "Let us pray that before we had experienced such a graveyard as this we might ask our Creator his design: d to place in the hearts of the British Empire and so, this, the 13th annual Mariners Service, would be one of prayer, the deep and sincere memory of the founder, the late Capt. Nelson Bowerman, that his work have gone down to the sea in ships and that Canada's navy be built, that peace also as a unique opportunity and responsibility to acknowledge to our Maker for the heritage as a people, and to our God who rules the sea, which themselves are our protection, said Mr. Rice.

Shakespeare Had Sea

Shakespeare had called the waters around England, the Triumphant Sea, and the description is not out of date today, and for the defensive waters around our coast we are indebted to the navy, and the life of so many European countries. We are indebted to them, to our good neighbors. We are all proud to be Canadians but proud to be also Britishers for the British are courageous, and are encouraged as Britishers because the sea has made us so. No matter in what branch the soldiers serve, their brave spirit carries them on Come Wind, Come Weather. This is the courage which in its many forms is the life-line which has reached around a war-torn world and brought freedom to many nations and will continue to give and maintain that freedom regardless of sacrifice or of the cost, said Mr. Rice.

Back of this invincible armada of British sea-power is the courage and faith of all sailors, those in the merchantmen, the destroyers, the fishing boats and even the trawlers. They all display a marvellous courage, even as the late sailors display courage in providing man's needs.

Would Give Special Message

From Prince Edward County have gone many fine sailors as well as hundreds of others serving in the land forces, and in the air, "I am sure that if the spirits of those departed could speak to us tonight they would leave a very special message for our hearts," said Mr. Rice. "They would wish good-speed to the sailors about to go about their tasks and we would join with them in this wish. They would add courage men to put all they have into their task. Whether your task is to sail the lakes as captain, deck hands or fishermen or in the navy do your job well, the life of the Dominion depends upon it.

I know that these spirits would enjoin you to seek Divine guidance and power in all your undertakings," said the speaker who quoted Nelson's prayer on the famed trafalgar.

Only as we receive this Divine guidance and power, do we receive the courage to carry on in which we are engaged. We are all encouraged according to the British people, founded firmly upon Christian traditions of liberty, freedom, tolerance and mutual understanding. That is the faith which should be in all people. That is the faith that the British people in the Motherland, are so nobly expressing and showing to be the anchor of their lives; that faith which no bombs nor death charges can dislodge, and Mr. Rice who closed by repeating the King's message to the Empire given on Christmas Day, 1939 when he said: "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year; give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown; and he replied: "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God; that shall be to you better than light and safer than a known way."

During the service, vocal solos were given by Mrs. Gordon Bowerman and Mr. Rice of Cherry Valley. Marine hymns were sung. Nearly $900 was presented to the British War Victims' Fund, with representatives of different organizations presenting cheques to Mr. Snider. Captains occupied the front pews and visitors were present from several parts of the province. The service closed with the National Anthem, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and benediction.

BRIDGE ST. W. M. S.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Bridge St. United Church held their regular meeting on Friday afternoon with Miss Lazelle Brown in charge. The meeting opened with the thought, "Easter means but one thing, the crucified and the risen Christ."

A very interesting report of the Presbyterial, recently held at Trenton, was given by Mrs. Pickering.

The programme was in charge of Mrs. Houston and Mrs. Semple's group. Mrs. Houston led the worship service assisted by Mrs. Ireland and Mrs. Lattimer on the theme, "Following the way of love, the way of victory."

A lovely solo, "The Beautiful Gates of Prayer" was sung by Miss Doris Thrasher.

Mrs. Hyde, by Mrs. Semple, assisted by Mrs. Farley, Mrs. Ackerman, Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Munsan centred around Newfoundland and the work of the Rev. Curtis Jenner.

A graduate of McGill University, Rev. Curtis Jenner, known as the Apostle of the Outposts, became Superintendent of Missions for Newfoundland in 1921. Although he lived only a few years, he laid a foundation for real Christian social action on that island. He was concerned with the living conditions among the fishermen and advocated co-operatives in industry as a means of translated Christian education as the need of youth. He was in every child a soldier of a Christian world and in a few short years, such was his organization that across Newfoundland he had set the people thinking differently and living by a new pattern. He developed a leadership among the people—helping them in finance, industry and education, for he believed that these must be controlled by the masses, not the few.

A map of Newfoundland and many supplies added to the interest of the study.

Mrs. Houston and Mrs. Gerrie were in charge of the music.

ALBERT COLLEGE GUILD

The April meeting of Albert College Guild was held at the Manor House on Wednesday afternoon with an unusually large attendance of members. Mrs. E. N. Baker, the president, presided. The meeting was opened with the singing of a hymn, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory" Mrs. Baker rose as the Scripture reading for the devotional period the 14th chapter of John, which was in keeping with the eve of Holy Week. Following the business of the meeting, Mrs. Clifford Ellis sang very beautifully, "Song of the Robin."

The members were privileged to have as guest speaker Miss Quinlan-bride, wife of Dr. Outbridge, missionary to Japan, who gave a most absorbing address on life in Japan, stressing present day trends which have led to the present undeclared warfare of the Japanese people with China. Mrs. Outbridge discussed particularly the reaction of Japan to the present European war. In allying herself with Germany, Japan had hoped for a short war, as the undeclared fighting has resulted in privations and hardships, with all Japan now mobilized although the people as a whole are not favourable to war and are under the relentless grip of the military leaders.

The work of Christianity in Japan has received a setback with foreigners being forced to leave the country, yet one encouraging aspect is the way in which native Japanese Christians have been able to take over the duties of church leadership and are carrying on the work faithfully.

At the conclusion of the address a social half hour was spent.

Arthur Purvis Highly Regarded In Washington

By FRANK R. WELLER

Washington, April 7 (AP)—There is a sly saying in Washington these days that, more British are storming the United States capital now than on Aug. 24, 1814, when Major-General Ross' 4,000 Redcoats took over the town.

It is a friendly observation, however, but one not entirely without merit, considering the missions of the Canadians, Britons and Australians coming and going on various missions to hasten food and munitions shipments to the British Empire now under the $7,000,000,000 lease-land law.

The boss of this business, called the "British Council of Supply in North America," is Arthur Purvis, who was born in England fifty years ago but who has been a towering man in Canada for the last twenty. United States Government officials say Purvis, a short, thin and bright-eyed human dynamo, is just about the busiest foreigner man they ever encountered.

They say he pretty much likes them, mutual friends say, personally, first, then professionally. He has spent $2,700,000,000 of cash-and-carry war planes, guns, tanks, ammunition and other supplies he has purchased here during the last fifteen months.

Actually, the British staff here numbers only 1,200. Purvis' personal air flourishes from time to time as technicians, scientists, inspectors and other experts arrive for brief consultations. It would be a fair guess, say friends, that the British Commonwealth of Independent nations, that sends $200 men and women with the Union Jack on their lapels and in their hearts now is in Washington and New York.

Britons Enjoy Joke

This is one-half the war force which left Liverpool, Purvis' friends under the Regency ruling for the time being, if not actually the American capital in 1812. In retaliation for the burning of the Upper Canada legislative buildings and the pillaging of York — now Toronto — by United States forces, Ross burned the Capitol, the "President's House" and executive buildings, and was deserted by Madison and his Cabinet.

By and large, the Yankee likes to recall about that 127-year-old incident. The 1940 British "invasion" grimly but also with a beaming well that the intervening years have produced much in common between the United States and their own country in mutual defence, trade and political science American-British alliance in the first Great War added to rapprochement.

Added to the pro-British racial descendancy of most Americans is the traditional admiration for Yankee trading to a "best customer." In 1940 Great Britain bought of non-war goods from this country, compared with a pre-war peak of $623,600,000 in 1937. Including war purchases, shipped chiefly from Canada, Britain outranked all other 1941 customers with a total purchase of $3,000,000,000.

These war purchases, included at least 2,200 warplanes delivered as early as Aug. 15, 1940. The number purchased since is a British war secret respected by the United States Government officials, but it is common knowledge that the council wishes to obtain a peak of 60,000 planes when full war production hits its stride.

Efforts to obtain correct figures are dismissed by the British repre-

Ice In Trent River Moves Out Quietly

Trenton (Special)—Ice in the Trent River moved quietly and mostly out of sight over over the week-end without blocking at any point. Water level during the past three weeks caused the ice to gradually disappear and when it finally broke up on Saturday it moved quietly out into the Bay. The river is now clear as far north as Glen Ross with the exception of small ice fields along the shores.

Chief Constable William Bain will have a campaign for cleanup in Trenton during the next few days. Already he has purchased boxes of envelopes for the campaign; the proceeds are to be turned over to the British War Victims' Fund.

ALBERT BROOKS ARNOTT

The funeral of Albert Brooks Arnott was held this afternoon from his late residence on the Wooler Road. Many beautiful floral flowers have been sent to the home by the many friends of the deceased.

The late Mr. Arnott died suddenly at his home on the Wooler Road on Saturday afternoon. He was in his 68th year and was very well-known in the district.

The honorary pall bearers were E. James, Chester Loll, William Hinchcliffe and Charles Foster. The bearers were Mr. Andison, J. Tinney, J. Kinney, Dr. Gordon Irvine Calnan and Walter Ketchenson.

Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, officiated at the service and at the graveside in St. George's Cemetery.

T. H. S. Students Doing Part

The Trenton High School is doing their part to aid with the war effort of Canada. Spare fellows Lodge, Ralph Bellamy is excellently cast as a dentist who provides Errol with an all-important clue. Lee Patrick comes through with a fine performance of the beautiful blonde showgirl who causes Flynn more trouble than even the law enforcement-in-law combined.

The supporting cast includes such old screen favorites as Alan Hale, Allen Jenkins Grant Mitchell, Roscoe Karns, who all give admirable performances. Lloyd Bacon who has directed many an action comedy film hit in the past has done it again with "Footsteps in the Dark." He blended laughs with excitement in a manner that could only be the work of a master director.

All in all, we can safely say Flynn is as good in the dressing room as he is in the rigging of a four-masted ship.

A color fun cartoon, "Toe Fighting 69th, and a Half," and the latest Movietone preceded the feature attraction.

AT THE BELLE

"Footsteps in the Dark"

Belle Theatre audiences saw Errol Flynn in a comedy role for the first time in three years, when "Footsteps in the Dark" began Bros. comedy-mystery film, "Footsteps in the Dark," made its Belleville bow, and judging from the comments at the end of the first picture last night, it plenty. While Errol may have deserted his sword and rifle for a top-hat and walking stick, he hasn't deserted his old flair for action and the screen agent. His role as a writer of mystery stories who likes to get first material first-hand, is as thrilling a one as he has ever portrayed, and twice as funny.

Leading a double life because he doesn't want his wife to know he is the author of a set of 'mystery stories' under the name of two members, he finds himself in plenty of hot water. Even a beautifully paced scenes he uncovers a murder that the police had first dismissed as a natural death. His main clue leads him to beautiful Lee Patrick as queen, portrayed by Lee Patrick, who was a friend of the murdered man. Things become most embarrassingly complicated when Miss Patrick is found murdered and Flynn is accused of having committed the crime.

"Footsteps in the Dark" is a film that combines laughter with thrills, joy with excitement and danger with romance. Having a beautiful story, cleverly told and deftly directed, it is a film that will please all movie-goers.

Beautiful Brenda Marshall, of "Yes Mask" fame, plays the role of Errol's wife and gives a grand performance as a woman who has to put up with an amateur sleuth for a husband. Clad in Brenda's mother and partner in misery is Lucille Watson whose performance gets many a laugh.

MAIN STRUMA VALLEY DEFENCES UNBROKEN; NAZI PARACHUTE TROOPS QUICKLY MOPPED UP

British Army In Greece Supported By Powerful British Fleet

Greeks, Reinforced by Steady Stream Of British Forces, Repulse Nazis Hand-to-Hand

Yugoslav Troops Fighting in Southern Serbia Withdraw Leaving Left Flank Of Greek Army Exposed Says Greek General Staff —Western Thrace Evacuated For Strategical Reasons And To Avoid Useless Sacrifices —Attackers Decimated At Some Points And Many Tanks Destroyed By Gunfire

ATHENS, April 8 (AP)—The Greeks were reported today to be holding firm at Rupel Pass, through which a German armored column was trying to penetrate to the Struma River Valley.

This attempt, dispatches from the front said, and other thrusts farther eastward along the Greek-Bulgarian frontier met terrific resistance which already has cost the Germans heavy losses in men and material.

A German effort to cut communications behind the Greek lines by using parachutists failed, an announcement said, and 130 parachutists were captured and others killed.

The Greek general staff reported that Yugoslav troops fighting in Southern Serbia have withdrawn, exposing the left flank of the Greeks who, nevertheless, are "defending the Fatherland inch by inch."

The Greeks have a death battalion meeting the thrust of the Nazi attack, the newspaper Kathimerini said, formed of volunteers for service in outposts. Every man, the paper said, was highly qualified for the work of defending the positions to the last moment to cover the withdrawal of the main forces. After that, the paper said, their job was to blow up all communications and bridges before falling back.

The paper related that one group of 150 held back a German force twenty times as large for 36 hours.

Greek correspondents returning from Yugoslavia today brought only fragmentary accounts of the war. They said terrific air battles were being waged over Skoplje and other cities and that Yugoslav troops were fighting valiantly against superior German forces.

A general staff communique said:

"Yugoslav troops fighting in Southern Serbia withdrew, uncovering the left flank of our troops who were heroically fighting on the border line.

"Despite this, our soldiers continue to fight with great self sacrifice, defending the Fatherland inch by inch."

(However, the Germans have been driving into southeastern Yugoslavia toward Skoplje and the Vardar River, and a general withdrawal of Yugoslav forces from the frontier mountains in this sector might open to the German the broad Vardar Valley, which runs south to Salonika, cutting behind the present Greek defence system along the Struma.)

ANNOUNCE LOSS OF TWO FORTS

The Greeks earlier announced the loss of two border forts in the Struma Valley and evacuation of Western Thrace, but said the main Struma defences were unbroken.

Several reports on heaped enemy dead, bodies and dozens of smashed tanks and armored cars, dispatches from the front said.

In one valley, these accounts said, the Greeks let the Germans advance some distance without opposition and then opened with heavy artillery and machine-gun fire from the forest and from nests concealed on hillsides.

This column was nearly destroyed, the dispatches said. Those who survived fled.

GREEK ARMY HOLDING FIRM AT RUPEL PASS

Though Yugoslavs Retire in South Serbia Germans Have Not Won Any Decisive Advantage

GREEKS FIGHT BRAVELY

Germans Claim to Have Swept 50 Miles to Aegean Sea With Armored Units

Berne, Switzerland, April 8 (AP), —The Greeks were left alone today to defend a vital section of the Balkan front when Yugoslav forces withdrew in southern Serbia but there were no indications, despite ceaseless fighting, that the Germans had won any decisive advantages.

The Greeks said they were holding firm at Rupel Pass where a German armored column sought to penetrate the Struma Valley.

The Yugoslav withdrawal was disclosed in a Greek general staff communique. It did not say whether this was after contact with Nazi divisions smashing toward the Vardar River, but it admitted that the Greek left flank had been thrown into jeopardy in that sector where the Germans might be able to break through to flank Greece's Struma River line.

Despite the peril, the Athens war bulletin said, Greek troops "continue to fight with great self-sacrifice, defending the fatherland inch by inch."

"Fresh Going" For Huns.

Although German armored units had driven to within 25 miles across western Thrace to the shores of the Aegean Sea, the main battle between Greece and Turkey, the Nazi High Command acknowledged today, was on the anti-Bulgarian front and made no specific claims of gains.

77,575 Tons Shipping Sunk By Enemy In Week Ending Mar. 30

London, April 8 (CP)—Failure of overdue ships to turn up sent British, Allied and neutral shipping losses for two of the past five weeks to approximately 150,000 tons each —heaviest toll of 1941 in the battle of the Atlantic, authoritative sources declared today.

The average weekly loss of shipping during March was placed by the Admiralty at 58,000 tons.

Admiralty losses for the week ended March 2 listed 30 ships totalling 150,300 tons—the biggest loss of any week this year. For the week ended March 16 amended losses were given as 27 ships of 96,000 tons.

Losses declined during the week ended March 23 to 17 ships aggregating 59,141 tons, the Admiralty report said, and went up again the following week to 20 ships of 77,575 tons.

Athens, April 8 (AP)—British planes raided the Struma Valley area of Bulgaria, Sunday night, starting a fire in the railway station at Gurul Dumnaya and attacking a railway and road junction at Simitli, a Bulgarian announcement said today.

A motor transport convoy and troop concentrations were hit at Simitli, and another motor transport convoy was machine-gunned at Petrich, the communique said.

Yesterday the R.A.F. attacked a large motor transport concentration near Strumnica, about 15 miles from the Bulgarian frontier in Yugoslavia, it was said.

(It was announced in London Monday that the R.A.F. heavily attacked Sofia, capital of Bulgheid Bulgaria, Sunday night.)

Yugoslavs Take Scutari, Drive Into Albania

Berne, Switzerland, April 8 (AP)—Advices received by the Yugoslav legation here today confirmed earlier reports that Yugoslav forces had captured Scutari, Albania.

Reports received by telephone from the Yugoslav government's new headquarters at Ymale in the Serbian mountains also said the Italian town of Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, had fallen to the Yugoslav army.

Advice said Yugoslav troops after taking Scutari were smashing farther south into Albania in an attempt to encircle the Greek flanks in squeezing the Italians out of Albania.

A telegr one conversation was held just before noon with Yugoslav government officials, it was said, from a small resort near Cetinje on the railway line between Belgrade and Skoplje.

Rome Says Axis Troops Occupy Derna

British Sources Say Confirmation Lacking Of Italian Claims But North African Situation is 'Fluid'

London, April 8 (CP)—British military sources today likened confirmation of Italian claims to re-occupation of Derna, in Libya, but declared the North African situation is fluid and swift changes of position are possible before Axis forces can hope to make a stand at any particular point.

These sources said the Italian-German advance as far as Derna takes the Axis commanders to the stage of the taking of Benghazi, approximately 150 miles back, which "would not be difficult if our forces withdrew" to positions more closely connected by a good road.

Rome, April 8 —(AP)— The Italian claimed today that the Italian and German troops have occupied the Libyan port of Derna.

Confirmation was not immediately available in London or Cairo. Previously London sources had said the withdrawal of British advance forces in Libya was coordinated.

Derna is approximately 175 miles east of Benghazi, from which the British forces withdrew last week. A deep water port, it had been held by Britain since Jan. 30.

Previously the Italians had claimed Barce and Tocra.

Tocra is on the coast, 50 miles east of Benghazi, and Barce is 25 miles inland and Germans recently occupied, Berlin said, were "only outposts" and "London sources said merely: 'withdrawal of our advance troops is proceeding'"

Second Note Sent By Germany Over Seizure Of Ships

Reich Claims United States Has Violated International Law And Treaty Of Friendship And Commerce

Washington, April 8 (AP)—State Secretary Hull said today German Ambassador Thomsen has sent a new note re-enforcing his protests over the seizure of German merchant ships and crews in the United States.

Hull declined to give the nature of this new communication except to say that it was connected with the seizure of the ships which were taken into custody on grounds of sabotage.

From other sources it was learned that the new note supplied supporting data on German claims that the United States had violated international law and a treaty of friendship and commerce between the two countries.

At the same time, the note was said to have claimed that the Secretary of State in his note rejected previous German protests had failed to make clear the legal basis for prosecution of German crew members.

Hull last week flatly rejected the German and Italian protests over the seizure of 30 Axis vessels and members of their crews. He declared then that no civilized nation could tolerate widespread sabotage of foreign vessels in its ports.

Hull said today the Italian government had not yet sent notice of compliance with the American request for the immediate withdrawal of the Italian naval attache in Washington, Lieut.-Com. Alberto Lais, who was accused by President Roosevelt of operating at least part of the sabotage by Italian crews.

MAIN STRUMA VALLEY DEFENCES UNBROKEN; NAZI PARACHUTE TROOPS QUICKLY MOPPED UP

British Army In Greece Supported By Powerful British Fleet

Greeks, Reinforced by Steady Stream Of British Forces, Repulse Nazis Hand-to-Hand

Yugoslav Troops Fighting in Southern Serbia Withdraw Leaving Left Flank Of Greek Army Exposed Says Greek General Staff —Western Thrace Evacuated For Strategical Reasons And To Avoid Useless Sacrifices —Attackers Decimated At Some Points And Many Tanks Destroyed By Gunfire

ATHENS, April 8 (AP)—The Greeks were reported today to be holding firm at Rupel Pass, through which a German armored column was trying to penetrate to the Struma River Valley.

This attempt, dispatches from the front said, and other thrusts further eastward along the Greek-Bulgarian frontier met terrific resistance which already has cost the Germans heavy losses in men and material.

A German effort to cut communications behind the Greek lines by using parachutists failed, an announcement said, and 130 parachutists were captured and others killed.

The Greek general staff reported that Yugoslav troops fighting in Southern Serbia have withdrawn, exposing the left flank of the Greeks who, nevertheless, are "defending the Fatherland inch by inch."

The Greeks have a death battalion meeting the thrust of the Nazi attack, the newspaper Kathimerini said, formed of volunteers for service in outposts. Every man, the paper said, was highly qualified for the work of defencing the positions to the last moment to cover the withdrawal of the main forces. After that, the paper said, their job was to blow up all communications and bridges before falling back.

The paper related that one group of 150 held back a German force twenty times as large for 36 hours.

Greek correspondents returning from Yugoslavia today brought only fragmentary accounts of the war. They said terrific air battles were being waged over Skoplje and other cities and that Yugoslav troops were fighting valiantly against superior German forces.

A general staff communique said:

"Despite this, our soldiers continue to fight with great self sacrifice, defending the Fatherland inch by inch."

(However, the Germans have been driving into southeastern Yugoslavia toward Skoplje and the Vardar Valley. A general withdrawal of Yugoslav forces from the frontier mountains in this sector might open to the German the broad Vardar Valley. It runs south to Salonika, cutting behind the present Greek defence system along the Struma.)

ANNOUNCE LOSS OF TWO FORTS

The Greeks earlier announced the loss of two border forts in the Struma Valley and evacuation of Western Thrace, but said the main Struma defences were unbroken.

Several ravines are heaped with German bodies and dozens of smashed tanks and armored cars, dispatches from the front said.

In one valley, these accounts said, the Greeks let the Germans advance some distance without opposition and then opened with heavy artillery and machine-gun fire from the forest and from nests concealed on hillsides.

This column was nearly destroyed, the dispatches said. Those who survived fled.

Rome Says Axis Troops Occupy Derna

British Sources Say Confirmation Lacking Of Italian Claims But North African Situation is 'Fluid'

London, April 8 (CP)—British military sources said today they lacked confirmation of Italian claims to re-occupation of Derna, in Libya, but declared the North African situation by no means had changes of position are possible "if our forces decide to make a stand at any particular point."

These sources said the Italian-German advance as far as Derna since the announcement of the fall ago of the taking of Bengasi, approximately 175 miles back, "would not be difficult if our forces withdrew," since the towns are connected by a good road.

Rome, April 8 —(AP)— The Italians claimed today that Italian and German troops have occupied the Libyan port of Derna.

Budget Praised By British Press, The Times Calls It 'Stabilizing'

London, April 8 —(CP Cable)— Britain's all to the good.

A dissenting note was provided by the Sketch which contended that "this budget strikes—it was inevitable—at the inflationary spiral, an almost lethal blow at the economic structure of Great Britain."

The Herald was disappointed because "the proposal for a tax on capital was ignored but conceded that the budget "approaches the foundations of a real financial plan for the war and for the reconstruction years."

The Daily Mail said since the war that really faces essential problems was the Manchester Guardian's view.

Second Note Sent By Germany Over Seizure Of Ships

Reich Claims United States Has Violated International Law And Treaty Of Friendship And Commerce

Washington, April 8 (AP)—State Secretary Hull said today Germany has sent a new note re-enforcing her protest over the seizure of German merchant ships and crews in the United States.

Hull declined to give the nature of the new communication except to say that it was connected with the seizure of the ships which were taken into custody on grounds of sabotage.

From other sources it was learned that the new note supplied supporting data on German claims that the United States had violated International law and a treaty of friendship and commerce between the two countries.

At the same time, the note was said to have claimed that the Secretary of State in his note rejecting previous Nazi protests had failed to take into the legal basis for prosecution of German crew members.

Hull last week flatly rejected both German and Italian protests over the seizure of 30 Axis vessels and members of their crews. He declared flatly that no civilized nation could tolerate widespread sabotage of foreign ships in its ports.

Hull said today the Italian government had not yet sent notice in compliance with the American request for the immediate withdrawal of the Italian naval attache in Washington, Admiral Alberto Lais, who was accused by President Roosevelt of ordering at least part of the sabotage by Italian crews.

TWO O.S.D. PUPILS MISSING FROM SCHOOL

Two pupils from the Ontario School for the Deaf were reported to have been missing from that institution late Saturday night. The information was given to Belleville police by Mr. W. J. Morrison, Superintendent at the O.S.D. The two lads were said to be Gerald Cassidy, 17, of Casanoque and Dwayne Hiscott, 14, of Morrisburg. The lads were found to be missing from their dormitory shortly before eleven o'clock last night and their absence was immediately reported to the local Provincial. It is believed the boys left school to return home for a possible Easter holiday, as no such actions of truancy have been practiced by them previously.

FIRE DAMAGES ROOF DONALD STREET HOME

Fire alarms arising out of grass fires getting out of control continue to cause the local fire department by far the major portion of their runs. On Monday two such alarms were answered in the west end of the city, one at 7:30 p.m. In the old fair grounds where the dried grass has become ignited with the fire getting out of control.

This morning a blazing roof at 3 Donald Street, called the second firemen a few minutes' work before the fire was extinguished. The shingles had apparently caught from a nearby fire burning in a neighbor's yard and had gained considerable headway before firemen were summoned. The entire one side of the roof will have to be reshingled.

SOCIAL EVENING NETS $90 FOR RED CROSS

The coffers of the Ameliasburg Red Cross Society were materially considerably following a dance and euchre held at Quinte Inn Monday night at which the local teachers of the township were hosts to a large crowd of guests. Many of the fair neat were made through the function and turned over to the Red Cross Society.

The affair was one of the largest crowds of the season. Dancing took place shortly after the card games finished at nine o'clock. Later refreshments were served.

JUNK DEALERS' STOCKS LIMITED TO STOCKS

Junk dealers of the city and district have been notified by government authorities that after a new certain date stocks carried can only consist of forty tons. This means heavy shipments must be made as junk will take place within a few days.

The majority of junk dealers in this district, it is stated, have fairly large stocks on hand, despite the fact that shipments have been leaving at a constant rate.

CONTINUED DRY SPELL WILL LIKELY CURTAIL FLOW OF MAPLE SAP

A long vender constituted the Belleville mid-week market today when one man displayed a quantity of market produce, along with maple syrup, which was offered at $2.00 per gallon.

When speaking of the possibilities of the continued flow of maple sap, the vendor predicted Saturday would probably see the final offering of maple syrup for the current season. "There hasn't been a rain this spring and the sugar bushes are drying up much faster than in other years and it is doubtful if there will be any maple syrup after this week."

Parks Board Moves To Protect Property At Zwick's Island

The wholesale removal of sand, gravel and even large boulders from Zwick's Island by persons unauthorized to take such material was criticized at the semi-monthly meeting of the Belleville Parks Commission held in the City Hall last evening.

"Zwick's Island is under the management of the Parks Board and under no circumstances may persons remove material from that park without authorized permission from the proper authorities," stated Chairman W. A. Woodley and the Board voted to erect large signs warning the public to refrain from the removal of sand, gravel and even hard-heads from the island. The motion became necessary after it was learned that large quantities of such material were being taken off the island without permission.

The Board voted to purchase one hundred 12-foot Norway Maple trees for replanting purposes in connection with the reinstallment of trees along city streets to replace those which have been removed. "Persons desiring young trees planted on the city boulevards adjacent to their homes may have the same by applying to the Board," revealed Commissioner Maurice Callaghan, chairman of the tree-planting department.

The matter of the purchase of plants and flowers to be placed in city parks for beautification purposes was left in the hands of Commissioner C. J. Symons, chairman of horticulture. The Board voted not to send an official delegate to the annual meeting of the Belleville Beaches Association.

"This Association is a private organization, while our Commission is a part and parcel of the civic administration," pointed out Chairman Wardle.

Commissioner C. B Culline reported that the softball interests in Belleville had rejected the proposal of the Board to play all league games at the Fair Grounds in 1941. A full attendance of the Commissioners was present, including Mayor G. E. Thompson.

English Letter Shows Fine Sense Of Business Tact

The indomitable spirit of the British people, exemplified in many times is not only their gallant behavior under the fire of enemy bombers, but in their everyday existence in business, at play and other phases of life, is seen in a business letter received here by an English drug firm received yesterday by Charles Dolan, Front Street druggist.

The letter, which shows in the lines and between them, breathes a spirit of cheerfulness, appreciation and tact, speaks for itself:

"Messrs Dolan the Druggist.

"Belleville.

"Dear Sirs,

"Canada—the very mention of the name quickens one's pulse, as one realizes is everyone of the great debt we owe to our colleagues in the Dominion.

"A debt which no money can repay.

"You will, therefore, understand that in sending you this message our thought is one of being mutually helpful.

"It concerns a business debt of £ outstanding as at December, 1940, for goods purchased by you some while back.

"You may have already paid it, in which case please tell us and read no further, apart from kindly accepting our thanks for your co-operation.

"Yours faithfully,

Store Windows Splashed When Street Is Flushed

In an effort to relieve the dusty conditions that have prevailed along Front St., and the downtown area of Belleville since the advent of Spring, City Firemen were employed to flush the sand, cinders and dirt off of the street early Tuesday morning. Fire hose were attached to city hydrants and the pavement thoroughly flushed.

However, the flushing process had its repercussions when merchants and store managers arrived to open their places of business this morning only to find accumulations of sand and cinders had been washed upon the sidewalks and their windows splashed. Much of the main street debris had been removed but merchants and store clerks were anything but pleased with the task of having to clean their store fronts following the city flushing.

Kinsmen To Collect Reading Material For The Navy And Merchant Marine

Co-operating with the Canadian Merchant Marine Corps and the Canadian Navy, the Kinsmen Clubs of Canada have announced a campaign through individual clubs, to provide reading material for Canada's seamen for the duration of the war. President Gardiner Duff announced at the fortnightly meeting of the Belleville Kinsmen Club held in the New Queens Hotel, Monday evening. The Belleville Kinsmen immediately went on record as being in full accord with the project, as the need of such reading material is acute among the sailors of the navy and merchant marine, it was learned.

The Belleville Kinsmen Club will accept any old or new magazines periodicals and journals and subsequently pack and ship them to the Navy Leagu ; headquarters at Halifax. Citizens having such reading matter available are urged to contact Kin Mac Bonter, Kin Don Roe or President Duff in order that such reading material may be accumulated at a central shipping point, to be established by the Belleville Kinsmen. The need for reading matter for our meachant and navy sailors is exceedingly great and we hope the citizens of Belleville will co-operate to the fullest measure in this project," urged President Duff after the local club voted to assume its share of the collection of magazines. Monthly shipments will be made from Belleville to the Navy League commencing at the end of April.

Routine Business

The Kinsmen Club meeting was largely of a business nature and no guest speaker was provided. Kin Jim Lindsay was appointed to attend a district regional meeting of the Kinsmen Clubs at Oshawa this evening during which time the district clubs will discuss the possibilities of extending the Canadian-wide war efforts of the Kinsmen Clubs. At present Kin Jim Lindsay is providing mobile dental units for Canada's fighting forces, as well as the erection of "Hostess Huts" for the accommodation of our men in camp, but the need for additional service has been brought to the attention of district headquarters and we, as Kinsmen, feel our war efforts can be extended," explained President Duff as to why the District Regional meeting was necessary in Oshawa.

Future Kinsmen project for the purpose of raising funds for the club's Eye Clinic and War Service Fund will include the Kinsmen Club annual Easter Monday dance at the Trocadero Ballroom and an Easter bingo to open in the old Eaton Spectacle building on Coleman street.

The entertainment was provided by Kin Burtt, who rendered two highly appreciated baritone solos, accompanied by Kin Phil Hagerman. Kin Bill Hagerman acted as song leader and Kin Matt Curry as sergeant-at-arms.

Home of T. Thompson, Rednersville, Destroyed By Fire Monday Eve

Fire Destroys House Occupied by Thos. Thompson, While Former Home is Being Rebuilt After Fire Seven Months Ago

Trenton, April 8 — For the second time in seven months, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson of Rednersville, have had their home destroyed by fire when it burned to the ground early last evening.

The fire believed to have started from a grass fire near the home, had completely enveloped the north side of the house, as well as before Mr. Thompson noticed the blaze. He was working in the kitchen preparing the evening meal when he smelled smoke and went outside to investigate.

Bernard Parker, the owner of the house, was also in the Thompson home when the fire occurred. He, too, made an effort to put out the flames with water but were not successful.

Fanned by a wind off the Bay of Quinte the flames soon spread throughout the house and within an hour from the time the fire was first noticed pie remains toppled to the ground. Today only the cement basement remains among the ashes of the Thompson home.

Mr. Thompson, with the aid of a number of other men from the district, managed to save some of the furniture. Damage was estimated at over $1000 which was only partially covered by insurance.

Last September, the Thompson family had moved to Trenton, about two miles further west along the bay, after their home had been burned to the ground. They had moved in to the house formerly on the fire, and were in the process of rebuilding their own home, which it is to be ready for occupation in a month.

Friends of the family took Mr. and Mrs. Thompson to their homes for the night and they will endeavor to rent another home for a month.

Fire in Trenton Hotel Yard

The Trenton fire brigade made a flash call to the Royal Hotel yesterday afternoon where a fire in the yard was immediately under way out of control. A quantity of garbage was being burned and a wind was scattering the sparks towards the hotel. Fire Chief Jesse Baker brought the fire under control with the aid of two volunteer workers, Messrs. Bowerman and Bell.

Workmen are repairing the pavement on the Bridge Street hill, the town limits which was heaved badly during the past week. The pavement was to be removed in front boils to appear in the pavement and concrete will have been erected to warn motorists.

Letter to The Editor

Toronto, Ont., April 3, 1941

Editor The Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:

The other day there was an item in the news quoting Jean President of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Herb. Hannam, as rebinding a saving of farmers in London, Ont., that "the average farm revenue of a Canadian farmer over the past decade have been $400 a year."

According to the official figures from Ottawa, however, the 1940 earnings of the primary producers the above explorable figure having moved forward to $655. annually, but, by every measurement, even this latter is a modest level and a slim base upon which the average farm family can be expected to build a Canadian standard of living.

The other side of this revenue picture, namely, the earning power of urban Canadians, shows up very clearly in the following reference to the current increase in the national income, in the March 28 letter of the Royal Bank of Canada: "In 1940 the total income of the Canadian people was $5564, millions greater than in 1939, according to preliminary estimates issued in connection with the Sirvey report on Dominion-Provincial relations. This statement indicates that the total income 'paid out' to Canadians during 1940 was $4,594 millions, or $402 per capita."

Of course not all farm populations are included in this national income statement but if exact is decidedly revealing .Ip note the income increase figured as between the present 'improved level (?) of $655 per farm family and the $402 for each of our 11,000,000 people.

Manifestly there is plenty of room for improvement in the daily revenues of rural Canadians, in return for their indispensable services. Accordance to time is in position to know, we deal rather harshly with the small fraction of our population "associated with agriculture," and they receive (according to Premier Bracken of Manitoba) only one-twelfth of the national income.

If the this unbalanced process will get us nowhere, 'except into a post-war depression, when the war contracts come to an end, along with the farmers' physical and financial prosperity.

Importance Of Petroleum In Present War Outlined By Speaker At Rotary

Hitler's attempted drive through the Balkans is aimed at the oil wells of Iran and Iraq, Germany already sees the handwriting on the wall and must secure a greater percentage of oil and petroleum products if she is to continue to prosecute the war, R. E. McKinney, Superiest Petroleum Corporation manager, Toronto, told Belleville Rotarians in a highly informative address on distribution and production yesterday.

Germany will drive hard to get her oil supplies through the Mediterranean, Al Haifa, Britain and France had a large refinery but when France fell Britain "turned the valve", Hitler falls at this course, while he still has Rumania, which is forced to supply all surrounding countries, he must turn to Russia.

Russia, in the speaker's opinion, will dance if Germany plays the tune. During their friendship pact, he stated, the German railroad tracks which are considerably narrower than those of Russia, were supplied with these wider tracks in order to accommodate Russian tank cars carrying oil from the Soviet wells to the German refineries.

Germany produced five million barrels of crude oil in 1938 and is now striving every effort toward the manufacture of synthetic fuel. This situation is important since it takes 100 tons of coal to manufacture 300 gallons of gasoline. Added to this is the fact that Germany's industries need all the coal available, while Italy is crying for coal for her industries.

He urged everyone not to be too critical of Britain if sad news comes from the Balkans. Britain knows how, he said, and must keep her life blood flowing across the Atlantic.

U. S. Produces 61.3% World's Oil

The U. S. A. produced 61.3 per cent. of the world's crude oil in 1938, Mr. McKinney said. In 1939 she produced 1,264 millions of barrels, Russia, 213 millions; Venezuela, 206 millions; Iran, 78 millions; Dutch East Indies, 62 millions; Rumania, 46 millions; Iraq, 31 millions; Germany 5 millions, and Japan 3 millions of barrels.

Eighty per cent. of Germany's oil and petroleum products supplies comes from across the Atlantic, with the greater majority being obtained from Venezuela. Great Britain's supply also comes from Mr. McKinney said, amid applause, England gets the greater part of her oil, the speaker stated. The figures, 67 per cent: Germany got 30 per cent: France, 55 per cent and Italy 61 per cent. From Mediterranean sources Britain secured 30 per cent; France 44 per cent: Germany 16 per cent. and Italy 35 per cent.

Stocks of oil and petroleum in Europe in 1938 included Russia, 72,926,000 barrels; France 22 millions; Germany, nearly 5 millions; Rumania, nine millions and Italy 6 millions. But, the speaker pointed out, United States experts, estimated Germany had nearly 85 million barrels of oils in storage last year. She might reserve some of her petroleum products and will starve the small countries under her heel and from these essential stocks, "She can't do anything else."

Germany Requires Huge Amounts

Germany's highly mechanized forces used 6½ million barrels of products in a normal peace year, Experts estimate that she used a minimum of 100 millions of barrels last year. She would, according to military experts, consume in her military machines, 250 millions of barrels in one year in an all-out war.

Japan, the speaker asserted, was a thorn in the side of Britain. "She is looking with longing eyes at the Dutch East Indies, which with 62 million barrels of oil and petroleum products, is the richest country to get these supplies without going to war if she can do so. That is the reason for the heavy reinforcements sent by Britain to Singapore.

Estimated proven reserves of oil and petroleum products available in the United States, Mr. McKinney said, are 17,246,146,000 barrels. Should the worst come to the worst, if Germany should capture Iran and Iraq, and Japan take over the Dutch East Indies, the fighting in Britain would still stretch across the Atlantic. For not only would these immense reserves be available, but in the sandy areas of Northern Alberta are potential oil fields which are estimated by Dominion experts to be potentially productive of 100 billions of barrels. United States Bureau of Research place their estimate of these resources at nearly double the figure.

Britain's Attacks Consistent

Britain, he continued, knows what she is doing with her consistent aerial attacks on oil-fields, refineries and industrial centres. "Views of these raids may become monotonous, but she is doing a far greater service in destroying these objectives, than blowing down a few apartment buildings or bombs in Berlin and other German cities. She is using her resources to a far greater measure than the world appreciates.

Canada's efforts in the development of petroleum products are progressing steadily, the speaker declared. She is spending millions in the development of her oil resources and has increased her output from 22,000 to 36,000 barrels daily since the war started.

Insofar as the Northern Alberta reserves are concerned, he added, Canada's oil controllers are seeing to it that everything will be done when the time comes to refine. It will be one of the most phenomenal developments in the history of the Dominion.

War Went On Wave of Oil

In conclusion, Mr. McKinney told the chubmen that at the end of the last war, Lord Curzon said the statement that England won on a wave of oil. "In my opinion," he said, "the present war will see Great Britain and her gallant allies float through to victory on another wave of oil".

CREWS OF CANADIAN SHIPS PERMITTED TO LAND IN U.S. PORTS

Sailors who sail out of Canadian ports this week will be permitted to go ashore when their ships dock in United States ports regardless of whether or not they have passports, it was learned in Ottawa yesterday. Last month considerable was occasioned by the refusal to Canadian sailors without passports.

The landing privileges this week will be enjoyed by marine crews, by reason of issuance by the Canadian Government of Seamen's identity certificates which are being issued at eastern ports of entry. These certificates, it is reported, will not only enable the crews of Canadian ships to land in American ports but will also afford them the Foreign Exchange Control Board privilege of taking with them on visits ashore $5 of Canadian funds for emergency purposes.

$800 DAMAGE IN HOUSE FIRE

Furniture Damaged by Water Used in Extinguishing Flames

Damage to the extent of approximately $800 was caused by fire at the residence of Mr. William T. Mason, 100 Station Street, early on Monday morning. The blaze starting in the upper storey gutted the attic and roof of the home.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined but it had gained considerable headway before being discovered by Mrs. Mason, who was awakened by the smell of smoke entering her bedroom. Rousing the other members of the family, the occupants of the house made their way to safety. By the time the fire department were notified the flames were bursting out through the roof of the dwelling. Furniture in the dwelling was damaged considerably as the result of the water which was poured on the flames.

The Mason family are at loss to understand how the flames received the start which did, and owing to the fact that members of the family did not retire until a late hour and no fire was in evidence at that time.

War Services Campaign Nears $13,000 Level

The temperature is slowly rising. Today the thermometer of the Belleville War Service Campaign indicators slightly below $13,000. Trenton's mercury is hovering about the $5,000 mark, while that of Stirling County is nonarch of all it surveys at the $8,000 top and only inches more from the 100 per cent. indications of donations coming in from the enthusiastic Campaign Workers.

The co-operation of general public with canvassers and other campaign workers is gradually pushing the Belleville mercury to the top. Only a few more days are necessary and officials believe that this city, in the Red Cross Drive, will have again covered itself with a glory, yet present a total for the fall assistance to a humanitarian cause is issued.

While the city residents are rising nobly to the occasion, those in the towns, villages and rural areas of the County are doing likewise.

For instance, a long distance telephone call yesterday to campaign headquarters brought the information that in Tweed a gentleman, who wished to be known as "a lazy-mouse" wanted to give more than his county assessment called for, and proffered his cheque for $500.00.

Other residents of the outlying districts are also doing their duty, and the funds are coming in in a manner well beyond expectations.

In the city a caretaker, who had missed the canvassers took a five dollar bill to headquarters. A Canadian National Railways engineer busy at the throttle of his "Iron Horse" when canvassers called, sent his check for $25.00. And so it goes. The response has been in the words of campaign officials, "splendid" and they are hoping for high that the $15,000 if not more, will be collected here.

Anyone wishing to send contributions, or who has not missed the canvassers, when they called should call at 412 Front St., and canvassers will call immediately.

Motorist Prevents Serious Accident

Only the alert actions of a motor car driver averted what might have been a fatal accident on Pinnacle St. yesterday afternoon when three-year-old Bobby Rochon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rochon, 151 Pinnacle St., stumbled and fell while crossing the street near his home. The little lad fell directly in front of a motor car being driven by Mrs. Alex. Dickie, of Carrying Place.

Mrs. Dickie, realizing the seriousness of the situation, applied the brakes of her car with full force with the result she was successful in bringing the automobile to an immediate stop but only a few inches from the prostrate child. Before Mrs. Dickie could get out of her car and lend assistance the little Rochon lad jumped nimbly to his feet, apparently unhurt as he was able into his nearby home, where he was later found hiding beneath the kitchen table, more frightened than injured.

After reporting the incident to the police, Constable Wm. Evans visited the Rochon residence to the scene and all were assured no injuries had resulted. "It was the most tense moment of my life. The little fellow darted out directly in front of my car, stumbled, and then fell right before my eyes and I ever managed to stop my automobile so quickly. I'll never really appreciate," Mrs. Dickie said, after being assured everything was quite in order.

A transparent pill box has been invented that releases only pill or tablet at a time. The bottom is pulled and shows how many remain in the box.

Picton and District

P.E. County Grants $7,300 To War Services Campaign

Picton, (Special)—Prince Edward County Council at a special meeting, voted $17,500 for patriotic purposes this year, the same amount as last year; $5,000 has already been given to the Red Cross for purchase of supplies and $7,300 was granted the War Services Committee on the understanding that they hold no canvass. The remainder of the money will be voted later. It was felt the objective of $10,000 in the War Services campaign was too high for the county and that it is a poor time to hold a canvass in rural districts. It is expected the committee will accept this offer and decide to dispense with a campaign at this busy time.

AFTER 5 YEARS

The capital city, Addis Ababa, until 5 years ago the seat of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, is no longer under Italian rule, for British troops entered the city on Saturday after a march of 1,100 miles in seven weeks. Scattered far and wide are Mussolini's soldiers who may perhaps wage a guerilla warfare but are believed incapable of any action of account.

So passes the glory of a selfish tyrant, the aggressor, Mussolino, as far as Ethiopia is concerned. Five years it is since the Ethiopians left their city to take on guerilla warfare and in that time the Italian Fascists wrote in Ethiopia a story which has roused the Ethiopians. Now the Ethiopians know their capital is in safe hands and has been cleared of the stain of Fascist rule. The warriors know the happy day is near when their beloved Emperor will resume his throne.

Mussolini made scant progress in his five years. The first plunderer to strike for a showdown in Europe, Il Duce found that his success could not help him much for the war clouds were gathering. Dictator Hitler was too busy preparing for the struggle, and Mussolini took time off to make a lunge at Albania on Good Friday just two years ago. Now in 1941 at the same holy time in like manner Hitler has struck at Greece and Yugoslavia another plundering expedition. Mussolini was too greedy for seizure of lands to which he had no right. Fascist colonization has lacked even essentials of good administration. Like a gangster he courted violence and is reaping the whirlwind.

CORNWALL NEWSPAPER A DAILY

For the first time in history Cornwall and the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry have a daily newspaper, the Daily Standard-Freeholder, published at Cornwall, having made its first appearance last week. Though this is the first daily, the people of Cornwall and district have been well served by newspapers for over a century. Exactly one hundred and ten years ago the Cornwall Observer was established. The Standard-Freeholder enters into an inheritance of progress as a result of the finest of traditions which have marked its predecessors from the first.

In 1928 the present owners of the Standard-Freeholder purchased the Freeholder and were soon publishing twice weekly. In 1932 the Freeholder and Standard merged to become the Standard-Freeholder. This paper continued to publish on a twice weekly basis until the when three issues a week appeared. On Tuesday last week the daily was first published.

The growth of the Daily Standard-Freeholder has been parallel with the remarkable development of Cornwall and as it has grown in the past few years its management is confident of continuance of progress with the city of which it is the wall. Today it undoubtedly stands on the threshold of growth, associated with the development of the St. Lawrence waterway.

The Daily Standard-Freeholder is to be congratulated on its fine appearance and makeup, thorough coverage of world-wide, national and local news, the effective handling of the news and its editorial interpretation. It is a newspaper which will have a strong appeal for the people of Cornwall and the United Counties.

The first of the daily issues naturally goes a great deal into retrospect and looks to the future and it is an edition which merits preservation.

That the paper has the best wishes of the people of Cornwall and the district is seen in the greetings which have been expressed for the Daily Standard-Freeholder on its advent into the daily field.

The daily newspapers of the province welcome the Standard-Freeholder to their ranks. The management is progressive and believes in giving the city and district a daily newspaper which will rank among the best of the provincial dailies in Ontario. The newspaper has a fully experienced, capable staff and a properly equipped plant, its aim is to be fully representative of the city and district and its fine start would realize the ambition to serve Cornwall and the district in the most complete manner.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

FAREWELL

Farewell to the Otter . . . Farewell to her crew
Whose winding sheet is the ocean wave,
Whose resting place is the sea they knew
For freedom of which their lives they gave.

Quiet the men of the Otter lie
Deep in the heart of the sea they roved—
Their requiem but the sea gulls' cry
And the tears in the hearts of those they loved.

Lord, in they pity, comfort those
Who speak their names, with trembling lips . . .
Thy mercy is our men disclose
Who go down to the sea in ships.

—G. L. CREED, R.C.A.F.

Down near the Sambro Light, in the balmy days of peace a guide to ocean liners and other ships seeking entrance to Halifax Harbor, if one could take a boat trip to that point of the Atlantic which throws itself at this point against the rock-bound coast of Nova Scotia, one would see bobbing in the waves a small marker or buoy. Closer investigation would reveal the words: "H.M.C.S. Otter." Insignificant perhaps as it rocks in the sea, but to members of His Majesty's Canadian Navy it writes another page in the tradition of the senior service.

For Canada's young seamen, members of the crew of that gallant ship which caught fire and sank off the eastern port on March 26th with the loss of thirteen lives, tried for the first time in the crucible of war, went down with colors flying, faces turned to the west, and a smile on their lips.

Over the simple marker with its gold lettering, sea gulls shrill a daily requiem. The thunderous waves of the Atlantic perhaps temper their blows with a softer touch in salute to the nation's glorious naval dead. Perhaps many another gallant Canadian Jack Tar, as his ship rips through the waves on patrol duty, touches his hand to cap in reverent memory.

For that part of the Atlantic will forever bear a part of Belleville. Telegrapher Earle Davis, son of the late Dr. Morley Day and Mrs. Day of this city, was one of the heroes who went down with his ship.

In the immortal words of Nelson "England expects that every man this day will do his duty." This famous signal was flashed to the fleet at Trafalgar. With the scions of those gallant heroes, every day is a Trafalgar Day. The men of the "Otter" did their duty as they saw it. And they saw it as every British Jack Tar sees it.

Today they mingle with the men of Drake, Frobisher, Grenville, Hawk, the "Rawalpindhi," the "Jervis Bay." In the "Port of Heroes" they stand in ghostly parade, watching with pride the exploits of their fellows in the fleet and its many auxiliaries, as they sweep the seas of the enemy ships.

"We shall remember them." Earle Day and his gallant comrades are not dead. They have but passed on to that glorious company that stand on misty guard in the Valhalla of heroes. Day was well known in this city. Quiet, unassuming, he answered the call of duty when it came. His love was the sea, and he gave his all in the embrace of the mistress whom he loved. Today he sleeps beneath the bosom of the broad Atlantic, but his loved daily caress in a loving tribute the small memorial to the gallant men who have given their all to keep her broad breast free from the scourge that desecrates all it touches.

Belleville has many of her sons in the navy. Although far from where the salt tang of the ocean fills the air and Atlantic and Pacific breakers roll against rocky shores, they come from the breed of British sea-dogs, that today are writing new pages of history in the Empire's golden book of deeds. The gallant sacrifice of one of their fellow residents will but spur them on to greater deeds.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Trailer Travel

(By ARTHUR JONES)

Winter Garden, in Central Florida.—In December 1939 we got what we thought was quite a scoop when the British 10,000 ton cruiser Orion visited Port Everglades, Florida, the 400-foot German motorship Aracus after the latter had been seized and fitted a shot across her bows. The story was printed in this city and Family Herald at that time. We were able to include in the story how small, rubbing along the steel sides of the Hun freighter in a small boat, our assistance in being able to tell a panty fazed young crew member of this enemy ship that they had better not go back to Germany. We now feel certain we had something on that exciting morning.

This German freighter Aracus has now been seized by the U.S. Government along with one other German vessel and 28 Italian ships tied up in U.S. ports. Sabotage had not taken place on the German freighter Aracus when seized in Port Everglades as the cruiser south of Fort Lauderdale on the Florida east coast.

A short time ago when President Roosevelt left Washington by train to board the Presidential yacht Potomac which had been docked at Port Everglades to embark on his cruise in the Caribbean, Sunday fishing in the Gulf Stream off the Florida east coast, the Italian ships in Port Everglades that the Potomac and the Orion were lying near, had a short distance apart. From the stern of the German freighter Aracus a huge Swastika flag, which have no doubt was not very pleasing to the President, was seen by the crew of the Aracus were continually saluting the President's yacht and his party, consisting of high government officials, were held in port by rough seas for three or four days. Throughout this delay in departure the flag was flaunted over this German menace to the President's yacht and the cruiser a short distance away in the same port.

On the return of the Presidential party from their Caribbean cruise ten days later to Port Everglades a fine welcome was given them by the U.S. Government had seized the German freighter Aracus, and when the crew who were now confined in jail, hauled down the Swastika of hatred many, and did with malicious destruction to homes, buildings and other property, the flag of liberty that Britain's strength in the air is forging rapidly ahead of what it tends to use it in a manner that is calculated to bring the war to the German people the relevant truth that two can play this nightmare of indiscriminate bombing and that those who draw the sword must expect, ultimately, to perish by the same weapon.

The number of British bombers are now capable of carrying five times as many tons of bombs. Flying missiles are huge engines of havoc. In the late series of attacks on the central German seaport, one thousand persons are reported to have been killed and three times that number injured. In Hanover, another German city, 1,000 persons were killed, a like number of persons were injured, 6,000 ruins and five hundred other dwellings have been destroyed. Industrial part of Hanover is stated to have been flattened out. Chief of Coastal Command, the Air Ministry reports that sound evidence exists to show that 1,000 German aircraft were destroyed in one hundred days' raids. Britain has been seriously for three days in a large factory in Berlin has also produced "simulative damage" accompanied with many casualties by reason of the inadequate system of air-raid shelters in the German and Italian cities controlled by Hitler and Goering that no British planes would ever get through. Many of Berlin's wealthier citizens have left their pobble for the country.

Thus does condign punishment come to the German people; thus do they get a taste of their own medicine; and thus are they learning that, in this era of the bombing plane, there is no immunity for those who wantonly wage modern war upon the innocent and defenseless. For every Coventry, Plymouth and Glasgow, for every East End of London, Britain is now replying in kind over the densely populated cities of Germany. The Mosaic Law is still the only code that will meet the bombers of idolatry from the eyes of the German masses and bring them face to face with the stark realities of this struggle. — Hamilton Spectator.

Stewart Says—

There's Talk Now Of Making Ireland An American State

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Washington—Canada, as I've had previous occasion to remark, does not want to be United States. No matter what happens to the British empire, if the worst should happen to the empire it wants this country to be an independent Canada.

But to take up a suggestion which has been much bingied as before

Chas. P. Stewart

now about Ireland—Er Mire—to give it its new, or Gaelic, name?

Ireland's in a mightily hilarious position just now.

It's the second time for centuries under what is considered the English yoke that she's really tasted from end to end of the country. She's not said yoke and starting to go it nationally alone. It's understandable that Ireland's de Valera balks at more or less remerging with the country he has been responsible for the "bloody law against the weaker" of the Irish Free State, which evidently thinks it would amount to if he were to turn over to the British the Irish coastal bases that unquestionably they virtually must have for defense and activities in waters adjacent to the Emerald Isle. And Ireland's neutrality in effect, it's a cinch that the Nazis would ask bombing hid little republic ad lib.

Staying Neutral

Yet, on the other hand, suppose Mire stays strictly neutral. Stating neutral is no protection against invasion by the German war machine, so. In fact, he actually has bombed Ireland a bit since the beginning. These bombings were accidental, but possibly, too, they were to Hitler's liking, owing to President de Valera as to what to expect unless he does as he's told to do from Berlin.

An Eye For An Eye

War in this day can have little sentiment or chivalry about it. It is a hideous business, laying waste great cities and killing the innocent. Terrifying suffering upon their inhabitants. Yet there is even-handed justice in the announcement of the British Air Ministry that the heavy raids by the Royal Air Force over Germany took a heavy toll of lives, injured many, and did vast destruction to homes, buildings and other property. It is grim proof that Britain's strength in the air is forging rapidly ahead of what it tends to use it in a manner that is calculated to bring the war to the German people the relevant truth that two can play this nightmare of indiscriminate bombing and that those who draw the sword must expect, ultimately, to perish by the same weapon.

You'd Be Surprised!

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

THE U.S. CAPITOL

The most important building in the United States—the National Capitol—has been insured.

Uncle Sam is his own insurance company and he does not protect his property with insurance policies.

If the U.S. Capitol were taxable, which is not, it would probably be assessed at about $15,000,000 for the building and $10,000,000 for the acres of ground.

There is a popular impression that the U.S. Capitol is white, but it is gray.

The cast-iron dome and the sandstone walls of the central portion, which are now blackened, when the building was burned by the British in 1814, have taken on a harmonize with the natural gray shades of the senate and house wings.

It is customary to paint the sandstone walls and the dome every four years.

About 2,500 gallons of paint are used and the job costs $20,000. Every fall the District of Columbia fire department gives the dome of the Capitol a good scrubbing.

The Capitol dome is regarded as one of the four great domes in the world, the other three being St. Peter's in Rome, St. Paul's in London and Brunelleschi's dome in Florence.

Surmounting the Capitol dome is a large bronze statue of a woman symbolizing liberty.

Officially this statue is known as the Statue of Freedom.

It is often erroneously supposed to represent an American Indian princess from a distance the helmet of the lady somewhat resembles an Indian's war bonnet.

Since the World War the American flag has flown continuously night and day over the east and west fronts of the central part of the Capitol.

When these two flags are never taken down except to clean them or to replace them with new flags.

The flags over the senate and house wings are flown only when the houses of Congress are in session.

The cast-iron dome weighs approximately 8,000,000 pounds.

Upon the architect's office to the dome there are 365 steps—one for every day of the year.

Famous Empire Stories

Tristeth Da Cunha

There was a time, during the 18th and 19th centuries, when Portuguese seamen were exceedingly famous for their enterprise and adventure, for they sailed until only his anthorsep far and wide to extend his domain in unknown shores and islands. Among the bravest of seamen were Tristan da Cunha and Alfonso Albuquerque. These two he sent with a fleet of sixteen to sail to India to protect and Emanuel, his cousin and brother. Tristan da Cunha was the Chief Captain, or Admiral of the fleet.

One morning just as they were going round the Cape of Good Hope they saw land far to the westward, which in the glow of sunrise looked red very beautiful. They knew that no land had even been discovered there, and so Captain Albuquerque suggested to Tristan da Cunha that they should go and look at it more closely.

The Admiral himself was quite keen on discovery; he agreed, and at once gave orders to carry out the suggestion. The vessels all changed their course and headed for the unknown shore. It was a long way to go, but at last they arrived at the land, which proved to be a small island. This group they named Tristan da Cunha, after his brave friend, who had explored them. This was in the year 1506.

The group of islands is governed by behind the black, rugged rocks, and at the same time a stormy wind sets in, and the ships at anchor tempt to land, but turned to go beach for the night. Tristan da Cunha and Captain Albuquerque became very famous for their discoveries and conquests. There is an old poem which tells of the wanderings of the "great Cunha." Very many years passed before any homes, except the nests of the seabirds, were built on either of the four islands which make the group of Tristan "a Cunha." These are, Tristan, Inaccessible, Nightingale and Stoltenhoff Islands. The latter is being about sixteen square miles in extent, and is the only one inhabited. It is almost circular in shape. Steep rocky cliffs form the coast line, except on the northwest where the anchorage and settlement are. There is a mountain 7240 feet high. Inaccessible, the nearest of the other islands, is thirty miles away, and Gough is 250.

Long years after their discovery the islands were explored by the Dutch and French, but left unclaimed and uncolonized. During the close of the 18th century some American sealers built on their home for a time.

In 1811 there were three people living in Tristan—an American, a Portuguese and a native of Minorca. The American, Jonathan Lambert by name, called himself "Prince of Tristan and Lord of Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands". The reign of Prince Lambert did not last long. Seeking for a wife, in the following spring he disappeared; it was supposed that he was drowned. Before long the Portuguese went away, and only the Minorcan was left.

It was at this time that Napoleon was imprisoned on St. Helena, 1500 miles distant. Partly for this reason, as a safeguard against possible trouble from the flight of this notorious jail-bird, the British Government took formal possession of the unclaimed group and placed on Tristan a small garrison.

The solitary Minorcan gladly welcomed the soldiers. He became a very steady customer at their canteen and always seemed well supplied with money. He used to talk about a hidden treasure, but he died suddenly without revealing the secret, and though the soldiers sought for the golden hoard they never found it.

When Napoleon died the garrison, being no longer needed, was removed from Tristan. Corporal William Glass, a sergeant Cotter, Roxburgh, with his young wife and two children, had grown attached to the place and obtained permission to remain. Two masons also stayed, in order to give them a good start the officers left a few sheep and cattle and whatever other things they could spare.

Not long afterwards these people were joined by two old sailors who were taken with the idea of a free, independent life on the far-away island. Being warmly welcomed, they built themselves a house which they called Bachelors' Hall. Here they lived, bare-free and well contented.

The small community found plenty to supply their simple needs. As time passed their cattle and sheep increased; they had also pigs, hens and ducks; wild goats could be caught occasionally, and fish were plentiful, also seals in their early years. The soil was rich, and they grew such vegetables as cabbages, carrots, celery, turnips, beets, lettuce, onions, potatoes, etc., in abundance.

Now and again they were visited by a vessel from the Cape Town or some other port and a bringing a few new inhabitants. One day a schooner from South America anchored at Tristan da Cunha. On board was a young artist, Mr. Earle, who landed to do some sketching for a day. As he was not on hand when the schooner was ready to return the skipper went off without him. However he used Mr. Earle may have felt at being left in the lurch he had the best of it, for he had it and spent a very interesting six months at Tristan before he was able to get away. During all that time he says he never once saw a ship and took on a human face.

The community at that time lived in six houses built of wreck timber and thatched with the long tussock grass that grew so rankly on the island. There were eight grown-upe, including two women, Mrs. Glass and Mrs. White, the wife of a young sailor.

The young artist found much to interest him, and many a pretty picture to add to his sketch book. He describes the island as full of vegetation, but the were a few unfriendly trees, and the only fruit some he knew, such as sow thistle, dandelion, wild celery, mesembryanthema, seaweed, etc. There were plenty of trees, but none grew very tall. Flowers grew wild, and were loved by thousands on Inaccessible Island, also there were albatrosses, gulls and other seabirds; besides a very small mosquito.

By and by Mr. Earle found himself sadly in need of some new clothes. He had a rude tartan cloak, however, and Mr. Glass, the governor of the little community, promised to make the cloak into a complete suit. Mr. Earle waited and waited until he began to fear he would be reduced to Adam's garb. But this was no garden of Eden; the sea winds swept over the island so furiously at times that eventually the people had to build themselves houses instead of their wooden ones. So at last he went to Mr. Glass and inquired how the suit was coming on.

"Mr. Earle", said the governor apologetically, "it's no use holding out any longer. I have had your clothes on the cloak out several times, the scissors in man hand; but it's the first tartan that ever came to Tristan da Cunha, and I cannot find it in my heart to cut it to pieces".

"Make me a pair of trousers of the cloak, sir", Mr. Glass, the artist good-naturedly, "and you may keep the tartan."

So he made, proud and happy, set to work in earnest, and a few days later the young artist was exultantly clothed in a pair of trousers with fronts of sailcloth and backs of goatskin.

In the evenings while outside the wind howled and the sea thundered against the cliffs, the little community would gather round the fire in the governor's house, singing songs and telling stories. The only refreshment offered at these social gatherings was a cup of tea made from the fragrant leaves of a plant they called the tea plant, as observed. It had to be calculated. More trouble arose. The astronomical mathematicians did not agree on the cycle to be used as the basis of calculation.

Mr. Earle remained on the island for seven months, and left Tristan in 1812 with a little more. Their flocks and herds increased to some hundreds; but for a long time they never tasted bread, for the rats and mice destroyed the grain. Sorrow and distress have as times visited the little community, but on the whole, cupsized with fifteen men, leaving only four men on the island. There have been several migrations since to the United States and others to the Cape.

In 1875 Lord Carnarvon sent the steamship Diamond on a mission of enquiry to Tristan da Cunha. On its arrival the whole settlement kept holiday. A young girl and a boy of seventeen were married by the chaplain, for at that time there was no resident minister; and twenty-three children were baptized. There was an abundant and well-served wedding feast, to which the ship's officers were invited.

One year a bishop of the Church of England came over from Cape Town to visit them. A stone church was built, and for a while the Rev. J. Taylor lived on the island. He looked after the spiritual needs of the people, and the education of the children. They grew very fond of him, and when he was transferred to the Cape several families went with him. There have since been a succession of missionary teachers.

Now and again the island is visited by a ship bringing tons of necessities and luxuries, from rats-traps to musical instruments and radios. The last we heard of this interesting little outpost of the Empire, the lossiest band in the world, the inhabitants numbered about 150. They were managing their affairs very peacefully, and drunkenness and crime were unknown.

ONLY TWICE IN THIS CENTURY DOES EASTER FALL ON APRIL 13

By THOMAS WATLING

General Press Canadian Writer

Easter: "a Christian festival in commemoration of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, celebrated throughout the Christian world on April 13."

It is not an anniversary, for the date of Easter varies around the calendar like an Easter rabbit.

Only twice in the present century will Easter Day fall on April 13; this year and in 1952.

The Christian Easter was the Anglo-Saxon Eostra or Eostera name.

The Christian Easter is set by ecclesiastical authorities as the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after the 21st March."

With the pagans Eostra meant welcoming over the arrival of spring. With the Jews it is a commemoration of the Passover, with the Christians, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection.

The Hebrews held that their Passover must come on the 14th day of the month. In the Christian church there was much dissension about Easter Day. The Asiatic Christians observed Easter Day on the Sunday and the eastern Christians, on the 14th day, irrespective of what day it might be.

Fixed by Council of Nicaea

The Council of Nicaea in A.D. 325 decided Easter should be celebrated on a Sunday and that it should be the Sunday following the full moon after the vernal equinox, March 21.

The full moon, however, could be 13 days after March 21 and so had to be calculated. More trouble arose. The astronomical mathematicians did not agree on the cycle to be used as the basis of calculation.

Dionysius Exiguus in 525 and Irish churches commemorated Easter on different days for a long period of years.

In 1582 the calendar and the sun were 10 days apart, and Pope Gregory XIII had to exercise 10 days' leap year to get March 21 where it really belonged.

Sometimes March 21 wasn't really March 21. It was just a day they thought was March 21.

Careful scientific investigation puts the mean, probable date of Easter Day as April 9. Under the present system Easter Day only becomes thrice on April 9 in the present century; in 1939, 1944 and 1950. And then not again for 84 years.

As Easter Day dominates about 17 weeks of the church calendar in its fluctuations, the Council of Nicaea, 1600 years ago, had a job.

In 1928 the British parliament passed a private bill to establish that Easter would be the first Sunday after the second Saturday in April.

Could Be Fixed Date

There is no real need for Easter to jump about any more than Christmas. December 25 is celebrated as the anniversary of the birth of Christ, but nobody knows if it is the real anniversary.

Theophilus of Antioch recorded that the Gauls celebrated the birth of our Lord on the 25th of December. Chrysostom said that the day declared Jesus was born on the 25th day of December and that it was a Wednesday.

A Latin chronographer of A.D. 354 stated that Christ was born on 25th of December, a Friday. A Greek chronologists put the birth date variously on August 28, May 20, April 19, and 20, and January 6. Alexandria set it at November 17, 18 or 20.

In Africa, a learned writer in A.D. 240 argued that the world was created perfect: flowers in bloom, trees in fruit and therefore in the spring. "Now the sun was not, he wrote, "were created on a Wednesday. Fix the date by reference to all these considerations, therefore, Christ suffered on the 25th of March", he says, was born on March 28."

Many Christians, however, by the dozens—and their aunts, still have a bit of the pagan—Easter is the coming of spring—and spring means Easter. Easter is almost herself in the spring, but it is nature's spring, not the church's. Easter won't send up crocus and daffodils and spring flowers if Easter happens to fall on the earliest days of March; nor without them when Easter is at the tag end of April. The wonenfolk, however, are the ecclesiastical Easter.

Is the Easter which may be Easter (and usually isn't) demoralizes the spring fashion show, and the Easter bonnet? Pretend connected therewith. The womenfolk resting spring fashions when they it will be Easter and spring and they're not. Hence the customary uncertainty of the weather.

Palestine Spring

In Palestine, at the time of first Easter, nonn witnessed the Resurrection, spring already was there, as the general run for North America, probably about the same time as the southern states. A fixed Easter around April 9 would be a fairly close approximation of spring.

At the general convention of the Episcopal Church in Atlantic City, October, 1928, a United Press survey showed that 75 per cent. of those who voted were in favor of a fixed Easter and 18 for the status quo. (Which is to say, Easter Day is concerned is never the status quo).

Proposals have been made before the League of Nations for the reform of the calendar and after the present war, steps may be taken, among the democratic reforms to establish a new system of days and weeks and months—and feast days and fast days. Easter is the most movable of all the calendar dates, and when it's Easter once more, probably no one will notice it is or it isn't or when it is.

One of the sites which attracts pilgrims who go to the Holy City to attend the Easter services. It is a view of the Bare Rock in front of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

The year's work of the V.O.N. was carefully outlined in an interesting report by the V.O.N. convener, Mrs. J. Lynch. This had been the busiest and most successful year in the association, 1127 patients receiving 6,145 visits. There were 150 mothers cared for. Health teaching for adults and children was an essential part of the service. A Red Cross conference is held each week, with 445 preschool age children receiving attention, and medical and dental inspection. Appreciation was expressed to the League and the K. of C. for donations and to those who contributed to the campaign and tag day.

Miss K. Dolan, Travellers' Aid convener, reported that there were few demands made on this department.

Art Of Ruth Draper Captivates Audiences Of World Tours

Ruth Draper who has endeared herself to Canada in the last two decades is an actress in the grand tradition. Alone on stage she conjures with magic pantomimic dialects from every walk of life with the truth and authenticity that is the artist's genius. Her universal appeal has made her a delight to audiences in every nook of the globe—from New York to Singapore. All who have watched her once have fallen under her spell and returned to see her again. After a year's absence during which she toured North and South America, Miss Draper once more heightened the Canadian sky in which her star has become fixed.

Some of the magic of the stage is sleight-of-hand, deception and brightly diverting. But again it is true enchantment. That is when the curtain lifts as though it were the obstruction to pull knowing of just what. Then the proscenium arch spans life's extents; then the stage reveals life's patterns and plans this is the true enchantment of Ruth Draper.

In a little over a year ago Miss Draper turned over to the Canadian Red Cross Society a cheque for $16,250.56 representing her net receipts on a tour of less than four weeks. This year the entire net receipts will a gain be donated to that same worthy organization.

Miss Draper will present a carefully selected group of her famous character sketches' at the Capitol Theatre on Tuesday evening, April 29th, at 8.30 p.m.

To Present Oratorio In Aid Of British War Victims' Fund

On Good Friday evening, April 11th at 8 p.m. in Christ Church, the oratorio entitled "The Saviour of the World" by Sir Sydney Nicholson will be rendered by a choir of fifty male voices under the direction of Mr. Ernest Hall, choirmaster, George N. Mayhew is aid to the British War Victims' Fund. The oratorio is unusual in design giving wonderful scope for contrasting effects of expression and tonal effects. It was written by Sydney Nicholson while Prime Minister Abbey and dedicated to Edward VII and George the King.

The soprano solos written specially for the occasion will be taken by Masters Jack Shaddock, Gordon Watkins and Bruce Wood, all of whom have been heard at their solo usual talent. The tenor soloist will be Mr. Ernest Hall, baritone solo parts will be Messrs. B. Hamilton and E. Hayward. An interesting sidelight regarding the music is that it was obtained from the publishers in London, England in the remarkably short period of three weeks from the time of ordering to its arrival.

The choirs as a whole are asked to respond to this appeal to aid the "War Victims' Fund" on this first Good Friday evening in a delightful performance and contributing liberally to the collection.

A DAY of progress and opportunity may be read from the dominant planetary aspects. While there may be some friction, anxiety, difficulty with want of cooperation from those in high places, there is nothing protended which may not be offset by the advent of a surprising and quite unlooked-for opening which may eventually lead to advancement, pleasure and probably unusual adventure. This may concern the emotional or romantic life as well as business prospects. The higher creative faculties are under splendid stimuli for original work.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a progressive and rewarding year, with sudden openings that hold gainful, constructive and pleasant culmination. The inventive faculties are under fine auspices for developing original lines. While there may be some minor friction, opposition and imposition, on the whole affairs should move into pleasant places, with romance and adventure among the possibilities.

A child born on this day should have excellent opportunity for expressing the creative talent and originality, with much genius in invention. There will be interest in romance, adventure and unusual experiences being pleasant.

Not Keeping Medicine Chest Up to Date Can Cause Tragedy

A medicine cabinet is one of the most important things in the household. That is, if it is well-managed. If it isn't, it is more of a liability than an asset.

If it contains poisons in bottles or boxes so placed that they may be reached by youngsters, or so that they may be mistaken for other medicines by adults, then the medicine chest is as much of a menace in a home as a loaded gun left lying around. If the medicines are allowed to lie around year after year without replacement until they deteriorate in strength or devitalized, the cabinet is equally a menace.

Just this winter in the back country up here, a youngster was taken down with diphtheria and the doctor couldn't get to the place for some time. Meanwhile, the mother, to the family over the telephone, discussed the need for cleaning the wound and keeping it free from infection. He asked what antiseptics there were in the house, and was told there was iodine. So he gave instructions on how to administer this iodine so as to kill any infection present. A couple of days later, the doctor learned to get through to the home by going a good part of the way by snowshoe after the parents had telephoned a frantic appeal for the doctor to come.

He found the child dying of blood poisoning and discovered that the iodine used was several years old and all its qualities had been lost. He took one sniff and knew that the mother had managed her medicine chest properly and had no iodine on hand. The child would have lived. In a remote home such as that was, it is very easy for the medicine chest be kept up to date. But even in a home within a block of a drug store, it is still important. For there are busy times for the store, too, and very flatdering, too! Attractive double panels give the skirt fresh line, like the smartly bloused bodice. The buttons down the front are real and has decoratively stitched darts at the shoulders. Notice the subtle feminine effect of the matching or contrasting collar. MURDER SAILS TROOPSHIP

By A. W. O'Brien

"I am on the eve of a Troopship . . . every sailing is reached by a rumour that a Nazi agent will be among the Canadians . . . drama at sea as when mines strike with each water on the swaying deck . . . a bland name and a young Montreal officer torn between love and duty . . . a fictional thriller in a real life setting . . ." By The Montreal Standard. The VIP reporter who accompanied the First Division to England, The Standard believes, in its First Publication Novel to be one of the most gripping and "different" full-length novels ever presented to the Canadian public.

"I regret to state gentlemen," said the Commodore presiding at the Troopship Staff Officers' conference, "that the British Intelligence has obtained positive information a Nazi agent will be among the troops sailing with our next convoy tomorrow . . ."

Across the polished mahogany table the sea dogs' bronzed faces failed to register any emotion. Only their cigars' sugar and cigarette ashes, their motionless postures and their unbroken tense suspense permeating the chamber hinted at the carefully concentrated in the gathering of Canadian and British naval officers.

They were in full uniform, the gold-braided sleeves revealing three held the rank of Captain and two bore the wavy stripes of Commodore, though they had been no hundred officers of higher rank who had voluntarily relinquished them to return to active service as "Navy Navy" men. One of these latter was the quiet-spoken, grey-haired man who had won the rank of Admiral in the last war, but who limp in his right leg and a line of high decoration ribbons on his left breast up near the shoulder told of service under fire.

He spoke you'd imagine a marble statue would speak—in a dull, tense voice. He made no no attempt to dramatize. Fact followed fact from behind the details instructions that had preceded the bombshell announcement he had carefully explained the time interval between sailing leaving the Eastern Canadian Naval base line. He had described the positions which the escorting warships must assume on reaching open water. He had carefully detailed and repeated the various measures that would be adopted in case of emergency. He outlined the course to be followed in good seas, fog and moonless night. Of the general order of the convoy, the rendezvous point with Royal Navy home escort somewhere between Canada and their ultimate overseas destination he would, he added, be provided in sealed orders to be sent aboard the warship at the last moment.

The captains of the troopships and the military commanders taking the men aboard each troopship had, a few days previously, received their limited instructions and sailing orders. The Commodore was restricted solely to the escorting warships' commanders.

"This Nazi agent," continued the speaker, "is unknown to Canadian authorities but British Intelligence declares that he is a fully qualified member of one of the units. Since some 20,000 men will be sailing in the convoy, the task of unearthing each and every individual soldier at this late date to be on the watch for a Nazi agent that the investigation would reveal the spy.

"From the information obtained, it must be assumed that the fact that this spy's assignment is one fraught with reckless disregard for his personal safety. He is, on some night during the crossing, to provide signal lights or other information for either submarine or aerial attack or a combination of both. The purpose is to sink at least one troopship unless the Nazi Spy mine would confidence in the convoy's own to be at its utmost strength.

"The nastiness of the information and the fact that it does not affect escorting strength is self-apparent. We must rely only upon for the arrest this creature, but we must watch for treachery aboard troopships as well. Are there any questions?"

A rosy-cheeked Lieutenant raised his hand—for all the world like a youngster in school.

"Sir, have you any details on the suspected spy—any description, for example, that, would probably be of assistance in the event of our noticing suspicious activity?"

The Commodore shook his head. "We have no information other than I have given you. It would appear that British Intelligence has intercepted some confidential report which indicated that the agent had a key position in the convoy's passage. What this job is we can only guess, but the fact remains that the Nazis are vitally in need of some additional victory to buck up the morale of the folks in Germany. And anything short or ships is a victory worth any murder heaviest naval guard would definitely be a Nazi score.

"For the next few minutes be discussed ordinary and emergency communication signals to be used during the crossing. This data was all contained in "Strictly Confidential" sheets given each officer.

Finally, all queries had been answered, the Commodore spoke again.

"And now I have further news that will probably leave a lot of you unhappy, but the order is based upon solid reasoning. As most of you know, there is a large convoy and ship convoy lying ready to sail. Enemy submarines have been on the merchantmen and troopships would sail separately because of their widely different speeds. This will not be the case. We shall sail together under a joint escort, the strongest I may add, that has ever joined issue with enemy raiders.

There was a murmur of protest. These sea dogs knew what a chore it would be to keep handling the ponderous freighters and preventing the troop-laden ocean greyhounds from colliding with the freighters in the event of any dirty weather—doubly so if they should run into a patch of fog.

The Commodore fingered an ear as the murmur of protest circulated around the table. It had always been his opinion that grousing was an inborn part of the naval man's make-up. He let the brittle boil for a few moments before continuing.

"Further discussion may be undertaken when I have called the gentlemen assembled in the next room. They are the captains of the freighters scheduled to sail with this convoy. That is all, sir, sir."

The Commodore fingered an ear as the murmur of protest circulated around the table. It had always been his opinion that grousing was an inborn part of the naval man's make-up. He let the brittle boil for a few moments before continuing.

Oshawa Generals Established As Favorites to Win Series After Beating Montreal Royals 10-2

Motor City Aggregation Shows Complete Reversal of Form in Monday Night's Game

ALWAYS ON TOP

Roy Sawyer, Ron Wilson and Ron Nelson Turned "The Hat Trick"

By ROBERT CLARKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—Oshawa Generals so hot on occasions that they sizzle and so cold at other times they would give an Eskimo a chill, had hockey thermometer showing high temperatures once again today as they were establishing heavy favorites to win their best-of-five game series with Montreal Royals for the Eastern Canadian Junior Championship.

The Generals, memorial Cup champions for the past two years, gave one of their frigid displays here last Saturday night to lose the first game of the series 7-4, but last night they showed a complete reversal of form to trounce Royals 10-2. The teams meet here tomorrow night in the third game.

Criticized by their supporters for failure to back-check in the first game, the Generals played the complete 60 minutes of the second contest with a business-like air. They were particularly good in covering up in front of their net, in comparison to a loose display by the Royals when the Generals were in the Montreal end.

Three Tom "Hat Trick" Three of Oshawa players—Roy Sawyer, Ron Wilson and Ron Nelson—chalked up the "hat trick" while the other General goal went to Bowser Lunn who had the honor of scoring the series to five. The Montreal scorers were Ken Modell and Sunny Glover.

Royals, who scored five goals in the last 10 minutes to win the first game, never were in the running in the second contest. They got off on the wrong foot when McAdam and Sawyer scored in the first two minutes of play and from then on there was only thing in doubt was just how high the Generals would run the score.

Goalie Dick Schaad of the Generals, who broke his leg in the first contest, wasn't bothered much in the second game due to the tight checking of his teammates. Whenever a lonely player went to shoot in front of the Oshawa net it seemed that an Oshawa man was always on hand to edge him off or raise his stick.

Hamilton Boxer Scores Knockout

New Orleans, April 8 (AP)—Jackie Calhoun of Hamilton, Ont., Canadian lightweight, tonight made a scored a technical knockout over Jimmy Perrin of New Orleans in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Calhoun weighed 128 1-2; Perrin 127 1-2.

Perrin, who has met and defeated many of the ranking featherweights, outboxed Calhoun for the first two rounds, ran into a terrific left hook in the third and Referee Shaughnessy went down for counts of eight and nine in the same round. Referee Red Dolan stopped the fight after Calhura sent him to the floor again.

OSHAWA BOXER WINS

Newark, N.J., April 8 (AP)—Jack Delaney, Oshawa, Ont., veteran, scored his second victory over Wallace Ross Saturday night, outpointing the 18-year-old East Orange negro in Laudell Gardens's feature eight-round boxing bout. Delaney weighed 180, Ross 168.

Delaney outmarried and outpounded the former National A.A.U. champion in a vicious punching duel to take three rounds on referee Joe Mondell's scorecard. Ross took one while the other four were called even.

KINGSTON—STRIKE SETTLED

Kingston, Ont., April 8—(CP)—A week-long dispute between Brick-layers and the Contractors Association ended here Monday night when the bricklayers agreed to accept a rate of $1.05 cents an hour.

Previously bricklayers had asked an increase of 10 cents an hour. Problem must be slipping fast, accpted the compromise rate.

Never Be Another Bobby Jones Say Professional Golfers

Augusta, Ga., April 8 (AP)—There'll never be another Bobby Jones, say the golf professionals who meet him annually in the Augusta Masters' tournament. They expect that Jones, the champion, never could come back.

Jones, who retired after his unequalled grand-slam in 1930 when he won the British and United States open and amateur crowns, turned up his mighty swing in the Masters' Sunday with 30's. The score, compiled on four rounds of over-par golf, left him 40th in a field of 47, 17 strokes behind the new champion, Craig Wood. But he preserved his retirement record; he has yet to take more than 79 in competition.

The adulterated king of golfers shoots 40's and 80's on his home course, Atlanta's East Lake Country Club, and played brilliantly at Nassau recently in a Red Cross benefit match with Sammy Armour, Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen.

Could Bobby come back if he hit the golf trail again? The top-flight pros at Augusta think not.

"The field is a lot faster today," says Byron Nelson open champion. Lawson Little: "When Jones had 10 competitors in 1930, he'd have 50 today. He's still a great golfer—he could be an even better one if he took tournament tough. But never the Jones of 1930. There'll never be another Jones or another grand slam."

BASKETBALL

Filling up a mammoth initial engagement advance the R.C.A.F. Flyers emerged with a 5 point lead over the Y.M.C.A. seniors in the first game of the O.H.A. Intermediate basketball final playdowns last evening when the "Airmen" defeated the Local Athletic 52 to 28 here.

The R.C.A.F. cagers ran rampant in the initial half to score 29 points and at the end of the game had the "Y" squad to three baskets and six points. The Campbell Memorial contingent rallied in the second half, however, and scored seventeen points while the "Airmen" notched a single point and continued their scoring spree to finish with George Dudgeon. The "Y" boy out-scored the ultimate winners 22 to 21 in the two periods but could not hope to haul down the mammoth advantage established earlier in the game by the Fliers.

Bert Campbell and Carson led the R.C.A.F. boosters on the scoring end and at the same time halted Art Cole of the Y.M.C.A. Dudgeon, with 16 points, was the other Flier to hit the scoring column more points than any player on either squad. The second game of the league finals will be played at the "Y" on Wednesday evening.

Times Like These

Mr. Henry Cotton of Essex Centre, senior surviving partner of Cotton and Higgins (Dry Goods, Millinery, Notions, Fancy Goods, China and Glassware) looked as though burdened with the worries of the world.

"Stock-taking time," sighed he. "Waiting on customers all day, writing up my inventory half the night. I simply don't know where I'm at. And I won't get any sleep, I suppose, until after my trial balance."

"Henry," said Mr. Picobac, "you need a sea voyage : : ha trip to the West Indies, or some place."

"Fat chance!" snorted Mr. Cotton.

"Well then, Henry, console yourself," counselled Mr. Picobac, extending his handy Picobac pouch. "Sunny southern Ontario is a whole lot closer than the West Indies—and Canadians are on their jobs in times like these. Just fill up your pipe with this prime, conditioned Burley, the pick of Canada's crop, and we'll have a mild : : : cool : : : sweet smoke, my kind of one. We've got Picobac — that's something to be thankful for."

"It DOES taste good in a pipe!"

SASKATOON BEATS WINNIPEG TO EVEN WESTERN SERIES

Quakers' Win Sparked by Superb Display by Russ Certell

SCORE IS 4-1

Winnipeg, April 8 (CP)—Sparked by a superb goal tender, Russ Certell, Saskatoon Quakers rode right back into the running for the junior hockey championship of Western Canada here last night by whipping Winnipeg Rangers 4-1 before 2,100 fans.

Saskatoon's triumph tied the best-of-seven series for the Abbott cup at one game each. Rangers captured the first game Friday 5-4 and the third contest will be played here Wednesday night. Tested only occasionally during the first two periods, Certell backed his teammates to the hilt with a sparkling third period performance. Time after time the Rangers broke through on top of the Quaker net and each time but once Certell foiled their efforts.

Quakers backed their scoring with solid body-checking which handcuffed the flying Rangers in the attacking zone. Going into the first period Rangers' net minder, Hal Thompson, stopped nine shots while Certell blocked seven and in the second period Certell was called upon to stop only four drives on his net while Thompson faced 21 shots.

Forced to Offensive

Forced to take the offensive in the last session, Rangers stormed the Quakers goal. Twenty-two times they swarmed in behind the defensive duo in a whirlwind finish.

Eddie Dickson, smooth winger, got the second Quaker goal on a solo effort. Allan Shabgos took Rangers' pass for the third and Ken Ullyot scored after goal-mouth scramble-man Hughie Miller banged into Thompson before the latter could replace his single goal.

Nine penalties were served during the game, five against the Quakers and four by Rangers.

Former Grocer Boy Drafted To Oppose The Brown Bomber

St. Louis, April 8 (AP)—Everything else having failed, a former grocery boy has been drafted to oppose heavyweight champion Joe Louis tonight.

Tony Musto, a Chicago Italian is a short and stubby as a sack flour cut, is championship material in the parade of fistic talent that has included fat men, skinny men, clowns and even an orthodox gentleman or two in Louis' stop-a-month tour of the country.

Musto, who graduated from delivery boy to ranked prelifter before turning fighter, will be one of the 20,000 expected to jam the arena when he steps into the ring against Champion Louis.

"F. D. R." Warms Up For His Eighth Major Baseball Opener

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Washington, April 8 (AP)—The only wild pitcher in baseball who always get a coveted opening day starting assignment leaves for the American League Senators. He lives in an old house at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. The name: Mr. President of the United States. F. D. R., if you learned up and ready to throw. Barring sudden international developments requiring his attention, he'll flip out the ball starting baseball's 1941 season here April 15.

His throws generally are wild. He's not a good pipeline to the boys. At any rate, he looks toward home plate but his tosses land anywhere near first base. While his 1941 job is in the air there'll be a scramble among Senator and Yankee players, then some obscure athlete named Joe will grab the agate and Mr. Will Harridge's men-in-blue will take charge and the campaign will be under way.

No one seems to know just how it started, this custom of the President lending his official presence to the annual launching of America's national game. William Howard Taft was the first Mr. Big to take part. That was in 1910.

Two years later Clark Griffith came to Washington and persuaded the value to the game of the President's participation and Chief Executive has worked every opener since.

His Eighth Opener

Roosevelt the precedent-breaker will break another when he tosses out the first ball to baseball. That will be his eighth appearance. No other President has performed the chore more than twice. Even Grover Cleveland Alexander substituted for Roosevelt in 1939 when rain postponed the scheduled opening here.

Roosevelt made the worst pitch of his opening day career last year. A sop finally recovered the ball and the President autographed it for him.

Back in April of 1917—the month the United States entered the First Great War—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt helped Manager Griffith hoist the American flag, a patriotic ceremonies preceding the opener.

The Third Place

From a control and stuff-on-the-ball standpoint the current Master of the Mansion ranks only third among the six presidential pitchers who rated:

1. Warren G. Harding. He was the best. Hasting owned the Marin team in the old Ohio State League. He played pat frequently and was always in good shape. He'd wind up and let go a hard fast ball right over the plate.

2. Woodrow Wilson. He didn't have much speed but his control was o. k.

3. Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

4. Calvin Coolidge. No speed, no slip. His heart wasn't in the game.

5. William Howard Taft. His bulging bay window interfered with his pitching motion.

6. Herbert Hoover. Nothing on the ball.

Although Taft was the first to be actively connected with the game, Roosevelt probably has the best baseball and went to games more frequently than other fans or sports. William McKinley was a red-hot fan. It has been said that Lincoln was the first baseball fan man and gave his approval to baseball as a game during the days of the Civil War.

The least one President liked to place small bets on baseball. That was Harding. He reportedly won $500 from Ty Cobb on a world series test. Harding understood the finer points of the game. He enjoyed sweeping his own scorecard.

SYDNEY STAGES COMEBACK TO DEFEAT ROYALS

Playing in Ottawa, Millionaires Even Series With Montreal Royals

SCORE IS 5-3

By T. R. WALSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 8 (CP)—Sydney Millionaires came from behind to defeat Montreal Royals 5-3 Monday to deadlock at a game apiece their best-of-five series for the right to represent Eastern Canada in the Allan Cup hockey finals.

Overcoming the first frame lead, the Easterners slapped in three markers in the second visitory rout a reply, and then split even on the final period's four tallies.

Little Pete Morin registered a pair for Royals, but Sydney had no trouble scoring. Jimmy Sherratt tallies went to Jack Pritis, Steve Laicell, Johnny McCreery, Dick Kowcinak and Bobby Walton. Russ McConnell counted Montreal's markers.

Less than 4,000 fans saw the game, second of the series to be played in Ottawa which had been assigned to Sydney as home ice. The series opened last Wednesday with a 3-3 tie here, and Royals won 3-1 in Montreal Saturday to force the second contest.

The supreme effort to bring the local softball moguls together tonight is to be made in order to clear the decks for another season in ear and that Toronto is definitely going to sponsor a junior squad. The tournament are back again, while rumors have the Maple Leafs willing, able and willing. However, nothing authentic has been advanced regarding Harrigan, former Corby A.C. mentor whom every person in the building is sure will coach Belleville team taken from the remnants of the Corby squad. Hayes of 1940, Johnnie Bawden and Claude Bonter are the only two secondmen left locally, Lum Bawden having left for Toronto and Eddie Schrieber having migrated to Campbellford. However, Fred-die Veal's big bat will be in the may line-up with the proposed nine. Still there is no word as to be sufficient material available for two city entries without hurting the Reliance of course. Secretary Harry Keech is anxious to get a strong four-clubbed, city league formed, which would mean more than an unbalanced five or six-clubbed organization, which seems to be good logic.

Do you remember when the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association met in Belleville and decided on a playoff today, adopted two professional rulings which have been in force for three scores, instead of two, was the first time that a player was given the puck in the third zone was started.

Abe Simon, the heavyweight giant, who went 13 rounds with Joe Louis in Detroit, was appointed deputy police commissioner of Long Beach, L.I. community by Mayor Theodore Cronin, reports the Associated Press.

Simon, a former resident of Long Beach, served as patrolman there in the summers of 1937, 38 and 1939. The mayor is also the police commissioner.

Fred Craig, writing in the Peterboro' sheet, suggests the Kingston and Peterboro' teams just about tops as being the twelfth man, a tremendous asset in wrestle. Continuing on the subject Fred says: "These unpredictable, inter-plainable Kingston Combines have done it again. With only another win needed to give them the Ontario Senior B championship the Kingston gang came up with a Combine that, in their numerous bad games and as a result of their poor showing in the first two games, they finished them 5 to 4 and the series is all even at three games each. Let's hope that the Kingston Combines will probably flash back to their best form and take the banners. Few teams in O.H.A. history have been such in-and-outers as this Limestone City outfit. They have been beaten half a dozen times on their own ice this season, on a number of occasions by clubs who should not have been there any place. And then the next time they met the same teams they just mowed them all over the lastscape. They have been Kingsville, however, in not bogging down in the clutch and that has kept them in the running."

Having collected on what might be called the "sucker out" of one bet last year, Short-stop Lou Boudreau of the Indians is making a similar wager this season — at double the odds. In 1940, Boudreau and Second Baseman Ray Mack contributed five cents to a pool whenever either made an unusually make a mistake than a second sacker because he has to throw faster and farther. Lou had three less errors, 24 against 27, and collected at the end of the year, the keystone pair agreed to make the contribution ten cents for each bobble.

When the Oshawa Generals walloped the Montreal Royal Juniors 10 to 2 last night there was all the earmarks of that well-known "pile" adage connected with the results of the first game, when the Montreal Royals were trounced in the last nine minutes to win 7-4 on Saturday night. Sunny Glover and not often last night to prove to the Oshawa fans that there was much doubt as to which team will be in the Memorial Cup finals. Ron Nelson Sawyer and even the sulking McAtee were right on the bit last night as Tracy Shaw's secondaries went all out to pile up a score and double-cross the boys with their financial killing of last Saturday.

SPORT SPICE — Sydney Millionaires made it "all even" in their Eastern Canada Junior A finals with the Montreal Royals, winning 5-3 at Ottawa last night to square the series. Sydney goes to Ottawa in 48 hours—the Montreal Royals are Eastern Canada Junior clubs. On Saturday night the Royal Canadians and Juniors respectively won, 48 and 49 points in the Ontario Senior Dominion semi-finalists had taken the bitter edge off the Juniors' Success is fleeting—at least so the Royals believe. However, they're still in the running and in the race yet. . . . Joe Louis is about to risk (?) his title to-night at St. Louis, Mo., against the dumbbell-headed Tony Musto. . . . Maybe he "must," but he's the dumbest dumbell, eh, eh. . . . The boys still contend to pay the money they earned cash to support Louis' "sun-a-month" tour of the U.S. . . . At least the Brown Bomber is seeing America from the inside out. . . . Babe Ruth's barne predicts his Toronto Leafs will be in the championship series play-offs next September. . . . Well, what are ya waitin' for?

LETHBRIDGE EVENS SERIES

Regina, April 8—(CP) — Sheer courage and confidence carried Lethbridge Maple Leafs to a 3-1 win over Regina Rangers. New York Rangers Amateur Hockey Association Farm Club, here last night and put them on even terms in the Patton Cup Western Canada Senior hockey final. Rangers won the opener of the best-of-five series 1-0 Saturday night.

The series continues at Moose Jaw tonight. Should Regina there they go to Calgary for the fourth game Saturday night and the fifth, if necessary, Monday night.

Report Nazi Pressure Applied to Hungary, Bulgaria, Rumania

Berlin, Apr. 8 (AP)—Nazi spokesmen indicated today that German pressure diplomatic is being applied to Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania, but were reticent as to the results anticipated. All three countries are occupied by German troops.

Replying to a correspondent's observation that the Turkish press and radio were decidedly critical of Germany, a Nazi spokesman observed: "The press and radio are inartificial wherewith treaty obligations are fulfilled."

FRUIT WITH A ZIP

Ain't nature wonderful? It would seem as if they were growing fruits with a zip in Florida, although we are all entitled to our just suspicions. Evelyn Lang of Belleville picked and pictured two of the Miss's zippy fruit. This is one perfect day that will delight at any reader's breakfast table.

AT THE BELLE

"Footsteps in the Dark"

"Footsteps in the Dark" is the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre tonight. Errol Flynn heads the cast with Brenda Marshall for his leading lady. Also featured with them are Ralph Bellamy, Alan Hale, Jerome Cowan, Lee Patrick, Lucile Watson and many others. The film is a swift-paced mystery thriller, with smart modern settings.

The Belle also has a lively and a clever color fun cartoon "The Fighting 69th" and a Hall will be exhibited on the same program.

"Honeymoon For Three"

Laughter, gaiety and romance make up the sprightly story of Warner Bros. new comedy "Honeymoon for Three," which opens next at the Belle Theatre. Lee Bowman, star of side-splitting situations and to popular romantic interludes, the three slightly screwy people that are caught up in the mad adventure played by George Brent, Ann Sheridan and Cea Massen.

Color cartoons may be alright when you're in college, but when a fellow's been married for a year or two after you've graduated and claims you as her one and only, it's liable to lead to complications, especially when you've just been engaged to your beautiful secretary. That's the position in which George Brent, who plays the role of a popular author, finds himself in "Honeymoon for Three" which opens at the Massen plays the role of the glamorous co-college student who typifies what she is married to a very persistent husband, played by Lee Bowman. Ann Sheridan plays the role of Brent's secretary and is provided with plenty of snappy dialogue, which when combined with her specialty of acting, seems to bring heaps of favorable comment.

"Father's Son," Delightful Film

Boots, scrambling to get, which brings delighted readers young and old for your two bits limited, tired, human boys, has to his credit another story, to be filmed—"Father's Son." "Father's Son", which is announced as the co-hit feature.

The story is a delightful one cast Billy Dawson, a handsome, vital, boy actor who stole scenes before. The father's role is carried by the capable actor John Litel, and the mother is played by the charming British player Frieda Inescort.

Gas Pains Kept Him Awake Nights

"I had certainly become a real sufferer from gas and bloating distress," said Mr. Smith. "After my meals I'd get so full of gas and that I felt a choke-up feeling all the time from the pit of my stomach to my throat. And, oh! what pains from gas! Why, I'd get so full of gas following the meal that I could hear my stomach, and all of this would keep me awake nights. I got to a place where I was AFRAID TO EAT, for I knew what was coming to me.

"I tried so many things without results that finally I was nearly ready to find a medicine to help me, and then I read about Modby's Tonic. Well, sir, I'm glad I did, and I am here to say that it was what I needed. Now I don't have any bloating from my stomach and now I sleep like a log. I feel fine in the morning after I get up and feel like my stomach is right and feel fine in my bowels. So I gladly give you my statement and endorse this medicine. I think others who suffer like I did should try it."

Satisfaction and anticipation are plain on the faces of these soldiers at the dry canteen of one of the Canadian War Service centres at Camp Borden. Such canteens serve thousands of men daily, charge minimum prices and turn all profits, if any, over to a trust fund established by the Federal Government for the future benefit of men of the armed forces. At right: Doughnuts and coffee are not all that the Salvation Army provides for the troops. This organization with other Canadian War Services operates huge recreation centres solely for the welfare of the Canadian forces in Canada and overseas.

Learning lessons given by phonograph records keeps these soldier students busy in their off-duty hours. Over 26,000 men in uniform have enrolled for correspondence courses sponsored by the Canadian Legion. These men are ambitiously preparing for better jobs after the war is over. Contributions to the Canadian War Services Fund campaign now under way nationally will be used in part to carry on this educational work.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at pop smoking to himself in his private chair, saying, You know I'm no crank, Willyum. I mean if it was a simple question of the mere smoke from the cigar billowing out through the house, I'd just shrug my shoulders philosophical and it's all that nicoteen in the tobacco, that's my sole and only objection, she said.

I know just how you feel, pop said. I have the same reaction to eating at home in preferance to going out to a restaurant. I get just as much food in a restaeant and sometimes even more, but the only thing I object to is the difference in the meals, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum that's no comparison and you know it. Really, Willyum, I mean really, there's no reason why a man cant smoke all the cigars his fatsy dictates and still keep in step with the march of science, she said.

For Pete sake what do you want me to do, blow geometric designs instead of simple smoke rings? pop said, and ma said, Ye referring to a marvellous invention that takes practically all the nicoteen out of even the most harmful tobacco. I forget exactly what percent of nicoteen is removed, but I know it's 99 and a tenths fraction. They're already got cigars on the market with so little nicoteen in them that a baby could thrive on them, and the man in Hookbinders cigar department claims even the most dyed in the wool smoker cant tell the difference in the taste, she said.

I can imagine their dyed in the wool taste all right, pop said, Yes gods, have you gone and ordered me any of those smokeless wonders? he said, and ma said, Now Willyum, dont carry on, I've done my share and my conscience is clear, and if you lack even the broadmindedness to open the box why Hookbinders man will be only too happy to call and take it back.

Then I wish him every happiness, pop said.

Meaning he lacked the broadmindedness.

Nazi Strategy Aims to Separate The Three Allies

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, April 8 (AP)—One element of the German strategy in the Balkan war is quite clear. The crucial Nazi blow is falling on Greek Macedonia and Greek Thrace arms in the Struma gorge.

It is aimed at a quick break-through down that Bulgarian gateway to Salonika; to be followed by a turning movement eastward to seize the Vardar River gateway between Greece and Turkish Europe.

Failure of the Greek-British allies and Yugoslav forces holding the passes of the mountain ridges separating Bulgaria and Yugoslavia to withstand the attack would virtually cut Yugoslavia off from her allies. It would force in early abandonment of Salonika and compel Greece and Britain to make a lead-pitch stand somewhere in the rugged country west of the Vardar.

This is the hottest corner of the war map. Berlin admits determined Greek resistance and Athens declares the line has held in Struma gorge thus far, backed by British air forces battering at German troops trying to deploy through Rupel Pass, farther inside Greece, other than Royal Air Force units are yet engaged in hot clear.

Nazi Tactics Study

It is virtually certain, however, that final columns are also pushing westward from Bulgaria at many possible points from Greek Thrace to the Vardar Valley north of the hot corner. There are roads, trails and river valleys to exploit which such Nazi flanking operations to strike at the Vardar and sweep southward toward Salonika must be in progress.

Such a second blast push from the extreme southwestern tip of Bulgaria toward Greek Macedonia's eastern Yugoslavia seems feasible. It could be made simultaneously with the drive south down the Struma and if successful might enable the Germans to trap the Greek-British forces on the Struma front.

Yet there is this much to encourage hope that the main German stroke for a quick and decisive victory can be checked: Hard-driving Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontiers after the Nazi conquest and the map makers took special note of military features. They knew the commanding heights all along that border in the Balkans.

Berlin commentators explain that delay in Bulgaria's full participation is to be expected because the terrain there is the most difficult in the hilly terrain. It is rough country with generally poor roads, all mountain and valley and shot down. The Yugoslav slogan, "One mountain in north; three in south" was that of Serbian first Great War experience. It is repeated today because of the Struma-Vardar gateway region.

The Pasellian Technique

It is the Greek-British front and British leaders must have an eye to the advance just where the main blow would fall to outflank the Greek stand in the Struma gorge. Their dispositions there are still to be disclosed. Nor has Berlin disclosed the size of forces in the fight, so far as known, except to tell that Nazis are pressing the Struma front and bomb Sofia.

Nazi tactics against Greek-Britain & Yugoslav declaration that it is "open city," undefended, gives another grim, ominous hint of their purpose. It represents primarily a return to Nazi blitz methods so successfully in the Low Countries and France to drive civilian columns of refugees thronging all roads, seeking escape.

Germany's boast that it has virtually destroyed Yugoslavia and other communications over a wide front in two nights and days of ruthless air bombing is significant. Presumably the Nazis count as much on civilian disorganization as on blasted rail junctions to hamper Yugoslav army movements.

GREEK ARMY

It reported only that the German attack "was effectively continued" despite difficult terrain, blocked roads and "local counter attacks."

The Ankara radio reported heavy German losses in the Struma bridges on Greece and Yugoslavia.

Italy Impassive

Italy, too, evidently was imperilled in Albania by the German capture of Scutari, an apparent effort by the Yugoslavs to co-operate with the Greek-British defenders of Albania.

Capture of Scutari was reported in advices reaching the Yugoslav legation here from Cetinje, capital town of Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, also had fallen to the Yugoslav army.

If the Yugoslavs and Greeks can hold forces in the north, Ankara radio predicted, Italy will be unable to "save 10 per cent of her troops there."

At the same time, the Germans attained their mechanized forces, operating from bases in Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary, had penetrated 30 miles into Yugoslavia in their southward drive in the Nazi attack.

Berlin were no indications, however, that the Nazis had captured any major centers of communication either on the Greek or the Yugoslav fronts, and all reports—even from Germany—indicated that the most embattled nations were making a determined defense.

(Reuters News Agency quoted a Yugoslav General Staff report that slav troops had captured Scutari in northern Albania, fighting against the rear of Italian forces engaged with the Greeks on that front.)

British authorities said their chief concern was the safe withdrawal of the African campaign—new taking an active part in the Balkan war in Greece, and the Royal Air Force was trading blows with the German.

British, meanwhile, severed diplomatic relations with Hungary thereby paving the way for British attacks on Germany's ally in the country which already have been launched by the Royal Air Force.

The German thrust through western Thrace from Bulgaria appeared to be in danger of being stopped in order to the Aegean apparently was expected upon a strategic Greek retreat. Greek military sources said the defensible.

The Greek communique said "weak screening forces" had withdrawn "in accordance with plan" to avoid "useless sacrifices."

The Greeks also said their troops were inflicting terrific losses upon the Nazis in the Struma valley fighting. Greek soldiers defending the two forts were said to have been ordered to the last man. Many Nazi parachutists have been captured, Greeks declared, and 500 more Italians were captured in Albania.

Greek reports indicated the fighting in Yugoslavia came from German thrusts from Bulgaria. Reports received from the Yugoslav Government in exile in London yesterday started early Sunday morning.

Beyond saying their troops had penetrated 30 miles, the Nazis said of 30 miles in unidentified sectors the Germans were vague about their military progress.

They claimed, however, their air force had bombed the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade for the fifth time and said explosions were heard, fires and boasted it was shattering vital lines of communication.

Belgrade was said to be cut off from the outside world except by air, with the front, and telegraph and radio facilities were said to have been disrupted.

Sarajevo Raided

The Germans also claimed their aircraft had left in ruins Sarajevo, the city in Bosnia where the assassination of Austrian Archduke Franz Joseph touched off the first Great War in 1914.

The German propaganda agency DNB said that in eight days Germans nine more Yugoslav planes, bringing to 51 the total of aircraft destroyed in the air or on the ground against 46 here on the Greek front.

The Bulgarian High Command announced several persons had been killed in an air raid on Sofia, capital city, and that the Royal Air Force attack Sunday night on Bulgaria's capital city said they had bombed military concentrations, railroad stations and communications in the Bulgarian capital.

Reports from Budapest claimed 10 Yugoslav planes had been shot down in Hungarian territory in aircraft guns and indicated a state of hostilities had existed between the two countries.

All Greek Civilians Evacuated.

Los Angeles, April 8 (AP)—Speaking on French errors, Greece quietly has evacuated all civilians, including children from the Macedonian-Bulgarian frontier, Consul General Spyros P. Skouras of the Greek War Relief Association of America reported here.

Skouras called this the greatest, most dramatic evacuation movement in history.

Over night, cities of 50,000 population were drained of civilians and became ghost cities.

Northern Greece thus was vacated to its soldiers before the Nazis tried to move in, he said, and the move was not hampered by demoralized civilians, he added. Greeks are fighting. Speeding into battle, they did not have to share narrow railways with children, women and children hysterically seeking a refuge.

Skouras, talking with reporters after his arrival from New York last night, said the Greek people in Washington just had received this information from Athens and had authorized him to release it.

PLANE BREAKS

There were several eyewitnesses of the crash, the principal one being Leonard Mirton, on whose farm the plane crashed. He stated that he heard "diving and zooming at a height," when he first saw it and "suddenly the right wing dipped and fell in the air" and immediately the plane crashed. Mr. Mirton stated that a couple of times and then it crashed straight and level. Trooper Parker notified the authorities at the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, who started back through the lane in order to fill the machine and the pilot with gasoline and came with some difficulty, that Leonard found the flight Sergeant dead in the cockpit. He stated that the body of the pilot was still in the machine but being dead and terribly crushed from the impact.

It was impossible for any comment as to the cause of the accident, as other than a weeping wife to reach the scene and a wagon and team were obtained and the bodies were brought down the concession road to the Mirton residence and then taken to the R.C.A.F. Station, Officers' Mess, Trenton, where they were joined by Mrs. Parker and that of Broad to this city.

Sergeant Pilot Broad, who was instructing at the Trenton station, a month of Trenton on Monday afternoon, was promoted a Pilot Officer on February 13th last and was to be married to Miss Constance Hall of the Royal Canadian Air Force to-day. He was born in Cashel Township, Hastings County, a farmer's son, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Broad, Cashel. Deceased was educated in the public school and Trenton high school after attending school at Bancroft and entering teaching profession teaching for three years at Wellington Post Office and a year at Eldorado and then entered the R.C.A.F. He commitment was Principal of Bancroft Continuation School. On the conclusion of the 1940 teaching term he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. and was stationed at Jarvis, Regina Sask., Bruce Albert Sask., and was transferred to Trenton.

The late Pilot Officer was well known in Bancroft, especially in the community before enlistment and since joining the air force has earned the respect and confidence of his superiors and comrades. He was survived by his father, Bancroft, who predeceased him in 1939. He was a member of the United Church and surviving are a brother Mr. and Mrs. William G. Broad, Belleville, one son, Eugene, 10, with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Broad, Cashel, Bancroft; George Broad, Cadillac, Mich., and a sister, Constance at Belleville.

GREEKS

A pitched battle in the hills around Nevrokopi first went against the Greeks, but later was reported to have turned in their favor.

The German drive in the Struma region did not take the defenders by surprise, dispatches said.

Persons crossing the frontier from Yugoslavia said the German columns which crashed into Yugoslavia were large and for days before the attack soldiers, vehicles and supplies had rolled through the valley to the frontier.

Withdrawal of "weak screening forces" from western Thrace, announced by the Nazi DNB agency, described by the high command as "in accordance with our plan, and to avoid useless sacrifices."

Greek fortress area, mountain-rimmed valley of the Struma River from the Bulgarian frontier to the Aegean Sea, Greece's front line, and fort often fort there was reported to have withstood 48 hard-driven attacks by German bombers, tanks and infantry.

Clusters of parachute troopers were reported dropped from German transport planes behind lines, but these were being captured, a Greek spokesman said.

Strengthened by British

The Greek, whose defensive positions were being strengthened by a steady stream of British reinforcements, including veterans from the army of the Nile, reported counter-attacks of their own and of Yugoslav-Greek charges and hand-to-hand fighting raged in the mud heaped before the strong points they attempted to capture.

Fort Rupel and Kelkaya, outposts of the Greek defences just inside of the Greek frontier guarding the Struma Valley were the key to the Greek-Bulgarian frontier.

Beyond them, Forts Rupel and Usitsa withstood "intense bombardment from the air and heavy artillery" and beat back tank-led attacks with which the Germans tried to break a way through one of the few passes to the interior.

The High Command gave this account of the defence at other points:

"On the high Nevrokopi Plateau and at the Struma bridges we have managed to penetrate forts but, after fighting in the subterranean galleries, the attackers were decimated and the forts remained in our hands.

"Further enemy efforts in the direction of Fort Lake and Fort Rupel have been repelled, and many tanks were destroyed or stopped.

The moonlight also aided night fighters over the Homeland and five Nazi raiders were shot down.

Nine persons were killed in Northern Ireland when a German night air paid of the war. Northern Ireland had experienced sporadic raiding and last night the Germans struck at an unidentified town at midnight and bombed it for more than an hour.

Nazi fliers at the long night alert, had a brief daylight alarm in southern England.

Of other activity, the Ministries of Air and Home Security said: "Enemy aircraft dropped numerous sharp attacks no heavy attack was made on any one district, but activity was widespread over the country and incidents are reported from many parts of Great Britain."

Hospital Hit in London

Among these incidents were: A number of persons were killed and many injured in a town in southwest England (probably Plymouth). A town in northeast Scotland also was attacked.

Bombs fell on the brunt of raids on northwest England, though early said it was not considered a severe heavy.

London had its first bombing in 19 days—the first high explosive to fall near a section of the city. Two aged, killing one patient and injuring two others.

The central and a six-hour alert, ending at 5 a.m. (midnight E.D.T., Monday), at which time the all-clear over the city from time to time.

READY TO GO TO SEA AGAIN

15-Year-Old Youth Torpedoed Out of His First Transatlantic Ship

An East Coast Canadian Port, April 8.—(CP) — Fifteen-year-old Ralph Willson of Hull, torpedoed out of his first job on a trans-Atlantic ship, said Monday he is going back to sea again "if Pa'll let me."

Garbed in a Royal Navy uniform, the young seaman told how his freighter was sunk and her crew forced to spend about 40 hours in an open boat. He explained that he got the uniform by "singing for it" on the navy rescue ship.

"I didn't have time to be scared," he said, telling of the torpedoing. "We got into the boats in the water in three minutes. We weren't downhearted, though — we didn't have much hope of being picked up."

Young Willson said his mother died a year ago as the result of Nazi bombing. "I kept house and looked after little Colin," he said. "Now Dad's got to do the cooking too, and there's worrying over me. But I'm worrying more over them." He added he was going to contribute four shillings out of his meagre savings to the Queen's Canadian Fund for Relief of Air Raid Victims in Britain.

The Day in Parliament

(By the Canadian Press)

TODAY

The House will continue debate on the Government's wheat acreage reduction plan and will adjourn until April 28. The Senate stands adjourned until May 13.

YESTERDAY:

The House heard Agriculture Minister Hardy announce that the United Kingdom has added 30,000,000 pounds to the Canadian bacon requirements this year; Prime Minister Mackenzie King read a statement on the war in the Balkans, and expressed confidence in ultimate allied victory; debate on the wheat policy continued. The Senate did not sit.

London Military Circles Maintain Strict Silence

London, April 8—(CP)—Military circles maintained strict silence today on operations of the British army in Greece, but indicated the port of Salonika was only a minor point on the British strategy map. Salonika was the focal point in the last war," these sources said. "However, it may have lost something of its importance because it is in close bombing range from air fields in Bulgaria and is not immune from enemy attack, as it was in the last war."

It was learned in official circles that the foreign office still is in touch with the British legation in Yugoslavia.

For security reasons, however, these sources said they could not say anything about the movements of the legation or the Yugoslav government.

Had Weak, Nervous Stomach, Limbs, Back Pained Badly

Nothing Gave Real Relief for Ten Years, Says This Hamilton Man. Tells of Great Improvement in Health After Taking Syntona.

MR. CHARLES TEEPLE

"I can surely recommend Syntona after the way it improved my health," said Mr. Charles Teeple, Hughson street north, Hamilton, in a recent statement.

"I think my trouble was partially due to injuries received in an accident about ten years ago. It left me easily rundown and nervous and ever since then I suffered with stomach disorders, pains in my limbs and back. First I took getting headaches and pains in my back and more recently the pains went all through my arms and legs. I couldn't sleep nights, so I felt constantly tired and worn out.

"In all those years nothing gave me any relief. Then I started to take Syntona and the first bottle has helped me with the results I got from this medicine. I wasn't taking it long before my appetite picked up and my food began to digest, without all that stomach misery. I have also noticed that my kidneys are not troubling me. Don't get those dizzy, bilious spells like I used to and I feel better in every way that I did in years previously."

If you who read this suffer with disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, or any of their sour train of distressing symptoms, such as headaches, dizziness, nervousness or tired, irritable feelings, make up your mind to begin taking Syntona today.

Come to DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, Belleville, today, and get yourself a treatment of Syntona Herbal Tonic. The chances are that you, too, will say it is the best medicine you ever had the good fortune to use.

CHURCHILL WARNS RUSSIA NAZIS HEADED HER WAY

GERMANS ENTER GREEK PORT OF SALONIKA

British Complete Capture Of Italian East African Colony

Port Evacuated By Greeks Before Germans Enter

BERNE, Switzerland, April 9 (AP)—Hitler's mechanized forces have entered the Greek port of Salonika and advanced more than half way across Yugoslavia to within 31 miles of the Albanian frontier.

Greek troops defending the Struma River line were cut off by the German division which drove to the big Aegean port, cutting northeastern Greece in two, but the garrisons continued to fight on grimly.

British authorities said their mechanized expeditionary force still had not gone into action. Its whereabouts in Greece were not disclosed.

Other German forces drove across Yugoslavia to occupy Skoplje, rail town at the head of the Vardar Valley some 55 miles from the Bulgarian frontier, and swept on to launch fierce assaults on Katchanik Pass.

The Yugoslav high command said its forces had inflicted "enormous losses" on the advancing Germans and were battling fiercely against their drive toward Albania to join Italian forces there.

A British military spokesman here said "we have no indication that our troops have yet established contact with the enemy, nor is there any indication when that contact will be effected."

This was contradicted by Stefani, Italian news and propaganda agency, which claimed the Germans had broken through Australian and New Zealand troops in the Struma Valley.

Salonika, one of the ports of entry in recent weeks for the British Expeditionary Force, had been virtually evacuated before the Germans entered.

ATHENS, April 9 (AP)—With the same speed and power which smashed the Allies in Northern France, a German armored division has split northeastern Greece in two, but the British forces have not yet gone into battle.

Nazi mechanized forces drove a wedge into the rugged country west of Salonika, cutting off the big Macedonian port and isolating troops along the Struma River line.

(London sources said the Germans had entered Salonika.)

Off to the northwest, Yugoslav soldiers, after abandoning Skoplje to the advancing Nazis, were fighting in the mountains northwest of the town, a Yugoslav communique said.

These forces, the communique said, hoped to prevent the Germans from cutting the country in two. Despite "enormous losses", the Germans were said to have passed Skoplje, some 55 miles inside Yugoslavia from Bulgaria, to attack Katchanik Pass, 31 miles from the Albanian frontier.

A British military spokesman merely said no contact had been established with the Germans, "nor is there any indication when that contact will be effected."

Flat lands and good roads of the Vardar Valley, which the German army took after a surprise dash across southeastern Yugoslavia, enabled them to proceed at considerable speed after down toward Salonika.

Outnumbered Greeks were said to be fighting only a delaying action, and it was indicated they intended to give up Salonika rather than have it subjected to heavy fire such as destroyed it in the first Great War.

The Germans will find the city virtually deserted. Paul Thorne, American Red Cross representative in Greece, and one of the last to leave Salonika before roads across the Vardar Valley were all declared thousands were streaming from the Aegean seaport.

Many in Macedonia remembered the Bulgar occupation of the port during the last war when thousands starved, disease took a heavy toll and residents worked in labor battalions.

Resistance above Salonika gave way gradually as the German division, moving with the speed of the campaigns in Poland and the west, hit the lowlands where the Vardar empties into the Aegean, then wheeled eastward toward the city and Greek and British forces. Earlier, the high command announced communications with the Struma front had been broken.

ITALIANS OPEN EASTERN DRIVE FROM ALBANIA

Reports State They Are Attempting to Drive Wedge Between Greece and Yugoslavia

BRITISH ARMY INTACT

Wavell's Forces Believed Drawn Up In Second Line of Defence South West of Salonika

Berne, Switzerland, April 9—(AP)—The Italians were reported to have launched an eastward drive from Albania in an attempt to hammer a wedge between Greece and Yugoslavia by joining forces with a Nazi mechanized column, which already has moved west from Bulgaria more than half way through the 100-mile "waist" of Yugoslavia.

Indications that the Bulgarian army soon might take an active part on the side of the axis were seen by observers, meanwhile, in reports from Sofia that Yugoslavia had attacked Bulgaria.

Argument Over Religious Question Believed Motive Of Three Murders

Toronto, April 9 (CP)— Three murders among Eskimos in the Bloody Falls district of Rudolf Bay climaxed a battle between two families over the question "when will God come back to the earth?" Toronto Star said in a copyright story today.

An officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police now is on his way to the lonely spot to investigate the killings which were made known in a mackinaw messenger. It reached Ernest Riddell, the only white trapper in the district, 200 miles north of the Hudson's Bay Company post at Chesterfield Inlet, and from there it was flashed to Ottawa.

They kept themselves supplied with food for the expected guest.

Their religious belief was that God would not come in their time —"not for many-times-many-years" and that they would live to see Him. When the argument became heated blows were struck and two men and a woman of the family that didn't believe God was coming soon were killed.

London, April 9 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill told Britain today of the grave extent of Germany's smash through Greece and warned Soviet Russia the Nazi drive is heading her way.

In a war report to the House of Commons, Mr. Churchill announced German troops had entered Salonika at four o'clock this morning.

He said that "up to the present the British and Imperial troops have not been engaged" in the fighting in Greece.

He did not give any indication of what would be done with British troops in the "widespread battle".

Mr. Churchill declared there are increasing signs that Germany would pounce on the wheatlands of Russia's Ukraine. He also:

1. Announced British capture of the Eritrean port of Massaua and virtual completion of the conquest of Italian East Africa.

President Takes Exception To Action Of Some Newspapers

Washington, April 9 —(AP)— President Roosevelt took exception Tuesday to the action of some newspapers in publishing the recent arrival of a British battleship in the United States but he indicated he had no plan for any government censorship.

The President noted that some newspapers had reported the arrival of a British battleship in American waters and had carried editorials explaining why they did so. These editorials he said, were the lamest excuse to get right with the reading public that he had ever heard.

He added he had noticed that some writers had advocated the clamping down of legal censorship. Before considering a direct question, the President declared:

"I much prefer to go along with the voluntary censorship of the newspapers at this time."

Mr. Roosevelt inquired about the phrase "at this time," the White House said, but that could leave it out if they wanted to because nothing else was in sight.

IMPRESSIVE ASSAULT

Nazi Raiders Returning Home After Attacking England Met Near Air-dromes by British Fighters

London, April 9—(CP)—Powerful forces of Royal Air Force bombers raided the German naval base at Kiel again last night, also attacked Bremerhaven and Emden and bombed oil tanks at Rotterdam, the Air Ministry announced today.

The raid on Kiel, aided by favorable weather, was described as "even more impressive" than the assault on the preceding night.

The night's forays cost the R.A. five planes.

While the R.A.F. was pounding German targets, the German bombers marred anew at battered Coventry and other objectives in England.

Two German planes were reported shot down off the Welsh coast this morning, as an attempt to renew the assaults by daylight.

The Coventry raid lasted several hours. Damage was considerable, but it was feared casualties might be heavy.

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—Fireman Jack Lackie saved six children from flames on the third floor of their home here today, then collapsed and died himself as he carried the two from the burning dwelling. They were children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Whetley.

District Fire Chief Charles Baker credited a dog with awakening a family across the street who turned in the alarm.

Captured Massaua Can Be Used For Embarkation Base

British Regulars Can Be Released For Other Duties 'Where Need Is Greatest'

Cairo, Egypt, April 9 (AP)— British troops have occupied Massaua, chief seaport of Eritrea, virtually completing the conquest of Italian East Africa, the middle east command announced today.

The Italian defenders of the Red Sea port capitulated yesterday, a communique said, and the imperial forces quickly moved in.

With the fall of Massaua, the Italians have been routed from all their main bases along the Red Sea and Indian Ocean coasts and the capitals of Mussolini's three African colonies are in British hands. They are Addis Abeba, Ethiopia, Asmara, Eritrea and Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland.

In addition, the British forces have recaptured Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, which the Italians had seized early in the African war.

Today's communique said that pursuit of retreating Italian forces in Ethiopia "is being maintained."

London, April 9 (CP)—A reliable source said word was received today that British forces had captured Massaua, Eritrea's port on the Red Sea, completing the conquest of the Italian East African colony.

The days Free French and British Empire forces had been in contact with the outer defences of Massaua on the north, pictured the nearly fall as waiting for the Italians to surrender, but at the same time it was supposed that the garrison was making harbor works useless and preparing, faced in the Red Sea by a British naval force.

Now, except for mopping up, the Eritrean campaign is complete, the London information said.

The cleanup can be left to South African forces and native troops in the British aide, releasing British regulars for other duties in "areas where the need is the greatest," it was said.

Massaua could be used as a port of embarkation for troops sailing to the other areas (Greece and southeastern Europe).

The latest British success also was regarded in London as likely to remove the last United States objection to extending Lend-Lease help directly into the Red Sea to aid Britain in the Mediterranean zone.

10 U. S. Coastguard Cutters Will Be Released To Britain

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The release of ten United States Coast Guard cutters to Britain was announced at the White House today.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, told reporters the vessels have not yet been delivered but were being prepared for transfer under terms of the Lend-Lease bill.

He said he preferred not to disclose the names of the cutters but said they were built from 1928 to 1932.

No commercial ships or naval craft are involved in the deal, Early emphasized. Some of the cutters will be turned over to Britain immediately for use in the Atlantic, as was done in the case of 50 destroyers released to Britain in exchange for defence base sites.

The vessels will help replenish Britain's vital losses and aid in maintaining her transatlantic supply lines, whether additional armed craft will be transferred to the Canadian navy for convoy duty was not disclosed.

The cutters are armed but Early said he thought they had little more than one-pound cannons mounted on each. He said he doubted that additional armament would be placed on the ships before the transfer.

London, April 9 (CP). — The United States is turning over to Britain ten coastguard cutters to be used in anti-submarine work, informed sources said today.

Invasion Anniversary

(By The Canadian Press)

A year ago today (Wednesday) Nazi troopers occupied Denmark and invaded Norway in a lightning move to which this week's invasion of Yugoslavia and Greece, ending nine months of stalemate in continental Europe, bears a striking parallel.

The Denmark-Norway drive proved to be a whirlwind to safeguard Germany's flank for the attack on France through the Low Countries a month later.

The Yugoslavia-Greece drive today could be a similar feint to safeguard the German flank for an open attack on Turkey; with the Suez Canal and Egypt as the ultimate objective.

Then, as now, Germany engaged two adversaries at once on their soil with Britain coming to aid.

Then, as now, Germany charged British with "dispairing the neutrality" of the countries invaded.

Denmark-Danish Socialist Labor narrowly missed being coincidental. Denmark capitulated; Yugoslavia was on the verge until an internal revolt last month overthrew the men who favored giving in to Germany. Norway fought; Greece is fighting.

One major difference between the Scandinavian and the Balkan campaigns is in the British position.

Britain had no troops in Norway when a startled world learned Germany had set seized Denmark and broken the back of resistance in Norway. Today a large British force is in Greece.

BRIGADE ANSWERS SEVEN ALARMS IN DAY

Grass fires arising out of local householders' efforts to rid their lawns of refuse and dead grass continue to keep the local fire department busy, with four such alarms being answered on Tuesday. Three other alarms, making a total of seven, were also answered during the day, making it one of the busiest this season.

Late yesterday afternoon, firemen were called to 86 St. Charles St., the residence of Mrs. Annie Stapleton, to extinguish a blaze in the corner of the house which had caught fire from a bonfire burning in the yard. This was the second such alarm during the day, the other being at a Donald St. address in the morning. There was no damage arising out of the St. Charles St. alarm, stated firemen this morning.

FRANKFORD MAN HURT AT BRIGHTON

Stanley G. Brown, Frankford, driving a car belonging to Thomas Bata, of the same place, Sunday morning received a severe cut on the back of his head and possible chest injuries when in collision with a truck driven by Leland Bayham, Consecon, and owned by Ernest Hanna, of the same place. Brown was brought to Brighton General hospital and given medical care from Dr. W. J. Kerfoot, Prescott.

Bayham, who was driving north on No. 16 highway, was in the act of making a U turn into the fourth concession road when struck from behind by Brown's car, which was also travelling north. The truck, which was much heavier than the car, was driven along the road a distance of 40 feet on its right side by the impact, to a culvert, bounced back on its wheels and crashed into the ditch, coming to rest facing southward in the north ditch.

Damage of about $1,000 was done to the car, while the truck was also damaged. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Cyril Johns of the motorcycle patrol.

RADIATOR AND LIGHTS OF TRUCK DAMAGED

When an R.C.A.F. truck, driven by Percy McQoold of the Air Force, rolled into the rear of another truck owned by the Walker Hardware Company, considerable damage resulted to the front of the hardware vehicle at the intersection of James and Bridge Sts., early last afternoon. Both vehicles were headed north on James St.

McQoold approached the intersection and stopped his truck to observe the stop street sign before entering onto Bridge St. After he halted the vehicle the heavy truck rolled backwards a few feet, colliding with the front of the Walker truck, which had stopped directly behind. The latter vehicle was in charge of Frank Shane, Donald St. The headlights and radiator of the Walker truck were badly damaged during the impact, P. C. Wright reported after investigation.

In 1911 he went to Hume and started a general store there, which business he has since conducted. In late years under the firm name of R. E. Car Rolls Over After Rear End Crash
Colliding with the rear of a motor car, an automobile driven by Walter Evry, Dundas St., Trenton, rolled completely over into the ditch along Highway No. 2 immediately east of the Point Anne intersection shortly after midnight last night. Evry suffered the amputation of the lower end of a finger, while Mrs. Evelyn Campbell, Ridley Ave., Belleville, a passenger in the car sustained painful head lacerations and bruises. Both injured persons were struck by flying glass as the machine they had over into the ditch. Mrs. Campbell was treated by Dr. O. B. Sinclair at the Belleville Hospital. Mrs. Evry and P.O. Lewis were passengers in the car.
Evry was following another motor car driven by Lewis, a member, of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, when Turner was forced to retard his speed suddenly owing to the rough condition of the highway. Evry was unable to stop as quickly. Motorcycle Constable A. Slyfe alleged after investigating the accident, resulting in the rear end collision. Sir gave travelling in the Turner's car escaped uninjured.
Evry's motor car was badly wrecked as the result of the collision and rolling over into the ditch. The wreckage was later removed.

POLICE BLOTTER
While patrolling his beat along Pinnacle St. early today, P. C. Wood found a damaged bicycle abandoned at the rear of the Bell Telephone premises. Not wheels of the bike were badly damaged, indicating the wheel had been run over by a passing motor car. The bicycle was removed to the police station for safe keeping.
Belleville police report an epidemic of persons losing their wallets. Daily for the past week or more there have been at least one case of persons losing their purses or wallets and the matter was brought to our attention, considerable sums of money have been contained in the wallets," commented police authorities. A carelessness was inferred in many cases.
Three Holloway farmers, who were convicted of intoxication in Monday's police court, when they indicated they would not pay the assessed fine and costs, were handed the L.C.A. yesterday came forward and paid the fines. The men were immediately liberated from custody and returned to their farm environs. Relatives, it was learned, ran afoul of the law after imbibing freely, but not well, on Saturday last.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, leaving the cell block at the police station available for only five residents, who passed through the city.

Famous Empire Stories

Newfoundland—The Oldest Colony

Newfoundland, the tenth largest island in the world, and the oldest British colony, is the only part of British North America not touched in the Dominion of Canada.

The first white visitors to the island were Norsemen. As early as the year 1000 Leif Ericson and his companions made a short stay, named the island "Markland", the land of wood—though some say that Markland was Nova Scotia. Then, "like a flock of sea gulls", they passed and left no trace. Centuries later, five years after the discovery of America by Columbus, John Cabot sailed from Bristol across the seas and landed at Cape Bonavista. He, like Columbus, believed the New World to be Asia, and expected to find there silks, spices and precious stones. In this he was disappointed, but found something else of very great value. A certain noted Churchman, Raimondo di Raimondi, in a letter to the Duke of Milan, said: "They all firm that the sea is covered with fishes, which are caught not only with the net but with baskets, a stone being tied to them in order that the baskets may sink in the water". This was the first news of the greatest industry of Newfoundland—fishing for cod. Cabot called the island Prima Vista, which means "first seen".

King Henry VII had granted Cabot a charter giving him permission to go on this expedition of discovery at his own cost, and with instructions to set up the King's banner "in any new found land." On Cabot's return the king granted him the handsome reward of £10 a year. A later date he proved himself somewhat less stingy, but it was many a long year before the sovereigns of England fully understood or appreciated the value of this mist-covered land at the gateway of the New World.

The first known inhabitants of Newfoundland were the Beothuks, a race of red men thought to be a branch of the great Algonquin tribe, though this is not certain. They were a superior race of "savages", gentle, peaceable, and kindly disposed toward the white strangers, until compelled by these same white strangers to fight for their existence. Hunted and harried, crushed and despairing, they finally perished, the last survivor dying at St. John's in 1829.

Cabot was followed by Spanish, Portuguese, Basque and French adventurers. Jacques Cartier made a short visit, landing at St. John's Harbour in 1534. For several years England did not take very active interest in the New World, but to a certain extend English fishermen and merchants shared with others the harvest of the sea. Then in August, 1583, Sir Humphrey Gilbert, with authority from Queen Elizabeth, landed at St. John's and took formal possession of the island for England. It was considered that Cabot by his discoveries had won this right for England, and it was not disputed. As you no doubt remember, the brave Sir Humphrey Gilbert, on his way home was lost at sea.

For many years English and French fishermen sailed in the spring to Newfoundland shores, built rough huts to live in, caught and dried large quantities of cod, and sailed away again. Very few remained during the winter. In fact, strange as it may seem, they were not encouraged or even permitted to do so. The English "merchant adventurers" somehow got the idea that permanent settlements on the land would interfere with their trade. This trade brought much money into England, and the English Government allowed itself to be influenced. Laws were passed by which anyone was forbidden to go as a settler to Newfoundland, and fishermen were bound to return to England at the close of each season. There was at this time a scattering population, but no new settlements were allowed to be made within six miles of the coast; and a settler could not cultivate even a small piece of ground without a special licence. Such licence was very hard to get. While such selfish and harmful laws lasted, even though frequently disregarded by daring spirits, it was impossible that there could be much progress or development.

An effort had already been made in 1610 to establish a colony, John Guy of Bristol being the first Governor. He and three others who came after were friends of the struggling little colony, but from the reign of Charles to the beginning of the nineteenth century, Newfoundland was not given a fair deal.

Settlement was persistently discouraged by the merchant adventurers, and altogether strong ideas were spread abroad about the nature of the island. They made the very most of the fogs which frequently hang about the south-east and south-west shores. They said the island was rocky and barren, and its soil would not grow food for man or beast; that its climate was cold and dreary—that it was, in fact, fit for nothing but a fishing station, a convenient landing place upon which to dry and cure the products of the sea. So widespread were these ideas that even to this day, in the minds of a great many people the name of Newfoundland calls up nothing but that dreary picture.

As you sweep St. John's harbour in a steamer and dimly through a haze, perhaps, view the dark, frowning cliffs, you may think there is some truth in that gloomy picture of the stern, fog-bound isle. But journey farther up, along and around the deeply indented coast; travel far inland; travel right across the island and, you will find indeed a land of beauty rich in promise of future wealth. There are mines did forests, prairies of waving grass, wild fruits to be had for the picking, fish and that will produce grain and vegetables in abundance, mines rich in valuable ores, especially copper. The wild, rugged beauty of the scenery has been compared to that of Norway. As to climate, though bleak enough in the north, it is milder in the interior and the south than most parts of Canada. The temperature seldom falls below zero in winter.

One great hindrance to the advancement of the country, as time went on, was the "French shore" question. In the reign of Charles I the French established a settlement at Placentia. This from time to time was strengthened and enlarged, and before long the presence of the French became a serious obstacle to the safety and prosperity of the island. By the Treaty of Utrecht, passed in 1713, the French, while giving up Placentia, were allowed to fish along the coast from Cape Bonavista around the north to Cape Riche. They were allowed along this short to build huts to live in and stages on which to dry their fish. Also by the Treaty of Paris in 1763 the French were given the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon as fishing stations.

Little by little the French encroached the bounds of these privileges, until they even disputed the established rights of Newfoundlanders and tried to drive them from their own shores. The British Government was appealed to again and again, but owing fearful of causing trouble with France, took no definite steps to remedy the evil. Not until 1904 was an arrangement made which satisfied Newfoundland.

In spite of many difficulties the colony continued to grow. In 1832 the island was given Representative Government, and twenty-three years later, Responsible Government, which was a further advance. When the provinces united to form the Dominion of Canada, Newfoundland was, of course, invited to join the Confederation; but partly because Canada would not undertake to assume the whole public debt of the island, and partly because of a certain amount of distrust and lack of sympathy with Canada, the island colony held aloof. No satisfactory terms of union have as yet been agreed upon, but it is hoped by many on both sides of the water that Newfoundland may yet be one of us.

In the year 1901 an important link was forged by Sir Robert R. G. Reid, a wealthy Canadian contractor, certain extensive rights and privileges. By this Act, "the Reid Newfoundland Company (consisting of Mr. Reid and his three sons), by agreement with Mr. Reid, and with a capital of 36 million dollars, came into possession of over 9½ millions acres of land, with timber, mineral, and other rights thereon, and took over all existing contracts for working the railway, and mail and steamboat services of the colony, including St. John's Dry Dock and the St. John's tramways, as well as powers for electric lighting in the capital".

There was much dispute over this Act, but the colony was deeply in debt, owing to disastrous fires at St. John's, bank failures, and other causes, and Mr. Reid's money seemed to offer the only way out of the difficulties. However, the important works were begun at once, and a new era of progress and prosperity was ushered in with the new century. Newfoundland's days of obscurity were over. She was emerging from the mist.

It remains only to say that when the Great World War broke out, Newfoundland answered the call of the Mother Country and played a loyal and noble part.

LAST WEEK IN LENT

The Christian year has reached the last week in the period of Lent. The time is the most solemn not only of the season but of the entire twelvemonth. At its end will be the dawn of Easter, the day which brings the message and satisfies the hope man has of immortality or life beyond.

In this war year the trials through which the people are passing have created a form of Lent in the heart in the sacrifices and efforts made in the cause of freedom and justice. And while the people are passing through this period of stress and strain they are buoyed with the confidence of the ultimate triumph of justice. As Easter opens the vista of all eternity, so victory which the people are confident will come to the British and their Allies because of the justice of their cause and it is believed, open up the future full of hopes that will be realized.

Lent symbolizes struggle as an element of progress and development. Through trials and struggle to attain the best the individual and the race rise to higher things. A free people is willing to bear the burden of defence of those precious liberties which have cost men their lives to achieve and are ready to bear responsibilities for others.

Lent has a lesson for every man and every nation, that there are values which have been earned by labor and sacrifice and which must be maintained by a readiness to defend them. The season stresses the responsibility for these great privileges which man enjoys and gives the promise of victory for right. It teaches sacrifice for the sake of mankind, for the great lesson of Lent concerns man in his relationship to Truth, Justice and Goodness.

NAZI HYPOCRISY, INTOLERANCE

The actions of the Nazis speak so loud that it seems impossible that the Germans can believe anyone will be taken in by their contentions. Hungary did not believe them, Rumania did not believe them, Bulgaria did not believe them. They yielded to the Axis. Yugoslavia did not believe the Nazis and did not fall for their tactics. The Nazis have struck at them and the Greeks. But Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania are under the feet of the Germans and it is reported that new pressure of a diplomatic character is being exerted upon them. The three are not free, they can do nothing of their own volition. While the Greek and the Yugoslav are free to fight for liberty, the other three are under the heel of and obedient to the Germans to put chains on them as well as to try to put chains on the world.

The hypocrisy of the German claims about Yugoslavia, the lies being circulated about the treatment of Germans are nauseating, they are so ridiculous.

The Hun will show himself wherever he is. There is a German journalist who has been warned Switzerland to take another look on the example of Yugoslavia, whose inner unrest he charged "sabotages a policy of common sense," though the world knows there is no peace under a State slightly disguised pill of enslavement and surrender of liberty. An honest Swiss newspaper which took a democratic and sympathetic view of the Yugoslavians and praised the courage of their conduct was noted by the German writer who would suppress liberty. He cannot endure the thought of liberty and freedom anywhere on earth. An expression of freedom in a foreign newspaper upsets the tiger of Nazism to vengeance.

What must thinking Italians think of their companion, the German Reich, to whom the Italian is but another race which Germany would try to make one of the Nazi conquests!

Britain's budget shows that the basic income tax rate is to be raised to ten shillings on the pound or fifty per cent. This is proof of the determination of the British people that nothing will be left undone to win the victory. They know how to tax themselves.

All honor to the Yugoslavs who know how to treat the lying, savage Boche or Hun and the bombastic Fascist. Greece showed the world how a small people could defeat a race of sixty millions. There is no hesitation in these Allies. They stood up to the two bullies, Hitler and Mussolini, and defied them.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

This is about the time of the year when all ages of man get that itchy feeling around the cardiac region; go around looking through unseeing eyes, unless a perfect thirty-six crosses the line of vision, and in general behaving like a schoolboy in the first throes of puppy love. They make bigger fools of themselves than do the women, although the sweet young things, and wise older ones, should get credit for plenty of assists.

However, there is a gal friend of ours up around Dunville who has her own ideas as to what a man is. She claims men are what women marry though why they marry them, not even a woman knows. They have two hands, two feet, two eyes, though they seldom have two bucks. Like Turkish cigarettes they are made all of the same material. The only difference is that some have different mouthpieces from others.

Generally speaking they can be divided into three classes, Bachelors, widowers and husbands. A bachelor is a man who knows all the questions but is too suspicious to ask them. A widower is one who sleeps in a cold bed that used to be warm. Husbands are of three varieties: prizes, surprises, and consolation prizes. Making a husband out of a man is a work of art; making a monkey out of him is just a piece of foolishness.

It is considered conclusive proof of miracles that a soft, fluffy, tender, Evening-of-Paris scented thing should enjoy being kissed by a big awkward, stubby-faced, tobacco-scented thing like a man.

Men are paradoxical. If you chatter to him you will frighten him, if you don't you bore him. If you permit him to make love to you he will tire of you in the end, if you don't he will tire of you in the beginning. If you believe everything he tells you, you are a sap, if you don't you are a cynic. If you make love like sir amateur he is not satisfied, if you do your best he is sure you are blase. If you wear gay clothes and rouge a bit and have a startling little hat, he hesitates to take you out, if you wear conservative clothes, he takes you out and flirts all evening with the young woman who is wearing gay clothes, rouges a bit, and wears a startling little hat.

If you join him in galeties and approve his drinks, he swears you are driving him to give up his galeties, he vows you are snobbish and too damn nice. If you are the clinging vine variety he doubts if you have a brain, if you are modern, independent and advanced woman he doubts whether you have a heart. If you are silly, he longs for a bright mate, if you are bright he longs for a playmate.

A man is a worm in the dust. He comes along, wriggles about for a time, and in the end some chicken picks him up.

And along comes Bill the Bach, in rebuttal. Sa dam ile, he says. Women know why they marry men of my sepia. They go to college, work in an office, a hospital or a factory till they hook the poor sucker, then they are secure for life. They also have two hands, two eyes, two large ears, two feet and the same material. They, too, are made of the same material. The only difference is that some are different clothes-racks from others.

They, too, are divided in three classes: flappers, man-killers, and those with common sense. A flapper is one who stalks anything with pants on. The man-killer is one who wears the pants after marriage. Those with common sense clean the old man's pants after he is in bed.

If you tell them you love them after one year of marriage they'll swear you are drunk; if you bring home presents on an anniversary they swear there is another woman; if you don't, you don't live 'em any more.

If you tell them to shut up, they threaten to run home to mother; if you let the nagging wear itself out with no comeback, you're no fit companion for any woman. If you offer to take 'em out to dinner and a show, they start checking up on where you were the night before.

But, Bill says, yuh can't live with 'em, nor without 'em.

TWO ROADS

"There are two ways to go," Life said,
The easy and the hard.
And one is long and rough to tread
By difficulties barred.
The easy way is timed to pace
Safe and serene and common-place.

"The easy way abandons pride,
Ambition, wisdom, skill.
From what seems hard it turns aside
The lesser poets to fill.
You'll find its youngsters as a rule
Resent being made to go to school.

"Who takes the easy way must take
The proper rewards of ease,
The pay the unskilled hand can make,
And mediocrities are these.
The easy way is gay and loud,
And always peopled with a crowd.

"But worth is difficult to gain
And difficult to keep.
Progress is by stress and strain,
Great skill is never cheap.
Ambition's road through hard-ship lies,
Boy, take the hard way and be wise."

A Canadian Made Them Unbend

From the Edinburgh Scotsman

It was the Canadian who made us unbend. As a matter of fact, we are not at all sure that we want to be on a journey, rather to the arrow of those of us who regard train Journeys as heaven-sent opportunities for reading.

The slim little woman in the corner had offered me a bit of her fish, for we were cold. That was too much for the Canadian opposite, a woman with white hair.

"The very thing I was looking for!" he announced cheerfully, and produced another corner of fish. The fourth was then tucked round Another of the world's workers who sat opposite the rug's owner, if you get me. So that whenever anybody wanted to pass—well you can just imagine how he fleshed us.

The Canadian had been up in Aberdeen, and had found it a swell place. The was the end of his leave, and he was in no hurry to rejoin his unit in Jovial mood. At Dundee he was full of kindly memories for Jock, who had piled himself and his equipment into the carriage after bidding farewell to his family.

"You can't get home to Canada for your leave," said somebody, rather unnecessarily. No, but he'd only been away from home years last time, and he hope it wouldn't be that long before he left the job this time. Just joined up in a fit of bravado, too.

"Same here," said Jock from Dundee. He and two of his pals had put over the job. At least to see what they were made of, and secretly to their surprise, had been promptly accepted.

"Couple of mugs, weren't we?" said the Canadian, and he grinned at each other.

"Not more than British people," said the owner of the rug.

The owner of the rug was on her way back to London from the week-end. She looked fit after it had been driving an ambulance in Kent, the garden county of the war. This was the end of 10 days leave, the first she had had. No, it hadn't been dull at all. She couldn't get more so it was better than that. And as a matter of fact she had not read a newspaper or listened to a wireless since she left her work, and now she supposed she would just have to make up for it while in town.

Where did she work? In a submarine. Quite a secret, but not there there. It had made her smoke more than she should. To give herself courage perhaps, but she didn't believe in shelters. The rather big lady on the other ground, thank you. What were they like? Well, a bit of a stretch, eight to eight on alternate days, and she and the two other women on her shift had to sleep in camp beds where they could sleep if they had the time to sleep. Just dress, of course, in case of being called out.

There was no heating in the room, and it was a bit chilly in Winter, since they had managed to buy a radiator between them, and it fell to the middle of the overcoat provided was too thin for comfort. Oh, and they had to get self a warm one, and good overalls. Meals? Oh, they had a tea and supper at the canteen every day or so, and they were allowed to cook anything they liked to bring in.

Jock and the Canadian ribbed at her hard. Jock's D.C.M. ribbon was pointed out to the rest of us by the man from overseas. "Aye!" grunted Jock, and his face fell. "I'm going to tell us about how he got away from France to Dover in a boat," said the Canadian, "and how he and his pals duly admired Aberdeen's architectural treasures—one of which I didn't question him further, and went to some trouble to show off his city.

"Now, I like that in a boy!" said the Canadian, and he shoved a very fine pride in his city. A swell boy, that Jock. "Yes, sir. Write and address here, and I'll see if there isn't something I can send him when I get back home."

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Forgetting Wars and Strikes

Barnard, Vermont, April 9 — If preparing ore were done by Hungarians, Americans would never have been trucking across the ocean to participate in a quaint and fascinating custom. But, overnight from New York there is a landscape and a climate that, in these early days in April, beats any European winter hollow with which I am familiar. And now is maple sugar time.

Outside my north window are the kitting room, the thermometer records a temperature of forty degrees. At noon it must have been fifty. The sky is brilliantly blue, and little rills of water dance along the sides of the roads; the slopes of the hills are brown, where the snow has melted away, but on the level places it is still two feet deep, and where paths have been cut through they lie between snow walls shoulder-high.

The shadows of the bare trees are blue and purple and even rose, depending on the light, the sugar on the mountains are black against the snow. The air is so clear that only fresh smell of melting winter, and it seeps through the closed doors into a house that in his hundred years of life has never been warm. It is built of wood, and so inside as well as outside retains the odors of the seasons, peculiar to all ideas of human progress, it must be recorded that in this house, utterly comfortable though that condition requires that morning, noon and night, chunks of wood and maple be hurled into the hot maw of a stove that is the birth and apple on the open fire.

But the spring sun, made more brilliant by the reflection of snow through the east, south and west windows, is also the cradle of new sounds, is a healing plant in the soul.

I wanted to take my son, for his fifteen holidays, to Williamsburg, but he said, no, he wanted to go to Vermont, where is the white house in Vermont, and the farm, the cows, the sheep, the chickens, the ridiculous ducks, the swimming hole, the boy in the big, rag-carpeted room. I have an apartment in New York, and no place in any city, however large, is tucked into a mall-order house book, his ancestry is Vermont, and he is perfectly happy.

The summer's wide woods for us—a fricasee of home-grown chicken, and her own peas, string green beans, pickled beets, and apple pie. There are barrels full of apples in the cellar, still some Baldwins in April—Northern Spies, that spurt juice.

One can walk off a noon meal in the Vermont hills, and so to the sugar house. It's a pull on the boy's sled, and a stretch, for that hill. The horse and sleigh going to the sugar house have cut ruts in which the sled runs, every once in a while a patch of packed snow affords a place to get in to the knees.

The sugar house is small and red with a lean-to in which wood is piled. The door is open to the sun right through the centre of the house, and through the little open cupola in the roof, so we know the syrup is boiling.

Outside the chestnut horse is standing in the snow, munching hay from his exertions. The little red sugar house stands in the middle of a grove of trees with trunks like cathedral columns—these are maples, many of them a hundred years old. Buckets with little peaked hoods over them still hang against the gray trunks. My child knows not a cupful of sap will be wasted.

"Not running good yet," says the hospitable sugar farmer, who is "helping out." "A good freezing night and a warm day is what makes it run. Too much wind, and the sap is still too deep in snow."

Still, they have collected a tank-ful. The tank is of zinc and is perched on a cart on steel-runners. It is covered, except for a horizontal socket in the centre, into which the sap buckets are poured. Then it is drawn to the sugarer in the lean-to, of boards has been constructed, leading to an aperture in the wall above the brick kiln, and the sap is siphoned off into a trough which that empties it into the boiler. The boiler is made of sheet iron, divided into compartments. The fresh sap boiler along a lengthwise channel, siphons at a certain temperature into the next one, when, at another temperature into still another, then into another. A thermometer in the syrup may seem when it is finished. Then it is siphoned off into a drum through a thick strainer. My son draws a cupful, and the boiling syrup and stirs it into thickness over the stove outside, happy as a lark.

It will fetch ten cents a pound at least. It is made from the Co-operative. They will sell it to the manufacturers, who will mix it with corn syrup, and maple syrup is seldom "pure." Now it is the color of pale straw, boiled down into sugar it was the only sweetening the stuff farmers hereabout ever had, and the sugar roughly speaking, is the same thing on cereal and the best thing on pancakes, waffles and apples with.

So we will eat the new sugar tonight on waffles, for supper and my son will, very likely, have his many last year 'round? I could go to the Co-operative and buy it, but certain tears crosses his eyes, thinking of such a thoughtless suggestion. It is one-room school, but I'm not sure he isn't right.

Good men have come out of these hillsides—and are still coming. The farmer who drives us down the hill on the sleigh-cart is a woodsman, by the look of his pictures of Dante.

"Other than me! Anywhere," he says, blinking toward Mount Ascutney through the snow. "Anywhere. Sap will begin to run better. Going to be a good sugar year."

Mr. Chairman: May I use the term "unfair"?

The Chairman: No, because it would be an offence.

Mr. Colwell: Will the chairman tell me where I can find the word described as unparliamentary?

The Chairman: Any term which is offensive to an honorable member is unparliamentary.

Some Honorable Members: Oh, oh.

The Chairman: Order.

Mr. Martin: For instance, if you call a man a liar, that is not a very offensive.

Mr. Ferguson: To both sides.—House of Commons Hansard.

QUICK HELP FOR PILOT

Miss Ada Post Office Chapman was tracing a fault in a telephone subscriber's circuit in a remote part of Saskatchewan when a pilot was forced landing in a meadow. The pilot was not injured and stated that it was imperative for him to report back to his headquarters before dark.

The Post Office maid saw that years old trouble. She quickly checked the pilot's identity before agreeing to unmoor sanitaire. It was several miles to the nearest farmhouse. The maid climbed a telegraph pole and tapped into the subscriber's line with her phone. The exchange, answered and connection was made with a garage.

In less than 40 minutes the petrol had arrived and the mechanics had gone on its way.—London Times.

HORSEH OE NAILS

A press dispatch from Vichy reports a shortage of horseshoe nails in France.

The demand for draft horses has greatly increased all over Europe because of the gasoline shortage in the nations.

But draft horses must be shod and they can't be shod without nails.

The current crisis in France was averted when the French army answered the appeal of the ministry of agriculture and provided the farmers with horseshoe nails.

Before the outbreak of the war in 1939 the United States exported $180300 worth of horseshoe nails a year.

Greece was Uncle Sam's biggest horseshoe-nail customer.

Everybody has heard the old saying about a battle and a kingdom being lost for the want of a horseshoe nail.

This saying is ascribed to Benjamin Franklin.

In the preface of "Poor Richard's Almanack" of 1758 Franklin's Saunders, the fictious author of the almanac, quotes a man known as "Father Abraham" as saying:

"And again, he Richard advieth to circumspection and care, even in the smallest matters, because sometimes a neglect may breed great mischief, adding, for want of a nail, the shoe was lost; for want of a shoe, the horse was lost; and for want of a horse, the rider was lost, being overtaken and slain by the enemy, all for the want of care about a horseshoe nail."

The author has often been asked to what battle in history this saying refers.

It is not probable that Franklin alluded to any particular historical battle.

He no doubt merely drew upon his fertile imagination for an illustration for his precept.

A more elaborate version of the nail's disaster is often given as follows:

"For the want of a nail the shoe was lost; for the want of a shoe, the horse was lost; for the want of the horse the rider was lost; for the want of a rider the battle was lost; for the want of a battle the kingdom was lost—and all for the want of a horseshoe nail."

Who knows, the outcome of the present war in the kingdom of Greece may depend on an adequate supply of horseshoe nails.

Weddings

CRYMES—DEVER

A wedding of interest took place at the United Church parsonage, Picton, when Ola Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fairborn Dever, Picton, became the bride of Lac Smith Crymes, of Picton. Bombing and Gunnery School, son of Rupert Sydney Crymes of Calveston, Ontario, and J. P. Reyerat officiated.

The bride wore a Nassau blue suit, with matching hat and accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and sweet peas. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Crymes left for Toronto. The groom is taking a six weeks' course at McDonald Borden, after which they will make their home in Picton.

READ—HAGGARTY

Wooler (Special)—The United Church parsonage was the scene of a charming wedding on Saturday afternoon, April 5th, when the marriage was solemnized of Dorothy Mae, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt Haggarty of Wooler to Thomas Marcus Read, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Read, Wooler. The ceremony was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. T. R. Dyer.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of dusty rose silk crepe, dusty rose hat and gloves to match with a corsage of pink roses. She were the groom's gift, a gold locket. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Kathleen Haggarty, wearing a dress of powder blue triple sheer, hat and gloves to match and blue shoes, with a corsage of blue forget-me-nots. The groom was supported by Mr. Clare E. McColl. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a sterling necklace and to the best man, a collar-end holder set.

Later the happy couple left for their wedding trip to Kingston when they were guests at the home of Dr. Wilson. For travelling the bride donned a gown of Jade silk crepe, dusty rose and black trimmings. Her coat and hat were military blue with matching accessories.

KINGSTON ROAD W. I.

The Kingston Road Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. E. J. Gazley on Wednesday, April 2, 1941 for the regular monthly meeting. There being a good attendance the two quilts were finished in record time. These will be donated along with two others to the Red Cross.

The group consisting of Mrs. Gazley, Mrs. A. Collins, Mrs. C. MacDonald and Mrs. Bowen served lunch and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Two special meetings were held in March at the home of the president Mrs. C. MacDonald, Herchimer Avenue, for the purpose of quilting. The collection from these meetings is being used to buy materials needed in doing war work.

Construction has been begun in Australia on a new 625-mile highway to connect the railheads of the railways in Central Australia and Northern Territory.

Mrs. J. A. Dills Addresses Home-School Club

The regular monthly meeting of the King George Home and School Club was held on Monday evening, April 7th. Mrs. Greenwood, the president, presided over the meeting which opened with the singing of "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer in unison. The secretary's report was read and approved. The treasurer's report was read and adopted. The club has completed two layettes to aid in the War Project. The attendance award was won by Mr. Kells' room.

Mrs. Dills, the guest speaker, chose as her subject "The Triumphs of the Cross." The Master said, "Take Up Thy Cross and Follow Me." The Cross to Jews meant shame, desertion and death. If came to show the world a way to God. Love is the way. On the Cross Jesus became the Saviour of the world. The Cross forgives the greatest music the world has ever known. Many crosses have been borne by many renowned persons ages such as Martin Luther, Florence Nightingale, Livingston, Lincoln and many others. Each of us has a cross laid upon us by our Master which must not be evaded but triumphed over. England will triumph over her cross and come through purified and changed.

Mrs. Harrison moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Dills for her fine talk and Mrs. Chapman seconded the motion.

The Kingsford School Band rendered a fine contribution to the programme in their musical numbers.

Mr. Kells and Mrs. Johns expressed the Club's appreciation for their fine music.

Six girls in Grade VIII presented a short play, "The Mad Hatter" from Alice in Wonderland.

Mr. Brown had arranged a fine display of art and handicraft from Grades VI and VIII.

In closing the band played the National Anthem. Refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed by all.

Urging the Children at Meal Time

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Most children who devote over food, learned to do so because their parents were over-eager for them to eat well. If we could control ourselves in this matter his eating without too much encouragement, there would be few food problems.

Of a five-year-old girl, a mother writes: "She has the very annoying habit of playing with her food at a meal. She sits and plays with the food, sings at the table and keeps up a continual line of chatter, only taking time off for a bite when we persuade her to eat. As a result when every one else is through, she has barely started and after every one has left the table she is still sitting there."

Two significant items in the foregoing statements: annoying and we persuade her. A child could learn from experience that his one source of any emotional response to her way of eating, and that she would be told when to take a bit, she would probably eat about as she should. Just imagine the promptings. Before they all recorded for a meal, and then for all meals for a month. Wouldn't there be a good many pages, but oh, how monotonous the reading would be!

Create saving a word about the child's eating at the next meal tell her she will leave the table at the end of twenty-five minutes and that you will remove all food then. Have a watch. Give her no warning. Keep your word to the letter. Place before her one food at a time in very small quantity; the most essential one first. Should she eat all or 3 before the time is up, give her the next, and o on. If she doesn't, very well. Absolutely no food at all until the next meal. Keep no account of her objection. Don't even let her several weeks: for she may lose weight at first. Be concerned about her weight a month from now and six months hence. Should she go without food for three or four successive meals consult with your physician.

Solving Parent Problems

Q.—Would you send a child to bed to punish him?

A.—No; I feel going to bed might itself grow unpleasant. A good rule is this: Don't use as punishment what you want the child to like.

Q.—Please name a good way to cultivate in the growing child, a respect for other possessions.

A.—Show great respect for his not using or lending his things without first gaining his permission to do so.

Flattery in A Hat

By ALICE ALDEN

What with the scoop brim, the halo hat, the off-the-face bonnet, the clump of flowers, and the veiled models, it is pretty difficult to decide just what hat to choose for flattery and charm. But one bet sure bet this season is the hat with the softly shirred, rippled or irregular brim." A model on the order shown here is ideal for almost every type of face. It is of violet velvet with softly shirred irregular brim with a dramatic profile line. The hat is worn with a gray and violet veil suit with matching bag. Violet, by the way, is one of the most popular of the new colors.

HITLER SHOULD BE TOLD

—When I was in Northern Norway, several years ago I saw those daft little creatures—the lemmings. They are orange and brown animals, about as large as rats.

These lemmings breed quickly and they would become a pest in Norway if it were not for a strange habit of self-destruction.

Every few years, so I was told, a leader springs up among the lemmings. He leads a host of them to the sea. They all jump in and are drowned.

Why do they do this? No one knows . . . Perhaps shelly corpses lie on the sea-bed across the North Sea and invade Scotland.

Someone should tell Hitler about these lemmings before he sets out to drown the German Army.

Who Has to Pool Money For Useful Gift for Bride-to-Be

I am giving a shower at a hotel for several friend of mine, and do somuch need your help on the matter of making the arrangements It is to be a surprise luncheon-party. There will be about forty guests. And I have never given a party in a hotel before.

1.—Should I go to the hotel manager and do I up the head-waiter? How can I tell who is the head-waiter? Is it permissible to leave the tips on its table?

2.—Would it be correct to have a corsr shower table for the gifts? And could the guests be seated at the luncheon table as the bride-to-be come in, or around the shower table? Does the bride open the gifts immediately?

3.—Do we check our coats and leavour hats and gloves on before the host of honor arrives?

4.—And this is the most important question: I know just the gift the friend or mine would like, would find especially useful. It costs approximately forty dollars. Do you think it would be within the range of propriety for me to tell the guests about this, and ask them to contribute toward this "general gift" instead of giving individual ones?

5.—Is it necessary to invite her fiance to come in after the luncheon a over?

Lillian

It might be possible for you to have a special small private dining-room assigned to you. For so many guest the management would undoubtedly find it convenient to assign a private room for your party and his will add immeasurably to the intimacy and charm of your luncheon. When you have decided on the date of your shower, go to the hotel, ask for the "head of the banquet department" or for the "banquet manager," and make all prepaty arrangements with him. If it is the head-waiter, give him the tip at this time—two or three dollars. Tell him the number of guests; ask him to provide the flowers for the centrepiece or tell him you will send the flowers to him; ask him for suggestions as to the menu, and decide on these items; ask him about the coat-room arrangements, and so forth. You may ask him how to add to your check ten or fifteen per cent for the tips for the waiters.

3.—If you have a private dining-room there may be a small anteroom or space in the dining-room where you may receive your guests. Then it will not be necessary to have them seated at the table when the bride-to-be comes in. It is much more gracious to do the seating after the guest of honor has arrived. After the guests have arrived have the luncheon and then the opening of the presents. Yes, have a corner table for the gifts.

4.—I enthusiastically agree with the idea of your telling your guests about the "general gift" which the bride-elect wants and will need. If you give her this gift, everyone will be happy. By all means carry out this good and wise plan.

5.—Although it isn't "necessary" to invite the girl's fiance to come in after the luncheon it's a gracious bow to make to him. And, if he's like the usual fiance, he'll be delighted to come to pay his respects to his bride-to-be, to the hostess and to her guests.

Dread Paralysis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

We are always reminded by the President's Birthday Ball and this visit to Georgia of the ever present dread of infantile paralysis. The incidence of occurrence of infantil paralysis has not changed at all in the last twenty-five years because we do not know any practical methods of prevention.

Undoubtedly infantile paralysis is spread from individual to individual in a number of ways. It is not a very frequent disease and when an epidemic does occur it is probably spread largely by direct contact or cough droplets or in the breath, ir in the air of a badly ventilated room.

Investigation Started

One definite method of spread seems to have been discovered, which is that epidemics have been proved to occur from water contaminated with sewage. It is well known to those who study epidemics that infantile paralysis tends to occur in neighborhoods.

For instance, a case which started a line of investigation occurred in Connecticut in the summer of 1939. Attention was first called to this when a girl 18 years old was admitted to the New Haven Hospital with a severe paralytic form of the disease. She was the first patient with the disease to be reported from that part of the state for over a year. Another patient with recent acute paralysis was soon discovered in the same community in many members of the six related families who lived close by.

Fourteen cases were reported from the western part of Connecticut. The location of cases bore a very definite relationship to the banks of a stream or river which drains the sewage and industrial waste from the cities, towns and pantries from Waterbury.

Epidemics of this kind are by no means rare, and have been reported in Sweden, Germany and Rumania; also in various parts of the United States.

The virus of infantile paralysis can be isolated from this sewage water. It cannot be isolated from ordinary running water unless the water has been polluted by sewage.

I reported some of the preliminary work along this line a little over a year ago. Last year the American Medical Association gave a prize to Dr. Kling who had done the research work, which would indicate that it is considered to be very authentic and valuable and may be the beginning of our knowledge of the prevention of this dread disease.

Questions and Answers

O.W.—Is there any special diet for you? Has a stone or gravel in the bladder?

Answer—Many diets have been tried for this condition, but none has been successful in preventing the formation of a stone or its growth after it has once started to form.

R.M.—Is the frequent use of paregoric to induce longer naps inkrious to a child of two years?

Answer—Decidedly yes. Paregoric is a specially prepared tincture of opium and its use is likely to induce the opium habit. A child of two years certainly does not need anything to induce longer naps unless there is something very much the matter with it, in which case paregoric only masks the real symptoms.

L.K.—I am a girl of sixteen. How do they form, and what from? Do they ever form on the lips?

Answer—A cyst is an encapsulated collection of fluid. The simple cyst is a retention cyst in which the duct of a gland becomes closed and the secretion are dammed behind it. An example of this is what is commonly called a "wen" or sebaceous cyst of the skin. Cysts, however, can form in any part of the body due to the overgrowth of cells, which form the cyst wall.

P.M.—What is the best and most effective remedy for iron deficiency in your blood?

Answer—Iron itself can be obtained in many form of pills and is the best way of supplying the deficiency.

Fruit for every season is to be found in the delightful lapel ornaments now on the counters. Done in delicate enamels with well-cut stones are strawberries, cherries, blueberries and other fruits, some combined with wood or plastic stalks and green enamel leaves. Stream Lined 1?T-Sizice

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Says Expect Glamour in Girls They Marry

It seems, if anything remains after Hitler, Himmler, Rosenberg, Goebbels, Goering , for present-day world making, that they blame the unlovers on the motion pictures.

Why do girls leave home? Influence of motion pictures.

Why do aged husbands and wives see eyeinlike in the suprisingly who come to visit their sons and daughters. The inspiration for this is attributed to motion pictures.

Why do wives despire their humdrum home and imagine if they'd get their just dues they'd be dwelling in marble halls? Moving pictures.

Why do young men get in financial troubles and go to jail after studying the high finance antics of glamour boys on the screen? Motion pictures.

Perhaps the movies may be responsible for a trace of dissatisfaction with the two-room, kitchenette and bath. Or the little woman, after seeing and hearing Charles Boyer or Rober Taylor make love, may feel that the gentleman she accepted for better or worse has a good deal to learn in the gentle art of lovemaking. But not all the sins in the dreadgory can be laid at the door of the flickers.

Now along comes the American Association of School Administrators with a study of relations between school, family life and the child. Among their findings is this "exaggerated ideas of romance, which obstruct good preparation for marriage, are blamed on motion pictures that often teaching may be traced to the movies", says the Association, "because box-office appeal outweighs any tendencies toward presentation of normal family life".

I wonder! Because more than half of the letters which come to this column are not from girls who crave wedding dress, the gentle science of some synthetic palace to the Apollo Waiting among the expensive rug and bric-a-brac on the floor below, my correspondents want to know how they can make it perfectly plain to the favored boy friend that they are more than willing to take over the responsibilities of a walk-up, cold-water flat on the third floor of a grim apartment house.

The worthy educators recommend red hands, not lips, as especially an slaughter-house disposal. Less glamour and more dishwashing is what they have recommended after their extensive two-year study of conditions.

They have decided also that happier families would result from more education within the responsibilities of future wives and mothers. "Concentration in elementary education might help prepare girls to be happy homemaking. Instead of wondering how soon after the marriage ceremony they can get rid of the "old job". The report says further: "Education for girls has perhaps been pointed too much toward careers in lines other than that of homemaking."

As far as home-making is concerned, you've got to be invited to help make it happy. And that seems to be the headache of a good many of the girls who write me letters. The boys don't come across with an invitation to collaborate in home-making When they do invite someone to share the home, it is not the girl whose face they've red from dish-washing, but the one who has kept her nails and finger-fingernails, with lipsticks to match, the highest heels, the most delphanous gowns and all sorts of fol de rols. The sensible girl is left to sit it out at dances.

MURDER SAILS A TROOPSHIP

By A. W. O'Brien

CHAPTER II

A bull-voiced foghorn blared through the waterfront haze. From a distance two bells clanged monotonously. With them the last order turned up against the knife-edged February wind an army Lieutenant stood leaning on the deck rail as the blockhouse liner gently rose- and fell at the dockside.

The giant troopship had gone to sleep. The only sounds that came to his ears other than the bleak fog signals were the occasional, second of a sentry's boot on the deck or a muffled command from the general direction of the bridge.

He—couldn't see more than a baseball throw in any direction, but the Lieutenant knew a number of camouflaged ocean greyhounds were snuggling other piers. They had been there for days. The last hullabaloo of troops—this one from far off Alberta—had pulled in twenty-four hours ago and all ranks were aboard. Endless thousands of small arms ammunition boxes had been stored in the holds. Shore leave passes had been refused. All was in readiness to sail, but nobody knew when the zero hour would be —and even the Officer Commanding Troops. Anyway, he'd hardly tell even if he did know.

Strange, thought the Lieutenant, he had been terribly impatient about sailing until a few hours previously. Now the months of monotonous camp training followed by a busy embarkation leave in Montreal, Toronto and Victoria "Ashes Party" given in his honor by former college mates and an uncomfortable farewell dinner with his family in the venerable old Westmount home—all seemed to be a dim, unreal dream. Only the Pollish, Lieutenant Rollins, was real simply as "Ty". That was three days ago and the let-down after all the activity and excitement had been terrific. But things were definitely picking up. The reason was a blonde, certainly not more than 34, slightly taller than average but perfectly suitable for a six-footer.

The Lieutenant found himself grinning in the darkness. She was evidently of the action-minded type. like the co-eds in the advanced education departments back at University. But that dimple in her left cheek held interesting possibilities. He had learned it when she was only halfway up the gangplank and was trying to make out the color of her eyes when she had looked at him expectantly.

He had promptly raised a gloved hand to his service cap in an informal salute and added a wide smile for good measure. She gave passes like a veteran, refused all in readiness to sail, but nobody knew when the zero hour would be —and even the Officer Commanding Troops. Anyway, he'd hardly tell even if he did know.

He plunged briskly from the gangplank and onto "P" deck then marched briskly with his others to the stairway leading up to "A" deck. The Lieutenant's eyes followed her. She was undoubtedly the prettiest of the forty-seven hundred women at the

CABINET MEMBERS LAUNCH APPEAL FOR 116,000 MEN

Ralston, Power and Macdonald Say Recruits Are Needed for Army, Air Force and Navy

NEED 6,000 MONTHLY

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)— A call for upward of 116,000 men will be made during the current year to reinforce Canada's armed forces, it was announced' Tuesday night in a joint radio appeal for recruits by Defence Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Navy Minister Macdonald. Their speeches, each of ten minutes' duration, were broadcast over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Of the manpower required during 1941 the army will absorb up to 72,000, the air force approximately 35,000 and the navy needs about 9,000 officers and men, the Ministers said.

Launching the first public appeal for recruits since the outbreak of war, Colonel Ralston declared that the absence of pressure in the past had probably created an impression that men were not needed.

Under present conditions, the army alone would require between 5,000 to 6,000 every month for active service to fill up units already formed, or to add to them.

"We want to be absolutely sure that, come what may, every formation which Canada has pledged shall be kept up to full strength," Colonel Ralston said. "That is why the monthly quota is for. It isn't to provide new units.

Keep Army "Tuned Up"

"It is to keep that fine Canadian Army of ours here and overseas tuned up and ready for anything.

"In England, Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and the Canadian Corps have been given a vital part in the defence of Britain under Sir Alan Brooke. The events of the last week-end make it more necessary than ever for us to have our fighting forces, overseas and those which will soon go overseas up to full strength and to keep them that way.

"Make no mistake, that is more important for these next months than raising new units."

Colonel Ralston said members of reserve units with first battalions in the Active Army would be given an opportunity to volunteer for active service as the need arises for more men. It was impracticable for such units to have a reserve unit of the same name, but a plan had been worked out to meet the problem.

Under this arrangement volunteers from reserve units would be permitted to join active formations from the same Province, and, in some cases, from the same locality as their reserve unit. This plan of "matching up" every active unit with an active unit from the same locality would promote a spirit of Provincial and local pride.

There were vacancies in practically every district for all arms of the service, Colonel Ralston said. In seeking new recruits, however, instructions had been issued not to take men "if we think that a highly skilled tradesman, who is a key man in war production, can be of better service to his country just now by sticking at his trade for the present and giving the chance to serve to others who will make fine soldiers, but who can be better spared from industry," he added.

Hints New Service

Major Power said more than 50,000 men now were serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force. In ranging the quota of 35,000 for the next twelve months there would be no shortage of candidates for ground duties, while there was also a reserve of pilots, observers and gunners. Within a few months and every month thereafter there would be a growing demand for air-crew recruits.

The immediate and most urgent need of the Royal Canadian Air Force was for radio technicians, to operate a new scientific weapon against air attack.

"We are looking for 2,500 Canadians of good common sense who are ready this minute to volunteer for overseas service in a new service," Major Power said. "If do not like to overstate the case, yet I can say that it is of vital importance that we get these men and that we get them immediately."

The age limit for radio technicians would be from 18 to 45 years.

"The British Air Ministry expects great things from this invention," the Minister said. "The details of this work are, of course, secret, but I can say that in general terms it means that by using a great number of small radio sets of modern design, radio technicians posted at ground points all over the British Isles will be able to detect enemy planes in the air and direct anti-aircraft fire and deadly precision."

Careful Selection Policy.

Mr. Macdonald said there had been some disappointment among many eager to join the Royal Canadian Navy but for whom no place was available.

"Our policy has been and will continue to be one of expansion, but at the same time one of careful selection," he said.

Hints Shortage

Many of the most pressing needs of the Royal Canadian Navy was marine engineers with at least junior or fourth-class marine certificates. The immediate requirements was for 250 men in this category.

There were also an urgent demand for 200 high-class motor mechanics, and openings for shipwrights and cooks. Tradesmen in other categories would also be accepted and placed on a waiting list until such times as vacancies occurred.

Mr. Macdonald said that about two-thirds of the men already accepted for service with the Royal Canadian Navy had no particular mechanical or other training. Such recruits had become ordinary seamen or stokers second class.

With a waiting list covering candidates of this type, the Minister said it would be between two or three months before any new recruits without special qualifications were taken in.

Roosevelt Proposes To Buy 39 Danish Ships

Washington, April 9 — (CP)— President Roosevelt announced today that the United States is preparing to purchase the 39 Danish merchant vessels placed in "protective custody" 10 days ago and may seize outright the 28 Italian and two German ships which were taken over at the same time.

The President told a press conference he would ask Congress Thursday for legislation permitting the purchase or charter of the Danish ships and expressed his opinion existing laws could be used as a basis for the forfeiture to the United States Government of the Italian and German vessels.

There were reports that the Danish vessels would figure in a deal with Britain, either added directly to the British merchant fleet or used to release a corresponding tonnage of American shipping.

Picton and District

Picton, April 9—The April meeting of town council lasted until midnight with a variety of topics being discussed. Mrs. F. J. Webster, President of the Home and School Club, spoke of the need for a school nurse in the town and asked council to consider the matter. Mayor N. McKibbon, Reeve H. S. Colliver, Deputy Reeve Jack Welsh and Councillor Ralph Warren were appointed to investigate the matter more fully.

The Sir Thomas Picton Chapter I.O.D.E. wrote asking that a police woman be appointed to deal with the issue of soldiers and teen-age girls on the streets. This had become important due to Picton being a military town.

Council did not take any action on this matter, members feeling that a woman could not improve the situation. Mayor McKibbon stated that the fault lies with the children and their parents, not with the police or the men. Many girls looked older than their years he said. Reeve H. S. Colliver pointed out that the police should keep police informed of conditions while Councillor W. Hendy stated that if police enforced all the laws here a force of a dozen men would be required.

Several grocers were present and asked that hours of closing be regulated and council decided to draft a by-law presented at the next meeting. This would have all groceries and other lines of business if agreeable close at seven each evening except Saturdays, nights before statutory holidays and during Christmas week. The long hours at present were pointed out with many stores open after midnight on Saturdays, this making clerks work until one or two o'clock Sunday morning to clean up.

Mrs. Llewellyn Goodwin, Cherry Valley, entertained at a shower on Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Wharnby, a bride of Saturday. The guests were immediate neighbors. A happy social time was spent and during the afternoon Mrs. Goodwin read an address and Barbara Blakely carried in the lovely gifts in a basket decorated in pink. During the social hour the hostess was assisted by Miss Hilda Jordan.

Miss Carolyn Vanderwater, nurse-in-training at Picton Hospital, called on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Coulter of Rednersville, P.E.C.

Mrs. A. D. Vanderwater is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Coulter, P.E.C.

QUAKER GOALIE HIGHLY PRAISED BY NORTHCOTT

Coach of Rangers Says Saskatoon Netminder is Best Junior Out This Year

A NATURAL GOALIE

Winnipeg, April 9 (CP) — Lorne (Galdy) Northcott went out on a limb today for ageile Russ Dertell, Saskatoon Quaker goalie who was the No. 1 stumbling block in a row of impediments responsible for the downfall of Winnipeg Rangers in the second game of the Western Canada junior hockey finals.

"Dertell was certainly in there Monday night," said Northcott who coaches Rangers. "Dertell handed Rangers a sound 4-1 thumping Monday to even the best-of-seven series at one game each. Rangers won the first game 3-2.

"He played an exceptional game" Northcott said. Baldy played in the National Hockey League for a number of years, first for Montreal Maroons and then for Chicago Blackhawks, and has seen numerous "exceptional" displays in the big time.

"Of course, we don't know whether he plays like that all the time, but if he does all we can do is hope for the best," Baldy hoped as Rangers at every turn during the first two periods of Monday's battle, then scrambled, dived and belted his way through Saskatoon to turning aside 22 blazing shots in the final session.

Compared With McManus

"On his record last night he looked every bit as good as did Jimmy McManus last spring when Oshawa Generals won the memorial championship," added Northcott. Generals defeated Toronto Marlboros in finals here last year, winning the memorial Cup for the third straight year.

Asked whether he thought Dertell showed as much promise as did Turk Broda, now goalie for Toronto Maple Leafs in the Stanley Cup series here last year, Northcott said: "I've seen them all play and to my mind Dertell showed as much natural ability Monday as any of those fellows did at his stage of the game."

Third game of the series will take place here tonight, with the fourth, if necessary, Wednesday and the fifth scheduled for Saskatoon next Monday. If sixth and seventh games are required, they will be played here Tuesday and Friday next week on Quaker ice.

TWO-TON TONY GIVES UP GHOST AFTER 6 ROUNDS

Buddy Baer Awarded T.K.O. in Seventh After Galento Claimed Broken Hand

PURSE HELD UP

Washington, April 9—(AP)—His comeback attempt smashed by Buddy Baer's terrifical jabbing and a somewhat mysterious injury to his own potent left hand, Tony Galento was just another bandaged up heavyweight fighter today.

Tony claiming his hand was broken, quit after six rounds of a scheduled 10-rounder with Baer last night, and Buddy, the Livermore, Calif., giant, was awarded a seven-round technical knockout.

Dr. Marvin McLean, District of Columbia Boxing Commission physician, examined the badly-beaten Galento's hand in the ring as fans and officials crowded around. Dr. McLean refused to confirm Galento's claim of a break or serious injury and when Tony failed to appear early today for an X-ray examination as a hospital, the commission ordered the fighter's share of the purse held up.

To Open Inquiry

The commission announced an inquiry would be started to determine whether Galento was able to continue fighting.

Tony landed his left hand on Baer's face just before he went to his corner at the end of the sixth and claimed he was hurt. One of his handlers started to remove Tony's glove and when the bell rang for the seventh Referee Eddie Lafond awarded the fight to Baer.

Both Baer and Galento was bleeding from the nose and numerous small cuts about the face from the third round on. In the sixth, Baer landed a series of pile-driver jabs and twice jarred Galento with right hand smashes but Tony was ready to call it a night.

Baer's right jabs and occasional uppercuts, not of the knockout variety, were about all Buddy showed on his own. Unfortunately Galento at a distance after the second round couldn't reach Baer's chin to engage in reach. Baer, a 6-foot 6-inch giant, had a five-way seven pounds to Galento.

About 8,500 spectators paid approximately $25,000 to see the fight.

Hershey 'Jinx' Still Continues Against Barons

Hershey, Pa., April 9—(AP)—The Cleveland Barons probably are destined to be forever Hershey's town today on the shores of Lake Erie.

Their Hershey "jinx" kept them from winning the Intermediate Hockey League Championship again last night. Hershey won 4-3 in the deciding game of the playoffs at two games apiece. The deciding game will be played in Cleveland tomorrow.

It was once has Cleveland beaten Hershey here this year. It looked as the Cyclers had the edge when Cleveland won the first and second games of the series. Hershey then started the "jinx" workand overtime to keep the Bears in the running. It was a Cleveland player who kicked in the winning goal for Hershey last night.

With Hershey ahead, 3-1, in the third period, Cleveland's attack stopped three Hershey shots in quick succession. The third shot left the puck on Moore's pads as he lay on the ice. His teammate Harry Molyneaux, reached for the puck, but accidentally knocked it into the net. Then, with 2:30 to go Hershey, received credit for the goal.

This made the score 4-1, just enough for the Bears to stage a last rally that brought two goals flashing behind Goalie Gus Gallo. Gallo Damore to make save after save in the closing minutes to avert possible defeat.

Boston Bruins Well On Way To Recapturing Stanley Cup By Beating Wings In 2nd Straight

Bruins Punch Home Two Goals in Third After Detroit Scores Earlier

CLEAN CONTEST

Winning Goal Scored When Both Teams Were Short-Handed

Boston, April 9 (CP)— Boston Bruins today seemed well on the way toward recapture of the Stanley Cup they won two years ago, but as they head with Detroit Red Wings for Detroit and the third and fourth games of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final, at least one member of the Detroit team must have concluded that virtue has no reward.

Jimmy Orlando, Detroit defenseman, led the field in penalties during the National Hockey League schedule. Orlando went penalty-less last night when Bruins beat Detroit 2-1 in the second game of the Stanley Cup final. He had a similar spotless record when Bruins won the first game 3-2 on Sunday night.

When Orlando was playing around defence in his usual robust manner, drawing penalties right and left, Wings were successful. They finished third in the N.H.L. schedule, and while Orlando drew 35 minutes in penalties in the Stanley Cup preliminary games in which Detroit participated, Wings won four of them. Since he stopped getting penalties, Detroit has stopped winning games.

Orlando Plays Well

The burly one played a good game in Boston last night, starting the play for the first and only Detroit goal. He stayed on the ice and minded his business as Detroit beat off heavy Boston power plays throughout the game. But his revised attitude toward the opposition was of no value apparently.

Bruins socked home two goals late in the third to win the game and take a full-nelson on the series.

The United spirited Bruins staged a hard drive on the Detroit nets but a swift Detroit break counted the first goal when Orlando passed Syd Howe's rebound to Mud Bruneteau, who beat Brimsek from close in. Detroit showed all the fight and fire of winners for the next few minutes, then the Boston pressure began to tell.

Boston tied the score in the 14th minute when Terry Reardon converted Herb Cain's passout from a corner. Desse Smith had started the play, just after that goal. Reid Cain and Harold Jackson exchanged blows in centre ice and both drew majors.

For the next few minutes play was wide open. The winning goal came when both sides were short-handed. Roy Conacher, unable to get off the ice during a Boston line change, turned from the boards and sped in on the Detroit goal with Mill Schmidt. Just after they crossed the blueline Schmidt slipped over a short pass and Conacher won the game with a 25-foot drive that Mowers didn't touch.

PROPOSAL TURNED DOWN

Pembroke, Ont., April 9 (CP)— Pembroke Retail Merchants' Association Tuesday turned down the request of more than 150 store clerks that stores be closed at 12.30 p.m. each Wednesday except in December.

Members said, however, a concession might be made by extending the usual Wednesday half-holiday of the summer months from May to September inclusive.

LOUIS SLUGGISH IN BEATING MUSTO BY T. K. O. IN 9TH

By His Showing Brown Bomber Has Hard Time Summer Ahead of Him

MUSTO QUITE GAME

By HAROLD CLASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer.

St. Louis, April 9 (AP)—Joe, the fifth straight victim fed to the champion in his stop-a-month tour and it was an unconvincing and perplexed Louis who needed almost a half hour of action to win.

Great in the past against good foes, Louis was all at sea here Monday as displayed two weeks ago in disposing of Big Abe Simon at Detroit.

Musto's bobbing and weaving made the champion look frequently. The Chicagoan fought in such a crouch his head was almost at a right angle with his belt buckle and the opponent was the best to bury all the while looking at his shoelaces.

Despite the time Louis consumed there never was any doubt as to the ultimate winner. The 200-pound Musto had weighed in 17.472 customers who paid a gate of $52,283.75 to attend the show, many a majority didn't expect to go beyond the third round.

The champion, sluggish at 220 1-4 pounds, ought to be ready for a date with the dull Abe Simon in December only to "one" before the challenger, Jersey Joe Walcott of Camden, N. J., is allowed to be spent in the good old U.S.A. And there's another angle—the majority of the puck-chasing professionals are married men, so don't look for the cessation of hockey for the duration," continued Grant Ward.

The following interesting comment has been taken from Mr. Ward's article: "It has been believed about everywhere that the war will fold up the National Hockey League—that the best pro rink warriors will be in mufti years the war has begun to fall. I'm stepping up like a good reporter to say it's not so. The fact is that Canada's hockey heroes continue to dump good American dollars into the U.S. Treasury. Myself never be called to arms. And you can bet on that. Canada's prime citizemen of Canada are too astute to let a thing like the Japanese because your professional hockey player is bringing home some where between half a million and a million dollars—and I'm not kidding! (The Horse) Canning wasn't an outsider (which anyone could have told you) when he picked Musto to judge (flea)....But Bill still thinks he's a much better boxer than Louis and that he won't talk trade unless he gets as much as Louis' two managers from the other club....Joe Mc-Carthy's Yankees and Leo Durocher's are different....He has 14 pair glitchers in camp, and he can't quite decide which pair he's to decide which ones he will drop.

Today's guest star:
Zipp Newman, Birmingham News; "Fans hereabouts, thought Joe E. Brown's idea to have Shirley Temple Mack day was a swell one....Now of the Athletics would catch the spirit and make it Connie Mack year, it would suit him swell."

Bright Idea

Manager Johnny the Simon's manager, claims Abe really thinks he's going to be the next heavyweight champion of the world "I'm going to tell him different," adds J.J.J.... Jimmy Powers, who believes even the umpires should be seen as well heard on the National Amateur baseball tournament, will have his sixteen year old son Jimmy head to foot this year....Sorry to hear that Travis Jackson, the former Giants' infielder, has been hired as a sanitarium near Shreveport, La.

Joe hit Musto with gusto
And Galento was bent-o.

Bright Idea

The Italian Admiral was no feeling well. He consulted his doctor, who told him it's difficult to decide just what was wrong.

Suddenly the doctor's face brightened.

"I know exactly what will put you on your feet," he exclaimed. he said. "You must take a sea voyage."

"To my way of thinking, as long as the slick-handling professionals of hockey come home with big pay cheques, like a heckled husband on Saturday night, the game will be played in Canada, all of the nothing short of a world war is going to change the setup," Gene Ward, in the New York Sunday News recently when commenting upon the future of the N.H.L. might fold up another year owing to a shortage of players. "That an 200-odd men as soldiers compared to the American population of 130 million, and into Canada and circulating at present, is a mere drop in the bucket when only a portion is allowed to be spent in the good old U.S.A. And there's another angle—the majority of the puck-chasing professionals are married men, so don't look for the cessation of hockey for the duration," continued Gene Ward.

The local softball mentors are not exactly in favour of some of the proposed changes to the O.A.S.A. bylaws and playing rules, which will be brought up at St. Catharines on Good Friday when for the past two years the Toronto softball sponsors have been trying to enlarge the playing field, by making the pitching distance five feet longer and the base lines ten feet greater, to wit 60 feet instead of 50 feet, which is used in the senior series only. The local "remodelled" heads voted against such a change—"we would rather slow up the game," as Harry Rollins put it. Several other proposed amendments, including one to permit managers and coaches to sign expense certificates, over the fifteen player limit, in order to keep down the overlines. A more simplified matter would be to allow the managers and coaches to enter the coaching boxes without having to sign certificates at all, as the managers and coaches and managers could not include the latter in the game as a substitute player.

We presume fight fans would like to see Joe Louis complete a fight without the referee (notably Arthur Donovan) jumping in the ring because some stumble-bum has a bit of luck. It was just such a fight in St. Louis some creek-pot leather-slinger, by the name of Tony Musto stayed nearly nine rounds with the champ and Arthur Donovan called halts just because Musto had landed the game a subjective player.

Minor Raise In Egg Prices

Toronto — Further modest increases in egg prices were recorded on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, which coincided with the Ottawa announcement of a fair-sized egg order from the British Ministry of Food, continued on the seasonal decline and churning cream fell one cent, reflecting that movement.

SHORTAGE OF HELP FELT BY LUMBERMEN

Market for the five million feet of lumber cut from the northern sections of Hastings County is no source of worry to lumbermen, Reeve Hugh Ross Campbell said yesterday. A cut of one half-million feet from his own immediate district will find a ready market this coming summer he said, with soft woods being the chief demand. Hydro pole saw mills are already humming and will be in operation on a large scale for the busiest in years, Reeve Campbell stated, however, that lumbermen, like farmers are faced with a serious shortage of help, which this may affect the general output of finished lumber to some extent. The call for hard wood is not as heavy as it has been during the past few months.

Churchill's Statement In House Of Commons

London, April 9 (AP)—Partial text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today:

"The loss of Bengasi and the withdrawal from Cyrenaica by the German incursion into Cirenaica are injurious chiefly on account of the valuable airfields around Bengasi which have now passed into enemy occupation.

Apart from this important aspect we should have been content, in view of the danger which was growing in the Balkans, to have halted our original advance at Tobruk.

The rout of the Italians, however, made it possible to gain a good deal of overwhelming and cheaply and it was thought worth while to do this, although in consequence other obligations, already beginning to descend upon us, only comparatively light forces could be employed to hold what we had won.

The movement of British naval forces and armored troops from Italy and Sicily to Tripoli had begun even before we took Bengasi and our submarines and aircraft have had a steady toll of the transports carrying the German troops across the sea.

But that has not prevented, and could not prevent, the build-up of a strong armored force on the African shore.

With this force they have made a rapid and in some ways great advance and have taken back upon investment more defensible country...

It is fortunate that the Italian collapse in Eritrea, Ethiopia, and British and Italian Somaliland was liberating progressively very substantial numbers of British and Indian part to reinforce the army of the Nile...

Reverses Must be Expected

A fortnight ago I warned the public that in the circumstances reverses must be expected ... Since I used this language ... the Cherso has been sunk and Yugoslavia has come into the war on the side of the Allies.

Early in March we made a military agreement with Turkey and the considerable movement of British and Imperial troops and supplies began.

Turns to Yugoslavia

At last the people of Yugoslavia saw their chance. They threw out the Government which had signed a pact with the Germans which gave them the power those who were leading them to believe that they could be resolved at the 11th hour to guard their honor and their freedom with their lives...

Invasion Through Hungary

A heavy forward movement of the German armies through Hungary and in Austria, was set in motion through Hungary to the northern frontiers of Yugoslavia.

The open city of Belgrade was laid in ruins by the German air drive by the German armored forces which had advanced southeastward into southern Serbia ...

Greece, which we had striven to ward into Greece where they were at once unflinchingly encountered by the British and Imperial troops who had been sent to her aid.

The British and Imperial troops have not yet been present and engaged. Further than this, I cannot attempt to carry the tale. . . .

The German attack on the invasion of Marshal Petain that France would never act against her former allies or go to war with her former allies . . . Though I do not wish to speak for any government but my own—such a course might alienate from France the good will and the sympathy and support of the American democracy.

Must Maintain Blockade

Admiral Darlan has declared the Germans have been generous in the treatment of France. All the information which we have, both from occupied and unoccupied France, makes me very doubtful whether the mass of the French people would endorse that strange and sinister theory.

But I must make it clear that we must maintain our blockade against Germany and kept in contraband control at sea..... sometime ago we were ready to open economic negotiations with the French to mitigate the rigors of the blockade operations, but any chance of fruitful negotiations was nipped in the bud by "the gangsterism" and imperative orders were given from Berlin that Vichy break off all contact with us.

We have entered very considerable quantities of food to go into France out of a sincere desire to relieve the French people of every hardship in our power. However, it comes to thousands of tons of rubber and other vital war materials which, as we know, directly or indirectly to the German armies, we are bound to stop. Especially in connection with French warships at sea to enforce our rights as recognized by international law.

There is another action in which we have been forced by the dictation of Germany, namely, the destruction of the French warships which are unfinished or even damaged from the French armistice terms. The Commission of the French Government under German control or which is under the German heel will not order their control.

Commonwealth Will Follow

Such movements of French war vessel there may be, will not greatly alter the balance of naval power and would thus prejudice the interests of the U.S.A. and of Canada. I trust that such incidents will be avoided, but if they are not avoided, the consequences which will follow from them will be unintended and fully judged by the Commonwealth and the nations who are contending no less than for our own.

I am glad to be able to report a continued and marked improvement in the British Air Forces. The R.A.F. compared with that of September, 1939, is transformed in the remarkable increase in its numbers, power, in its high operating capacity and also a marked superiority which it has over the air arm of the bombs which we shall have to bring in even greater number, in some case of a new type.

In some cases the output of aircraft in our raids exceeded in severity hundreds of tons of bombs dropped in a single night experienced even in the last war. There has been a sensible improvement in our means of defense against air attack upon this island.

Daylight Daylight Great Help

A very great measure of security has been given to the country by daylight, and we are glad that the days are lengthening, but now the R.A.F. has gained in the longer light periods as opportunities for larger production of aircraft and aircraft guns and carriages, and three types of aircraft guns and carriages. Extensive orders also have been placed for four types of aircraft and aircraft bombs, machine guns, rifle grenades and mortars are on order."

PRACTICE SUSPENDED

Ottawa, April 9—(CP)—An official of the Air Training Plan said department said today suspension has been ordered of practice in home airplanes since the beginning of the month because of bad weather. Dates touring and coming to Canada for 6 months or more were ordered to be filled in detailing their expenditures in the Dominion, information stating the longer periods will be asked for this information.

$5,000,000 A DAY NOW BEING SPENT BY FEDERAL GOV'T

In One Year Orders Have Been Placed for $1,500,000,000

1,600 IN OFFICE

Ottawa, April 8—(CP)—The Munitions and Supply Department today celebrated its first birthday and its orders, placed for the Canadian and British Governments, now have reached $1,500,000,000.

"Purchases are growing so rapidly they are soon expected to reach $5,000,000 a day," the department said in a "birthday review" of operations.

Some 1,600 men and women are responsible for department operations under Munitions Minister Howe. A year ago 200 were employed in the department.

The department's review facts in its review of various phases of the department during the year:

Construction workers tackled a $150,000,000 plant expansion program; for industry and the armed forces they put up nearly 3,700 buildings and constructed 106 miles of railway line, plant extension and construction now is about $300,000,000.

The power plant program for manufacture of chemicals and explosives embraces some 18 projects and an expenditure of about $110,000,000. Five major and many smaller plants are either producing or will do so by October.

Shipbuilding Orders

The shipbuilding program, involving an expenditure of upwards of $150,000,000, is summarized as follows: Contracts have been placed, launched; minesweepers, 60 ordered, 20 launched; auxiliary vessels, three ordered and delivered; vessels under charge of navy, 27 ordered and delivered; also ordered as patrol boats, 12 special minesweepers, 10 corvettes and 4 frigates which are being made constantly under the $40,000,000 navy building program which includes the construction of numerous small craft, boom and pulling boats to fast torpedo boats. A total of 190,000 motor vehicles have been ordered for Canada and other Empire countries, and more than 100,000 have been delivered.

In two recent consecutive weeks, Canada Cement Company and its subsidiaries delivered more than 40 planes per week. At the beginning the year some 1,300 aircraft have been built in Canada, and several hundred imported aircraft have been assembled.

Aluminum plants now are producing 8ten guns, two types of antitank guns, 40 millimeter shells, varieties of aerial bombs, universal carriers, and armor plate.

"Short and Sandwich Depaxmin, "Canada will produce her first Bren and 2-pounder anti-tank guns. Work is in progress leading to the later production of cannon for use in aircraft guns and carriages, and three types of aircraft machine gun carriages. Extensive orders also have been placed for four types of aircraft and aircraft bombs, machine guns, rifle grenades and mortars are on order."

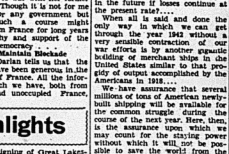
AFTER BLITZ ON ENGLISH TOWN



Here are two photos that are typical of hundreds that might be made after any bombing raid on England. The photos show wrecked homes and the beginning of rescue work in the LOWER photo they are shown after they reached the victim, and freeing him. With the aid of men on a stretcher workers set out for first aid station.

Importance Of Motor Truck In Commerce Portrayed To Members Garage Operators' Assoc.

The vitally important position which the motor truck occupies daily operating over our vast network of highways, plays in the industrial life and the lifewire in important part which garage operators and service men play in keeping these trucks on the road, was portrayed to members of Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators' Association at their monthly dinner meeting held at the Quinte Hotel on Monday evening, when in conjunction with other instructive movie reels, the picture "Singing Wheels" was shown by representatives of the Firestone Rubber Company.

"Singing Wheels" depicted the growth and development of transport service which today is instrumental in the progress of all parts of the country, and showed how modern civilization is dependent upon the motor truck to the extent that if they ceased to roll on our highways, nothing but chaos would result.

Commencing upon the picture, shown for the first time in this district, Mr. Lawrence Davies, of the Chrysler Corporation, who was a guest at the dinner meeting, stressed the importance of the motorized truck in present-day civilization. "The country could not exist without the automobile and truck," he said.

Mechanic Renders Vital Service

Mr. Davies said briefly in the rumor which recently has been prevalent regarding a proposed quota on the production of automobiles and trucks, that it would be necessary owing to the necessity for supplying an enormous war industry equipment. "If such a measure is necessary in the future, the automotive mechanic will be rendering a vital service to his country by keeping the present fleets of trucks on the road," he said.

With the exception of the hauling of reports of the last Provincial Director's meeting held in Stratford and of the March Directors' meeting of the local branch by Secretary Oriff Lloyd, there was very little of a business nature transacted and no Committee chairmen had little to report. "Scotty" Holway, of the Gasoline handling Committee, asked for more co-operation from the garages and stated that the Prince Faliwell reported that more than two tons of scrap metal had been collected in their scrap campaign. Other matters of interest were urged by Mr. Pollwell to see that scrap metal was delivered as soon as possible.

May Grade Mechanics

Bill Davies, who was at the next Provincial directors' meeting to be held in Stratford, suggested that it would be possible to grade mechanics according to their qualifications. Certain mechanics qualified as journeymen mechanics are not entitled to their certificates. Mr. Davies suggested that certificates be issued something along the lines of those granted stationary engineers. The motion moved by Kenneth Vivien it was decided to refer the matter to the next meeting at Picton.

Representatives of the Firestone Rubber Company were responsible for the showing of the picture, a program which consisted of the showing of the motion picture "The Road Ahead, Behind Performance," showing the advantages of farm equipment tired with Firestone tires due to the equipment. Visitors at the meeting were Messrs. Ralph Pratt, Edgar Switzer and Ken Mahood of the Firestone Company and Mr. Elmer Johnston and George Davies of Chrysler Corporation. Frank Pollwell introduced the guests while the appreciation of the meeting was expressed by "Casey" Jones of Tweed.

Musical entertainment was also enjoyed during the singing with "Toots" Holway and Charlie Bird as soloists and Mrs. Trevor Rollet as piano accompanist. In the absence of Mrs. Holway, Mrs. Jack Trudeau acted as chairman of the ladies' auction sale, amounting to $7.25 was taken to be forwarded to the Welfare for Victims' Fund.

Pack Of U-Boats Breaks Surface Midst Convoy

An East Coast Canadian Port, April 9 (CP)—Crewmen of a big British freighter which limped into this harbor told today the story of a midnight submarine attack which brazenly rose to the surface in the middle of their convoy and, eight or nine vessels, launched a torpedo at a British warship and then disappeared.

They said they believed the warship was damaged, for it was unable to proceed on her way from the scene of the attack, off Freetown, Sierra Leona, Africa. They said they returned to help after the assault.

Crewmen said their craft was out of the attack unscathed but that eight or nine other ships were damaged by torpedoes from the audacious U-boats. They declined to talk further about the incident.

Reports stated that the engine and front cars of the train passed safely over the broken rail, but loaded cars farther back left the rails and piled up alongside the tracks. Money bills were passed authorizing the government to spend $1,635,000,000 for war purposes — $1,300,000,000 for 1941-42 and $335,000,000 for "vote" additional costs in last fiscal year.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, and Trade Minister MacKinnon outlined 1941-42 wheat policy, including $40,000,000 acreage reduction scheme with bonus payments to farmers who use fewer wheat lands for other purposes.

Brass Smelting Dept. Of Belleville Foundries Damaged By Fire

Fire, believed to have started in the washroom as the result of a carelessly thrown cigarette gun, occasioned considerable damage in the brass smelting department of the Belleville Foundries early on Tuesday evening. Originating in one wing of the stage building the fire was held by the fire department from spreading to other parts of the foundry with only the woodwork, such as doors and windows being burned, while the roof also suffered considerable damage.

Engaged in vital war production, sabotage was first suggested as being responsible for the blaze, but all thought of this was dismissed this morning by Superintendent H. D. Willing, he being of the opinion that a carelessly thrown cigarette was responsible.

The fire started in the washroom as the result of carelessness on the part of an unthinking employee.

The fire was discovered by the night watchman about 7.30 o'clock on Tuesday evening, and he immediately sent in the alarm. Chief Fred Ponsford and his men were on the scene in a few minutes, and had the fire under control in a short time.

The two brass furnaces in the burned department, which were the property of commission, but employees worked steadily all night and this morning one furnace was back into operation. It is expected the other furnace will be operating again before evening. The fire will not hold up war production in any way stated Mr. Willing.

Actual damage occasioned by the blaze could not be estimated at this time, according to Mr. Willing, but thought with the exception of the destruction of the woodwork in one wing of the building. It is not expected the damage will be great.

IN MEMORIAM

HORNE—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Mr. A. G. Horne, who passed away on April 9 1938.
With tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you pass away.
We loved you with loving care
But could not make you stay.
We watched and saw your bedside
As the lonely hours pass,
And how our hearts were broken
When we saw you breathe your last.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss him,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say.
No one knows how we miss him
In a home that is lonesome today.

Canada's Salvage Drive Is Gaining Momentum

Organizations Must be Registered

Ottawa.—Coast-to-coast organization of Canada's official National Salvage drive is gaining momentum, Canada's salvage chief said today in a statement announcing that thousands of local salvage committees already have been formed.

Ottawa headquarters of the campaign to "get every ounce working" reports increasing numbers of urban and rural communities, organized to concentrate the idea must have had a knowledge of the mechanics of the machine and a keen mechanical mind. Behind the scenes the investigating officer as he reported the newest 'racket' of swindling the pin ball machine.

machine and a length of wire inserted. When the hole was drilled into the side of the machine is still a mystery, but was apparently done with a small auger.

After the hole had been bored and the wire inserted, the sharp end was then formed a nicked into the machine and proceeded to play it in the proper conventional manner. The "pay-off" came, however, when the little steel ball rolled into the No. 2 slot, then the inserted wire was brought into action by the player and the machine continued to "pay off" at an increased percentage, much to the satisfaction of the player, but to the chagrin of the operator.

P. C. Evans investigated the matter when it was reported to police, but the operators had made their killing and vanished. "It was quite a little scheme, but how it actually was operated is difficult to understand. However concerned the idea must have had

FOUR 'WOLF CUBS' IDENTIFIED AS DOGS

Four alleged wolf cubs discovered and destroyed in their lair in a field near Shannonville a few days ago by Roy Watts, Shannonville resident and a friend, were identified by Department of Game and Fisheries experts as being "quite definitely pups of a domestic dog species."

The information received by County Treasurer James Haggerty in a communication from the Department, stated that the wolf cubs, all of the same litter, were mongrels. The application for the bounty paid for the pelts of wolves, was naturally "turned down."

The lair was located in an open field.

It was thought at the time that the animals were the offspring of those that have been responsible for the killing of sheep, cattle and poultry in the district.

ONE KILLED AS EXPLOSION LEVELS TORONTO SEED PLANT

One man was killed and two suffered injuries in a terrific explosion which rocked houses, damaged nearby buildings and completely demolished a Toronto seed-cleaning plant, in one of the worst blasts in the city's history. Dust scorched in the air was blamed by investigators after a quick study of the wrecked building. Firemen are shown here pouring water on the wreckage and working to clear away the debris. At TOP LEFT is one of the injured men, his face cut by flying wreckage. Damage will amount to $25,000 or more.

RECORDING ONE MORE CHAPTER IN NAZI AGGRESSION

This picture, released by the German propaganda machine, and radioed from Berlin, records for history one more barbaric encroachment on free countries which would not how the knee to the Nazi war god. It shows German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, RIGHT, listening while an aide reads Hitler's message to his armed hordes poised on the Greek and Yugoslav borders, which sent them over the boundaries of these two Balkan nations. The group listening with Von Ribbentrop are referred to as news correspondents.

SCUTTLED NAZI STYLE WHEN PERU BO ARDED AXIS SHIPS

The German freighter S.S. Monserrate is shown burning and listing after the ship had been fired by her crew off Lima, Peru. The crew also opened the seacocks before abandoning the ship. Another German ship, the Leipzig, also was scuttled as Peruvian authorities began to follow the example set by the United States in seizing Axis ships in American waters. The Peruvian government also seized two Junkers airliners, hangars and workships of the German Lufthansa airline at Lima.

EXCESS PROFITS TAX IS CHANGED

Bailey Introduces Amendments to Curb Tax-Dodging Expenditures

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)—An outline of proposed changes in the Excess Profits Tax is before Canadian business today. It was given by Finance Minister Ilsley in the House of Commons yesterday in advance of the budget, to let business men know what is expected of them in respect to profits earned in the calendar year 1940.

While the amendments make no change in the principles of the act which levies a tax of 75 per cent on all profits in 1940 and succeeding years in excess of a pre-war normal, they do impose on taxpayers the responsibility of computing their own taxes and the pre-war standard of profits on which the excess profits are computed.

Thus persons liable to excess profits tax saw-to be treated in the same way as income taxpayers. They must figure out their own tax bill, pay them and let the government check up on mistakes later.

Returns and tax payments under the proposed amendments must be made by the end of the 6th month. After May 1 interest will be charged on remaining unpaid.

The amendments, Mr. Ilsley said, are designed to simplify administration and remove discriminations and inequities. From departmental sources it was learned no estimate could be made of their effect on revenue.

$5,000 Set as Minimum

One change, fixing $5,000 as the minimum standard profit, is expected to reduce revenue by exempting some small businesses from operation of act. Another, providing for a fixed adjustment of 1-2 per cent where capital employed is increased or decreased is expected to result in increased returns.

The changes announced will all be included in budget to be presented in the House of Commons on Easter, but will apply to 1940 profits. Other contemplated changes in the act which will apply to future profits were not revealed by the Minister. He said some would be designed to reduce deterrents to expanded production on the part of particular industries.

The Minister coupled with his announcement a vigorous denunciation of the practice of making industrial expenditures to avoid taxation.

He said he did not believe the practice was general, but there had been rumors that some firms were handing out more of which would otherwise go in taxation with lavish hands. Managers and directors who permitted higher costs because the burden fell principally on the government were "guilty of serious misconduct," he declared.

The proposed amendments make the standard period for the computation of pre-war standard profits the calendar years 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939, instead of the four fiscal years of the taxpayer corresponding to those.

They make a concession in favor of a firm which had an unusually bad year in that period, likely to drag its standard profits so low that the excess profit would be unduly high. If in any one year the profit is less than 50 per cent of the average of the others that year may be disregarde . and the average of the other years in the period taken as the standard.

Proposed Amendments

1. The standard period for computing standard pre-war profits for all companies will be the calendar years 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939. Under the present law it is the four fiscal years of the taxpayers corresponding to those years. In the case of a company whose fiscal year ended July 1, this pushed the standard period back into the middle of 1935.

2. Standard profits may be computed from the date of actual start of business, instead of the legal start.

3. Taxpayers who have one very bad year in the standard period may leave it out of account in computing standard profits, if its profits on one year is less than 50 per cent of the average of the other years the average of the other years may be taken as the standard profit.

4. In no case shall the standard profit be less than $5,000. The act already provides that excess profits are not collectable unless the taxpayer's income in the tax year is $5,000 or more.

(It was learned there are about 18,000 taxable companies in Canada, apart from individuals and partnerships, which may be taxable and it is estimated more than half of those had less than $5,000 profits in the standard period.)

5. Provision for adjustment of standard profits by increases or decreases in depreciation allowances, or other changes in those away with Mr. Ilsley said cases of hardship could be relieved by order-in-council. Under the old provision a taxpayer could claim an adjustment by asking that a charge made in the standard period, but not necessarily in the taxation period, be applied to the reduction of taxable profit.

6. Where capital in a business is increased or decreased, adjustments are to be made at a fixed rate of 1-2 per cent on the capital change, provided that if new capital to the extent of 33 1-3 per cent has been added the taxpayer has the option of being considered a new business and applying to the Board of Referees for a determination of the standard profits base.

7. In computing standard profits in such cases the Board has sole discretion in fixing a rate equal to the average rate of return of taxpayers in similar circumstances engaged in the same or an analogous class of business.

8. A depressed business applying to have a standard profit determined shall itself compute a standard profit and pay the tax based on it, but subject to refund if not less than 10 per cent on the capital employed.

9. Power is to be given the Board of Referees to ascertain standard profits of new and depressed businesses on some basis other than capital employed where the capital basis is so small that the capital basis would result in undue hardship, extreme discrimination or jeopardize the continuance of the business.

10. In providing against a decline in inventories a taxpayer may compute inventory values "on pricing prevailing either at the end of 1939 or during Augst, 1939 As the act stands, the end of 1939 must be taken. The amendment is designed to meet cases in which inventories were at the start of the war to December.

11. The excess profits tax will not reduce income of the profit of the taxpayer, but of a taxpayer whose profits were just over $5,000 under the minimum rule.

12. Provision is made to allow for excess profits paid by a taxpayer in other countries which allow a reciprocal deduction with respect to Canadian-paid taxes.

13. The definition of "capital" is to be amended to exclude deduction from original asset values of all depreciation reserves. The law, Mr. Ilsley said, is to avoid technical analysis of varying depreciation reserves taken by companies in years of profits and lean years of loss.

14. The definition of capital is also to be amended to allow non-interest-bearing debt of a permanent character from parent to subsidiary companies to be treated as invested capital rather than debts.

(This, it was learned, will meet the case of many United States companies in Canada and leave them here indefinitely.)

15. An amendment will make clear that the deduction of one half of dividends paid in a taxation year from capital employed applies only to cash dividends and not to stock dividends which do not reduce the amount of capital.

16. All these proposals will apply to profits of 1940 and succeeding years.

17. Every person liable to pay an excess profits tax has until April 30, 1942, to make his tax and pay it. After that interest on taxes unpaid will be charged at the same rate as under the income war tax act.

Marmora Resident Brings Back Wolf

Marmora (Special)—"He's probably the finest of the number I have seen in my lifetime." That is Sanford Lawrence who returned to Marmora village from Burnt Lake district the pelt of a wolf which measured approximately six feet from tip to tip. Sanford knows the territory better than the Burnt Lake district where about 12 years ago he made the headline through bagging five wolves. Sanford had been back looking over the prospects for trapping in the season would open. "It was the last day of March," he said, "when about three o'clock in the afternoon I saw where the carcass of a deer had been almost eaten up by wolves. I lihought I would hang around for a while so I sat down under a bushy pine. I kept looking for signs of any movement and after waiting for about two hours I heard the brush crack. I looked down a small gully where I had noticed the wolves had been trav elling all winter. About fifty yar away I saw a wolf approach' The wind was in my favour so h didn't sense my nearness to him. I let him come to about twenty-five yards and then fired I knew I was close to the heart and he turned right around. My second shot finished him." He continued, "I had to snowshoe a part of the way out. There is still about two feet of snow in some places in the woods." Burnt Lake is about twenty-two miles north of Marmora. Sanford is taking a trip to Belleville to collect the bounty, which has been increased on wolves this year to $25.00.

Lack Of Unity May Handicap Balkan Allies

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, April 9 (AP). — If Germany has captured Skoplje, as she claims, it will be a blow to the British-Greek hopes of maintaining effective contact with the main Yugoslav army. While southern Yugoslav city is a key road and rail junction in the upper Vardar Valley. It is from this direction that Greek forces already are cut off from all except the southernmost wing of the Yugoslav defence forces. It is through Skoplje that they look for pact to Skoplje, within some fifty miles of a junction with tottering Yugoslav armies.

An official announcement from Athens of Yugoslav withdrawal on the Greek left flank of the Struma defence line may prove even more menacing. It implies that a second and even more dangerous Nazi spearhead is pointed up the valley of the Strumica River to turn the Metaxas position and seize control of the lower Vardar Valley and the best gateway to Salonika.

The confusing and adverse developments suggest some confusion in British-Greek-Yugoslav operations, if nothing worse.

Allied armies always labor under the handicap of divided councils. There has been no hint so far that the Greeks, British and Yugoslavs have worked out a single command to meet the great German onslaught. Yet they are faced by an expertly staffed German war machine geared to a single command system. The loss of Skoplje might be attributable to just that kind of disadvantage.

There are hints from Berlin that the drive on Skoplje was the first strategic purpose of the German attack on Yugoslavia and Greece. At the fifty-mile gap between the Germans and the Italian forces in Albania can be closed quickly and a wide enough corridor carved through mountain country for transit of heavy German forces to Italian aid, the whole war picture for Italy will be reversed.

If a separate and powerful Nazi thrust up the valley of the Strumica River from Bulgaria into the lower Vardar Valley is in progress it is a deadly menace to the whole Greek-British defense position covering Salonika and eastern Greece. A general collapse of Yugoslav defence might l:: forced quickly to escape encirclement.

But there are still elements in the situation favorable to the British-Greek allies that certainly have not necessarily critical development for the Greek-British allies. If the Lower Vardar Valley is also seized however, there seems small hope that they can escape a general retreat westward.

In the meantime, no hint has come of British-Greek battle disposition beyond the defense of the Struma line. Neutral witnesses say the British forces are deploying into prepared positions in Greece or possibly in the Lower Vardar region of Yugoslavia, to collected battle between Nazi and British troops seems likely to develop for the first time since the fighting in Flanders.

HOUSE ADJOURNS FOR THREE WEEKS

Money Bills for War Purposes Outstanding Measure of Past Session

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)—With nearly three weeks of Easter holidays ahead of them, most members of the House of Commons travelled homeward today after completing the second stage of the present session of parliament.

This is the second long adjournment since the second session of the 19th parliament opened last Nov. 7. The first was from Dec. 6 to Feb. 17.

Adjournment was taken at six o'clock last night until three o'clock Monday afternoon, April 28.

Outstanding among the nine measures passed at this year's sitting were the money bills for war purposes, providing for the government to spend the unprecedented sum of $3,435,000,000, made up of $1,300,000,000 for war costs of the current fiscal year, and another $135,000,000 covers, the amount necessary to make up the total of the fiscal year ended last March 31, which totalled $835,000,000.

The Senate sat for only eight days last fall and nine days this year. It adjourned last Friday until May 12.

There were five government measures of a minor, administrative nature which remained virtually no debate, and four money bills including the two for war appropriations, one for $78,000,000 covering an additional sum for ordinary expenditures last year, and an interim supply bill authorizing the government to spend one-sixth of this year's ordinary estimates which have yet to be approved.

The 1941-42 budget will not be brought down until after the Easter recess but, breaking traditional

Practice Of Weighing Cheese At Montreal Criticized in Legislature

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—The practice of weighing cheese at Montreal for export was condemned in the legislature today by George Challies (Cons. Grenville-Dundas) told of instances where a producer in his constituency had to pay storage on cheese which has missed sailing because of delays in the necessity of making out innumerable forms that followed the weighing of his cheese at Montreal. After the cheese was stored for seven days, this producer had to have it re-weighed before he could place it on board the boat.

Mr. Challies also protested against the fact that Ontario had no representative on the Dairy Products Board. This province, he said, produces 75 per cent of the cheese manufactured in Canada and was entitled to representation.

Agriculture Minister P. M. Dewan said he had already protested against the regulations that call for weighing at Montreal and he was agreed that Ontario should have a member on the Dairy Products Board.

To clear up a matter that had the subject of previous inquiries, Mr. Dewan said that Prescott County had the highest cheese production in 1940 with 8,391,195 pounds.

Hastings with 7,640,485 pounds; Glengarry 7,493,987 pounds; Leeds 7,469,601 pounds; Stormont 6,907 pounds and Oxford 7,174,350 pounds, followed in that order.

THE WAR TODAY

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Allied troops today were believed speeding the departure of the Italian invaders of Albania towards the little country's borders while in Northern Europe the tempo and weight of aerial warfare rose and increased with clearing skies.

Yugoslav troops faced their Greek allies in applying new pressure on the Italians in Albania while in northern Greece the high command announced "our efforts to hold the enemy fasted many hours, but finally he advanced dangerously close (the distance was believed about 20 miles) to Salonika, cutting off communications between Eastern Macedonian troops and the rest of the Greek forces." Later advices reaching London said the enemy had entered Salonika.

British authorities, on the other hand, seemed signally unperturbed, merely calling attention in a British forecast some time ago that it might be necessary to abandon Salonika. Another of the communiques in the first Great bear its proximity to Bulgarian airdromes from which axis planes are operating.

The Germans meanwhile have driven across southern Yugoslavia and have reached Skoplje, important rail centre almost in the centre of the southern half of the country. The drive on Skoplje was believed part of a schema to cut Yugoslavia off from Greece and thus deprive her of British aid which normally would come through Greece.

Military observers in London — which today was attacked only periodically—almost began to believe what some more imaginative persons suggested — that Hitler was keeping his air force on ice and intended to let Britain have it all at one time in a grand spectacular finale to his effort to cross the English Channel.

A more reasonable answer is that Hitler and his friends have reasonably over-stated the size of the air force and the number of planes have not been over Britain in great number are two: They do not exist or they are away on another front and cannot be sighed for the British at the moment.

Italians today said they believed the British are retreating in Libya were playing a trick—retreating to draw the enemy deeper into Libya at the onset of the summer heat when it will be practically impossible for white men to fight there.

More Active Support Of Beaches Association Urged By Officials

Undismayed by setbacks due to circumstances and general lack of interest on the part of the public and city organizations, members of the Belleville Beaches Association will summer-proof one of the finest-late future.

The annual meeting is scheduled for the Y.M.C.A. at eight o'clock tonight and the general public is invited to attend.

Officials of the organization under the leadership of Mr. Reg. Moncrief, have been working quietly but persistently during the past three or four years in an effort to get an opportune place for the residents of the city to enjoy summer sports, swimming, etc., and for outdoor recreation.

With these efforts, Belleville's waterfront which has been neglected for many years, is gradually being reclaimed, and officials say that with the whole-hearted support of the city's residents and organizations the Beaches can be made a most attractive spot.

Thousands of residents, old and young, enjoy the cooling breezes of the bay during the hot summer months of 1940. The city officials feel will be willing to give full support to the association in the continuance of its work.

An excellent foundation has already been laid, but much remains to be done, it was pointed out. Funds are urgently needed, also the services of men, horses and trucks, for levelling purposes, hauling fill, planting trees and other necessary work.

Officers for the year will be elected at tonight's meeting, where any suggestions or offers of assistance will be gratefully received by Secretary Dave Fleming and Vice President A. B. Baird who have been carrying on the work of the association since last summer. Mr. Moncrief, removed to Ottawa.

Yesterday Finance Minister Ilsley gave details of proposed changes in the excess profits tax act. A little more than a week ago he announced the price of sugar would be increased one cent a pound at the source part of the twenty weeks of sittings just ended.

Other features of the period included hauling of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin power and waterways agreement with the United States.

There were 37 sitting days in the period since parliament reassembled Feb. 17, and 22 of them were occupied with debate on the war effort as well as on the war appropriation bills.

While there was no protest against spending such huge amounts for the Canadian war effort, opposition objected to the "blank-cheque" aspect of the appropriations and demanded details of how the money was to be spent.

R. C. A. F. Needs 2,500 Radio Men to Serve in War Against Night Bombings

The Royal Canadian Air Force is looking for 2,500 men to serve in the war of science against night bombings over England. The men will join the R.C.A.F. and receive immediately a valuable training in certain advanced phases of radio work with which will stand them in good stead for post-war jobs.

For some months now the Air Force has been recruiting trained radio men to serve overseas but it has used up that source and is now ready to take men who have no knowledge of radio work and put them through an intensive 13 weeks course at a Canada University and send them overseas in the R.C.A.F.

"The importance of the work in which Radio Technicians will be employed can scarcely be overestimated," said the Minister of National Defence for Air. He referred to a recent statement of Air Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, Fighter Chief of the Air Staff of the Royal Air Force, to the effect that a radio device had been invented to nullify the night bombers' threat.

The Minister mentioned that Canadian scientists, and to some extent United States scientists, have played a part in the further development of this defensive weapon, and it was to Canada that the United Kingdom authorities turned to get many of the personnel to operate these devices. Already hundreds of Canadians are serving overseas with this weapon but it is urgent that their numbers be increased very rapidly.

Universities at which these course may be taken are:

Dalhousie, Mount Allison, New Brunswick, McGill, Queens, Toronto, McMaster, O.A.C. (Guelph), Western, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia.

Applicants need only have passed their junior Matriculation, or attained the equivalent standard, to do this work. The age limit is from 18 to 45 with a preference for those between 20 and 27. The Medical standards are not as strict as for those entering aircrew but call for sound health.

Men recruited as radio technicians will be posted to a manning depot for one month's training and outfitting. Thereafter, they will be sent to one of 13 Canadian Universities where their technical training will be undertaken.

The R.C.A.F. recruiting office explained that this would mean a course of hard study lasting about 13 weeks, and much must be crowded into the short space of time allowed. A progress examination will be held five weeks after the start of the course so as to weed out those incapable of absorbing the instruction. Men failing in this examination will be granted their discharge if they desire it or are enabled to apply for other employment in the R.C.A.F.

Radio technicians will be regarded as aircraftmen second class standard group in the trade of Radio Mechanic. Graduates will be reclassified as Leading Aircraftmen. The pay of an aircraftman second class is $1.30 per day, and of a leading aircraftman $2.00 Commissions will be granted a small percentage of graduates possessing outstanding ability.

R.C.A.F. recruiting officers have been fully informed of this new requirement and are ready to receive all applicants.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Blondie Goes Latin"

In a merry medley of mirth and melody, the Bumsteads return to the McCarthy Theatre next to prove themselves inimitable swing-ing-singing-dancing stars as well as the nation's favorite family of funsters! Hailed as one of the most enjoyable comedies with music ever filmed, Columbia's "Blondie Goes Latin" is said to be a sensational, fast and furious piece of screen entertainment, which compares favorably with the best the year has offered!

Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Larry Simms are featured, with Jonathan Hale and Ruth Terry heading the stellar supporting cast. Famous on Broadway as a musical comedy star, Miss Singleton's screen fame has hitherto been derived from the effectiveness with which she portrayed Chic Young's newspaper comic strip character — "Blondie" Lake, a vaudeville song-and-dance star until he turned to acting, has also achieved success as Blondie's harassed husband Dagwood; but now Lake breaks loose!—to prove himself as versatile an entertainer as his screen wife. "Baby Dumpling" Simms embarks upon a stupendous comedy routine with equal efficiency, and sensational effectiveness! Daisy is world-famous as a Mexican singing star; Miss Terry is the young screen starlet "who also" tries success in the night club world for the catchiest hit which Frank Loesser ever penned! The numbers include "Querida," "I Don't Play a Drum (The Beat Till)" "Brazilian Coalition," "I Hate Music Lessons" and "You Can't Cry on My Shoulder" all by Bob Wright and Chet Forrest.

Action of "Blondie Goes Latin" takes place aboard a South American passenger liner, with Blondie and Baby Dumpling helping Mr. Dithers, Dagwood has to "escape from it all." Dagwood is supposed to be back at an office minding his own business, but he blunderingly manages to get aboard the vessel as a stowaway. Posing as a member of the ship's band, he attempts to evade Blondie and Mr. Dithers. The complications ensue, he becomes involved with the girl singer with the "San Francisco Docks"

Featuring an all-star cast, including Buster Keaton, Irene Hervey, Barry Fitzgerald, Raymond Walburn, Elinor Kalmich, Ed Gargan and Robert Armstrong, Universal's "Buck Privates Come Home" and "San Francisco Docks" will open on the same program with "Blondie Goes Latin" giving the most amusing cartoon offering in months "The War of all Pests."

AT THE BELLE

"Honeymoon For Three"

A double dose of fun fresh from Hollywood will make its local debut today at the Belle Theatre when Warner Bros.' sparkling comedy, "Honeymoon For Three" starts its run. The story tells of one of those long forgotten college romances that pops up at the most inopportune time. Just when Jan Sheridan, in the role of a famous author's secretary, has convinced her employer, an energetic writer played by George Brent, that he is his woman as much as his typewriter (maybe more so), that he ought to marry her, along comes a very pretty young actress, played by Osa Massen, who claims him as the only man suited despite the fact that she also has a husband. Result is an easy-going sort of fellow, very ably portrayed by Frank Ruggles.

"Honeymoon for Three" has all the qualities necessary for a hit comedy: sprightly dialogue, ticklish situations and performers who are completely at home in their roles as comedians. Brent is determined to straighten things out between his college sweetheart and his practical secretary but the more he tries the worse it becomes. When he assembles everyone at a cosy roadside restaurant for a final showdown, it results in one of the most hilarious scenes in this year's crop of comedies.

William Orr plays the role of a very determined young lawyer, who is more serious than capable in his efforts to get Ruggles as his client. He is encouraged in this futile act by perky little Jane Wyman. Lee Patrick supplies plenty of laughs as a mother who insists on honoring Brent with the dubious pleasure of christening her child.

"Honeymoon for Three" was directed by one of Warners' top notch directors, Lloyd Bacon.

Booth Tarkington's newest bad boy makes Warner Bros.' "Seventeen" which is the companion feature attraction, a delightful piece of film fare. The story is a sympathetic family tale told with fine understanding, and the cast is capable, including screen veteran John Litel, charming and attractive British actress Frieda Inescort and as the boy an impish, talented boy, Billy Dawson.

The Belle News of the Day, includes scenes of Wendell Willkie's visit to Toronto and other important international events.

A horseshoe shaped pillow has been invented to encircle the neck and enable a person to sleep comfortably while seated erect or in an inclined position.

Ten Nazi Bombers Shot Down by RAF In British Raids

British Night Raiders Strike At Emden And Vegesack Near Hannover

London, April 10 (CP)—The Royal Air Force dropped "powerful high explosive bombs" in the centre of Berlin last night and started large fires, the Air Ministry announced today.

Overnight attacks also were made on an aluminum plant in German-occupied Norway and a radio station in Denmark.

Eight planes were lost in these operations and in daylight assaults yesterday on Brest and other targets.

But 11 German bombers were downed in attacking last night on the English midlands and northeast.

The centre of the heaviest attack was Birmingham, where the damage was described as "considerable."

(The Berlin radio said the northeast town was Newcastle.)

It was the first British raid on Berlin since December 20. An informed source said that while the attack was not comparable in size with Norway's night assault on Kiel, "it would have been felt."

Smaller forces of British night raiders struck at Emden and Vegesack, near Hannover.

The 12 RAF bombers shot down in moonlight last night brought to 28 the number destroyed in the last three nights.

Berlin Admits State Opera House Fired And Destroyed By British Incendiaries

Berlin, April 10 (AP).—The magnificent German State Opera House, one of Hitler's favorite theatres, was destroyed and three palaces were damaged last night by British airmen in what the Nazi High Command acknowledged to be the heaviest raid on Berlin since the war began. One usual claim was made that no military damage resulted and D.N.B., the news and propaganda agency, said there were only six deaths in Berlin.

Emden, Bremen and several other vital war centres in northwest Germany also were attacked as well as Bellevue Castle in Berlin, the guest house for foreign statesmen, the report of whom was Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan.

The Nazis Opera House was burned out after a shower of incendiaries struck it. This morning a dense cloud of smoke hung over the centre of the city, attracting hundreds of the curious. Fire hose criss-crossed Unter Den Linden where the roof toppled off.

(The opera house is said to be confused with the Kroll Opera House where the Reichstag now meets.)

The former Crown Prince Wilhelm, now a stale gallery of modern art also was hit.

Times Pays Tribute To Loring Christie

New York, April 10 (CP)— The New York Times, in an editorial in the death Thursday of Loring Christie, Canadian Minister to the United States, said today:

The close ties that bind this country to Canada are symbolized in the career of Loring C. Christie. He was a Canadian by birth; an American by training. He married an American in the range of his interests and his business. Born in Nova Scotia, he received his law degree at an American university; he began the practice of his profession with a law firm in this city; and so "interchangeable" are Canadians and Americans in their adaptability and their points of view that for two years he served as an assistant to the Attorney General of the United States. It was not until 1923, when he was a little under 30, that he returned to his own side of the border to begin there a distinguished career that led ultimately to his appointment as Minister to the United States.

In that responsible post he played an entire part in all of the steps that have been taken to unite Canada and the United States in close understanding and to strengthen the mutual defenses upon which the democracies of the two countries rest."

NUMBER OF FIRES SHOWS DECREASE

Only 3,469 Fires Occurred in Ontario During Past Year

Toronto, April 10 (CP)—A big reduction in the number of fires in the province during the period last year is shown by the report of Fire Marshal W. J. Scott for the first time released by Attorney-General Gordon Conant today.

A total of 3,469 fires, with a loss of $3,204,172 occurred in this year as compared with 4,878, and a loss of $2,674,601 for the corresponding period in 1939, the report showed. No loss occurred in fires caused by faulty stoves and chimneys.

The fire with the greatest loss occurred on May 24, 1940, Rogers Hardware, Ottawa, where damage was $100,172 and the Imperial Bank of Commerce at Toronto, with damage of $100,000.

Fifty-eight persons were killed and 58 injured. No comparative fatality figures for last year were given.

It was announced regional schools for training firemen will be held at Kingston April 17-18; at London May 1-2 and at Timmins June 20-21.

7 British Soldiers Tell Stirring Tale Of Two Escapes From Nazi Captors

An East Canadian Port, April 10 (CP).—Seven British soldiers who escaped from their German captors and made their way through France to safety in England, told newsmen here how they foiled the Nazis for the second time on the winiest-hashed ship.

They arrived aboard a British warship, but not because they started out on it, the spokesman said. Their journey commenced on a little freighter which was blown out of the water by torpedoes from a German sub. Three of the freighter's crew were killed by the explosions, but the 20 sailors and the remainders of the crew took to the lifeboats.

For 36 hours they floated about, unprotected from the icy water and freezing winds, before being picked up by the warship.

When France collapsed they were captured by the Germans and marched across France to Germany. Just as they were crossing the border, the seven made a break for freedom by hiding in the underbrush along the road.

They went unnoticed and later some of them wandered through France for months disguised as peasants. They got a ship for Africa, and finally England. One was in Paris when the Germans rolled into the city.

ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR AUTHORITY TO TAKE OVER SHIPS

Order Would Affect Any Foreign Owned Vessels Lying Idle in U.S. Ports

QUOTES MARINE ACT

Section of Act Requires Compensation to be Paid to Countries Involved

Washington, April 10 —(AP)— President Roosevelt asked the United States Congress today for broad statutory authority to take over any foreign-owned vessels lying idle in our ports."

This authority, he said in a message to the legislature, should be subject to the payment of just compensation.

Although the President had asserted today he would recommend legislation to permit the purchase or charter of 29 Danish vessels which have been taken into "protective custody" by the coast guard, the request he made yesterday was not limited to the Danish ships.

Of the Marchant Marine Act of 1936 the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 which authorizes the construction or purchase any American-owned ship by the maritime labor commission, or when the national defense makes it advisable. The section provides for a method of compensation.

"There does not appear," Mr. Roosevelt asserted "to be any comparable provision with respect to foreign-owned vessels lying idle in our ports.

"In view of the growing shortage of available tonnage suited to our national needs, I am satisfied, after consultation with the heads of the interested departments and agencies of the government, that we should have statutory authority to take over any such vessels as may be found necessary subject, of course, to the payment of just compensation.

CARRIES SISTER THROUGH FLAMES

Toronto Girl Badly Burned as Fire Sweeps Through Toronto Duplex Apartment

Toronto, April 10 (CP) — Lying badly burned and unconscious in the hallway, Miss Myrtle Pomeroy was carried to safety by her sister, Muriel, when fire swept through their duplex apartment in a Toronto east avenue in West Toronto early today.

The fire also trapped their mother, Mrs. Thomas Pomeroy, who fought through flames to a front room and the police were contacted for help. Mrs. Pomeroy was rescued by firemen and a neighbor, Frank Peters.

Miss Muriel Pomeroy carried her sister through flames to a back porch, from where firemen took her down stairs and to hospital where she was said to have suffered severe burns to hands and chest burns. Miss Muriel and Mrs. Pomeroy were given first aid treatment and taken in by neighbors.

Turkey Finds 'Advisable' Withdrawal Of Portion Of Istanbul Population

Istanbul, April 10 (AP) — The Turkish government announced today that it "found it advisable" to withdraw a considerable portion of Istanbul's population.

The government offered to transport the people free into the interior.

The action was regarded as an indication of how seriously Turkey considers the threat of war to Istanbul, on the European side of the Bosporus, less than 100 miles from the frontier of Bulgaria and about 150 miles from the Eastern section of Greece, both occupied by Germans.

The city is feared particularly vulnerable to air attack. Its normal population is about 750,000.

The government's announcement said:

"It is found advisable that persons of the following categories living in Istanbul should be evacuated: Orphans, aged persons receiving civil or military pensions and those who are not engaged in defence industry; persons without occupation.

"Those persons, with their families, will be sent by government trains and boats to any part of the nation with the following exceptions: Tarsus, Izmar, Ankara, Erzerum.

"One hundred pounds of baggage per person may be carried.

"Three people living in Istanbul will be sent to Ismir in Anatolia, with the exception of Izmir, Ankara and Erzerum, will be allowed to do so on government trains and boats by application up to April 15."

Cordell Hull and Danish Minister Sign, Latter as Highest Ranking Diplomat Danmark is Occupied by German Forces

Washington, April 10 (AP) — Danish Minister, Hendrik De Kauffmann, who, Mr. Roosevelt said, acted on behalf of the Danish King.

In handing the President's message to the Secretary of State, Secretary Stephen Early said the agreement was "in accordance with the request the United States had received information that German planes have been flying over Greenland."

Hull said, he said, has been placed in exactly the same category as any other Atlantic islands owned by non-American powers. The President's message asserted, is in complete accordance with terms of the Monroe doctrine and with a declaration signed by the 21 American Republics at Havana.

While standing alongside a bread truck in front of her home making a purchase last evening, Mrs. Louisa Wilson, 69, of Bonarlaw was instantly killed when a motor car crashed into the rear of the bread truck in charge of Herbert Peters, 20, of Marmora, the force of the impact hurling Mrs. Wilson's body over 45 feet north of the truck, investigating police later revealed. Peters sustained serious injuries and was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital.

Police said that Peters' south bound bread vehicle was parked on the "wrong side" of Highway No. 14 immediately opposite Mrs. Wilson's home in Bonarlaw when Peters was making delivery of bread to the home being operated by the

NAMED CANADIAN DOROTHYS

Montreal, April 10 (CP)—The Spitfire that the Dorothys of Canada hope to name in honor of the Royal Air Force through the Wings For Britain Fund will be named Canadian Dorothys, it was announced here Wednesday.

MISSING BRITISH GENERAL FAMED AS TACTICIAN

Sir Nugent O'Connor Was Singled Out for Special Mention by Churchill for Success in Libya

REPORTED PRISONER

London, April 10 (CP)—The War Office announced today that one of the British generals missing whereabouts in Libya are unreported is Sir Nugent O'Connor, an outstanding tactician.

Three other general officers missing are Lt.-Gen. P. Neame, V.C. and Maj-Gen. M. D. Gambier-Parry.

The Germans claimed six generals, two colonels and 2,000 men had been captured at El Mechile, 50 miles southwest of Derna, by German-Italian forces.) In a broadcast Feb. 9 Prime Minister Churchill singled out Lt.-Gen. O'Connor and Lt.-Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson for special praise responsible under Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, for the success of the offensive which drove the Italian forces of Marshall Graziani out of Egypt and Libya.

Gen. O'Connor, who commanded the British forces in Egypt, is Deputy Commander of the Bath for his part in the drive.

Gen. Gambier-Parry, 49, is a tank and tank-gunnery expert and was one of a military mission which went to Greece soon after Italy's attack on that country.

Military circles said the axis forces now are sitting in Libya are unfarther from their bases than the British forces were at any time during the weeks of the campaign. If the enemy is now east of Derna, as is claimed in Berlin and Rome, he is well over 750 miles from Tripoli.

MacDONALD MAY BE GUARDIAN FOR EVACUEE CHILDREN

Question of Legal Guardianship of British Children Evacuated to Canada Under Study

RECEPTION BOARD

In Past Final Authority Has Always Rested With London

Ottawa, April 10 (CP).—The question as to the legal guardianship of British children evacuated to Canada under the Children's Overseas Reception Board scheme has been under consideration for some time by officials at the United Kingdom High Commissioner's office said today.

Reports from London said Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner here, was expected to become the children's official guardian.

Vincent Massey, former British representative for the C.O.R.B. in Canada who left Saturday to take up his duties as commercial secretary at the British Embassy in Washington, dealt with all matters pertaining to the children with an consular reference to Gerald Campbell, former high commissioner, it was understood.

In the past, however, the final authority always has been London.

Mrs. Thomas Snow, assistant to Mr. Massey will continue to fulfill the role that Mrs. Thompson played in Canada, the commissioner's aides said.

FIRE DESTROYS LARGE FOUNDRY

Loss is Estimated at $50,000 Stock Ready for Shipment Being Destroyed

Wingham, Ont., April 10 (CP) — The plant of the Wingham Foundry Co., was partially destroyed by fire early today, with an estimated loss of $50,000. The cause is undetermined, but the blaze is believed to have started in the basement of the plant with its stock of lead and benzine, by a spark from one of the lead pots and furnaces, ready for polishing and manufacturing into pipes.

It was the worst fire in this district in many years, and the glare was visible 30 miles away as the Royal Air Force school at Port Albert. All the Wingham firemen on the scene as firemen fought the conflagration.

The foundry firm has a payroll of 70 men, and here castings are made as the moulding room and manufacturing departments were saved.

The blaze started in the lead room and a recently-built spray-painting room was destroyed. Explosions of explosions rocked the building as the flames swept through the spray room, but no firemen were injured.

High winds from the north-west turned in the alarm when he smelled smoke near the black lead department. When Fire Chief James Carr and a crew arrived, the blaze had made such headway that firemen turned their efforts to saving the manufacturing section of the plant, and surrounding buildings.

Expensive patterns in the moulding room were saved, it was learned.

The foundry was established in 1904 and had been working at near capacity in recent months. General superintendent Fred W. Spry said an early decision would be made about rebuilding.

'Main Force Ready To Strike At Right Time And Place'

Fate Of Forces Cut Off East Of Salonika Still Remains Obscure

Athens, April 10 (AP). — The Greek army remains intact "to deal a decisive blow at the German invasion with allied support", Greek military sources declared today, despite the entrapment of some forces in northeastern Greece.

The fate of the forces cut off by the swift Nazi drive to Salonika still was obscure, but they were reported holding out late last night.

"The main Greek army will strike at the right time and the right place," the military informants reiterated confidently.

"The battle for Greek independence, first won on Mount Pindus—where the Italian attack from Albania was thrown back last October —will be repeated again on Greek mountains where in past centuries invaders have been stopped."

German long-carrying motor vehicles were "systematically machine-gunned" by British bombers and fighters in the Klikis and Polycastron areas, north of Salonika, a Royal Air Force communique said, although bad weather conditions interfered with air operations. German casualties were described as "heavy."

Bridges in the Aridopolis zone came in for special attention, it was said.

Today a Greek spokesman had said the forces cut off in northeastern Greece were fighting without hope of help from the main Greek army.

Salonika's Military Supplies Destroyed Before Evacuation

Athens, April 10 (AP). — With torch and explosives the Greeks destroyed everything of military value in the port of Salonika before abandoning the city, Greek Defence forces, Emmanuel Spanakis, Associated Press correspondent, declared on his arrival here today.

Spanakis, the last newspaperman to leave the city before the Germans entered, declared:

"I left Salonika on the last ship to leave the port.

"Explosions were roaring hundreds of feet into the air from blazing warehouses, oil tanks and airport facilities.

"Blasts from exploding dynamite roared across the waterfront as the cranes and everything of military value were blown up.

"Hours later more than sixty miles away, the flames still could be seen from a distance of more than sixty miles."

British Completing New Defence Line From Near Salonika To Chimara On Adriatic

Berne, Switzerland, April 10 (AP) —A German offensive that cut Greece in two and virtually isolated Yugoslavia set the stage today for a decisive battle between the Nazi military machine and Britain's Balkan expeditionary force.

The south eastern France and northern Macedonia engulfed in Hitler's drive to the east, the British forces were reported completing a new defense line stretching across the Greek peninsula from a point south of Salonika to the Albanian port of Chimara on the Adriatic Sea.

Although the Greeks asserted the remnant of their Macedonian army encircled by the German north of Salonika still were holding out in a fight to the death, it appeared that hopes for stemming the Nazi push hinged on the new defence line.

Reports from the front indicated that Yugoslavia would be compelled to fight a separate battle.

Official dispatches early today claimed the German and Italian armies, driving into southern Yugoslavia from opposite directions, were "on the point" of joining hands west of Stoujde, strategic city at the head of the Vardar River valley leading to Salonika.
